Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 94W, on inheritance tax, (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidance that informs Departments that it is normal procedure not to publish preliminary regulatory impact assessments; [82040]

(2) when and how his Department determined that it is normal procedure that preliminary regulatory impact assessments are not published. [82041]

Dawn Primarolo: Guidance on how and when regulatory impact assessments should be carried out is publicly available on the Cabinet Office website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/regulation/ria/

The decision not to publish preliminary regulatory impact assessments took full account of the criteria contained in the Cabinet Office guidance on when such assessments should be conducted, and when they are not required. To determine whether a change falls within the criteria or not, a preliminary assessment is undertaken. Where the preliminary assessment shows the impact falls outside the criteria, it is taken no further.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as in compliance with that standard; and if he will make a statement. [81192]

John Healey: The environmental management system in the Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards Road has been externally certified to ISO14001 standard.

Nuclear Deterrent

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what dates since May 2005 he has held formal discussions about the nuclear deterrent with Ministry of Defence (a) Ministers and (b) officials. [81842]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials discuss a wide range of issues with their counterparts in the Ministry of Defence and other Departments on a regular basis as part of the process of policy analysis, development and delivery.

P810 Form

Annette Brooke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how long it took on average for a P810 form to be processed in the last period for which figures are available. [81478]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs do not keep this information.

Personal Allowances

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of introducing a personal allowance of £7,185, absorbing the starting rate band on earnings and savings in the basic rate band, cutting the basic rate of income tax to 20 per cent., with tax rates on dividends unchanged, increasing the basic rate limit to £42,815, and keeping all age-related allowances at their current level; and if he will make a statement. [80665]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 29 June, Official Report, column 583W.

Personal Tax Allowances

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the personal tax allowances were for (a) a single person, (b) a single wage married couple, (c) a two-wage married couple, (d) a single parent and (e) a widowed mother in (i) 1976, (ii) 1979, (iii) 1980, (iv) 1983, (v) 1987, (vi) 1992 (vii) April 1997 and (viii) each year from May 1997. Prudential

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on which occasions in the last 10 years public funds have been made available to the Prudential. [81415]

Ed Balls: The Prudential is a global network of companies including a number of companies in the United Kingdom. The information requested can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Unemployed Disabled People

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many disabled people were registered as unemployed in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire in each of the last five years. [81468]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 3 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about unemployment. (81468)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The table, attached, shows estimates of the number of unemployed disabled persons of working age (males aged 16 to 64 and females aged 16 to 59) resident in Lancashire for the 12 months ending February 2001 to February 2004, from the annual local area LFS, and for the 12 months ending March 2005 from the APS. Sample sizes are insufficient to provide estimates for the Ribble Valley Parliamentary Constituency.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates from year to year should be treated with particular caution.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (ISA). However, the claimant count data are not available by disability.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps have been taken as part of alternative livelihood programmes in Afghanistan to address the extent to which opium is used to access services. [80433]

Dr. Howells: Opium is a major source of credit for many households in Afghanistan. It is used to lease land, purchase agricultural inputs and meet the cost of education and health services. Household dependence on opium cultivation for accessing services, and the opium debt which results from using opium as credit, are a growing problem in Afghanistan. Micro-finance can make an important contribution to addressing this problem and helping to promote alternative livelihoods to opium in Afghanistan. In 2005 the Department for International Development provided £5 million to Afghanistan's Micro-Finance and Investment Support Facility (MISFA) to introduce a special funding window to promote and enable the expansion of micro-finance in poppy-growing provinces. This financial support is helping Micro-Finance Institutions develop financial products that better meet the financing needs for alternative livelihoods and the problem of indebtedness. Moreover, the MISFA programme is providing a source of legal credit to the poor and people on low incomes to access services, thus reducing the demand for credit from opium and therefore reducing the risk of Afghan households losing assets or land due to opium indebtedness.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of whether agricultural reconstruction programmes in the Helmand province may have contributed to opium production. [80435]

Dr. Howells: At present some 80 per cent. of the population of Helmand are engaged in farming and a significant number are engaged in opium cultivation. The main contributing factors to opium production in Helmand result from the devastating impact of three decades of war. The conflict led to increasing poverty; a severe decline in investment in essential infrastructure such as roads and the Helmand irrigation system; insecurity and the lack of the rule of law; and the absence of a credible Government providing basic services. As a result, the people of Helmand have become increasingly dependent on illegal opium cultivation for income to meet basic needs.

The Afghan Government are looking to improve the situation for farmers in Helmand, but progress has been hampered by problems delivering Government development programmes there. To help address this problem, the Department for International Development will be spending £30 million over the next three years in Helmand through the Helmand Agriculture and Rural Development Programme. This programme will deliver assistance through the Afghan Government's National Programmes in the province. These aim to extend the Afghan Government's authority and demonstrate that they can be a credible provider of public services, such as the provision of safe drinking water, credit for investment in agricultural business and essential investment in much needed infrastructure, particularly irrigation. These are all essential elements for increasing the number of legal employment opportunities available to households and reducing the dependence on opium cultivation.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the political situation in Afghanistan. [80637]

Dr. Howells: Afghanistan has made significant political progress since 2001. Parliamentary and provincial elections were successfully held in September 2005. Parliament went into Session in December. Most Cabinet Ministers are approved and the budget endorsed. Afghan Government influence is increasing throughout the country with assistance from the International Security Assistance Force and the UN. As part of our efforts in southern Afghanistan, we are working to support Afghan-led reconstruction.

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what average hourly rate was paid by her Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81496]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) uses various agencies under the National Framework for Temporary Staff. The majority are employed at grade A2 (administrative officer) level. Although rates between agencies vary depending on the assignment, the three agencies most commonly used by the FCO are charged an average hourly rate of £13.74 in 2005-06.

Antarctic Treaty

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the (a) administering and (b) effectiveness of the Antarctic Treaty in relation to environmental protection. [79015]

Mr. Hoon: The Protocol on Environmental Protection to the Antarctic Treaty was signed in 1991. By the commencement of the 29th Antarctic Treaty Consultative Meeting in Edinburgh from 12 to 23 June 2006, all 28 consultative parties to the treaty, as well as 4 non-consultative parties, had ratified the Protocol. The United Kingdom ratified the Protocol on 25 April 1995.

The Protocol sets out a framework of stringent provisions for the comprehensive protection of the Antarctic environment. Under the Protocol, all activities in Antarctica must be planned and their potential environmental impacts assessed and minimised.

The Committee for Environmental Protection meets annually in conjunction with the Antarctic Treaty Consultative Meeting, to administer the Protocol, thereafter providing advice and formulating recommendations on the protection of the Antarctic environment.

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what issues the Government will be raising at the next round of the Antarctic Treaty consultative meetings. [79016]

Mr. Hoon: The UK submitted a range of Working Papers to the 29 Antarctic Treaty Consultative Meeting, held in Edinburgh from 12 to 23 June 2006. Topics covered included guidelines for visitor sites in the Antarctic Peninsular region, wildlife awareness information, Marine Protected Areas, guidelines on the exchange of ballast water by vessels in the waters surrounding Antarctica and a summary of the UK-led environmental workshop to identify future environmental challenges in Antarctica, which preceded this meeting.

The UK has contributed robustly to discussions of wider Antarctic tourism, environmental, operational and scientific matters. The UK-drafted Edinburgh Declaration on Antarctica, published on 19 June, sets out the commitment of the Antarctic Treaty Parties to the development of polar science during the forthcoming International Polar Year 2007-2008.

Climate Change

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the (a) Chinese and (b) Indian Governments on tackling climate change. [80922]

Mr. McCartney: Following her appointment, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not yet had direct discussions with the Indian or Chinese Governments on tackling climate change. She looks forward to visiting both countries to discuss climate change and other issues of mutual interest in the coming months. I will be travelling to China from 10-17 July 2006 and will be raising climate change with my counterparts while there.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has announced that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office will play an increasing role in delivering the Government's international objectives on climate change. On 8 June, she announced the appointment of a special representative for climate change, John Ashton. His primary focus will be to build a stronger political foundation for international action on climate change, working to build consensus among key governmental and non-governmental actors in priority countries, including China and India.

East Timor

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 315W, on East Timor, to the right hon. Member for Cynon Valley (Ann Clwyd) by what date her Department expects to make a formal response to the recommendations that the Commission for Reception, Truth and Reconciliation in East Timor made in its final report. [81723]

Mr. McCartney: We do not intend to make a formal response to the report of the East Timorese Commission for Reception, Truth and Reconciliation. The document has been made public, but it is not yet clear whether the UN Secretary-General will ask the Security Council to consider the findings.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the answers of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 471W, on East Timor, whether her Department has urged Indonesia's authorities to investigate crimes committed in East Timor in September 1999 by Indonesia's Battalion 745, including (a) the murder of Sander Thoenes and (b) the attack on Jon Swain and his three companions in the last 12 months; and if she will raise those matters with Indonesia's Foreign Minister at the earliest opportunity. [81725]

Mr. McCartney: We have made no representations in the past 12 months to the Indonesian Government regarding investigation of specific crimes committed in East Timor in September 1999. The East Timorese Government have made it clear that, having achieved independence, they do not seek criminal justice or compensation for past human rights violations but rather prioritise the need for reconciliation with Indonesia. East Timor and Indonesia have jointly set up a Commission for Truth and Friendship (CTF) as the way in which they wish to promote reconciliation and deal with previous human rights violations by both sides. We will continue to monitor the work of the CTF.

Ethiopia

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Government of Ethiopia regarding incursions into Somalia. [80270]

Mr. McCartney: My noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, spoke with Prime Minister Meles late last week and our ambassador in Addis Ababa spoke with the Ethiopian Deputy Foreign Minister in mid-June. We made clear to the Ethiopian Government our concerns about the current situation in Somalia and also that, with the UN, the UK regards the Transitional Federal Government as the legitimate Government of Somalia. The UK believes it is important that all states refrain from any actions that might destabilise the situation, respect Somalia's borders and comply with the current UN arms embargo on Somalia. The international community, including regional states, should focus on promoting dialogue among the Somalia parties in support of the agreement reached between the Transitional Federal Government and the Islamic Courts in Khartoum on 22 June 2006.

EU Finance

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department have had with (i) the Chancellor of the Exchequer and

(ii) Treasury officials regarding the proposals to reduce the proportion of the UK abatement in the agreement on the next EU financial perspective. [81822]

Mr. Hoon: All Departments with an interest continue to work together to secure the successful implementation of the December deal on the EU Budget for 2007-2013.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether her Department (a) has made and (b) plans to make representations to (i) the EU Commission, (ii) the EU Presidency and (iii) other member state Governments to seek agreement to the Chancellor of the Exchequer's proposals to reduce the proportion of the UK abatement in the agreement on the next EU financial perspective. [81823]

Mr. Hoon: The Own Resources Mechanisms for the next Financial Perspective 2007-13, including the UK Abatement, were agreed unanimously by member states at the December 2005 European Council. Discussions are continuing in Brussels concerning the technical details for implementation of the December agreement. As is usual, these involve the European Commission, the EU Presidency and all member states. We are considering the draft texts of the new Own Resources Decision carefully to make sure that they accurately reflect the outcome of the December European Council, including the agreement that the UK Abatement should remain.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will reiterate their policy on self-determination for the Falkland Islands following the Argentine Government's pressing of their claim to the islands at the recent Organisation of American States annual assembly. [80324]

Mr. Hoon: The permanent observer of the United Kingdom to the Organisation of American States (OAS) wrote to the chair of the General Assembly of the OAS on 6 June reiterating that the Government have no doubts about their sovereignty over the Falkland Islands, South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands.

There can be no negotiations on the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands unless and until such time as the Falkland Islanders so wish. The principle of self-determination underlies the Government's position on the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands.

Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to her Answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1720W, on family planning, if she will make it her policy (a) not to recognise abortion as a method of family planning and (b) not to support abortion in reproductive health assistance; and if she will make a statement. [81165]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

DFID does not promote abortion as a method of family planning. However, we recognise that if a woman decides she cannot go through with a pregnancy, she needs to be able to access services that are safe, as well as family planning services. This is in line with the consensus agreed by the International Conference for Population and Development (ICPD) in 1994.

Globally, 137 million couples who say they would like to use family planning do not have adequate access to modern contraception, with an estimated 87 million unintentional pregnancies as a result. DFID support for sexual and reproductive health is to enable women and men to exercise informed and safe choices in matters of childbearing and to provide a comprehensive range of information and services that can help to save women's lives and to reduce the need for abortion.

Hospitality Expenses

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by her Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77100]

Mr. Hoon: Government Hospitality, part of Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Services, an Executive agency of the FCO, maintains separate records of its spend on alcohol annually. Government Hospitality is responsible for official hospitality at ministerial level across Whitehall. Maintaining separate central records of total annual spend on alcohol for hospitality purposes across the FCO as a whole and UK missions overseas would, however, incur disproportionate costs.

Infraction Proceedings

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many infraction proceedings for breach of EU (a) legislation and (b) treaties were outstanding against the United Kingdom at each formal stage notified to Government at the end of each calendar year since 1990; and how many were outstanding against the Governments of Scotland and Wales in each year since devolution. [80076]

Mr. Hoon: A table setting out the number of infraction proceedings brought against the UK at each formal stage in the calendar years stated is as follows. The records kept by the Government concerning reasoned opinions only started during 1998, which means that the figure for 1998 is incomplete, and the records concerning cases before the court are only available since 1997. To provide details before these dates, to break down the figures in respect of legislation and treaties or to provide figures for outstanding cases at the end of each calendar year would incur disproportionate cost. Infraction proceedings are brought against the UK not the devolved Administrations.

Iraq

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total UK expenditure towards support in training, equipping and deploying of military and protective services and border personnel in Iraq was in each year since 2003. [78909]

Dr. Howells: The Ministry of Defence has so far approved expenditure of £82.2 million to equipping the Iraqi security forces. The yearly approved expenditure is as follows:

2004-05	27.3
2006-07	20.3

The UK has also contributed £423,000 so far to the NATO training mission in Iraq, through the NATO Training Mission Trust Fund. The yearly approved expenditure is as follows:

2005-06	367,400 (250,000)

Since 2004 the cross-Government Conflict Prevention Pools contributed over £22 million towards the training of the Iraqi security forces. The yearly approved expenditure is as follows:

	£ million
2006-07 (to end May 2006)	2.5

All these projects commenced in 2004. We are unable to provide figures for 2003, as prior to this date expenditure on equipping Iraqi security forces came from the UK forces general budget for Iraq, and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Lebanon

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any deportations have (a) taken place and (b) are being considered under the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding with the Government of Lebanon to facilitate deportation of persons suspected of activities associated with terrorism; and if she will make a statement. [80997]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 29 June 2006]: No deportations have so far taken place to Lebanon under the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU). We do not comment on whether deportations are currently being considered under the MOU.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1000W, on ministerial visits (accommodation), if she will keep a central record of the (a) number, (b) standard of hotel used and (c) cost of overnight stays for (i) civil servants, (ii) special advisers and (iii) Ministers. [77099]

Mr. Hoon: There are clear guidelines in place for all Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff, special advisers and Ministers concerning overnight accommodation when travelling on business at public expense, whether in the UK or overseas. These rates are also used by staff from other Whitehall Departments and by parliamentary Select Committees. Staff are reminded of the need to ensure they obtain value for money at all times.

There are no plans to keep a central record of all hotel accommodation used as to do so would incur disproportionate cost.

Moldova

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the ability of the judiciary in Moldova to act independently of Government. [80762]

Mr. Hoon: Like other former Soviet Union members, Moldova has had to create an independent judiciary system from scratch. While there has been some progress, the Government share the assessments by the European Commission and the Council of Europe that there is still much to do. We continue to take every opportunity to remind the authorities in Chisinau that this is essential for closer integration with the EU states, and to urge and assist them to adopt the necessary legislation as required by the European Neighbourhood Policy Action Plan for Moldova.

Mr. Ching Cheong

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will urge the authorities of the People's Republic of China to bring the detained British journalist Mr. Ching Cheong to a fair and public trial as soon as possible; and if she will request the Chinese authorities to ensure that (a) the trial is held in public and (b) Mr. Ching has legal representation. [80857]

Mr. McCartney: Although Mr. Ching Cheong holds a British National Overseas (BN(O)) passport he did not use this passport to enter China and he is deemed by the Chinese authorities to be a Chinese national. We have made representations, through our embassy in Beijing and our consulate in Guangzhou, to the Chinese authorities in respect of Mr. Ching's case and we will continue to do so at every appropriate opportunity. We have serious and long-standing concerns over the use of arbitrary detention in China, inadequate fair trial guarantees and the treatment of prisoners, and we make these concerns known to the Chinese authorities. However, as Mr. Ching has been charged with espionage, while he will have legal representation, his trial will take place in a closed session in accordance with current Chinese law.

Sri Lanka

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support her Department is giving to the Sri Lankan Monitoring Mission. [80618]

Dr. Howells: Under the terms of the Cease-Fire Agreement the Sri Lankan Monitoring Mission (SLMM) was established to monitor the cease-fire and investigate and record violations by either side. It has done so since 2002. We continue to support fully the important work of the SLMM as ceasefire monitors and the Norwegian Government as facilitators of the peace process. In relation to the SLMM, we completely endorse the view that its members are appointed as ceasefire monitors and not as representatives of their countries.

We welcome the recent statements of commitment by the Government of Sri Lanka and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) to the Ceasefire Agreement. In that respect we urge all parties to the ceasefire to co-operate with the SLMM and urge the LTTE and the Government to return to face-to face talks so they can discuss concerns about the cease-fire and work towards a lasting peace agreement.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will assess the implications for the Sri Lankan peace process in light of the recent increase in violence in the country. [80619]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Kingston and Surbiton (Mr. Davey) on 26 June 2006, Official Report, columns 183-184W.

Student Visas

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many student visas have been issued for students to study in the UK in each of the last eight years, broken down by country of origin. [79782]

Dr. Howells: The hon. Member can find this information in UKvisas' annual published statistics, which are available in the Library of the House. From 2001-02 the relevant statistics are in the section entitled "Part 2: Visa Demand and Outcome of Applications". Before this, the figures are under "Other categories and DNA".

Terrorist Deportations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in identifying a monitoring body in accordance with the UK-Lebanon Memorandum of Understanding to facilitate the deportation of persons associated with terrorism. [80926]

Dr. Howells: It is expected that the monitoring body for Lebanon under the Memorandum of Understanding will be appointed shortly by the Government and Lebanese Government.

Timor-Leste

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what stabilisation measures for Timor-Leste are being considered under the Rapid Reaction Mechanism set out in the European Council Presidency Conclusions of 15 and 16 June. [80924]

Mr. McCartney: The European Commission will send a fact-finding mission to East Timor shortly. It will then be in a position to consider the measures available under the Rapid Response Mechanism (RRM). We will remain in regular contact with the Commission as this work progresses. Council Regulation 381/2001 provides details of the full range of measures available under the RRM. The full text of the regulation can be found at the following website: http://europa.eu.int/eur-lex/pri/en/oj/dat/2001/l_057/l_05720010227en00050009.pdf.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her (a) European and (b) US counterparts regarding the agreement of the mandate of a new UN mission to Timor-Leste; and what the outcomes were of those discussions. [80925]

Mr. McCartney: We are liaising closely with our US counterparts regarding the mandate of a new UN mission to East Timor. We have also been in touch with various European partners, including Portugal, Germany and France. A number of discussions have taken place, both bilaterally and within the UN Security Council. We all agree that the UN has a continuing role to play in assisting the Government of East Timor in the lead-up to the national elections in 2007, particularly in light of recent unrest. The current UN Mission's mandate has been extended until 20 August 2006 while the UN Secretary-General prepares further recommendations on the mandate and structure of the new mission.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment her officials have made of the attempt in June 2006 to loot the offices of the Reception, Truth and Reconciliation Commission in Timor-Leste; and if she will make a statement. [81720]

Mr. McCartney: During the height of the recent civil unrest in East Timor, the grounds of the building housing the Commission of Reception, Truth and Reconciliation (CAVR) were broken into. Thirty-two motorbikes were stolen from the compound, but there is no evidence to suggest that there was any attempt to break into the CAVR offices themselves.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment her officials have made of the looting in May 2006 of files held by the Serious Crimes Unit in Dili, Timor-Leste; and if she will make a statement. [81721]

Mr. McCartney: The prosecutor general, who is the legal custodian of the Serious Crimes Unit (SCU) files, has told our ambassador in Dili that approximately 5-10 per cent. of the SCU case files are missing. However, a full digital copy of all SCU files is held by the UN.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support her Department plans to offer to the United Nations investigation into recent violence in Timor-Leste; and if she will make a statement. [81722]

Mr. McCartney: The United Kingdom supported UN Security Council Resolution 1690 (2006), which welcomes the initiative of the UN Secretary-General to ask the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to take the lead in establishing an independent Special Inquiry Commission to review the recent unrest in East Timor. We have not received any specific requests for assistance, but will follow the work of the High Commissioner closely.

Travel Advice

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) information her Department provides and (b) grants it makes available for the purpose of advising gap year students on personal safety issues when travelling overseas. [81471]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has run the travel safety campaign, "Know Before You Go", since 2001. Its aim is to help British travellers prepare for their trips and stay safe while they're abroad.

Gap year students are one of the key target groups for this campaign: they are both less likely to prepare for their trips and more likely to get into trouble while away. We work closely with partners from the travel industry and related groups to promote the FCO's travel website (www.fco.gov.uk/travel) and call centre (0845 850 4849) which give detailed travel safety information on specific countries as well as important general tips.

Over the last year this activity included the publication and distribution of 500,000 copies of a "Travel Safe Guide" jointly produced with Lonely Planet. This is being distributed through partners including Millets, Snow and Rock, Ellis Brigham (adventure travel shops) and through the Lonely Planet website, so as to reach the target audience; a sixth-form schools tour conducted by the FCO's Consular Communications Team jointly with a number of noted travel writers, including Simon Calder of the Independent;

FCO Student Ambassadors in 15 universities across the UK. Articles placed in university publications by the student Ambassadors have reached 467,000 students over the past year. We will be appointing new students in new universities over the course of the coming year; a dedicated FCO gap year website (www.gogapyear.com) which will be re-launched in July this year with many new features.

The Department has close working relationships with a number of organisations promoting the safety of gap year travellers. We do not make any direct grants for this activity, preferring to work through partnerships with relevant organisations—for example, promoting each other's information materials, co-branding.

Uganda

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her assessment is of the (a) loss of lives, (b) destruction of property and (c) threat to security in Uganda as a result of the demonstrations in the wake of the arrest of Dr. Besigye on 14 November 2005; and if she will make a statement. [79947]

Mr. McCartney: The UK, on behalf of the EU, issued a statement on 18 November 2005 expressing deep concern at the events following the arrest of Dr. Besigye on 14 November 2005. In the two days following the arrest there was rioting, vandalism and looting in the streets and 57 suspects were arrested, but later released. Five Government cars and two telephone kiosks were set ablaze.

In the statement, the EU said that it was particularly concerned about the use of live ammunition by the Ugandan Police on 14 November 2005, which resulted in the tragic death of one person and injuries to six others. The EU also called on Dr. Besigye's party, the Forum for Democratic Change, to 'encourage people to avoid violence and confrontation and to respect the Law and Constitution'.

The full text of the statement can be found at the following website: http://www.eu2005.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1107293561746&a=KArticle&aid=1131976425734&date=2005-11-18

Western Sahara

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of human rights in Western Sahara. [80261]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has made no recent assessment of the human rights situation in Western Sahara.

I visited Morocco on 6-7 June and raised the issue of Western Sahara. That included human rights. I have urged Morocco to respect human rights in the Territory, for instance in my speech at Chatham House on 22 June.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Bank and Shop Closures

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of (a) bank branches and (b) independent retail shops which closed in (i) Nottingham, South and (ii) the East Midlands in 2005-06. [79224]

Margaret Hodge: The number of local bank branch closures is not available.

Value-added tax (VAT) deregistrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business closures. Data for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006 at www.sbs.gov.uk/vats.

VAT deregistrations in retail in 2004 for the parliamentary constituency of Nottingham, South and the Government office region of the East Midlands are shown in the following table. For comparison, registrations are also given.

	Nottingham South	East Midlands
VAT Registrations in retail[1]	50	1,345
VAT De-registrations in retail[1]	35	1,420

[1] Retail comprises Standard Industrial Classification 52.

VAT registration and deregistration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that deregister may not have closed. In the retail sector 63 per cent. of enterprises in the UK (200,000 out of 320,000) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

Broadband

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what the reasons are for the delay in publication of the Broadband Stakeholders Group's independent rates review, and if he will make a statement; [81833]

(2) when he expects the Broadband Stakeholders Group to publish the final report on the independent rates review, and if he will make a statement. [81834]

Margaret Hodge: In November 2003, the Broadband Stakeholder Group (BSG) established terms of reference for reviewing the regime for property taxes in respect of cable/duct infrastructure. These were:

To review the effects of the business rating system on the providers of communication apparatus and their possible affect on competition within the communications industry.

To consider whether or not the assessment methodology is having a detrimental effect on the roll out of broadband, with special emphasis on the provision of broadband in rural areas and to isolated communities.

To consider the methods of assessment as between leased and owned fibre and any possible double payment as between fibre lessees and the owners of the ducts in which the fibre is carried and any material differences between business rates payable on owned or leased fibre.

To determine the scope of the works for Phase II of the project, subject to budget approval.

The BSG published an interim status report in late 2004. While the interim report proposed options for a way forward, the working group driving the report felt that there were insufficient hard data (as opposed to anecdotal material) to draw firm conclusions at that stage. It was planned that the review could be concluded by March 31 2005, three months on from the interim report.

However, the review could not be taken forward from that point as, at the start of 2005, the European Commission launched a state aids investigation, which directly involved two BSG members. A decision on this case is expected imminently, at which point the review can progress as planned.

Businesses

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses in (a) England and (b) Beverley and Holderness have (i) started up and (ii) ceased trading in each of the last nine years; and if he will make a statement. [81447]

Margaret Hodge: Value-added tax (VAT) registrations and deregistrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. DTI data on the number of VAT registrations and de-registrations in (a) England and (b) the Beverley and Holderness constituency in each year from 1997 to 2004 are shown in the table. Data for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006. For comparison, the start of year stock of VAT-registered businesses is also given.

VAT registration and deregistration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that deregister will not necessarily have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2004, Small Business Service, available from the Library of the House and also at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/vats.

In both England and Beverley and Holderness the stock of VAT registered businesses has increased or stayed constant each year since 1997, as registrations have matched or exceeded deregistrations in every year.

The number of VAT deregistrations in England has increased since 1997. However, business closures are part of the functioning of a dynamic economy and represent willingness among the business population to take risks or the displacement of less productive and innovative firms by more productive ones. Research indicates that improvements in productivity and economic growth are more likely to come from higher levels of both business entry and business exit.

Regional disparities in start-up and closure rates can have their root in the different economic histories and different opportunities available in each region. The Government's aim is for every region to achieve success and good economic growth, which is why increasing resources have been put at the disposal of each Regional Development Agency.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many new businesses registered in each London borough in 2005; and if he will make a statement. [81516]

Margaret Hodge: Value-added tax (VAT) registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups. The latest available figures for VAT registrations in individual London boroughs from 1994-2004 are shown as follows. Data for 2005 will be available autumn 2006.

However VAT registrations do not capture all start-up activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million enterprises (42 per cent.) in the UK were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1576W, on the Business Review, how he plans to ensure that the information on companies' relationships with suppliers will be comparable (a) between companies and (b) over time. [80697]

Margaret Hodge: As clause 399 (4) of the Company Law Reform Bill sets out, the Business Review is required to be a balanced and comprehensive analysis of the company's business consistent with the size and complexity of the business. There is no explicit requirement for companies to report on their relationships with suppliers. Where reporting on relationships with suppliers is necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the company's business, it will be for the directors to consider what type of information to include in their review. The purpose of the Business Review is to inform members of the company and help them assess how the directors have performed their duty under clause 158 (duty to promote the success of the company). The statutory provisions therefore set out the framework of the Business Review, but it is for directors of each company to determine its content according to the circumstances of the particular company. These are matters for the directors' judgment and it is for the company's shareholders to hold the directors to account.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1576W, on the Business Review, what (a) financial and (b) non-financial key performance indicators companies will be required to use when reporting on their relationships with suppliers in the Business Review; what estimate he has made of how many companies will be required to report on their relationships with overseas suppliers under the provisions of clause 399 of the Company Law Reform Bill; what types of information companies will be required to include in their reports on relationships with overseas suppliers within the Business Review; what the provisions are of the Company Law Reform Bill which will oblige companies to include information on relationships with suppliers; whether he plans to introduce statutory guidance on what types of information on supplier relationships must be included in the Business Review; and if he will make a statement. [80865]

Margaret Hodge: Companies must include financial and non-financial key performance indicators in their Business Review to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the company's business. The review is required to be a balanced and comprehensive analysis of the company's business consistent with the size and complexity of the business, but there is no explicit requirement for companies to report on their relationships with suppliers. Where reporting on relationships with suppliers—whether domestic or overseas—is necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the company's business, it will be for the directors to consider what type of information to include in their review. This is a matter for the directors' judgment and it is for the company's shareholders to hold the directors to account. We will be debating the Business Review provisions in Committee.

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many firms in the Carlisle district council area have (a) started and (b) ceased trading in each year since 1995. [80328]

Margaret Hodge: Value-added tax (VAT) registrations and deregistrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business starts and closures. DTI figures based solely on VAT registrations and deregistrations for Carlisle local authority are shown in the table for 1995 to 2004 inclusive. Data for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006. In Carlisle local authority the stock of VAT-registered businesses has increased every year from 2,000 onwards, as registrations have exceeded deregistrations throughout this period.

VAT registration and deregistration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that deregister will not necessarily have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

According to Barclays Bank's latest survey of business creation, which includes non-VAT registered businesses, Carlisle local authority had 400 business start-ups in 2005. Barclays business closure data are not available for local authorities. Barclays business start-up data are not available for local authorities before 2005.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many small businesses that began trading since 1997 have subsequently ceased trading in (a) England and (b) Beverley and Holderness; and if he will make a statement. [80452]

Margaret Hodge: Value-added tax (VAT) registrations and deregistrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business starts and closures. Latest VAT data on the total number of registrations since 1997 and the number of these registrations that subsequently de-registered, covering the period up to 2004, are shown in the table for (a) England and (b) Beverley and Holderness constituency.

New analysis of VAT Survival Rates data 1994-2003, Small Business Service, available at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/survival: SBS analysis of ONS Inter Departmental Business Register data.

Business closures are part of the functioning of a dynamic economy and represent an increased willingness among the business population to take risks or the displacement of less productive and innovative firms by more productive ones. Research indicates that improvements in productivity and economic growth are more likely to come from higher levels of both business entry and business exit.

Regional disparities in start-up and closure rates can have their root in the different economic history and different opportunities available in each region. The Government's aim is for every region to achieve success and good economic growth, which is why increasing resources have been put at the disposal of each Regional Development Agency.

Car Companies (Government Support)

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) funding, (b) tax incentives and (c) other financial support the Government have provided to (i) Peugeot, (ii) LTI vehicles, (iii) British-owned automotive producers and (iv) overseas automotive producers over the last 10 years. [79759]

Margaret Hodge: The main source of Government finance provided to the automotive industry in recent years has been regional selective assistance (RSA), which in England was supplanted by Selective Finance for Investment in England (SFIE) in 2004. Since 2000, around £150 million has been paid in grants to a wide range of vehicle manufacturers and component suppliers, nearly £100 million of which was paid to vehicle makers. Grants are only available to companies in assisted areas, but the scheme does not discriminate as to nationality of the parent company.

In 1998, Peugeot was offered a £2 million RSA grant towards the cost of investment to add a third shift at a time of strong demand for its 206 model. This project created 900 jobs, and the grant has been paid in full. In November 2004, the company was offered a £14.4 million grant in support of 207 manufacture, but the project did not proceed.

LTI has not been in receipt of RSA or SFI finance.

The Government also offer various forms of technology grant from which companies in the automotive sector have benefited. At various times, both Peugeot Citroen and LTI have participated in consortia which have received grants, but accurate figures on individual shares of consortium funding are not available to DTI. That said, supported projects have included the Efficient-C project (involving PSA Peugeot Citroen, QinetiQ and Ricardo) and the LTI 'e-Mercury' electric vehicle. The latter was subsequently spun out as a stand-alone project. The independent company Modec now runs this project, and production commences in Coventry later this year.

The principal source of specific automotive industry-related funding is the Automotive Innovation and Growth Team (AIGT) suite of initiatives, including Supply Chain Groups, Automotive Academy and Centres of Excellence, against which a total commitment of £45 million has been made. Again, these do not discriminate as to nationality of ownership, although direct funding is available only to UK-based companies and organisations.

Tax incentives such as

R&D tax credits, to encourage greater R&D spending in order to promote investment in innovation,

R&D allowances for capital expenditure on research and development, and enhanced rates of Industrial Buildings Allowances for qualifying enterprise zone expenditure are available to all companies in the UK irrespective of their ownership or the specific industrial sector in which they operate. The amounts by which individual companies have benefited from such measures are not a matter of public record and no breakdown would be available distinguishing between companies on the basis of their ownership.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on what date the grant to Peugeot for investment in its plant at Ryton in Coventry was offered; and what terms and conditions were attached to that grant. [80849]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 28 June 2006]: In November 2004, a grant of £14.4 million was offered to Peugeot for manufacture of the 207 at Ryton, but the project did not proceed.

The terms and conditions of the grant are confidential between the Government and Peugeot.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the (a) dates and (b) amounts were of each (i) grant and (ii) loan offered to Peugeot by the Government in each of the last 10 years; and what terms and conditions were attached. [80850]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 28 June 2006]: In 1998, Peugeot was offered a regional selective assistance grant of £2 million towards the cost of investment to add a third shift at a time of strong demand for their 206 model. In November 2004, a further grant of £14.4 million was offered to Peugeot for manufacture of the 207 at Ryton, but the project did not proceed.

The terms and conditions of the grants are confidential between the Government and Peugeot.

No loans have been offered to the company.

Cast Medals Federation

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent representations he has received from the Cast Metals Federation; and if he will make a statement. [81476]

Malcolm Wicks: The Cast Metals Federation is an active member of the Metals Forum, with which the Department has a regular dialogue on a number of issues affecting the UK metals industry. Indeed, I have a meeting with the Forum scheduled for 13 July.

Compensation Claims

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry on how many occasions his Department has met a hearing loss claims including the full payment of medical examinations conducted by Melex Ltd. [81041]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 June 2006]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 24 April 2006, Official Report, column 827W.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry to how many hearing loss claimants in Bassetlaw his Department has written since Easter to confirm payment of their claim to their solicitor; and on what date in each case. [81042]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 June 2006]: The Department wrote to 73 claimants on 22 May confirming that compensation had been paid to the claimant's solicitor but that a dispute existed over the level of the solicitor's costs.

Competition Commission

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many reports he has received from the Competition Commission in each year since its inception; how many gave rise to Government action; what the subject matter was of each; and if he will make a statement. [80409]

Mr. McCartney: The Department has received the following reports from the Competition Commission in each of the years since its inception:

	Merger or acquisition inquiry	Market inquiry
2002	10	1

I will write separately setting out the subject matter of each case and whether action was taken.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry who is responsible for appointments to the Competition Commission; whether posts are advertised; how many persons applied for each post currently held; how many were shortlisted for interview; and if he will make a statement. [80410]

Mr. McCartney: Appointments to the Competition Commission are made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry. In the case of the chair, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister must be consulted.

Posts are advertised. The only occasion when this has not been done was the recent appointment of the current chair. Following the sudden death of the previous chair, the senior deputy chair was appointed to the post of chair without a competition. This was done with the agreement of OCPA.

With respect to the other posts, the figures are as follows:

Deputy chairs: 81 applications, 6 interviewed, 2 appointed CEO: 60 applicants, 7 interviewed
Panel members: 283 applicants, 60 interviewed, 24 appointed.

The figures for the panel members relate to the last recruitment round in 2004-05.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures are in place to ensure that no illegal immigrants are employed in the manned guarding of his Department's premises. [80802]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department currently out-sources its staffed guarding services.

The Department's security contractor carries out pre-employment identity and residency checks in compliance to the standards set by the Security Industry Authority (SIA). All security personnel employed on the Department's premises are also subject to security vetting before commencing work.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department has (a) directly and (b) indirectly employed illegal immigrants as security guards. [80811]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department of Trade and Industry has not employed, either directly or indirectly any illegal immigrants as security guards.

The Department's security contractor carries out pre-employment identity and residency checks in compliance with the standards set by the Security Industry Authority (SIA). All security personnel employed on the Department's premises are also subject to security vetting before commencing work.

Electricity Prices

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received about the impact of recent changes in electricity prices on manufacturing industry; and if he will make a statement. [81475]

Malcolm Wicks: I have received a number of letters and have held several meetings with manufacturing sectors regarding the impact of recent changes in electricity prices.

The Government fully appreciate that high electricity prices have an impact on the competitiveness of industry, and, of course, take very seriously the potential loss of jobs and investment.

I have also had discussions with the Energy Intensive Users Group and others to help us focus our efforts on maximising gas and electricity supplies, improve the operation of the market, encourage demand-side response and pursue fair access to markets across Europe.

Over the summer we are pursuing a detailed work plan with Ofgem, the national grid, industry and others to ensure that we are in the best possible position ahead of next winter. The new Business Energy Forum, which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced on 16 May, will hold its inaugural meeting on 5 July to discuss security of supply from a strategic viewpoint and enable us to maintain the high level of dialogue and input from these and other sectors.

Environmental Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as in compliance with that standard; and if he will make a statement. [81190]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department for Trade and Industry has operated an Environmental Management System (EMS) certified to ISO 14001 since November 1999, which is compliant with the framework for sustainable development in Government. The EMS is a management tool used in achieving the Department's commitment to the environment. The certificate has been externally verified by a verification organisation certified by the United Kingdon Accreditation Service.

EU Committees

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the dates on which (a) the EU Anti-dumping and Anti-subsidy Committee and (b) the Article 133 Committee met during the past 12 months; and if he will publish the minutes of those meetings. [70906]

Mr. McCartney: The EC Anti-dumping and Anti-subsidy Advisory Committee has met on the following dates during the past 12 months:

8 June 2005
30 June 2005
20 July 2005
7 September 2005
20 October 2005
10 November 2005
1 December 2005
15 December 2005
12 January 2006
14 February 2006
9 March 2006
16 March 2006
20 April 2006
11 May 2006

The minutes of the Advisory Committee are not available to the public. However, a person may apply to the Commission for access to these documents in accordance with the procedures set down in Regulation (EC) No. 1049/2001 of the European Parliament and the Council. When a request is received, the Commission will consider whether the documents can be released or are covered by the exceptions set down in Article 4 of the Regulation.

The Article 133 Committee meets weekly, once a month in full members format and three times a month in deputy members format. There are no formal minutes of these meetings. However the Secretariat of the Council of the European Union publishes outcomes from the Article 133 Committee in accordance with Council Regulation 1049/2001 (Regulation of the European Parliament and Council regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents). These documents can be accessed through the Council's website at http://ue.eu.int.

EU Structural Funds

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) when he expects an announcement to be made on the allocation of EU structural funds, and if he will make a statement; [81420]

(2) what consideration is being given to the alignment of future EU structural funding with the Government's domestic spending priorities, and if he will make a statement; [81421]

(3) what consideration is being given to providing additional domestic resources to support the objectives of regional development through EU structural funding, and if he will make a statement. [81422]

Margaret Hodge: The Government are currently considering responses to our consultation documents published on 28 February setting out an approach to the allocation of EU structural funds and potential for alignment with domestic programmes. We hope to publish our conclusions by the beginning of September.

The Government are committed to increasing the rate of growth of every region, to addressing the disparities between the nations and regions and, in England, to reducing the persistent gap in growth rates between regions. To this end, they are already providing significant resources to support regional economic development, including £2.2 billion annually for the Regional Development Agencies.

Insurance Industry

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to prevent the loss of insurance-related jobs in the UK to offshore locations. [74753]

Mr. McCartney: In this globalised world, companies must be allowed to take the steps required to remain competitive. Location is a business decision for companies.

The Government are well aware of concerns about the effects of offshoring, including those on employment in the insurance sector. But we know from our consultations that there is a broad consensus in the UK that trade protectionism is not the right response. Instead, we must do all we can to ensure that those who are affected by decisions to offshore work are found alternative work as quickly as possible. We also need to ensure that the UK remains competitive and an attractive place in which other countries wish to do business.

Local Loop Unbundling

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what further targets he plans to set for local loop unbundling. [75270]

Margaret Hodge: The responsibility for local loop unbundling and further targets falls to the telecommunications regulator, Ofcom, and the Telecommunications Adjudicator.

The Telecommunications Adjudicator Scheme was initiated by Ofcom, the independent regulator of the communications sector, in July 2004 to ensure that the unbundling process takes place in a timely and effective way. Membership of this industry scheme is voluntary for BT Group PLC and the LLU operators. Any targets set by the independent Adjudicator are a matter for him on the basis of the best information then available.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to ensure that the target for 1.5 million lines to be unbundled from the local loop network by April 2007 is met. [75271]

Margaret Hodge: The target of 1.5 million lines to be unbundled was set by the telecommunications regulator, Ofcom, and the Telecommunications Adjudicator. The responsibility for ensuring that the target is met falls to Ofcom, the industry and the Telecommunications Adjudicator within that regulatory framework.

However, I fully expect the target to be reached.

Local loop unbundling offers greater scope for innovation and competition in broadband services and as such its roll-out is welcome.

London Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81565]

Margaret Hodge: David Hendon, Head of Business Relations 2 Directorate, is the Senior Responsible Owner (SRO) for the Olympics project in DTI. He also sits on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics.

Military-technical Co-operation (Export Licences)

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for which countries an export licence relating to military-technical co-operation has been granted since January 2006; what assessment is made of a third country's arms transfer control system prior to an export licence relating to military-technical co-operation being authorised; and if he will make a statement. [81611]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government do not issue export licences for the act of military-technical co-operation.

North West Regional Development Agency

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the public transport schemes which the North West Regional Development Agency supports; and which are in Morecambe and Lunesdale. [79478]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 29 June 2006]: The North West Regional Development Agency's priorities for transport are set out in the 2006 Regional Economic Strategy (RES). The RES seeks to reduce levels of congestion by encouraging the use of public transport and reducing peak traffic volumes in all areas across the region.

The 10-year regional transport priorities have been submitted to Government as part of the Regional Funding Allocation process. There are no public transport schemes specifically in Morecambe and Lunesdale, but a number of public transport schemes across Lancashire are included in the investment programme.

The NWDA is financially supporting the Lancashire Rural Pathfinder Project, which is seeking to establish alternative approaches for access to services in rural communities. It covers a number of constituencies in Lancashire including Morecambe and Lunesdale.

Nuclear Energy

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much power was generated in the UK by nuclear energy in the last period for which figures are available. [81423]

Malcolm Wicks: Nuclear power accounted for 19 per cent. of electricity supplied in the first quarter of 2006. This equates to 20.5 TWh (electricity).

Full details of UK energy statistics are available on the DTI Energy website at www.dti.gov.uk/energy/statistics/index.html.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1635W, on nuclear power, if he will place in the Library a copy of the studies referred to, including a translation into English where the study is in a foreign language. [78936]

Malcolm Wicks: I have arranged for a copy of the studies referred to in my previous answer to be placed in the Library of the House.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what financial contribution has been made by (a) his Department, (b) other Government Departments, (c) the UK's public sector nuclear industry and (d) the UK nuclear industry's private sector to the work done by the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate/Health and Safety Executive on the pre-licensing of nuclear power generation plants. [81070]

Malcolm Wicks: The Nuclear Installations Inspectorate (NII) of the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has not done any work on the pre-licensing of new nuclear power plants.

In its Expert Report for the Energy Review published on 28 June 2006, HSE describes its proposed approach to dealing with any future requests for pre-licensing assessments of new designs of nuclear power station. HSE's proposal was devised using existing HSE resources and no additional funding has been provided from any source.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the feed-in tariff system for encouraging the use of electricity generated from renewable sources or from nuclear energy. [82133]

Malcolm Wicks: The Energy Review has looked at a wide range of options for bringing forward low carbon energy technologies of all kinds. The current intention is to publish the results of the Energy Review in July.

Offshore Wind Development

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department has taken to facilitate the development of offshore wind after 2010. [81432]

Malcolm Wicks: The Renewables Obligation is the Government's key mechanism for encouraging new renewable generating capacity and will stay in place until 2027. The current Energy Review is looking at a wide range of issues including emerging renewable technologies such as offshore wind and will report shortly.

The DTI has a 2010 Target Team to remove the barriers to development of renewable energy and achieve the Government's target of 10 per cent. of electricity by 2010.

Many of the issues being tackled will assist the development of offshore wind beyond 2010. The higher cost of developing offshore wind remains an issue, and the costs of connection to the electricity grid are part of that. Grid connections are likely to form 10-15 per cent. of capital costs for the Round 2 wind farms, given the considerable cable lengths involved.

Certainty about how the grid connection costs will be funded, and the regulation that controls them, is therefore a key factor that developers need in preparing their business models.

In March this year the Government announced their decision to extend the existing onshore model of regulation of transmission links. Following a joint consultation with Ofgem the Government concluded that this approach has a number of clear advantages for offshore projects.

First, extending the regulated price control approach offshore will ensure consistency with the regulatory arrangements onshore. Secondly, it will provide a financial benefit to offshore developers by spreading the costs they face to connect to the onshore electricity system over a number of years. Finally, it will mean that the responsibility for developing the offshore transmission network will be shared by the system operator and the transmission asset owners who can bring their existing expertise to bear.

The DTI and Ofgem are now leading the project to put the new regime in place to connect a proportion of Round 2 projects in time to contribute to the 2010 target, and to ensure there is an enduring framework in place beyond 2010 for offshore wind and other forms of offshore renewables.

The Government have provided capital grants of £107 million to stimulate early development of a significant number of offshore wind farms under the Round 1 offshore wind programme. This will have a significant benefit in the development of offshore wind post-2010 by underpinning the development of the industry and equipment supply chains and will build skills, providing a learning experience which can improve confidence and help reduce future costs and enable future projects to proceed without the need for grant support.

The DTI established the Research Advisory Group (RAG) to facilitate a co-ordinated approach among the regulatory and funding bodies to address the key impact issues of Round 2 wind farm proposals. The DTI has allocated an initial programme budget of up to £2.5 million for offshore wind farm issues, and has collated a list of the potential environmental issues in relation to offshore wind farms and has taken forward and funded a number of these projects.

The DTI, MOD and Civil Aviation Authorities are working to develop mitigation technologies for offshore and onshore radar issues.

The Renewables Advisory Board is also working on the longer term economics of offshore wind to identify cost savings for Round 2 projects.

While Round 2 offshore wind projects will contribute to our targets for 2010 and beyond, there are also enormous economic benefits for the UK in offshore wind. The DTI's Business Development Team is working to ensure that UK companies maximise the opportunities for offshore wind projects.

Opium Plants

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he has investigated the scientific potential for opium plants to be developed as a bio-fuel energy source. [80162]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are not aware of any specific research on using opium plants as a source of fuel. Compared with other plants which are used to make biofuels or energy, opium plants have a relatively low yield. In countries where they are grown for the unregulated drug trade, a better solution would therefore be for the growers to change to other crops.

Outer Mongolia

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the implications for British and other foreign investment in outer Mongolia of the recent introduction in that country of an excess profits windfall tax; and if he will take steps to impress upon the Mongolian authorities the importance of retaining a stable, reasonable, competitive, consistent and predictable tax regime for foreign companies investing in Mongolia. [80856]

Mr. McCartney: The windfall tax to which the question refers is a tax of 68 per cent. on gold and copper, and was introduced by the Mongolian Parliament in May 2006. While I am not aware of any British investment in either of these sectors, this move will undoubtedly have negative implications for other foreign investors. British companies are however active in other sectors, albeit at an exploratory stage. In addition, a new minerals law is currently before the Mongolian Parliament, and as drafted, this law contains a number of provisions that in our view would discourage investment. Our embassy in Ulaanbaatar is monitoring the situation carefully, and we take every opportunity to impress upon the Government the need to provide a fair and transparent business environment in order to encourage the large-scale investment that the country badly needs.

Reduced ignition Propensity Cigarettes

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the outcome was of the recent discussions between UK Government officials and European Union officials on Reduced Ignition Propensity cigarettes; and if he will make a statement. [81043]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 29 June 2006]: There have been recent discussions within the General Product Safety Directive Committee meeting on 14 June 2006. The UK position in those discussions (agreed between my Department, the Department of Health and the Department for Communities and Local Government) was that there was sufficient evidence to recommend the development of a European technical standard for Reduced Ignition Propensity cigarettes. The European Commission has indicated that it will undertake further investigation of the need for such action.

The Government will issue a statement regarding Reduced Ignition Propensity cigarettes shortly.

Research and Development Grants

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) individuals and (b) businesses in (i) the Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (ii) Lewisham borough received a grant for research and development in each of the past two years. [79163]

Margaret Hodge: The London Development Agency, which has have responsibility for administering the Grant for Research and Development in London, has confirmed that no individuals or businesses have been offered grants in the Lewisham, Deptford constituency or within the London borough of Lewisham in the past two years.

Restriction of Hazardous Substances Directive

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the compatibility of the interpretation and implementation of the restriction of hazardous substances directive in the UK with that in (a) Germany, (b) Spain and (c) other European member states; and what assessment he has made of the extent of a risk of an illegal barrier to trade being created. [81663]

Malcolm Wicks: The assessment of legislation in other member states is a matter for the European Commission. Owing to the single-market legal basis of the RoHS Directive, the Commission is obliged to take action where any member state's legislation does not fully meet the aims and objectives. In addition, it should be noted that member states cannot go beyond the requirements imposed by a single-market directive.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the published guidance by ORGALIME, The European Engineering Industries Association representing the interests of the mechanical, electrical, electronic and metalworking industries, on the scope of products included in the restriction of hazardous substances and waste electrical and electronic equipment directives; and whether the European Commission has informed him that it has accepted this guidance. [81664]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI has published its own guidance material for these two directives and the development of guidance by the industries affected by legislation is encouraged by the Department. It has to be understood, however, that such guidance is not legally binding and it should not conflict with the overall aims and objectives of the directives. The directives themselves, at a European level, and the regulations, at a UK level, are the only legally binding texts.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the National Weights and Measures Laboratory's proposed guidance on the Restriction of Hazardous Substances Directive will bring into its ambit a significant proportion of fixed industrial manufacturing machinery; what assessment he has made of the extent to which the proposed guidance will conform with the EC's original intention for the Directive not to include large-scale stationary industrial tools; and whether the proposed guidance will expand on the requirements of the Directive. [81665]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI's and NWML's guidance reflects the scope of the Directive and the Commission's frequently asked questions document.

Small Businesses

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many small businesses that began trading in 1997 have subsequently ceased trading in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire; and if he will make a statement. [81467]

Margaret Hodge: Value-added tax (VAT) registrations and deregistrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business starts and closures. Latest VAT data on the total number of registrations since 1997 and the number of these registrations that subsequently deregistered, to the end of 2004, are shown in the following table for (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire.

VAT registrations do not capture all start-up activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million enterprises (42 per cent.) in the UK were registered for VAT at the start of 2004. Similarly, not all businesses that deregister will necessarily have closed.

VAT registrations and subsequent deregistrations, 1997 to 2004[1]

Ribble Valley
New registrations 1997 to 2004	2,435
Number deregistering by end of 2004	695
Percentage still registered, end of 2004	71
Lancashire
New registrations 1997 to 2004	24,070
Number deregistering by end of 2004	8,010
Percentage still registered, end of 2004	67

[1] VAT registration and deregistration data are not available by size of business. However, 98 per cent. of the total stock of VAT registered businesses are small (0-49 employees). New analysis of VAT survival rates data 1994 to 2003, Small Business Service, available at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/survival: SBS analysis of ONS Inter Departmental Business Register data.

Business closures are part of the functioning of a dynamic economy and represent an increased willingness among the business population to take risks or the displacement of less productive and innovative firms by more productive ones. Regional disparities in start-up and closure rates can have their root in the different economic history and different opportunities available in each region. The Government's aim is for every region to achieve success and good economic growth, which is why increasing resources have been put at the disposal of each regional development agency.

Sunbed Industry

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate has been made of the number of companies in the UK which offer sunbeds for (a) hire and (b) sale to members of the public. [80699]

Margaret Hodge: The Department has not made estimates of the number of companies in the UK which hire or sell sunbeds to members of the public. Official statistics on the relevant sections of the retail and service sectors, which are collected by the Office for National Statistics, are not sufficiently detailed to separately identify companies dealing in sunbeds.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent (a) representations he has received and (b) meetings he has had with members of the sunbed industry about trading issues. [80700]

Margaret Hodge: We have received no representations from the sunbed industry on trading issues and held no meetings with them.

UK Energy Requirements

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of UK energy requirements is dependent on Russian sources. [81573]

Malcolm Wicks: An estimate of the dependency on Russia for energy imports, by main fuel type, in 2005, is shown in the table.

Coal and other solid fuels	17,646	39
Crude oil and oil products	12,459	15

Source:
HM Revenue and Customs

It is not possible to identify the country of origin of natural gas molecules imported to the UK via the Bacton to Zeebrugge interconnector. No electricity was imported from Russia.

In total, 18 per cent. of all energy imported to the UK in 2005 is known to have originated in Russia, which equates to 10 per cent. of primary UK energy demand.

UK Regulatory Framework

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the extent to which the UK regulatory framework encourages domestic and inward investment; and if he will make a statement. [81799]

Mr. McCartney: International studies rate the UK as having one of the most favourable regulatory regimes for business in the world. In 2005 the OECD ranked the UK second only to Australia with regard to the quality of its product market regulation, while the World Bank placed the UK top among the major economies for regulatory quality.

An assessment of the UK's productivity and competitiveness is reported annually in the Productivity and Competitiveness Indicators. This reveals that the UK's light-touch product market regulation makes the UK an attractive place for foreign investors: it has the highest stock of inward investment of any G7 country, as a percentage of GDP. The UK Government recognise that these benefits stem from an effective regulatory framework, which is why better regulation is an important focus of current Government policy.

The UK's competition regime also forms an important part of its regulatory framework, and here again independent assessment by expert peer reviewers KPMG placed the UK's regime third in the world in 2004. Also, the Global Competition Review has praised the UK's Competition Commission as one of the best competition enforcement agencies in the world, coming joint first (with the US Federal Trade Commission and Department of Justice). Encouraging a high level of competition acts as a catalyst for firms to invest and innovate in order to stay ahead of their competitors.

UK Trade (Baltic States)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of UK trade was with (a) the Baltic states and (b) each Baltic state in the latest period for which figures are available. [81571]

Mr. McCartney: The percentage of total UK trade with the Baltic states in 2005 was 0.34 per cent. The percentage of total UK trade in 2005 with Estonia was 0.10; with Latvia 0.16 per cent. and with Lithuania 0.09 per cent.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of how UK trade with (a) the Baltic states and (b) each Baltic state has developed since they joined the EU. [81572]

Mr. McCartney: The information is as follows.

(a) Total UK trade with the Baltic states increased from £1,482 million in 2003 to £1,647 million in 2005, representing an increase of 11.2 per cent.

(b) Changes in UK trade with the individual Baltic states since EU accession are as follows:

	2003 (£ million)	2005 (£ million)	Percentage increase/ decrease
Estonia	382	462	21 (increase)
Latvia	621.3	767	23.5 (increase)
Lithuania	478.6	417	11.2 (decrease)

Union Modernisation Fund

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost to public funds was of servicing the activities of the Union Modernisation Fund in the last period for which records are available; and if he will make a statement. [80980]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I estimate the cost to be £113,000.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many individuals applied to be members of the current Supervisory Board of the Union Modernisation Fund. [80981]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Twelve individuals applied for the post of chair; 32 applied to be members of the Supervisory Board. Some individuals applied for both roles.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures are in place to ensure that trades unions do not breach the Union Modernisation Fund operating guidelines on political campaigning; and if he will make a statement. [80990]

Jim Fitzpatrick: All successful bidders are obliged to sign a grant offer letter setting out the terms on which money is provided and circumstances in which funds may be reclaimed. Grant offer terms are those applied to all DTI financial assistance schemes on the basis of Government accounting rules. Additional sanctions are available to the Secretary of State in case of misuse of funds through expenditure on political objects.

Section 116A(4) of the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 (as inserted by section 55 of the Employment Relations Act 2004) prevents money from the Union Modernisation Fund being paid into the political fund of a union. Therefore, money from the Union Modernisation Fund cannot legally be used by a trade union for political objects.

Accountability is ensured through regular monitoring of progress and expenditure for all UMF projects. All projects are required to allow site visits by DTI officials. Failure to comply with monitoring activity may result in sanctions including withholding or reclaiming of funds.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how he monitors the effectiveness of (a) the Supervisory Board of the Union Modernisation Fund and (b) the Union Modernisation Fund; and if he will make a statement. [80991]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Members of the Supervisory Board are selected by open competition. Recruitment is conducted in accordance with the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies, with support from the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments (OCPA). The Nolan Principles of Public Life, which are the foundations of the public appointments process and provide guidance on the standards expected of public appointees, apply to this appointment.

The Supervisory Board advises Ministers on applications to the UMF and other issues. The secretariat to the board is provided by DTI officials, who are in regular communication.

The DTI is working with Leeds University Business School to conduct a phased evaluation of the fund. Phase 1 is evaluating the operational effectiveness of the first round of bidding. Phase 2 will evaluate the success of supported projects and impact of fund monies via a series of case studies. All successful unions are obliged under grant offer terms to co-operate with this evaluation activity.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which unions have received funding from the Union Modernisation Fund in 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [81017]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following organisations were successful under Round One of the UMF: Retained Firefighters Union; Nationwide Group Staff Union; GMB; Communication Workers Union; Bakers, Food and Allied Workers Union; Wales TUC, Lloyds TSB Group Union; National Union of Teachers; Society of Chiropodists and Podiatrists; Royal College of Midwives; Union of Finance Staff; United Road Transport Union; Equity; Transport and General Workers Union; Community and District Nursing Association; Community; British Dental Association; Transport Salaried Staffs Association; Connect; USDAW; Prospect; National Union of Rail, Maritime and Transport Workers; National Union of Journalists; Trades Union Congress; Community and Youth Workers Union; ASLEF; West Bromwich Building Society Staff Union; General Federation of Trade Unions; Portman Group Staff Association; Ceramic and Allied Trades Union (now Unity); and Amicus.

This information is available on the DTI website at reference: http://www.dti.gov.uk/employment/trade-union-rights/modernisation/page 16097.html.

Waste Strategy

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which areas are being considered for storage of nuclear waste. [80966]

Malcolm Wicks: The low-level waste facility in West Cumbria is the only site in the UK licensed for the disposal of low-level waste (LLW). LLW is transported there by rail and road in purpose designed and licensed containers for disposal in the engineered vaults.

Options for the long-term management of higher-activity wastes are currently the subject of consideration and evaluation by the independent Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM). CoRWM is due to make its final recommendations to Government in July 2006. The long-term management policy for these higher activity wastes will then be decided by UK Government and the devolved administrations in the light of CoRWM's recommendations.

CoRWM has made a preliminary announcement that its recommendation is for deep geological disposal with robust interim surface storage.

The process of selecting a site or sites for whatever facility is ultimately chosen for dealing with these wastes will be undertaken in a similarly open and transparent manner as the work of CoRWM, with opportunities for the public to be involved and to influence the decisions directly.

Wind Turbines

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate he has made of the number of birds which have been killed or injured by flying into wind turbines in England. [81465]

Malcolm Wicks: None.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on the number of birds that have been killed or injured by flying into wind turbines in England. [81466]

Malcolm Wicks: None.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what account is taken of the risk of death or injury of birds from wind turbines in the formulation of Government policy on wind farms. [81469]

Malcolm Wicks: Government policy ensures that all wind farm applications made under Section 36 of the Electricity Act are accompanied by an environmental impact assessment which includes details of the likely impact on all parts of the environment, including birds. Application for smaller-scale windfarms are submitted to the relevant planning authority to determine under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and it would be for that authority to say whether an EIA was required.

When an application is considered, consultation will take place with a range of stakeholders, including statutory advisers on nature conservation and protection of the environment, as well as others who express an interest in the proposal. This ensures that decisions on whether to give approval for a wind farm are considered in the light of the best available information about its likely impacts.

In addition, should it be considered that there could be an impact on protected species or their habitats then an appropriate assessment must be undertaken pursuant to the Conservation (Natural Habitats,&c.) Regulations 1994, irrespective of who the decision taker may be. In such circumstances the decision taker must consult the appropriate nature conservation body (English Nature, the Countryside Council for Wales or Scottish Natural Heritage) and take its views into account before making any decision on whether to approve the application.

Furthermore, the DTI has established a Research Advisory Group to fund research into the impact of wind farms on the environment. This includes a joint study with wind farm developers and DEFRA to collect data on the distribution of sea birds in the three strategic offshore wind farm areas, the results of which will inform decisions on the grant of consent for wind farm projects in those areas.

World Expo 2010

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what resources his Department has allocated to British participation in the World Expo in 2010. [73618]

Mr. McCartney: The Government are considering the Chinese Government's formal invitation to participate in the Shanghai Expo 2010. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is looking at how UK participation might be funded and is discussing this with a wide range of possible stakeholders including Government Departments, other parts of the public sector, and many private sector companies. The Department is involved in this process.

There is a strong support across Whitehall for UK participation in Shanghai Expo. We want to deliver an impressive UK presence. The Government are drawing up detailed plans (including financial plans) in consultation with the British business community and other key organisations, to identify how best to maximise UK presence at the Expo.

Mr. Byrne: During the period 1 May 2004 to 31 March 2006, 6,205 applications were made to the Worker Registration Scheme (WRS) by applicants in the EH postcode area, of which 6,010 were approved.

British Muslim Citizenship Toolkits

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British Muslim citizenship toolkits have been issued to (a) mosques, (b) parents and (c) young people in Luton since their introduction. [75922]

Meg Munn: I have been asked to reply.

The development of a British Muslim citizenship toolkit was one of the recommendations of the "Preventing Extremism Together" report published in November 2005 by workgroups from the Muslim community.

The Government are supporting individuals and organisations to implement the recommendations but responsibility for them lies with the Muslim community. Good progress is being made on a number of the recommendations and Government are encouraging Muslim organisations to develop this toolkit.

Charities

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list inquiries into charities with annual incomes of less than £1,000,000 undertaken by the Charity Commission in each of the last 10 years; and what the annual income of the charity concerned was in each case. [67900]

Edward Miliband: I have been asked to reply.

This is a matter for the Charity Commission, which is an independent regulator, independent of Government. I understand from the Commission that it has carried out 2,163 inquiries into charities with annual incomes of less than £1,000,000 since the start of the financial year 1996-97. I have asked the chief executive of the Charity Commission to write to the hon. Member with the details of those inquiries. A copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter of 4 April 2006 from the hon. Member for Walsall, North, reference M9042/6. [78028]

Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80483]

Mr. Byrne: The Cabinet Office publishes, on an annual basis, a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

Mr. McNulty: There are no commonly recognised definitions of serious and major crime. Figures are instead provided in the following tables for violent crimes recorded by Cumbria Constabulary.

Corresponding figures for organised crime are not collected centrally.

The only available information on counter terrorism activity indicate that Cumbria Constabulary made three stop/searches under anti-terrorism legislation in 1996-97 but did not make any over the period 1997-98 to 2004-05.

Table 1: Recorded offences of violent crime in Cumbria

Damages

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2882W, on damages, how many cases of damages were paid out by his Department for the last year in which figures are available; and what the total sum paid was. [68687]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Elliot House

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department since what date sex offenders have been housed in Elliot House in Birmingham; what causes for concern have been drawn to his Department's attention since that time; what his rationale is for deciding that such offenders should no longer be housed in this hostel; and what steps are being taken to ensure that the risk of their re-offending is minimised. [80055]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Elliott House opened as a bail hostel in June 1993 and, from the outset, accommodated individuals on bail with mental disorders. In June 1994, it was re-designated as a probation and bail hostel. In August 2001, it was re-designated as an approved premises, this permits the site to be used for accommodating persons granted bail in criminal proceedings and persons convicted of offences in connection with their supervision or rehabilitation. Since Elliott House opened in June 1993, it has housed a range of individuals including those either charged with sex offences and on bail or, since August 2001, those on licence from custody having been convicted of sex offences.

The Home Department has not collated any concerns that have been raised about the presence of sex offenders in Elliott House. There has been no recorded incident of sexual offending by any resident against the community.

Certain sex and violent offenders are accommodated in approved premises in order to provide public protection. Offenders may be closely monitored and supervised in approved premises, in order to ensure compliance with their licence conditions and to ensure that swift enforcement action is taken, where offenders' behaviour presents a risk of harm to the public.

It is important that the public feels secure. In order to maintain public confidence in our systems for managing the risks posed by such offenders, it was decided that child sex offenders should no longer be housed in approved premises that are immediately adjacent to schools and nurseries.

Offenders will be moved from Elliott House following a thorough risk assessment once suitable alternative accommodation has been found, where supervision and treatment may continue. The supervision and treatment are both necessary to address the offender's risk of re-offending.

Foreign Criminals

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign offenders have been released from prisons in (a) Scotland and (b) Northern Ireland without being considered for deportation in each of the last eight years; and for what offences each was originally convicted. [77128]

John Reid: I refer the right hon. Member to the most recent written ministerial statement of 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 77WS. I set out in this statement the eight priority areas for management action to deliver our long term agenda for change on radically improving the system for deporting foreign national prisoners. The sixth point deals specifically with the position in Scotland and Northern Ireland concerning foreign national prisoners. We shall update the House with our progress on this point shortly.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign criminals released from prison in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years have been recommended for deportation but have not yet been deported. [69294]

Human Trafficking

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what range of sentences were given in cases involving human trafficking in each of the last five years. [78809]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 20 June 2006]: We have introduced comprehensive legislation to criminalise trafficking in human beings. The Sexual Offences Act 2003, which came into force in May 2004, introduces new, wide-ranging offences covering trafficking into, within, and out of the UK for any form of sexual exploitation. A new offence of "trafficking people for exploitation" covering forced labour, removal of organs and the trafficking of vulnerable people, including children, is included in the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc.) Act 2004 and came into force in December 2004. Prior to 2003, the Immigration Act 1971 was adopted for trafficking offences. There was one conviction in 2003 under that piece of legislation. In that case the defendant received a sentence of 10 years. This sentence was increased on appeal in 2004 to 23 years by the court of appeal on application by the Attorney-General as it was deemed unduly lenient.

In 2004 sentences for trafficking offences ranged from six to 18 years. In 2005 sentences for trafficking offences ranged from four to 21 years. In 2006 sentences for trafficking offences have so far ranged from four to seven years.

To date no convictions have been achieved for trafficking for labour exploitation.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what prosecutions have been successfully concluded for people trafficking; and what the nationality was of those convicted of this offence in cases where proceedings are complete. [77907]

Mr. Coaker: To date there have been 29 convictions for trafficking for sexual exploitation under the Sexual Offences Act 2003, in 15 different cases. Prior to 2003, the Immigration Act 1971 was adopted for trafficking offences. There was one conviction in 2003 under that piece of legislation. The nationalities of the people convicted of trafficking offences are Albanian, Kosovan, Macedonian, Lithuanian, Turkish, Chinese, Moldovan and Thai.

To date there have been no convictions for trafficking for labour exploitation under the Asylum and Immigration (treatment of claimants etc) Act 2004.

London Bombings Inquiry

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions his Department has had in the last month about a public inquiry into the 7 July bombings; and if he will make a statement. [80835]

Mr. McNulty: The Government have carefully considered the possibility of a public inquiry into the 7 July London bombings but have concluded that this would not add to our understanding of the causes of those atrocities. The Government continue to hold this view. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary and officials in my Department have had a number of discussions on this issue recently with families of the victims of the bombings.

A number of parliamentary and other inquiries (some of which are complete and some of which are on-going) address specific aspects of the events. A public inquiry would divert resources at a time when the police and agencies are actively engaged in the continuing investigation into the events of 7 July and the detection and prevention of further atrocities.

Mohamed Kargbo

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the application by Mr. Mohamed Kargbo, of Christchurch (reference: K414597) for indefinite leave to remain, received by his Department on 24 June 2004, will be determined; and if he will make a statement. [76132]

Mr. Byrne: Officials from the Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote to Mr. Kargbo's legal representatives on 23 June 2006 with details of the outcome of his application.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals applying for a national insurance number and referred to the immigration and nationality directorate due to (a) suspicion about their eligibility to work in the UK, (b) the use of false documents and (c) other reasons were (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted in each of the last five years. [75857]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the number of investigations and prosecutions from specific referrals to the immigration and nationality directorate (IND) from the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) could be obtained only by individually searching IND databases for the outcome of each referral received.

	October 2004 to March 2005	April 2005 to March 2006

Order	Who it applies to	Description	Length
Curfew orders with electronic monitoring	10-17s	Courts have the power to make curfew orders backed with electronic monitoring for juvenile offenders. The tagged curfews can help to break patterns of offending by keeping juvenile offenders off the streets and out of trouble at the times they are most likely to offend.	Up to six months
Supervision order	10-17s	The young person is supervised by a member of the YOT. A range of conditions may be attached for more serious offences. These include drug treatment (for 16+s since the Crime and Disorder Act) residence requirements, curfews, activities specified by the YOT (normally reparation, offending behaviour, group work, anger management etc.).	From six months to three years (usually one year)
Referral order	10-17s	Youth courts refer young people, who plead guilty and are convicted for the first time, to youth offender panels. The youth offender panels design an intervention programme with the young person to tackle his/her offending behaviour.	From 3-12 months
Community punishment and rehabilitation order	16+	Requires the offender to be under supervision and to perform unpaid work for not less than 40 and not more than 100 hours.	Between 12 months and three years
Community punishment order	16+	Involves undertaking unpaid work in the community—e.g. carpentry workshops, conservation, decorating or caring tasks for the elderly/vulnerable.	Between 40 to 240 hours
Community rehabilitation order	16+	The equivalent of supervision, overseen by the probation service and only available for "mature" 16 and 17-year-olds. It can have conditions attached (e.g. residence at probation hostel).	From six months to three years (usually one year)
Intensive supervision and surveillance programme (ISSP)	10-17s	Not a court order. Route onto ISSP is either via bail, as part of a community order or community part of the DTO. Young offender is subject to intensive supervision consisting of highly structured, individual programmes to tackle the causes of offending behaviour and intensive surveillance consisting of either tracking, electronic tagging, voice verification, or intelligence-led policing.	6-12 months intensive supervision of at least 25 hours per week for first 3-6 months, reassessed thereafter
Reparation order	10-17s	Not within the stable of community sentences as such. The young person is required to make reparation to the victim of the offence or to the community in general. This engages the individual in some practical reparative activity which brings home the consequences of their offence.	No more than 24 hours in aggregate

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to provide a substantive answer to Question 63882, on Khalid Rashid; and if he will make a statement. [78509]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 June 2006]: I replied to the hon. Member on 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 2016W.

Police

Mr. Michael Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the proposals for the merger of Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire police forces. [25363]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend, the then Home Secretary, announced on 11 April that he was initiating the statutory consultation process on this merger. However, the Home Secretary announced on 19 June that he would not be laying any orders for Home Secretary initiated mergers before the summer recess. This will provide the opportunity for further discussion and dialogue.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department where Cumbria and Lancashire's new merged police force headquarters will be based. [61322]

Mr. McNulty: The location of the new Headquarters will be a decision for the chief constable and police authority of the newly merged force.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many meetings his civil servants have had with chief constables to discuss police restructuring in England and Wales. [68620]

Mr. McNulty: Senior officials and other members of the Home Office police restructuring team have met chief constables and other colleagues on numerous occasions from police forces and authorities throughout England and Wales to discuss police restructuring.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress is being made with the proposed mergers of police forces in the North East region. [76812]

Mr. McNulty: On 3 March my right hon. Friend, the then Home Secretary, announced his intention to initiate a merger of the police forces in the North East.

My right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary, announced on 19 June he would not be laying any Home Secretary initiated amalgamation Orders before Parliament before the summer recess. This will allow further discussions to take place and outstanding matters to be resolved.

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which members of the (a) Cumbria and (b) Lancashire police authority (i) supported and (ii) opposed the merger of Lancashire and Cumbria police. [81704]

Mr. McNulty: That information is a matter for the police authorities concerned and is not held centrally.

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which sites are being considered as a possible headquarters for the merged Lancashire and Cumbria police force; and when a decision on the site will be made. [81705]

Mr. McNulty: The location of the headquarters for a merged Cumbria and Lancashire police force will be a matter for the Chief Constable and police authority of the newly merged force.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many representations he has received from people in Yorkshire supporting the police mergers. [61675]

Mr. McNulty: We have received a number of representations from people across the country, both in favour of, and opposed to police force mergers.

It is not possible to identify those relating to Yorkshire separately.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he will take in relation to police authorities who do not submit business cases on the proposed police structure reforms by the 23 December deadline. [39464]

Mr. McNulty: I apologise to my hon. Friend for the delay in answering his question and will write to him in full.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to ensure that the Cumbria Police Authority remains a separate organisation. [50812]

Mr. McNulty: No. My right hon. Friend has made it clear that the new merged force will have a single police authority.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate of the cost of the police restructuring proposals has been carried out by his Department; and when they will be published. [48617]

Mr. McNulty: For areas where options have been identified as viable and effective a case for amalgamation has been provided. The cases for amalgamation contain indicative projected costs for amalgamation of the relevant forces. These documents have been sent to the police forces and police authorities concerned.

They are also available on the Home Office website—http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/police-reform/Force-restructuring.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with (a) the Minister of State in the Department for Constitutional Affairs and (b) other ministerial colleagues on the possible impact of proposed police force mergers on court services; and if he will make a statement. [64734]

Mr. McNulty: Discussions are ongoing with colleagues on the possible impact of proposed police force mergers.

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many responses (a) favourable to and (b) opposed to a full merger of the Yorkshire and Humberside police forces his Department has received. [64984]

Mr. McNulty: To date, the Home Office has received submissions on merger options for Yorkshire and the Humber police forces from North Yorkshire, South Yorkshire, West Yorkshire and Humberside police forces and authorities. All of these considered a full region merger as a viable option among a range of proposed possibilities.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the proposed timetable is for the establishment of the new Yorkshire and Humber Regional Police Force; and if he will make a statement. [67510]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 May 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary's announcement on 19 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1057-62W and the letter which he sent to all hon. Members on that date. He said that the formal objection period for the Yorkshire and Humber merger, which would have expired on 11 August, will be extended. The replacement timetable will be subject to further discussion.

Deportation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the nationality is of those foreign nationals who following a prison sentence should have been considered for deportation; whether the UK has active deportation arrangements with each country concerned; and whether deportation may not be possible because of the political situation in each country. [68656]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 8 May 2006]: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has updated the House on this matter in a written ministerial statement on 29 June 2006, Official Report, column 18WS and the Director General of the Immigration and Nationality Department (IND) wrote to the Chairman of the Home Affairs Select Committee on the 29 June on the number of cases where foreign national prisoners were released without proper deportation consideration. A copy of the letter has been placed in both Libraries.

Prisoners (Licensed Releases)

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners were charged with offences committed whilst they were released on (a) special purpose licence, (b) resettlement day release licence, (c) resettlement overnight release licence and (d) child care resettlement licence in each year between 1997 and 2006. [79024]

Mr. Sutcliffe: To provide the information required would involve a manual interrogation of the individual records for each prisoner. This could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, temporary release failures represent 0.1 per cent. of the number of licences issued each year. These failures include other breaches of licence conditions such as prisoners returning late from temporary release and prisoners returning under the influence of alcohol as well as commission of offences.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the possible correlation between overcrowding and self-harm in the (a) male, (b) female and (c) juvenile prison estate; and if he will make a statement. [78134]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Overcrowding, and its subsequent effects in terms of prisoners' distance from home, prisoner transfers and the time prisoners spend out of their cells, may be one factor in heightening the distress linked to suicide. However, the most important explanation of why prisoners harm and kill themselves is that a high proportion of prisoners arrive in prison with risk factors such as a history of abuse or drugs/alcohol problems. This is true for all parts of the prison estate.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people sit on the Prison Service committee with responsibility for dealing with suspected staff wrongdoing; how often the committee meets; who chairs it; to whom it reports; and if he will make a statement. [80528]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Professional Standards Steering Group, which reports to the director general, meets quarterly to ensure the effective implementation of the Prison Service professional standards strategy. Its membership consists of the deputy director general who chairs the meeting, the director of personnel, the director of operations, the head of security group and the head of the professional standards unit.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which prisons he has visited since his appointment; [80610]

(2) which prisons the Minister for prisons has visited in each of the last eight years. [80611]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Secretary of State for the Home Department visited Wandsworth prison on 28 June 2006.

No single Minister has sole responsibility for prisons policy. However, the Ministers listed in the following table have had responsibility for areas of prison policy in the last eight years.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what buildings and refurbishment works are planned for (a) the gymnasium, (b) the chapel, (c) the workshop and (d) other areas of HMP Lewes; and what the (i) estimated cost and (ii) expected start date is in each case. [81046]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No major building works or refurbishments are currently planned for the gymnasium, the chapel or the workshops at HMP Lewes. A major capital refurbishment of F wing is planned to start on site in January 2007 at a cost of around £11.5 million, and a maintenance scheme at a cost of around £0.25 million to render the chapel is due to start on site in November 2006. The local works department has recently improved the showering facilities for the gymnasium.

Probation Service

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total funding allocated for the (a) recruitment and (b) training of probation officers was in each of the last eight years. [79955]

John Reid: The recruitment and training of probation officers is funded by the Home Office via grants to local probation areas. The recruitment responsibility is delegated to areas therefore there is no information available centrally about the specific amount dedicated to this function.

Figures for the funding of the training programme are available from the time of the creation of the National Probation Directorate in 2001. They are as follows:

Financial year	Amount (£)
2002-03	43,860,860
2003-04	53,373,300
2004-05	56,164,000
2005-06	51,400,000
2006-07	40,365,259

Proceeds of Crime Act

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many actions for recovery of assets under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 have been undertaken following conviction for the employment of illegal migrants. [58727]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally but I understand that asset recovery action is currently under consideration in at least one major case involving the employment of illegal migrants. I am unable to comment further at this stage.

Security Industry Authority

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his written statement of 16 February 2006, on the Private Security Industry Approved Contractor Scheme, what assessment he has made of whether companies should achieve membership of the scheme under Option 3 if they (a) meet standards that do not correspond directly and exactly to the 89 indicators of the Option 4 scheme as set out by the Security Industry Authority and (b) cover different criteria in more depth. [59021]

Mr. Coaker: To provide assurance that all approved contractors have achieved the necessary standards all of the 89 requirements must be met. An approved contractor cannot compensate for failure to meet some requirements by excelling in others—this would lead to uncertainty over what approval means and could undermine the credibility of the scheme.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether employers in the security industry will be able to (a) employ staff and (b) use contractors who have applied for a licence to the Security Industry Authority but who have not yet received a licence. [62265]

Mr. Coaker: The Private Security Industry Act 2001 imposes sanctions on those who undertake defined security activities without a licence from the SIA and those who supply unlicensed security operatives undertaking those activities. Companies that hire security firms whose personnel include unlicensed staff are not committing any offence, since the Private Security Industry Act 2001 places the onus on the individual and the company that provides security services, not on the customer. Where in-house employees are required to be licensed, the employer and individual are both responsible for ensuring this occurs.

Companies that have been awarded approved contractor status by the SIA are able to legally deploy a proportion of security staff while their licence applications are being processed.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed by the Security Industry Authority to process licence applications; and what training they are given. [77803]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) has contracted BT Syntegra as its Managed Service Provider (MSP) to process all aspects of licence applications, with the exception of the final licensing decision. BT Syntegra has employed and extensively trained 152 full-time employees to carry out this task.

To increase processing capacity during this period of high demand, the SIA has supplemented the MSP staffing levels with a temporary in-house processing centre employing an additional 12 security cleared temporary staff who work directly to the SIA. These temporary staff members are supervised at all times and are only utilised to initially check accurate completion of application forms and identification documents. They received comprehensive induction training prior to deployment, and are issued with training notes and guidance templates. Following induction they shadow experienced permanent employees for a minimum of one week, and are subject to daily coaching and supervision. Also daily training sessions provide extra guidance on application/document checks.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had on the potential dismissal of workers in the private security industry on 20 March 2006 due to licences not being issued by the Security Industry Authority (SIA) by that date; and what steps he has taken to prevent such an occurrence. [60529]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 21 March 2006]: I took on ministerial responsibility for the SIA on 4 May. My predecessor Paul Goggins met with the SIA on a number of occasions to discuss the impact of the implementation date of 20 March 2006. The SIA put in place a system 14 months before the 20 March 2006 to manage the transition to licensing. This date was agreed after consultation with the industry, who had undertaken to submit their applications in good time. While some did submit their applications in good time, other parts of the industry failed to do so. The SIA wants all of the security industry to be compliant with the law as soon as possible and has taken additional steps to speed up the processing of licence applications. These include temporarily doubling the capacity of the SIA's licensing system and working closely with companies to reduce applicant error rates. Enforcement action is a matter for the SIA and the police. ACPO and the SIA have issued joint Enforcement Guidelines in which they stated they intend to take a measured and proportionate approach to enforcement.

Sexual Offenders

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people convicted of sexual offences against children have been deported to the UK from abroad in each of the last five years. [77158]

Mr. Byrne: Anyone encountered by the Immigration Service being deported to the UK back from abroad is referred to the police for appropriate registration, and so records are not collected by IND.

Criminal Records

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of Regulation 7 (1) of the Police Act 1997 (Criminal Records) (Registration) Regulations 2006 on small and medium-sized organisations; [76155]

(2) which organisations have had their registered body status cancelled as a result of the Police Act 1997 (Criminal Records) (Registration) Regulations 2006; [76156]

(3) if he will commission a race equality impact assessment in relation to the decision of the Criminal Records Bureau to cancel the registration of organisations that submit fewer than 100 disclosure applications each year; [76157]

(4) for what reason the Criminal Records Bureau requires a minimum of 100 disclosure applications to be made by a body for that body to qualify as a registered body. [76158]

Joan Ryan: Following a public consultation exercise last year, a full regulatory impact assessment was completed, and placed in the Library along with the regulations. This included a small firms impact test which acknowledged that small organisations would probably not be able to satisfy the minimum threshold and would need to approach other organisations in order to obtain checks on their employees and incur the associated costs. However, in some cases it was concluded that the costs of using such an organisation would be lower than the administrative costs of running and maintaining a small volume registered body. No race related issues were identified during the consultation.

The changes arose from a key recommendation of the 2002 independent review of the CRB and were supported by the recent Bichard inquiry that recommended reducing the number of registered bodies from over 14,000 that existed at the time. It also follows the CRB's own research that revealed that up to a third of registered bodies were not fully complying with the guidance and the code of practice and explanatory guide issued by the CRB which is a condition of registration. One of the areas of weakness was in completing the requisite identity checks on applicants.

The intention is to make the registered body network more professional and more experienced in the disclosure process which will allow the CRB to ensure that the network of users is proficient in the security and policies of the CRB. Setting an annual threshold is a key part of the CRB's strategy to enhance the effectiveness of, and improve standards within the registered body network.

The CRB will provide advice, guidance and support to organisations on the options available to access the disclosure service before their registration is cancelled due to low volume.

The CRB has written to some 2,800 organisations to inform them that they are to become deregistered. These organisations have submitted 10 or fewer applications in the last 12 months.

Taxis

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent by his Department on taxi travel in the 2005-06 financial year; and what proportion of such travel was undertaken in each nation and region of the UK, including London. [37482]

Mr. Byrne: The recorded total cost of taxi travel in the 2005-06 financial year in the Home Department was £806,000.

Obtaining the proportion of such travel as undertaken in each nation and region of the UK, including London, could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Visas

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 22 June 2006, Official Report, columns 2128-29W, on visas, why records are not maintained of the number of visitors who leave the country before or at the expiry of their permitted stay; and if he will make a statement. [81124]

Mr. Byrne: Physical embarkation controls were withdrawn at seaports in 1994 and reconfigured at major airports in 1998. The five year immigration strategy for asylum and immigration, published in February 2005, contains details of our plans, through the e-Borders programme, to strengthen and modernise our border control including providing an electronic record of all those entering and leaving the UK. This is scheduled to commence in 2008.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Climate Change

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) reviewed on the (i) chemical make-up and (ii) environmental impact of aircraft trails; and if he will make a statement. [79517]

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has evaluated on the effects of condensation trails on climate change. [80666]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs does not directly undertake work in this area, but closely monitors research commissioned by the European Union, Research Councils and other Government Departments to identify, characterise, and assess the impact of aircraft emissions on global climate change.

A major scientific report assessing the contribution of aircraft to climate change, "Aviation and the Global Atmosphere", was published in 1999 by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC). More recently, research carried out under the EU 5th Framework Project, TRADEOFF, has improved modelling techniques and reduced estimates of contrail radiative forcing by two fold compared with the previous estimate from the IPCC. Research carried out under the TRADEOFF project also supported the conclusion that aviation potentially enhances cirrus cloud coverage.

Aircraft-induced cirrus clouds reduce the amount of solar radiation reaching the surface of the Earth, and so mitigate global warming. However, significant uncertainty surrounding this area of study makes it difficult to assess whether increased cloudiness would reduce or increase global warming trends.

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 1692W, on greenhouse gases, what assessment he has made of the reasons for the rise in carbon dioxide emissions between 1997 and 2004. [81214]

Ian Pearson: The rise in carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions between 1997 and 2004 was caused by higher than anticipated levels of economic growth and the recent rise in global energy prices which has altered the relative prices of coal and gas. However, CO_2 emissions were still about 5.6 per cent. below 1990 levels and we expect CO_2 emissions to fall again in the future given longer term expectations on fuel prices and as a result of policies introduced under the new Climate Change Programme.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of achieving the target of increasing by 20 per cent. by 2010 the energy efficiency of residential accommodation in England pursuant to Section 217 of the Housing Act 2004; and if he will make a statement. [77962]

Ian Pearson: The net costs and benefits of existing and new policies were calculated for the Climate Change Programme review and presented in 2005 prices. Existing household energy efficiency measures have a net present value benefit of £65 billion and new household energy efficiency measures announced in the 2006 Climate Change Programme have a net present value benefit to consumers in the region of £13.5 billion, over the life of the policies. This is because the energy savings far outweigh the up front costs of the measures. This figure excludes improvements in air quality, which would make the benefits greater, if included.

The evaluation synthesis report can be found at http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/climatechange/uk/ukccp/pdf/synthesisccpolicy-evaluations.pdf. We intend to publish the appraisal synthesis report in due course.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department has assessed published research into the use of the gamma interferon tuberculosis test in other countries; [81472]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the gamma interferon tuberculosis test; and what sources of information he has used to inform that assessment. [81473]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Defra has assessed research on the value and uses of the gamma interferon (gIFN) blood test in other countries, including Australia, New Zealand, the United States, and Europe. The test is now a standard tool in the cattle testing armoury of European countries with endemic TB problems, like the Republic of Ireland, Italy, Spain, Northern Ireland and Great Britain.

The gIFN test can detect some infected animals that are negative in the SICCT test (skin test) and may detect animals at an earlier stage of infection. However, the gIFN test is slightly less specific than the SICCT test, which means that it is also more likely to incorrectly identify negative animals as being infected.

In addition to evidence from overseas research, and in order to further improve bTB diagnostics, the Government have conducted a field trial to assess the potential benefits of using of the gIFN blood test in GB. This helped to establish that the use of this test, in parallel with the skin test, has the potential to significantly increase the detection of infected cattle where TB has been confirmed, and so hasten the elimination of infected cattle. Preparations are now being made for wider use of the gIFN test in prescribed circumstances. The results of the field trial on gIFN usage will be published shortly.

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what total land area of England was under an (a) annual, (b) two yearly, (c) three yearly and (d) four yearly bovine tuberculosis testing regime in 2005. [80151]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The information requested is set out in the following table:

	Hectares
12 monthly testing	2,358,772.91
24 monthly testing	1,186,483.65
36 monthly testing	81,928.38

Earthships

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of possible energy savings from (a) the construction and (b) use of buildings known as earthships; and what estimate he has made of the number of such constructions in each of the last five years. [81774]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 3 July 2006]: My Department has made no assessment on possible energy savings from earthships, either in the construction, or the use of the buildings. We are not aware of any estimates made on the number constructed in the UK.

Independent Scientific Group

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet representatives of the Independent Scientific Group to discuss their findings. [81474]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer given 3 July 2006]: I met representatives of the Independent Scientific Group (ISG) on 24 April to discuss their findings and other related matters. The ISG inform me of new findings as they become available and their secretariat regularly send me summaries of all ISG meetings.

Landfill

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of land-filled waste in Gloucestershire came from commercial sources in the last period for which figures are available; and what steps are being taken to reduce this figure. [81314]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency publishes full details of the production and management of wastes in England and Wales on its website. The latest available figures, for 2002-03, show that 37.5 per cent. of landfilled waste in Gloucestershire came from commercial and industrial sources.

Action to reduce the amount of waste sent to landfill is driven by regional and local strategies and supported by nationally funded programmes.

In its Regional Spatial Strategy, the South West regional assembly seeks to achieve a maximum of just 17 per cent. of commercial waste sent to landfill by 2020, reflecting the Regional Waste Strategy. Gloucestershire county council is the Waste Planning Authority, statutorily responsible for preparing a waste local plan. The current plan calls for a reduction of waste to landfill in support of national and regional targets.

Defra's Business Resource and Efficiency Programme (BREW) funds a number of initiatives designed to help business use resources more efficiently and thus reduce waste. For example, Envirowise provides free advice to business on resource efficiency. The National Industrial Symbiosis Programme enables businesses to divert waste from landfill. The South West regional development agency manages local BREW funds within the region.

Organic Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government plan to take as part of their Organic Action Plan to encourage greater public procurement of organic food. [79893]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following recommendations made in the Organic Action Plan's "Two years on" document, Defra has made organic food an integral part of its sustainable food strategy.

My Department is currently leading a major initiative across Whitehall to support and encourage the purchase of more sustainable food by public authorities. The Food Procurement Implementation Group oversees this initiative and includes a number of bodies that are working on local initiatives to increase the demand for organic food and encourage more small producers to compete for public contracts.

Scientific Research

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much the Department has spent in each of the last five years on scientific research. [79320]

Mr. Bradshaw: Defra's research budget for the years in question is:

	£ million
2001-02	144
2002-03	144
2003-04	146
2004-05	152
2005-06	156

Water Companies

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received in each year since 2001 on Thames Water's price increases. [80960]

Ian Pearson: Ministers receive representations from customers, Members of Parliament and lobbyists, relating to water price increases. However, water price increases are a matter for Ofwat, who are responsible for regulating and fixing water and sewerage price limits.

Water Pollution

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what is the cause of the green bloom in the waters of the Hampshire Avon below Amesbury; and what steps are (a) being taken and (b) planned to remedy the problem. [81120]

Ian Pearson: The cause of the green bloom in the waters of the Hampshire Avon below Amesbury is likely to be a combination of environmental factors, including high temperatures, low water flow and consequential increases in the concentration of nutrients. There have been no significant pollution incidents at this location in the river. Rainfall and river flows have been significantly depressed over the last 20 months and, in combination with other environmental factors, this may create opportunities for algal growth. However, the May 2006 period was characterised by periods of very high rainfall. Urban and agricultural runoff may lead to direct discolouration and also contribute to nutrient enrichment in the river.

There is, and has been, significant investment and action to improve the quality for the Hampshire Avon in recent years.

For example, four Wessex Water sewage treatment works discharging into the River Avon have had phosphate stripping installed in their treatment process as part of the previous environmental programme periodic review. Wessex Water's current water quality environment programme for 2005-10 includes schemes to further reduce nutrient loads from sewage effluent discharges. By the end of the 2010 period, two additional sewage treatment works discharging into the River Avon are expected to receive phosphate stripping and the phosphate limits set for the four original works are expected to be reduced to half of their currently permitted limit.

In addition, as part of the requirement introduced by the habitats directive, the Environment Agency have asked Wessex Water to review their abstractions on the Hampshire Avon and assess their effect on the ecology of the river. The findings from this project, which will conclude by March 2008, will contribute to the Habitats Directive Review of Consents and may result in a requirement to reduce the amount of water abstracted by the water company, or for other improvements to be made in the companies' water management operations.

Most recently, the Hampshire Avon catchment has been identified as a priority catchment under the England Catchment-Sensitive Farming Delivery Initiative (ECSFDI). The key objective of this initiative is to raise awareness of agricultural pollution and encourage farmers to take action to mitigate the impact of agriculture on the water environment, including the reduction of nutrient inputs.

The water framework directive (WFD) is a key driver of future action on water quality. The directive came into force on 22 December 2000 and requires member states to establish a range of measures to manage water quality by 2009 and to make them operational by 2012. A central objective of the directive is that water bodies should aim to reach good ecological and chemical status by 2015. We are working with stakeholders to develop mechanisms to tackle pressures, including both point and diffuse sources, for inclusion in River Basin Management Plans, and aim to consult on potential options for tackling non-agricultural, agricultural and hydromorphological pressures in the later part of 2006.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by his Department since October 2005, in date order. [81322]

Mr. Thomas: Since October 2005, DFID has published the following documents as part of the Command Paper Series:

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in his Department are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81396]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is strongly committed to the targets set out in the Framework for Sustainable Development on the Government Estate. DFID has established its own pilot carbon offsetting scheme (the Earthmiles initiative), whereby air miles from official travel with certain airlines are donated for the benefit of environmental projects.

All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases Certified Emissions Reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

Health Sector Assistance

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent representations his Department has received from developing countries regarding health sector assistance. [81795]

Mr. Thomas: DFID receives a variety of representations from groups and organisations seeking support. However, most of our development assistance is managed through DFID's country offices, who are in daily contact with developing country partners, non-governmental organisations and civil society in-country. We are therefore unlikely to receive formal representations as such because we keep in regular contact regarding health sector development and assistance through our strong in-country partnerships.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80486]

Mr. Thomas: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Malawi

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the implementation of the health sector support plan for Malawi. [81787]

Mr. Thomas: Progress with Malawi health sector-wide approach (SWAp) is reviewed jointly, twice a year by Government and donors, of whom DFID is the largest with a commitment of £100 million over six years.

Progress has been good. In addition to the earlier successes of the eradication of polio and the elimination of neonatal tetanus and the increasing distribution of bed nets and their re-treatment (up from 7 per cent. in 2002 to 71 per cent. in 2004-05), the health service has taken on a rapid increase in antiretroviral treatment for HIV and AIDS. 50 sites have treated 46,000 people up from 3,000 two years ago. This is making a real difference: both saving lives and improving the quality of life of those living with HIV and AIDS.

Critical to this success has been the additional resources made available at hospital and clinic level as a result of the increased aid channelled through the health SWAp. The Emergency Human Resources Programme has in its first year recruited an extra 580 Malawian health professionals. There are 60 volunteer specialists and nurse tutors from overseas filling key vacant posts. The intake of Malawian trainee nurses and doctors has been increased in anticipation of the improvements in infrastructure at training schools that are now under way. New, internationally recruited senior managers have taken over the central medical stores management and are charged with bringing to an end the perennial stock outs that have frustrated the health services. A new maternal mortality road map offers a way forward to address the unacceptably high level of maternal deaths in Malawi. The Ministry of Health is entering service level agreements with private sector providers, particularly the Christian Hospital Association of Malawi, that will also provide the basic essential health package free-of-charge at point of delivery.

We are encouraging the Government of Malawi to plan for universal access for HIV and AIDS prevention and treatment and to address the further human resources and management requirements that will create. We stand ready to help.

Ministerial Conference (Paris)

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2006 to the right hon. Member for Leeds, West (John Battle), Official Report, columns 429-30W, on Ministerial Conference (Paris), whether the UK has agreed to implement the airline ticket levy for international development; what progress has been made on negotiations on whether part of the levy will go towards health and sexual and reproductive health and rights information and services; and if he will make a statement. [81410]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

The UK is committed to developing innovative financing mechanisms to support accelerated progress towards the Millennium Development Goals, and announced at the Paris Conference on Innovative Financing on 28 February and 1 March 2006 that it will hypothecate part of its existing air passenger duty to provide a long-term stream of finance to the International Finance Facility (IFF) and the pilot IFF for Immunization.

The International Finance Facility is specifically designed to provide the immediate and significant level of funding that is required to support progress towards all the millennium development goals by 2015. The IFF would support significant progress on health in general, as well as on sexual and reproductive health and rights information and services. The frontloading principles of the IFF are already being applied to the health sector through the IFF for immunisation, which will provide $4 billion for vaccinations and is expected to save a total of 10 million lives, including five million children before 2015.

Plant Breeding

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the potential of effective competition legislation to tackle monopolies of rights relating to plant varieties by private sector companies. [79790]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government consider that the UK's system of plant breeders' rights already provides adequate provisions to address any potential anti-competitive practices. The UK's system is based on the 1991 Convention of the Union for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants (the UPOV Convention) enabled by the Plant Varieties Act 1997 (the Act).

Plant breeders who hold rights exercise control over their protected varieties in order to enable them to recoup development costs and to fund further breeding programmes. Although this is necessary for the development of this sector, there are exceptions to their rights:

i. Section 8 of the Act provides that breeders' rights do not extend to acts done for either private or non-commercial purposes, for experimental purposes, or for the purpose of breeding another variety, and;

ii. Section 17 of the Act makes provision for compulsory licences to be granted to third parties where the Controller of Plant Variety Rights is satisfied that this is necessary to ensure that the variety in question, is available to the public at reasonable prices, is widely distributed, or is maintained in quality.

These provisions ensure that plant breeders' rights are not monopolistic.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the recommendations of the Commission on Intellectual Property Rights (CIPR), how the Government are promoting (a) through the Treaty of Amsterdam Article 133 committee and (b) at the meeting of the International Union for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants, the rights of countries (i) not to grant patents for plants and animals, including genes and genetically modified plants and animals and (ii) to provide for the rights of farmers to save and plant-back seed and to allow informal sale and exchange of seeds; and if he will make representations to revise the Convention on the Protection of New Varieties of Plants to support the CIPR's recommendations. [79796]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have no immediate plans to make representations through either the Treaty of Amsterdam Article 133 Committee or the International Union for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants (UPOV), which deals with systems of plant variety protection but not patents, to promote the recommendations of the Commission on Intellectual Property Rights (CIPR).

In their response to the CIPR report, the Government stressed their commitment to the effective protection of intellectual property rights to stimulate continued innovation. The Government do not regard this as incompatible with the interests of developing countries in respect of plant variety protection or the rights of farmers to plant farm-saved seed which are afforded protection by Article 27.3(b) of the World Trade Organisation Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights and Article 15 (2) of the 1991 UPOV Convention respectively.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Atomic Energy Agencies

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the United Kingdom's annual contribution has been to the (a) European Atomic Energy Agency and (b) International Atomic Energy Agency since 1997; what proportion of each payment was made by the United Kingdom (i) public sector and (ii) private sector nuclear industries; and what plans he has to review the level of the annual UK contribution to each organisation. [81069]

Malcolm Wicks: As a member of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), the UK is obliged to pay its contribution to the Regular Budget, which pays for most of the IAEA's work and the running of the Agency itself, and is expected to make a payment to the Technical Cooperation Fund, which pays for the IAEA's development programmes in less developed countries. As a UN Agency, UK Government have the responsibility for making these payments.

The UK's contributions to the Regular Budget and Technical Cooperation Fund since 1997 are as follows:

	Regular budget	Technical cooperation fund
1997	7,670,799	2,249,969
1998	5,950,148	2,368,000
1999	6,143,449	2,267,527
2000	6,291,197	2,386,354
2001	6,561,613	2,577,181
2002	7,459,727	2,504,581
2003	8,019,673	2,470,974
2004	9,083,332	2,250,836
2005	9,811,000	2,405,954
2006	10,994,536	2,656,536

The UK's Regular Budget and Technical Cooperation Fund payments are fixed by reference to slightly modified standardised UN contribution rates. The modification arises because the state membership of the IAEA is not identical to that of the UN, and developing countries were initially "shielded" from paying the full costs of the safeguards component of the Regular Budget. The UK accordingly, this year, paid 6.137 per cent. of the total Regular Budget. The future level of the annual UK contribution to the IAEA will be determined by UN contribution rates at the time.

In addition, the UK has made a number of voluntary contributions to the IAEA since 1997, including contributions totalling £2.6 million to support the Agency's safeguards work, £2 million to the IAEA's Nuclear Security Fund, and £500,000 to support IAEA work to improve internal management processes. Additional non-financial "in-kind" support to help the Agency deliver its safeguards and other activities is provided through the UK nuclear industry, however the financial value of this could be calculated only at disproportionate cost.

The UK remains committed to our contribution to the IAEA and the only review of the UK contribution we would seek is to manage down the budget through the achievement of organisational efficiencies.

The UK's contribution to the European Atomic Energy Agency (EAEA) is paid through the UK's general contribution to the European Commission's budget. The EAEA's share of the UK contribution could be calculated only at disproportionate cost.

Business Reviews

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures will be put in place to ensure that the business reviews proposed in the Company Law Reform Bill [Lords] will be comparable (a) over successive years and (b) between companies. [80373]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 26 June 2006]: As clause 399 subsection (2) of the Company Law Reform Bill sets out, the purpose of the Business Review is to inform members of the company and help them assess how the directors have performed their duty under section 158, which requires a director, in performing his duty to promote the success of the company, to have regard (among other matters) to: (a) the likely consequences of any decision in the long term, (b) the interests of the company's employees, (c) the need to foster the company's business relationships with suppliers, customers and others, (d) the impact of the company's operations on the community and the environment, (e) the desirability of the company maintaining a reputation for high standards of business conduct, and (f) the need to act fairly as between members of the company. Subsection (4) of clause 399 requires that the Review is a balanced and comprehensive analysis of (a) the development and performance of the company's business during the financial year, and (b) the position of the company's business at the end of that year, consistent with the size and complexity of the business. The statutory provisions therefore set out the framework of the Business Review, but it is for directors of each company to determine its content according to the circumstances of the particular company. As subsection (6) requires, to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance and position of the company's business, the review must include analysis using key performance indicators. Such indicators will make it easier for members to assess the development, performance and position of the company from year to year.

Compensation Claims

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, (b) vibration white finger and (c) hearing loss claims have been registered by his Department without further particulars of claim subsequently being submitted. [81040]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 June 2006]: As at 26 June 2006, the Department has 18,203 chronic obstructive pulmonary disease claims and 1,043 vibration white finger claims with insufficient information to enable them to be progressed. This situation does not arise for hearing loss claims which do not have to be registered in the same way as they are not schemed.

Energy Use

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the energy models his Department uses (a) to calculate the geographic and sectoral distribution of UK energy usage and (b) to project future energy usage are made available to independent energy analysts on request. [82094]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows:

(a) The breakdown of energy usage by local authority area for domestic, industrial and commercial users are only partially based on energy models. The gas and electricity data are based on actual metered consumption and are collected by DTI under the National Statistics code of practice and protocols. Since these data relate to individual consumers this precludes release to independent energy analysts. The road transport and other fuels data are modelled, and are prepared for DTI by independent consultants. The way these estimates are put together has been described in various articles in the DTI's statistical bulletin "Energy Trends", copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House and at http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/statistics/publications/trends/index.html

(b) The DTI routinely shares knowledge and experience of our modelling with outside agents. The model has not been made available to other users, though substantial material on the basis of the modelling approach can be found on the Updated Energy Projections webpage at http://www.dti.gov.uk/energy/environment/projections/index.html

Environmental Regulations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what regulatory simplification proposals his Department has received in relation to environmental regulations since the start of the initiative; which stakeholders have been consulted on each proposal; and if he will make a statement. [81030]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has received two proposals in relation to environmental regulations under the simplify@dti system. These were in relation to the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive and the restriction of hazardous substances directive. In the first instance, since the request was received, I initiated a wide-ranging review of all elements of WEEE policy. Following this review my Department conducted an informal consultation in which a large number of stakeholders were consulted. In the second instance, the suggestion received was examined and found to be untenable as it would have undermined the purpose of the directive.

Nuclear Power

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what annual fees have been recovered from (a) publicly owned nuclear companies, (b) non-departmental public bodies dealing with nuclear issues and (c) privately owned nuclear companies for the security-related service provided to them by his Department's Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS) in each year since the OCNS has had semi-autonomous status. [81071]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows:

OCNS fees

	Financial year
Category	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
(a) Publicly owned	813,531	1,047,561	1,317,639	1,405,489	1,339,775
(b) NDPB	328,271	503,378	370,532	423,792	495,647
(c) Privately owned	186,265	168,060	105,000	375,234	524,288
Total fees	1,328,067	1,718,999	1,793,171	2,204,515	2,359,710

A breakdown of fees for the period 1 October 2000 (when OCNS became part of DTI) and 31 March 2001 is not readily available and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Waste Strategy

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which organisations were consulted during the waste strategy consultation; and if he will make a statement. [80928]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The consultation on the review of England's waste strategy was open to the public and anyone was welcome to respond. More than 2,500 invitations were sent out to stakeholders including environmental non-Government organisations, central Government, local government, universities, waste and recycling industry, media, consultancies, voluntary and community organisations, trade associations and other interested parties. A full list of the organisations invited to respond is available on the Defra website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/wastestratreview/consultlist.htm.

DEFENCE

Defence Training Review

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the forecast date is for financial close of the two packages of the Defence Training Review public finance initiative programme. [81605]

Mr. Watson: The current forecast date for financial close of the two packages of the Defence Training Review is end 2007. This date, however, is subject to a satisfactory conclusion to the evaluation and approval process, the Preferred Bidders selected and future analysis currently being conducted on the management of risks related to the delivery of the solutions.

Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Apache Mk1 helicopters have been grounded since entering service. [81131]

Mr. Ingram: The term "grounded" has a particular meaning for the Ministry of Defence and refers to an aircraft which is awaiting the resolution of a specific technical query where the answer may affect airworthiness.

Since entering service in January 2001 no Apache Mk1 helicopters have been grounded.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times Lynx (a) Mk7 and (b) Mk9 helicopters have been grounded because of mechanical problems in the last 12 months. [81137]

Mr. Ingram: The term "grounded" has a particular meaning for the Ministry of Defence and refers to an aircraft which is awaiting the resolution of a specific technical query where the answer may affect airworthiness.

No Lynx Mk7 or Mk9 helicopter has been grounded for any reason in the last 12 months.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Air Force (a) Chinook, (b) Merlin, (c) Sea King and (d) Puma helicopters are (i) in service and (ii) fit for purpose. [81132]

Mr. Ingram: "In service aircraft" are those located at front line and training units. An aircraft described as "fit for purpose" is available, reliable, airworthy and capable of carrying out its planned mission on a given date. The numbers of "fit for purpose" aircraft will vary; the following figures are the average for May 2006.

	In service	Fit for purpose
Chinook Mk2/Mk2a	28	16
Merlin Mk3	14	8
Sea King	17	9
Puma	26	18

Iraq/Afghanistan Visits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on which occasions (a) he and (b) his Ministers have visited (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan since January 2005. [81966]

Des Browne: Defence Ministers make frequent visits to all theatres of operation where United Kingdom forces are serving. Since I became the Secretary of State for Defence I have visited Iraq on two occasions and Afghanistan once. Information about these and other visits made by Defence Ministers since 1 January 2005 is in the following table.

	Countries visited
Secretary of State for Defence
16 to 18 May 2005	Iraq
20 September to 3 October 2005	Afghanistan
2 to 3 December 2005	Iraq
17 to 20 March 2006	Iraq
23 to 26 April 2006	Afghanistan
16 to 18 May 2006	Iraq
11 to 14 June 2006	Afghanistan
18 to 22 June 2006	Iraq
Minister for the Armed Forces
6 to 9 March 2005	Iraq
14 to 18 July 2005	Afghanistan
Minister for Defence Procurement
6 to 8 July 2005	Iraq

Military Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Challenger 2 Main Battle Tank, (b) Warrior Infantry Fighting Vehicle, (c) Saxon Armoured Personnel Carrier and (d) (i) Sabre, (ii) Spartan, (iii) Scimitar, (iv) Striker, (v) Samson, (vi) Samaritan and (vii) Sultan armoured vehicles are (A) in service and (B) operationally deployable. [81130]

Mr. Ingram: The following table details the numbers of armoured vehicles currently in service and operationally deployable as at 21 April 2006:

Equipment	Fleet size	Operationally deployable
Challenger 2 Main Battle Tank (CR2 MET)	385	327
Saxon	622	579
Warrior Infantry Fighting Vehicle (all variants)	794	735
Spartan	478	452
Scimitar	328	303
Striker	48	47
Samson	50	48
Samaritan	50	46
Sultan	205	196

The figures quoted for the fleet size include vehicles that are undergoing planned programmed repair and modification, being used for training, with the Design Authority for trials and testing, or in storage.

The operationally deployable figures include vehicles that are undergoing repairs at Unit level and undergoing Bowman conversion.

At any one time a number of the deployable fleet will be undergoing minor repairs in situ at the Unit, and a proportion may be involved in scheduled upgrade programmes, for example Bowman conversion. The number of vehicles available for immediate deployment therefore fluctuates continuously. If a Unit drops below a pre-determined number of deployable vehicles, due to vehicles requiring repair beyond the capability of the Unit and its supporting Battalion, a replacement vehicle is provided.

The Sabre and Scorpion (and variants) have not been included as these vehicles were withdrawn from service in 2004 and 1995 respectively.

Nuclear Deterrent

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is his policy to retain a strategic nuclear deterrent in the long-term. [81534]

Des Browne: The Labour party manifesto at the 2005 general election committed the Government to retaining the United Kingdom's independent nuclear deterrent. We have previously made clear that this commitment effectively applies for the life of the current system. No decisions, either in principle or detail, have yet been taken on the position beyond that point. But as my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made clear in the House on 28 June, these decisions will be taken later this year.

Records Management

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what rules are established in the Joint Service Defence Records Management Manual concerning the classes or categories of documents that must be retained in the circumstances of a sudden or controversial death; how long these records have to be retained; and what penalties are available following the successful prosecution of a person responsible for the retention of a document or piece of evidence in the event of its destruction. [79839]

Mr. Ingram: The Defence Records Management Manual does not refer specifically to classes or categories of documents relating to sudden or controversial death. Retention of such records may be defined separately: for example, copies of the reports of all Boards of Inquiry into unnatural deaths are required to be held centrally for a minimum of 25 years. Personnel files are preserved in the Department for at least 100 years from the individual's date of birth. The penalties available in the event of any prosecution would depend on the offence that it was alleged had been committed.

Reservists

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reservists have not received bounty payments for training year 2005-06; what the reasons are for the delay; what steps are being taken to compensate reservists for late payments; and what steps his Department is taking to address any impact on the morale of those reservists affected. [80448]

Mr. Watson: Of those reservists who qualified for a bounty in 2005-06, six RNR cases have not yet been paid due to technical queries but they are in the pay system and should be paid in July. In addition, there are 25 members of the RNR who have not fulfilled the strict bounty and eligibility requirements but whose cases are being considered further to see if a waiver is appropriate.

The TA is currently looking into around 27 cases to check that eligibility requirements have been met.

The RAuxAF have paid bounty to all eligible personnel and have no outstanding cases.

SA80 Rifle

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how long he expects the SA80 rifle to remain in service in the UK armed forces; and what research is being conducted on a possible replacement. [81110]

Mr. Ingram: The SA80 rifle has an out of service date of 2020. The UK has completed a calibre study to determine the effect required by the next generation of small arms. This research will be continued by the Ministry of Defence.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on reform of the Arts Council. [81232]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Arts Council underwent a Peer Review in 2005 which identified a number of key areas for reform. These included the role and structure of its national office, how the Arts Council engages with its stakeholders and how it works with Government.

The Arts Council is responding in each of these areas. A new structure and role for the Arts Council's national office will be in place by the autumn. Engagement with its stakeholders will be improved by addressing issues that arise during an extensive consultation exercise with the sector and the public more widely over the coming months. A new Funding Agreement between my Department and the Arts Council will provide a central focus for the way the Arts Council works with Government.

Casinos

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether guidance will be issued to local authorities to ensure that new casino licensing regulations are applied consistently. [82537]

Mr. Caborn: The Gambling Commission is responsible for issuing guidance to licensing authorities on the manner in which they exercise their functions under the Act. The Commission published the first part of its "Guidance to Licensing Authorities" in April 2006, and this dealt with the development and preparation of local premises licensing policies, including those in respect of casinos.

The Commission will issue further guidance about the regulation of casinos and other gambling premises in due course. All local authorities must have regard to this guidance when carrying out functions under the Act.

The Department is also developing a training package for local authority councillors and officers.

Commonwealth Institute

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of her correspondence with the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the Commonwealth Institute building. [81021]

Mr. Lammy: It is a long standing convention that information relating to internal discussions and advice is not normally disclosed.

Criminal Injuries Compensation

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the cost of making payments to the victims of terrorism abroad at the level of the Criminal Injuries Compensation scheme. [82286]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Government have announced that they will make a £1 million donation to a charitable fund to offer immediate financial assistance to victims of terrorism abroad.

Details of the fund are still being finalised in discussion with the British Red Cross, but it will not be a statutory compensation scheme in the manner of the Criminal Injuries Compensation scheme. Payments made will not be comparable to those of the CICS but will be at a level that ensures that the contributions made to the fund can support all those who need to claim from it.

Further details will be announced in the coming months.

Free TV Licences

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will extend free television licences to those pensioners below the age of 75 years who are in receipt of pension credit; and if she will make a statement. [81123]

Mr. Woodward: No. As indicated in the BBC Charter Review White Paper published in March this year, concessions have been proposed for a wide range of groups during the Charter Review process. However, there was little consensus as to the criteria on which such concessions should be allocated or how they should be funded. The Government do not therefore propose any changes to the existing range of concessions.

Heritage Protection

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to publish the White Paper on heritage protection. [81484]

Mr. Lammy: We hope to publish a White Paper in the autumn 2006.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what Private Members' Bills were drafted by her Department in each session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [77832]

Mr. Lammy: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Members' Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Music

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on Government support for music and music education. [81485]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to supporting music in all its forms. We are achieving this through increased investment—funding for music through Arts Council England has more than doubled since 1997 to over £100 million this year.

My Department continues to work very closely with the Department for Education and Skills on the Music Manifesto, which will celebrate its second anniversary this month. This sets out a series of shared aims for music education and has the support of over 550 signatories from across the education, cultural and music sectors.

Responsibility for music within schools falls to the Department for Education and Skills.

Through the Live Music Forum, we are working to ensure that opportunities for the promotion of live music are realised to the full.

Pool Water Treatment Advisory Group

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the removal by Sport England of grant to the Pool Water Treatment Advisory Group; and if she will make a statement. [81075]

Mr. Caborn: I am advised that Sport England has supported the work of the Pool Water Treatment Advisory Group (PWTAG) for a number of years, with a grant of £12,000 per annum. This sum was a contribution towards PWTAG's general work in connection with pool water treatment and the preparation of its reference book, "Swimming Pool Water". Unfortunately, due to budgetary pressures, Sport England is now unable to continue this funding and has had to reluctantly withdraw it.

I have asked Sport England for further background information on this decision.

Select Committee Recommendations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what action has been taken by her Department to implement Culture, Media and Sport Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 session; and if she will make a statement. [77835]

Mr. Lammy: The following table lists all the Reports from the Culture, Media and Sport select committee to which the Government have responded since the 2001-02 session. An update on all select committee recommendations could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the Government in their responses to reports make clear whether or not they accept the Committee's recommendations.

Urban Regeneration

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment she has made of the role of culture in urban regeneration. [81483]

Mr. Lammy: Responses to the Department's consultation document "Culture at the Heart of Regeneration", published in June 2004, made clear the huge interest there is in culturally driven regeneration in a variety of contexts, both urban and rural.

We know, therefore, that culture can be a driving force in achieving urban regeneration. Examples of where this has happened can be found right across the country, from the iconic cultural buildings of Newcastle-Gateshead and Salford Quays to the Eden Centre in Cornwall. We are working across Government and with our cultural bodies to ensure that the value of culture is understood by planners, developers and others, and supports regeneration.

Welsh Language TV

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Government provided to support the production of television programmes in the Welsh language in each year since 1997. [82296]

Mr. Woodward: Government funding for the Welsh Fourth Channel Authority, S4C, for each calendar year since 1997, was:

1997	72.223
1998	74.895
1999	77.134
2000	78.218
2001	80.745
2002	81.468
2003	83.634
2005	88.690

S4C also receives a minimum of 10 hours of Welsh language programmes each week from the BBC, free of charge.

TRANSPORT

Aviation

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what date airlines using UK airports will be required to comply with EU legislation on the rights of passengers with disabilities travelling by air. [78988]

Gillian Merron: The European Commission's proposal for a regulation on air passenger rights for people with reduced mobility has been agreed by the European Parliament and was adopted at a meeting of the Council on 9 June. The majority of the provisions will enter into force two years after adoption, although a ban on discrimination against disabled persons and those with reduced mobility will enter into force after one year.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will review the Access to Air Travel for Disabled People Code of Practice following the treatment by Iberia Airlines of a group of deaf passengers on their flight from London Heathrow in July 2004. [79006]

Gillian Merron: As a Spanish carrier, Iberian Airlines are not subject to the UK voluntary code "Access to Air Travel for Disabled People Code of Practice".

The European Commission's proposal for a regulation on air passenger rights for people with reduced mobility has been agreed by the European Parliament, and was adopted at a meeting of the Council on 9 June.

The Government is looking to publish the findings of a research project shortly, which assessed the UK aviation industry's adherence to the voluntary code "Access to Air Travel for Disabled People Code of Practice". These findings will be used to determine whether to bring UK aviation within the scope of domestic disability legislation, having regard to the forthcoming EU Regulation.

Concessionary Parking

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which local authorities provide (a) wholly free parking and (b) a concessionary parking scheme for (i) disabled blue badge holders and (ii) senior citizens. [81199]

Gillian Merron: This information is not collected centrally and an estimate could be made only at disproportionate cost

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum was accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80491]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79936]

Gillian Merron: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

It would therefore be inconsistent for a Government Department to favour credit unions above other financial institutions. Employees are of course free to join credit unions if they meet the relevant membership criteria and Departments may provide appropriate levels of support if employees wish to set up a credit union.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list in date order the (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by his Department since October 2005. [81639]

Gillian Merron: There have been no Green or White Papers published by the Department since October 2005.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many successful applications for the release of information from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency vehicle register were made in each year since 2002; and how many such applications were made by (a) the police, (b) local authorities, (c) motor manufacturers, (d) housing associations, (e) the Environment Agency and (f) organisations enforcing parking restrictions on private land in each year. [81426]

Dr. Ladyman: The approximate number of requests for information from the police since 2002 is:

	Million
2002-03	9.6
2003-04	11.2
2005-06	10.2

DVLA does not maintain separate figures on the total number of requests made by local authorities, motor manufacturers, housing associations or organisations enforcing parking restrictions on private land. The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when his Department expects to publish its conclusions relating to its recent review of regulations governing the release of Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency information. [81427]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1416W.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many requests were made to the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency for the release of information from the vehicle register under Regulation 27 of the Road Vehicles Regulations 2002 in each year since 2002; and how many were successful in each year. [81428]

Dr. Ladyman: The agency does not record how many requests were received and subsequently approved or declined under each individual piece of legislation. Consequently the agency does not have a record of how many requests were received, approved or declined under Regulation 27 of the Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) Regulations 2002.

Local Transport Budgets

Mr. Fiello: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what formula is used for calculating how much local transport authorities receive for their annual transport budget; and what factors were included in compiling this formula. [81768]

Gillian Merron: Two formulae influence different parts of local authorities' transport capital allocations from the Department for Transport.

Firstly a formula is used to distribute the vast majority of the funding support provided for capital highways maintenance. The factors currently considered in this formula relate to roads and bridges. For roads, they are the lengths and conditions of an authority's principal, classified non-principal and unclassified roads. For bridges, they are the size of the bridge stock and the numbers of bridges requiring strengthening or major maintenance. A minimum amount for bridges per authority of £100,000 is applied. The combined roads and bridges allocations are adjusted to ensure an authority's total allocation does not vary by more than 25 per cent. from the previous year.

Secondly, a formula is being introduced to influence the distribution of the integrated transport block (which is for improvements to local roads and public transport, each of which generally costs less than £5 million). The factors considered in this formula are related directly or indirectly to the transport shared priorities, as agreed between Government and the Local Government Association in 2002. The priorities and variables are shown in the following table. In addition, the formulaic distribution of funding takes into account previous ministerial commitments, European Union objective one designations and South East growth areas.

Transport shared priority	Formula variable (More = more funding)
Road safety	Road casualty numbers
Accessibility	Degree of deprivation rural population
Congestion and accessibility	Bus and light rail patronage
Congestion	Population (weighted towards large towns)
Air quality	Districts in Air Quality Management Areas

A further formula related to highways maintenance is used within the calculations for the distribution of revenue support grant. This grant supports local authority transport budgets, but it is not allocated by the Government between individual council services.

London Underground

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much Government subsidy was paid to London Underground in each year between 1997 and responsibility passing to Transport for London. [81743]

Gillian Merron: London Underground Limited (LUL) was transferred from central Government to Transport for London (TfL) on 15 July 2003. The following table sets out the grant paid to London Regional Transport (LRT), the subsequent amount provided to LUL from that grant including funding for the Jubilee line extension.

£ million (cash)

	London Regional Transport Grant[1,2]	Of which for London Underground capital and operations[3]	Of which for Jubilee Line extension construction
1997-98	630	544	506
1998-99	411	313	267
1999-2000	816	637	498
2000-01	315	227	—
2001-02[3]	483	460	—
2002-03[3]	767	742	—
2003-04[4,5]	867	1,218	—

[1] Up to July 2000 (when TfL was established) a single grant was paid to LRT to support LUL, London Buses, Croydon Tramlink etc. LUL grant was not recorded separately by the Department and figures for LUL are provided by their accounts.
[2] Between July 2000 and July 2003 the grant provided to LRT was primarily for LUL, but see [3] as follows.
[3] In 2001-02 LRT spent £24 million and in 2002-03 £25 million on restructuring and re-organising LT Group, principally on LUL prior to the implementation of the Public Private Partnership (PPP).
[4] In 2003-04 the grant for LUL was paid to LRT until July 2003 when LUL transferred to TfL. The remaining balance of £351 million for LUL in 2003-04 was paid as part of the GLA Transport Grant from August 2003 and is not included in the LRT Grant total for that year.
[5] LRT Grant for 2003-04 included £182 million deferred payment from 2002-03 due to the delayed start of the PPP contracts.

Motorways

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated (a) book cost, (b) renewal cost and (c) market value is of the (i) motorway and (ii) trunk road network. [81066]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency values the motorway and trunk road network in England at depreciated replacement cost and the values at 31 March 2006 were (i) £42.471 billion for motorways and (ii) £33.726 billion for trunk roads.

Due to the specialised nature of this asset an open market value cannot be determined for the motorway and trunk road network.

Number Plate Cloning

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many car number plate cloning incidents were recorded in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the South West region in each of the last five years. [82185]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

Offshore Wind Farms

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many individuals in the Maritime Coastguard Agency are working on responses to offshore wind farm applications; and what estimate he has made of the length of time which will elapse between receipt of and response to outstanding applications. [81456]

Dr. Ladyman: The consideration of the maritime safety element of offshore wind farm applications is the responsibility of one individual in the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA), consulting with colleagues on matters of technical detail, as necessary.

The MCA has recently adopted a target to process applications within 90 days of receipt.

Post Office Network Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the Post Office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79196]

Gillian Merron: (i) A Vehicle Re-licensing (car tax renewal) and a Statutory Off Road Notification (SORN) service is provided over the counter in approximately 4,600 Motor Vehicle Licensing (MVL) Post Office® branches. Postal applications are handled in 120 of these branches.

A Photocard Driving Licence Premium Service, checking application forms and supporting identity documents, is provided in approximately 740 Post Office® branches.

A range of vehicle and driving licence forms, leaflets and booklets are held in all 14,000 branches.

(ii) Over the last five years Post Office Ltd/DVLA has introduced a new electronic system for both vehicle re-licensing and making a Statutory Off-Road Notification (SORN) at MVL Post Office® branches through reading barcodes on application forms/ registration certificates.

Since August 2004, when re-licensing their vehicle or making a Statutory Off Road Notification (SORN), customers have been able to notify a change of tax class into the disabled tax class at MVL Post Office® branches.

In March 2004, DVLA and Post Office Ltd reached commercial agreement to extend the network of offices able to offer the vehicle re-licensing service by over 600 mainly rural Post Office® branches.

In March 2006 DVLA and Post Office Ltd reached commercial agreement to extend the network of offices able to offer the Photocard Driving Licence Premium Service by over 40 Post Office® branches.

In the last financial year approximately 38 million vehicle licences were issued by the Post Office and over 2.3 million SORNs were received. Of these, over 160,000 customers changed their vehicle into the disabled tax class.

In the last financial year over 650,000 customers used the Photocard Driving Licence Premium Service at Post Office® branches.

Railways

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average subsidy per passenger kilometre is for lines in the London region. [82088]

Derek Twigg: This information is available in the Office of Rail Regulation publication "National Rail Trends", copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of rail journeys he estimates were made by people living in the London area in 2005-06. [82089]

Derek Twigg: Based on data from the National Travel Survey, it is estimated that 36 per cent. of rail journeys in Great Britain in 2004 were made by residents of greater London.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of rail journeys are started or ended in London. [82091]

Derek Twigg: The information is published in the National Rail Trends Yearbook editions, which are available in the House Library.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress Arriva Trains Wales is making in refurbishing (a) 142, (b) 143, (c) 150 and (d) 158 class units; and if he will make a statement. [80633]

Derek Twigg: Arriva Trains Wales (ATW) last refurbished the class 142s and 143s between 2000 and 2002, which included external painting, installation of new seats, floors, body panels and handles being fitted. Currently eight of the fleet are being repainted to complete the refurbishment of this class.

ATW's class 150s were last refurbished between 2000 and 2002, which included installing new seats, floors and body panels. Since then, 13 of these trains have been added to ATW. ATW are currently refurbishing these. To date, nine have been completed, with the remaining four being completed by the end of August 2006.

In relation to ATW's class 158s, ATW have said that there are currently no plans to refurbish this rolling stock.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2006, Official Report, column 21W, on railways, what class of rolling stock will be transferred to Arriva Trains Wales on the Swansea to Cardiff route in December 2006; who the manufacturer is; who the previous operating company was; and what the age of the stock is. [80725]

Derek Twigg: The vehicles to be operated by Arriva Train Wales on the Swansea to Cardiff route are three car class 175 units, built by Alstom. These vehicles were previously sub-leased by ATW to Trans-Pennine Express. The stock is around six years old.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of rail freight passing through London crosses Battersea railway bridge. [82087]

Derek Twigg: The Department does not hold information regarding the number of freight train services on specific lines of the rail network.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the residual value of the property held by the British Railways Board. [82341]

Derek Twigg: Details of the value of property held by BRB (Residuary) Ltd. is contained in the annual report of the company which can be seen on the BRB (R) website at http://www.brb.gov.uk/annual_report/annual-report-2005.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations his Department has made to encourage the use of Sunday rail services in areas where it would be beneficial for the promotion of local tourism and leisure activities; and what special grants are available for additional Sunday rail services in such areas. [80805]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government do not make any specific grants to encourage the use of Sunday rail services, but are investing heavily in rail and this is yielding results in terms of additional passengers on Sundays and other days of the week. The Government specify the minimum level of services through the franchising process.

Road Accidents (Somerset)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) road accident fatalities and (b) personal injury road accidents there were in (i) Yeovil constituency and (ii) Somerset in each year since 1997. [82187]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of (a) road accident fatalities and (b) personal injury road accidents there were in (i) Yeovil constituency and (ii) Somerset in each year from 1997 to 2005 is shown in the table. Constituency level data for 2005 are currently unavailable.

Road Maintenance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost per mile of maintenance of motorways and trunk roads was in each of the maintenance areas of the Highways Agency in each of the last five years. [81089]

Dr. Ladyman: The following table shows expenditure on road maintenance (on the strategic road network) per network mile since 2000-01. Figures are based on published annual reports. Information on a regional basis is not available.

The table also includes information on spending per lane mile from 2001-02, since this provides a more meaningful comparison.

	Spending per mile (£)	Spending per lane mile (£)
2000-01	120,100	[1]—
2001-02	121,300	31,300

2003-04	150,700	35,600
2004-05	159,000	36,100

[1] Information on lane miles managed by HA is readily available from 2001-02 only.

Road Pricing

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects the first road pricing pilot to be operational. [82206]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Transport expects to receive the first scheme proposals from local authorities for road pricing pathfinder schemes next year, with pricing pathfinders possibly becoming operational in four to five years.

The Government also recently announced that they would allocate £10 million for demonstration projects to help us understand more about how road pricing schemes would operate in practice. A Prior Information Notice, which alerts companies that may be interested in bidding for the work, will be released shortly. We expect that the demonstration projects will commence in spring 2007, and that they will run for around one to two years.

Road Safety

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of road fatalities in Hornsey and Wood Green constituency in 2005; what the average was for London boroughs; and if he will make a statement [81517]

Dr. Ladyman: The average number of fatalities in London boroughs in 2005 was 6. Constituency level data for 2005 is currently unavailable.

Road Tolls

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the rate of tolling in pence per (a) mile and (b) kilometre in current prices that would be required to reduce congestion on the motorway network. [81585]

Dr. Ladyman: The appropriate level of charges for any national road pricing or tolling scheme covering the motorway network would depend on a wide range of factors. It is not currently possible to estimate what price levels would be appropriate.

Safety Cameras

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras have been vandalised in the past 12 months. [82310]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 15 February 2006, Official Report, column 2054W, to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans).

Seat Belts

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 37W, on seat belts, what representations his Department received between 1976 and 1983; and if he will make a statement. [82632]

Dr. Ladyman: There would have been many representations in the years mentioned when seat belt wearing in front seats was being made compulsory. Over 20 years later, I have no statement to make.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether there is an overall plan for the development of transport links for London commuters as the Thames Gateway is redeveloped; and who has overall responsibility for developing transport in the Thames Gateway area; [79284]

(2) what public transport links are to be developed across the Thames Gateway region in order to support the Government's target for jobs to be created by the project. [79290]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department of Communities and Local Government are producing a Strategic Framework for the Thames Gateway, in collaboration with other Government Departments, regional and sub-regional partners.

This will assist Government in determining the strategic transport requirements to support housing and economic growth in the Gateway. It will also continue on from the programme of work already set out in 'Creating Sustainable Communities—Delivering the Thames Gateway (March 2005)'. This sets out the Government's aim to regenerate and develop the Gateway and identified the strategic locations and key housing sites with the necessary transport infrastructure that will be required.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the planned transport expenditure for the Thames Gateway redevelopment is to be used to improve (a) buses, (b) trains, (c) car sharing, (d) underground and (e) other public transport services. [79316]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Transport has delivered or is committed to deliver direct investment of £1.6 billion in transport in the Thames Gateway area. That figure includes £700 million on public transport measures and £900 million on both strategic and local roads.

Transport Finance (South-West)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been made available to (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the South West region in local transport plan funding for each year since 1997. [82186]

Gillian Merron: The information setting out the amounts of funding that have been made available to Somerset county council and to other local authorities in the south west region for local transport plans for each year since 1997 has previously been placed in the Libraries of the House. The information is also available under the February Freedom of Information responses sections on the Department for Transport website (www.dft.gov.uk).

The Department does not allocate most local transport plan funding to individual constituency areas. It is up to Somerset county council where it allocates the fund support provided for the county according to its local priorities.

Vehicle and Operator Services Agency

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Vehicle and Operator Services Agency teams are based at UK ports; how many foreign vehicles were found to be committing infringements in 2005-06; what actions were taken against non-UK vehicles and their drivers; and how many prosecutions have followed stops in 2005-06. [82007]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) teams based at British Ports. The majority of enforcement is carried out by intercepting traffic on arterial roads leading to/from a port. By agreement of an individual Port Authority VOSA do visit some ports but this activity is not similar to the statutory presence of Customs and Special Branch officers who are located directly at the port.

The number of foreign vehicles found to be committing infringements during 2005-06 and the action taken is given in the table:

Roadworthiness prohibitions issued

	Number issued
Heavy goods vehicles	5,396
Passenger service vehicles	46

Traffic enforcement prohibitions issued

	Drivers hours and Tachograph records	Overloading
Heavy goods vehicles	4,403	1,423
Passenger service vehicles	30	13

No foreign drivers or operators were prosecuted by VOSA in 2005-06.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

CPS Targets

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General who in the Crown Prosecution Service is responsible for progress on each of the targets set out on pages 16 to 22 of Cm 6821, the Law Officers' departmental report 2006; to whom each person reports; what discussions he has had with stakeholders about implementation of each target; and if he will make a statement. [78600]

The Solicitor-General: Peter Lewis, Director of Business Development has responsibility for the targets of increasing the number of offences brought to justice, and John Graham, Director of Finance has responsibility for the targets on improving public confidence, delivering efficiencies and value for money. Both report to the Chief Executive.

Regular consultation on the PSA and criminal justice system (CJS) targets is conducted with CJS colleagues and other stakeholders through the work of the National Criminal Justice Board and Local Criminal Justice Boards. The Attorney-General, the Solicitor-General, the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Chief Executive are all members of the National Criminal Justice Board, and play a full and positive part in its work.

Legislation

Mr. Ames: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) which Government Bills sponsored by the Law Officers remain to be introduced during the 2005-06 Session; [77850]

(2) which Government Bills he has bid for in the next Session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [77851]

The Solicitor-General: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Commonwealth Institute

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Government contributed to the maintenance and running costs of the Commonwealth Institute building in each year between 1996 and 2000. [81167]

Dr. Howells: Figures for calendar years are not available. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) paid the Commonwealth Institute:

£1 million in the financial year 1996-97;

£1.1 million in 1997-98;

£600,000 in 1999-2000.

The severance arrangements agreed between the FCO and the Commonwealth Institute in January 2000 provided for the payment of a further £8 million, about half of which was ring fenced for property maintenance.

East Timor

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Cynon Valley of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 315W, on East Timor, in what way the UK has expressed concern about impunity for those responsible for human rights abuses in Timor-Leste, with particular reference to abuses committed in 1999; at what level and in which forums concerns were raised in each year since 1999; what the outcomes were in each case; and if she will make a statement. [81719]

Mr. McCartney: The UK has often expressed concern about impunity for those responsible for the human rights abuses in East Timor and we note the decision of the Government of East Timor to pursue these issues with Indonesia through their bilateral Commission for Truth and Friendship.

We have expressed these concerns on a number of occasions at various levels and in different fora. However, we are unable to provide the information requested by the hon. Member as this could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Gibraltar

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government will consider the forthcoming referendum in Gibraltar to approve the new constitution to be an act of self-determination by the people of Gibraltar. [82615]

Mr. Hoon: As my right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary (Mr Jack Straw) set out in his written ministerial statement of 27 March 2006, Official Report, columns 44-46W, the new constitution provides for a modern and mature relationship between the UK and Gibraltar. I do not think that this description would apply to any relationship based on colonialism. The new constitution confirms the right of self-determination of the Gibraltarian people. The realisation of that right must be promoted and respected in conformity with the provisions of the UN Charter and any other applicable international treaties. Gibraltar's right of self-determination is not constrained by the Treaty of Utrecht except insofar as Article X gives Spain the right of refusal should Britain ever renounce Sovereignty. Thus independence would only be an option with Spanish consent. Her Majesty's Government recognise that the act of deciding on their acceptance of the new constitution in the forthcoming referendum will be an exercise of the right of self-determination by the Gibraltarian people in that context.

The new constitution does not in any way diminish British sovereignty and gives Gibraltar much greater control over its internal affairs and that degree of self-government compatible with British sovereignty and the UK's continuing international responsibilities. If the new constitution is agreed the UK will retain its full international responsibility for Gibraltar, including for Gibraltar's external relations and defence, and as the member state responsible for Gibraltar in the EU. The UK's long standing commitment that the UK will never enter into arrangements under which the people of Gibraltar would pass under the sovereignty of another state against their wishes will be unchanged. This is also set out clearly in the Despatch which will be published at the same time as the Gibraltar Constitution Order and the draft of which I will place in the Library of the House. I will also send a copy to my hon. Friend.

It has also been the UK's long standing view that none of its remaining overseas territories, including Gibraltar, should remain on the UN list of non self-governing territories, despite the different circumstances affecting Gibraltar, namely the application of the Treaty of Utrecht as noted earlier. However, the criteria used by the UN are outdated and fail to take account of the way that relationships between the UK and its overseas territories have been modernised. The UK does not, therefore, engage formally to seek the removal of any of the overseas territories from the UN list.

Gurkha Regiment

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the requirements are for ex-servicemen of the Gurkha regiment to be issued with visas to visit the UK. [81511]

Dr. Howells: Gurkhas serving in the British Army are exempt from immigration control as are other Foreign and Commonwealth personnel serving in HM forces. Upon discharge, when they cease to be exempt, they may apply for settlement and subsequently naturalisation in the UK.

If ex-servicemen of the Gurkha regiment wish to visit the UK, they need to meet the visit visa requirements of the immigration rules. The requirements to be met by a person seeking entry clearance as a visitor are that he/she: is genuinely seeking entry as a visitor for a limited period as stated by him/her, not exceeding six months; and intends to leave the UK at the end of the period of the visit as stated by him/her; and does not intend to take employment in the UK; and does not intend to produce goods or provide services (including the selling of goods or services direct to members of the public) within the United Kingdom; and does not intend to study at a maintained school (exchange students may be treated exceptionally) and will maintain and accommodate him/herself and any dependants adequately, and can meet the cost of the return or onward journey. Further information on visit visa requirements can be found on the UKvisas website at:

http://www.ukvisas.gov.uk

Indonesia

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Indonesian Government on compensation for the families of victims killed in the bombings in Bali in 2002. [82104]

Mr. McCartney: Our embassy in Jakarta sent a diplomatic note to the Indonesian Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 2 June 2003, stating that > "Some of the relatives of those British nationals killed or injured or British nationals directly involved in the Bali bombing on 12 October 2002 intend to submit a claim for compensation under the Indonesian Government Regulation as Substitution of Law 1 of 2002, regarding Elimination of Criminal Acts of Terrorism (GRI)".

Iran

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what military equipment has been provided by the UK to Iran to assist in counter-narcotics operations in the last three years. [58244]

Margaret Beckett [pursuant to the reply, 21 March 2006, Official Report, c.334-35W]: I regret that an inaccurate answer was given to part of the right hon. Member's question. The answer given states that the then Foreign Secretary, Lord Hurd, and the then Foreign and Commonwealth Office Minister, Tony Lloyd, gave statements on 1 March 1993 and 28 September 1998 respectively. The statements were in fact written answers to hon. Members and the reply given by my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Central was made on 28 January 1998.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will assess the (a) likelihood and (b) likely effectiveness of placing sanctions on Iran in case of a breakdown of negotiations. [81579]

Dr. Howells: We remain deeply concerned that, despite repeated requests by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Board of Governors and the United Nations Security Council, Iran is continuing uranium enrichment-related and reprocessing activity that will enable it to develop the capability to produce fissile material suitable for use in nuclear weapons, and is not co-operating fully with the IAEA.

On 1 June, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and her French, German, US, Russian and Chinese colleagues and Javier Solana, EU High Representative, agreed a way forward that would give Iran everything it needs to develop a modern civil nuclear power industry, as well as bringing Iran far reaching political and economic benefits, while meeting international concerns. We hope that Iran will respond to these proposals soon and take the positive path offered. Ministers also agreed on 1 June that if Iran decides not to engage in negotiation, further steps would have to be taken in the Security Council.

Our efforts remain focused on securing an early, positive response to the proposals. But we cannot rule out measures against Iran, including sanctions, at some point if they become necessary to ensure that Iran complies with its obligations and takes steps to establish the peaceful intentions of its nuclear programme.

As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said in the House on 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 1314:

> "We all hope that it will not be necessary to move towards sanctions, but if it is necessary to do so, the sanctions will be those that people feel are capable of having an effect."

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) whether the UK supplies military equipment to Iran in support of its counter-narcotics operations; and if he will make a statement; [57201]

(2) what assessment he has made of the extent to which European countries provide military equipment to Iran for use in its counter-narcotics operations; and if he will make a statement. [57203]

Dr. Howells [pursuant to the replies, 9 March 2006, Official Report, c. 1687-88W]: I regret that inaccurate answers were given to part of the hon. Member's questions. The answers given state that the then Foreign Secretary, Lord Hurd, and the then Foreign and Commonwealth Office Minister, Tony Lloyd, gave statements on 1 March 1993 and 28 September 1998 respectively. The statements were in fact written answers to hon. Members and the reply given by my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Central was made on 28 January 1998.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what representations (a) she and (b) her officials have made to the Government of Israel in the last 12 months regarding its detention of Palestinian children taken by Israeli forces in the Occupied Palestinian Territories; and on what occasion such representations were last made at ministerial level; [82168]

(2) what representations (a) she and (b) her officials have made to the Government of Israel in the last 12 months regarding its detention without trial of Palestinians taken by Israeli forces in the Occupied Palestinian Territories; and on what occasion such representations were last made at ministerial level. [82169]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned by Israel's policy of administrative detention, particularly that of minors. We last raised Palestinian prisoners with the Israeli Ministry for Foreign Affairs on 15 June and our ambassador in Tel Aviv last raised this with Israeli Prime Minister Olmert's special advisor on 22 March.

We have not made any representations at ministerial level in the last 12 months.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received from the UN about the numbers of (a) Palestinians and (b) Israelis (i) killed and (ii) injured during May and June 2006; how many (A) Palestinians were (1) killed and (2) injured by (x) Israeli fire and (y) internal violence, (B) Israelis were (aa) killed and (bb) injured by Palestinian fire and (C) (xx) Palestinians and (yy) Israelis were (AA) killed and (BB) injured from a disputed source; and if she will describe the disputes involved. [82173]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 3 July 2006]: We rely on a range of organisations including the UN and media reports for our figures.

The UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) reported on 27 June that, in May 2006, 30 Palestinians were killed and 100 injured by Israeli fire and Palestinian internal fighting. In June 2006, OCHA state that 57 Palestinians were killed and 196 injured. No Israelis were killed or injured by Israeli fire or Palestinian internal violence in May 2006. Two Israelis were killed and 14 injured in June 2006.

In May 2006, 20 Palestinians were killed and 28 injured from Israeli fire or a disputed source in Gaza. 43 Palestinians were killed and 114 injured in June 2006. Between 8-31 May, 10 Palestinians were killed and 72 injured from internal violence in Gaza. From 1-25 June, 14 Palestinians were killed and 82 injured.

In June 2006, OCHA reported that two Israeli defence force soldiers were killed at Kerem Shalom military post. The majority of Israelis injured by Palestinian home-made rockets occurred in Sderot and the neighbouring towns.

On 9 June, seven Palestinians were killed on Gaza beach from either incoming Israeli fire or unexploded ordinance. The circumstances of this incident have been disputed by the Palestinian Authority and the Israeli Government.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) reports she has received from the UN and (b) estimate she has made of the numbers of Israeli air force strikes into the Gaza Strip during May and June. [82174]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 3 July 2006]: We rely on a range of organisations including the UN and media reports for our figures. On 27 June, the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs, stated that there were 14 Israel air force air strikes in Gaza in May and 33 in June.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) reports she has received from the UN and (b) estimate she has made of the numbers of Israeli defence force artillery shells fired into the Gaza Strip during May and June 2006. [82175]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 3 July 2006]: We rely on a range of organisations including the UN and media reports for our figures. The UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs reported on 27 June, that 2,435 Israeli defence force shells were fired into Gaza in May and a total of 642 shells were fired in June.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) reports she has received from the UN and (b) estimate she has made of the numbers of Palestinian home-made rockets fired from the Gaza Strip during May and June 2006. [82176]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 3 July 2006]: We rely on a range of organisations including the UN and media reports for our figures. On 27 June the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs, reported that 132 Palestinian home-made rockets were fired from Gaza in May and 237 fired in June.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Government of Israel regarding the round of military incursions into Gaza which commenced on 27 June. [82177]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Our ambassador in Tel Aviv discussed the recent Israeli military actions in Gaza with Israeli Defence Minister Peretz on 28 June. The Israeli Defence Minister emphasised that Israel had no intention of re-occupying Gaza, and that the operation would be measured and targeted and that Israel would do all it could to avoid civilian casualties. Our embassy in Tel Aviv and officials in London have continued to engage with Israel on the issue.

North Korea

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what action the British Government (a) have taken and (b) plan to take in response to North Korea's development and proposed testing of an intercontinental ballistic missile; [82245]

(2) what discussions she has had with her counterparts from other countries to discuss North Korea's development and proposed testing of an intercontinental ballistic missile. [82246]

Mr. McCartney: We are very concerned about reports of a possible test-launch of a Taepodong-2 missile/Satellite Launch Vehicle and are monitoring the situation closely. We have made clear our view to the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, as have the EU, US, Japan and others that this would be seen as a provocative act, which would add considerable tension to an already complex regional situation. We have urged them not to test, but to stick to their commitments under the 1999 moratorium and the 2002 Pyongyang Declaration and return to the Six Party Talks—a message reiterated in the Foreign Ministers' statement following the G8 meeting in Moscow. The full text of the statement can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at: http://www.fco.gov.uk/Files/kfile/G8FMChairman Statement290606.pdf. We continue to work closely with allies, including US, NATO and EU partners to ensure a co-ordinated international response if the test goes ahead.

Western Sahara

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK Government's preferred policy is (a) talks between the Polisario Front and Morocco on autonomy for the Western Sahara under Moroccan sovereignty and (b) a referendum on self determination for the people of Western Sahara; and if she will make a statement. [82043]

Dr. Howells: The Government's policy on the issue of the status of Western Sahara remains unchanged. The UK fully supports the efforts of the UN Secretary-General, Kofi Annan and his Personal Envoy to Western Sahara, Peter Van Walsum, to assist the parties to achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara. We continue to urge all parties involved in the dispute to engage constructively with the UN.

The UK supported UN Security Council Resolution 1675, adopted on 28 April, which extended the mandate of the UN Mission for a Referendum in Western Sahara until 31 October 2006. There are, however, no plans for a UN referendum to be held in the near future.

Foreign Students

11. Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what factors were taken into account when deciding to offer foreign students with student visas in Scotland the option to work for a period of two years following graduation; and if he will make a statement. [80917]

David Cairns: This is a matter for Scottish Ministers. The fresh talent working in Scotland scheme was launched in June 2005 to help encourage more people to live and work in Scotland.

12. Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the impact of recent fuel price increases on consumers in Scotland. [80918]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government and the Scottish Executive continue to monitor the impact of recent energy price increases, and to discuss with suppliers what further action might be taken to assist the most vulnerable groups.

Devolution

13. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent devolution issues the Advocate General has considered. [80919]

David Cairns: Since 3 June, 60 devolution issues have been intimated to the Advocate General. Of these 60 devolution issues, 42 arose in civil proceedings and 18 in criminal proceedings.

Gaelic Speakers

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many Gaelic speakers there are in Scotland; and what proportion this represents of the Scottish population. [82242]

David Cairns: The 2001 Census showed that there are 58,652 Gaelic speakers in Scotland which represents 1.2 per cent. of the Scottish population.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside his Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in his Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71780]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office operates an information technology system through the Scottish Executive, which is responsible for the administration, support and maintenance of the system. Accordingly, the Executive is responsible for sourcing and awarding such contracts.

The expenditure attributable to outsourced information technology was as follows:

	Expenditure (£)
2001-02
2002-03	36,42
2003-04	38,641

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) outturn cost was in each of the five largest information technology contracts agreed with outside suppliers over the last five years. [71781]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has only one outsourced IT contract which is for the production and design of the Scotland Office website, on-going maintenance, and hosting of the site; consequently, it is not possible to provide estimated outturn figures. However, the following table below details the expenditure in each year;

2002-03	36,427
2003-04	38,641
2004-05	24,718
2005-06	4,641

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81567]

David Cairns: Olympics-related activity for Scotland is the responsibility of Scottish Ministers. However, Scotland Office officials examine Government proposals on the Olympics and how they relate to Scotland. The Scottish Executive provides representation on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Assets Recovery Agency

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total value of property and possessions confiscated by the Assets Recovery Agency was in the last financial year in Northern Ireland. [77369]

Paul Goggins: Confiscation is triggered by prosecutors post-conviction. The Assets Recovery Agency is not a prosecuting body, and therefore has not confiscated any assets. However, in 2005-06 using its civil recovery powers the Assets Recovery Agency recovered assets to the value of £0.77 million in Northern Ireland.

Car Parks

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff are employed at each pay and display car park in Northern Ireland to ensure vehicles display the correct payment sticker on the windscreen. [81672]

David Cairns: The Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service, Mr. Geoff Allister, has written to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mr. Geoff Allister, dated 3 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a parliamentary question regarding how many staff are employed at each pay and display car park in Northern Ireland to ensure vehicles display the correct payment sticker on the windscreen. I have been asked to reply as these issues fall within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service.

Roads Service is responsible for the management of 82 Pay and Display car parks across Northern Ireland. Forty of these are operated through private contractors and as such no Roads Service staff are involved in patrolling these car parks. Roads Service employs 15 car park attendants to patrol around the remaining 42 car parks and take appropriate action when a vehicle fails to display evidence that the required fee has been paid.

I hope this information is helpful.

Civil Servants

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff there are in the Northern Ireland civil service. [77352]

Mr. Hanson: The number of staff (permanent and temporary) working in the 11 Northern Ireland Departments and the NIO, including agencies, at 1 April 2006 was as follows:

	Permanent	Temporary	Total
11 NI Departments	26,724	483	27,207
NIO[1]	1,925	56	1,981

[1] NIO figures exclude home civil service staff, PSNI, Youth Justice Agency non-admin staff, and uniformed Prison Service staff.

Consultants

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the consultancy contracts entered into by the Central Procurement Directorate on behalf of public bodies in Northern Ireland during (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06; what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost to public funds was of each contract; and if he will make a statement. [76788]

Mr. Hanson: Details of consultancy contracts entered into by the Central Procurement Directorate (CPD) on behalf of public bodies in Northern Ireland, including their purpose and cost, during (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06 will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what websites come under his Department's responsibility; and what the (a) cost and (b) number of visitors to those sites was in the last three years for which figures are available. [78775]

Mr. Hain: The core Northern Ireland Office (NIO) is responsible for three websites, the NIO website, Organised Crime Task Force (OCTF) website, and the Criminal Justice Services Northern Ireland (CJSNI) website. Associated costs, hits and visitors to each website for the years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 are as follows:

[2] For clarification, unique visitors are defined as those who are counted only once no matter how many times they visit the site in a calendar month.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80081]

Mr. Hain: The information is as follows:

(a) Paul Priestly is the Director of Resources (equivalent of finance director) for the Northern Ireland Office. The director of resources role covers finance, human resources, information technology, procurement, accommodation, transport and travel etc.

(b) BA hons. Paul Priestly does not hold a professional accountancy qualification, but the Assistant Director, Financial Services, is a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Ireland (ICAI).

(c) He was appointed in January 2004. He was previously head of the NIO's Criminal Justice Reform Division and was Principal Private Secretary to the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the draft Bills produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were examined or are planned to be examined by (a) a departmental Select Committee or a combination of Select Committees and (b) a Joint Committee of both Houses of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [81636]

Mr. Hain: There have been no such draft Bills relating to Northern Ireland.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the unnumbered Command Papers produced by his Department in each session since 1976; how (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public can (i) inspect and (ii) obtain copies; and if he will make a statement. [81638]

Mr. Hain: My Department does not keep records of unnumbered Command Papers. The content of such papers are brought to the attention of Members and members of the public through the issue of written ministerial statements. Copies are placed in the Library and can be inspected and obtained from there.

Disabled SmartPasses

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take steps to enable Disabled SmartPasses to be used for identification purposes for voting in elections in Northern Ireland. [20535]

Mr. Hanson: I should like to apologize for the delay in replying to this question, which was due to an administrative error.

The Government have no plans to increase the number of specified documents used for electoral identity purposes. The Electoral Identity Card was introduced with the express purpose of allowing all eligible individuals access to appropriately secure photographic identification for voting purposes. The application process for the card is straightforward: the applicant is required to complete a form supplied by the Electoral Office and then return the completed form by post, together with a photograph. The details on the form are then cross-referenced with the relevant individual's registration details before the card is issued.

I have been assured by the chief electoral officer that there are no accessibility issues that would make it difficult for a disabled person to attain the card.

In addition to the Electoral Identity Card, three other types of document—a passport, the Senior Citizen SmartPass and a photographic driving licence—are valid forms of voter identification. However, the application process for the Disabled SmartPass is currently less secure than any of the other documents used for electoral identification purposes.

Ex-prisoners

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people who have been released from prison after serving a sentence for a violent or sexual crime in Northern Ireland who are still living there are regarded as at high risk of re-offending. [80749]

Mr. Hanson: PBNI are currently supervising 15 offenders in the community following release from custody for a violent crime who have been assessed as posing a high risk of re-offending. There are a further 15 offenders managed in the community under the multi-agency sex offenders risk assessment and management (MASRAM) procedures following release from custody for a sexual crime who have been assessed as posing a high risk of re-offending.

Fuel Prices

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the recent price increase on solid fuel in Northern Ireland on fuel poverty among elderly people. [81356]

Mr. Hanson: While the number of elderly households who rely on solid fuel to heat their homes has reduced significantly in recent times, the 6.4 per cent. price increase will have an impact on those who rely on this type of fuel. The Department for Social Development and the Northern Ireland Housing Executive will continue to take action to mitigate the impact on elderly people through the provision of insulation measures and energy efficient central heating systems under the Warm Homes Plus Scheme and by providing financial assistance through the benefits system and the winter fuel payments scheme and by the Housing Executive's heating replacement programme.

Housing

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vulnerable people in Northern Ireland live in homes that fall below the decent homes standard. [80951]

Mr. Hanson: The decent homes standard applies to social houses. Government have set a target that all social housing should meet the standard by 2010. While data are not readily available on a household basis, the 2004 Interim House Condition Survey indicated that the overall number of social houses failing to meet the target was 32,000 having reduced from 59,000 in 2001.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what steps he (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to ensure that social housing in Northern Ireland is allocated to Catholics and Protestants equally according to need; [80969]

(2) whether he has plans to address religious differentials in the allocation of public housing. [80971]

Mr. Hanson: All allocations by the Housing Executive and registered housing associations are made on the basis of need as determined by the points awarded under the Common Selection Scheme—a scheme that was equality proofed and subject to detailed and widespread consultation.

The Housing Executive is recognised by all sections of the community as being extremely fair in its allocations policies. However, applicants for social housing have a choice of where they wish to live and as a result less than 10 per cent. of social housing is integrated, the majority of people preferring to live in areas where they felt comfortable. The choice of where to live therefore impacts significantly on the number of allocations that can be made in specific areas, as this depends on the availability of social housing, whether through new building or re-letting of existing stock. In some areas demand is greater than supply, while in others, the opposite is true and allocations cannot therefore be made at the same ratio for all areas. This does mean that some people will have to consider other areas in order to be re-housed or have to wait longer before they are re-housed. To make allocations on the basis of religious belief would be illegal under the Northern Ireland Act 1998 and the Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order 1998.

The Northern Ireland Housing Executive formulates plans and programmes for additional new social housing taking account of demography, current and anticipated supply as well as current and projected demand. This effectively targets additional supply on areas with the greatest demand ensuring that assessed need is met.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average length of time spent waiting for public housing was by (a) all those on the waiting list, (b) those of a Catholic community background and (c) those of a Protestant community background in each of the last five years. [80985]

Mr. Hanson: The information is not available in the form requested as complete records prior to June 2002 are not held. However the following tables detail the information that can be provided but are subject to the following caveats:

These data do not include allocations made by housing associations within Northern Ireland nor transfers between Northern Ireland Housing Executive properties.

The religious composition of households is based on 'self reported' answers to the question held within the general housing application form. The religion of the applicant is assumed to be the same for all individuals within the household.

The Northern Ireland Housing Executive's Equality Unit is currently unable to readily identify 'mixed' religion households although we are aware that a number of households currently described as 'Roman Catholic' or 'Protestant' would clearly fall into a 'Mixed' category.

Table 1: Breakdown of mean average months on the waiting list before allocation by religion of applicants, rehoused by NIHE in Northern Ireland (excluding transfers)

Rehoused by NIHE	1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004	1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005	1 April 2005 to 31 December 2005

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the budget for discretionary housing payments was in each year since 2001. [81673]

Mr. Hanson: The information is shown in the following table:

Financial years	Discretionary housing payments
2001-02	860,000
2002-03	1,142,000
2003-04	1,142,000
2004-05	1,142,000
2005-06	1,142,000

This is in line with the position in Great Britain where the annual allocation for the scheme has remained unchanged for each financial year since 2002-03.

Illegal Fuel

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) whether the law applied in Northern Ireland with regard to testing for illegal fuel in vehicles is the same as that applied elsewhere in the United Kingdom; [82238]

(2) what the cost is of each operation testing for illegal fuel in cars, vans and lorries which is taking place in Northern Ireland; [82239]

(3) how many random checks for illegal fuel have taken place on roads in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months, broken down by district council area; [82240]

(4) how many (a) police and (b) customs personnel are required to be present in each road operation to test for illegal fuel in Northern Ireland; [82241]

(5) how many (a) Police Service of Northern Ireland and (b) Customs and Excise officers are required to be present when conducting a fuel testing and dipping exercise in Northern Ireland; [82592]

(6) how many vehicles were found to be using illegal fuel in each district command unit in Northern Ireland in each of the past three years; and how many prosecutions were brought in each case in each year; [82593]

(7) what the cost is of carrying out a fuel dipping exercise on a vehicle in Northern Ireland; [82594]

(8) under what legislation fuel testing and dipping in Northern Ireland takes place; and whether this legislation applies only in Northern Ireland; [82595]

(9) how many vehicles were randomly tested for illegal fuel use in each district command unit in Northern Ireland in each of the past three years. [82596]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The law relating to the testing of illegal fuel applies to the whole of the United Kingdom.

The number of officers present at a road checking exercise will be dependent upon the risk assessment undertaken for that exercise. There will usually be not less than two PSNI and four HMRC personnel present at a check, the precise numbers depending on the level of risk.

Each operation involving the testing of fuel in vehicles is unique in the time taken, the numbers tested and the number of personnel involved. It is not possible to estimate a cost for these operations.

Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs does not record the number of random checks undertaken for illegal fuel by each council area or district command unit in Northern Ireland. Nor does it have the facility to identify the numbers of vehicles that have been detected using illegal fuel in each district command unit.

Knife Amnesty

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland why the knife amnesty in Northern Ireland was not extended in line with the amnesty in England and Wales; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Northern Ireland knife amnesty. [80522]

Mr. Hanson: Our approach to tackling knife crime has been different to that in other parts of the UK. We have participated in the national knife amnesty, but this has been accompanied by a year-long public information campaign aimed at addressing the culture of knife carrying among young people, which is unique to Northern Ireland. In addition to this, an education package will begin in schools in September and other measures will be introduced, including the raising of the minimum age at which a knife can be legally purchased to 18-years-old. It is our intention to hold a further knife amnesty during 2006, which again is unique to Northern Ireland and this will help us to gauge how effective these initiatives have been.

During the amnesty almost 900 items were handed in. In addition, the incidence of knife crime during the period of the amnesty fell by 30 per cent. This is clearly a good start and evidence that the amnesty has had an impact. However we intend to continue to address the problem of knife crime and I hope to make further announcements in due course.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to launch the knife amnesty in Northern Ireland. [81224]

Mr. Hanson: The knife amnesty began in Northern Ireland over three weeks from 24 May to 13 June. Nearly 900 items were handed in over this period, removing potential weapons from the streets. As stated in recent media we do plan to re-run the amnesty later this year. I have noted that the incidence of knife crime dropped by 30 per cent. during the period of the amnesty.

However the amnesty is just the beginning. The public information campaign aimed at tackling the culture of knife carrying among young people is still ongoing and an educational package will be introduced into schools from September. Legislation giving powers to increase the minimum age for buying a knife will be introduced also in the autumn. We will continue to look at different strategies, policies and initiatives to tackle knife crime in Northern Ireland and introduce any we consider will have an impact on reducing the incidence of this crime.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many crimes were committed in Northern Ireland during 2005 where a knife was used by the perpetrator. [81225]

Mr. Hanson: In 2005-06 there were 1,130 crimes recorded where a knife was involved in the incident. The following table provides a detailed breakdown. These figures are offence-based rather than offender-based (no offender-based figures are available). While it is known that a knife was used in all incidents recorded, it is not possible to indicate how the knife was used.

Lung Cancer

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many deaths from lung cancer there have been in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; and how many of these deaths were smoking-related. [80956]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the number of deaths registered in Northern Ireland for each year between 2001 and 2005, by gender, due to "malignant neoplasms of trachea, bronchus and lung"[1].

Smoking history is rarely recorded on death certificates. Estimates can however be made of the number of deaths attributable to smoking, by using information on the contribution that smoking makes to specific conditions recorded at death. The Health Development Agency[2] (2004) estimated that just over nine in ten male lung cancer deaths, and eight in ten female lung cancer deaths, were attributable to smoking.

Paedophiles

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many registered paedophiles are at large in Northern Ireland; what measures are taken by the Police Service of Northern Ireland and other agencies to ensure the safety of the public; and if he will make a statement. [78495]

Mr. Hanson: There are currently 646 sex offenders in Northern Ireland subject to the notification requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003. Police collate statistics in accordance with the Home Office counting rules which relate to crime type and not to age of victim. The police estimate that some 60 per cent. of sex offenders have committed sexual offences against children. All offenders are subject to individual risk assessment and management under the multi-agency sex offender and risk management (MASRAM) procedures. At an operational level the police and other agencies are fully aware of the nature of each individual offender's offending behaviour including whether this involved offences against children.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of repeat offending by known paedophiles have occurred in Northern Ireland in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [80114]

Mr. Hanson: I attach high priority to the protection of the public and particularly children from any risks posed by sex offenders. Statistics from the 2001 adult reconviction dataset indicate that no sex offender was subsequently reconvicted for a sexual offence within two years after their date of discharge in 2001. Reconviction data are not yet available in respect of those convicted after 2001.

People Trafficking

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons have been (a) arrested for, (b) charged with and (c) convicted of people trafficking offences in Northern Ireland. [81819]

Paul Goggins: The Police Service of Northern Ireland advises that one person was arrested for "people trafficking" in October 2005. He was charged on the 17 October 2005 and on the 23 March 2006 this charge was withdrawn on direction of the Public Prosecution Service.

Legislation introduced in 2004 (The Sexual Offence Act 2003 and the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc.) Act 2004) include offences related to human trafficking; however, due to the current unavailability of conviction statistics beyond 2003, it is not yet possible to determine the number of persons convicted of such offences under these more recent Acts.

Renewable Energy

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what targets have been set to increase the amount of energy from renewable sources used by Northern Ireland Departments. [77105]

Mr. Hanson: Northern Ireland Departments are expected to purchase at least 10 per cent. of their electricity supplies from renewable (non-fossil fuel) sources by 31 March 2008, in accordance with Government targets set under the Climate Change Programme (Cm 4913) and the Government's Plan for Action (Cm 6169).

Under the recently launched Sustainable Development Strategy, the Government estate is to be carbon neutral by 2015, and increased use of renewable energy sources will contribute to achieving that target.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which Northern Ireland departments use renewable energy for some of their energy requirements. [80875]

Mr. Hanson: All Northern Ireland Departments and the Northern Ireland Office use renewable energy for some of their energy requirements.

Roads

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which sections of the Eastern Transport Corridor consist of single lane carriageway; and what plans there are to upgrade them. [81806]

David Cairns: The acting Chief Executive of Roads Service (Mr. Geoff Allister) has written to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Mr. Geoff Allister, dated 3 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding which sections of the Eastern Transport Corridor consist of single lane carriageway; and what plans there are to upgrade them.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

The Eastern Seaboard Corridor runs from Larne and crosses the border south of Newry. The route is essentially comprised of the A8 Larne to Belfast road, the M2 Motorway, the A12 Westlink, the M1 Motorway, and the A1 route to the Border.

On the A8 Larne to Belfast road there is 14 kilometres of single carriageway between Coleman's Corner, near Ballyclare and Kilwaughter.

As you may be aware, Roads Service has recently completed a package of measures on the A8 route costing £13.3m. Consultants identified these improvements as justifiable in terms of cost and effectiveness, resulting from a wide-ranging study that covered all realistic options for the route.

Included in the package were a number of schemes aimed at improving passing opportunities along the remaining stretch of single carriageway. Following the completion of these works, no further major improvements to the A8 are planned at the moment.

As regards the A1 route, there is currently 21 Km of the route between Loughbrickland and the Border which is still single carriageway.

Roads Service is progressing 3 projects for the improvement of these remaining sections to dual carriageway standard. They are:

the Loughbrickland to Beech Hill scheme which is currently under construction and completion is anticipated in the Autumn 2006;

the Beech Hill to Cloghogue scheme, the contract for which is expected to be awarded in Spring 2007. This scheme is progressing through the necessary statutory processes and was the subject of a public inquiry into the Vesting of the land during June 2006. It forms part of our PPP Package 2 with completion expected in late 2009 (subject to satisfactory completion of statutory processes); and the Cloghogue to the Border section, which forms part of a larger joint cross-border scheme to link Newry to the Republic of Ireland's M1 north of Dundalk. It is currently under construction with completion anticipated before the end of 2007.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which junctions of the Eastern Transport Corridor between Larne and Newry do not have a right-hand turning lane; and what plans he has to upgrade these junctions. [81807]

David Cairns: The Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service, Mr. Geoff Allister, has written to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Mr. Geoff Allister, dated 3 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding which junctions of the Eastern Transport Corridor between Larne and Newry do not have a right hand turning lane; and what plans he has to upgrade these junctions.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

The Eastern Seaboard Corridor is essentially comprised of the A8 Larne to Belfast road, the M2 Motorway, the A12 Westlink, the M1 Motorway and the A1 to the Border, south of Newry. I can advise that on the A8 Larne to Belfast road the junctions which do not have a right hand turning lane are those at Ballygowan Road/Deerpark Road and Ballygowan Road South. However, a right turn facility at the Ballygowan/Deerpark Road junction will be constructed later this financial year, and a similar facility will be constructed at the Ballygowan Road South junction during the 2007/2008 financial year. The only other section of the A8 with no dedicated facilities for right turning movements is the section of single carriageway between Coleman's Corner and Ballynure.

You will possibly be aware that the Belfast Metropolitan Transportation Plan supports dualling this section, including the completion of the Ballynure Bypass. Subsequently, the Department has sought, through the Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan, to protect the land required for this scheme. It is currently expected that the implementation of this scheme will be outside the 2015 Plan period. On completion of the dual carriageway, the priority junctions will be reduced to left-in left-out, without the need to perform right turns, other than at the main roundabouts.

On the A1 Belfast to Newry road, there are currently two junctions which do not have a right turn facility. These are Ashgrove Road, which is just north of the Damolly Roundabout on the approach to Newry and to the west side of the A1, and Cloughanramer Road which is just north of the Damolly Roundabout and to the east of the A1. However, this section of the A1 will be superseded by the planned Beech Hill to Cloghogue dual carriageway upgrade, which is included in Package 2 of Roads Service's Public Private Partnership Project.

Right turn movements at all other junctions along the Eastern Seaboard Corridor are accommodated within the approach lanes to roundabouts, central reserve deceleration lanes, or grade separated junctions with slip roads.

I hope this information is helpful.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many vehicles per day on average use the A8 Eastern Transport Corridor between Larne and Belfast. [81808]

David Cairns: The acting chief executive of Roads Service (Mr. Geoff Allister) has written to the hon. Lady in response to this question.

Letter from Mr. Geoff Allister, dated 3 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding how many vehicles per day on average use the A8 Eastern Transport Corridor between Larne and Belfast.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

By way of background, I should explain that Roads Service collects traffic volume data by means of 270 automatic census points strategically located throughout the Northern Ireland road network. The information is recorded for one week in each quarter during the year and an annual average calculated. The results are published in Roads Service's annual Traffic and Travel Information Report, which presents the traffic volumes in a variety of formats for each site.

Roads Service has automatic traffic-counting equipment at five different locations along the A8 between Larne and Sandyknowes roundabout in Glengormley. The latest data (2005) on the annual average daily number of vehicles using the A8 are shown in the table below.

Location	Annual average daily flow (two-way)
A8 Sandyknowes to Corr's Corner	15,009
A8 on dual carriageway north of Corr's Corner	17,714
A8 north of Bruslee recycling amenity site	11,048
A8 north of Ballynure	13,325
A8 at Drumnahoe near Larne	17,566

I hope this information is helpful.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of his Department. [80651]

Mr. Hain: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers.

Sports Teams (Passports)

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what arrangements are in place to ensure that UK citizens living in Northern Ireland who represent their sport at an all-Ireland level have the right to carry their British passports while travelling abroad with their teams. [80294]

Maria Eagle: Neither the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) nor the Sports Council for Northern Ireland (SCNI) are aware of any arrangements among sports organised on an all-Ireland basis that prevent UK citizens living in Northern Ireland from carrying their British passports while travelling abroad with their teams.

Summer Schemes

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many special needs children took part in summer schemes in each board area in each of the last four years; how long the summer schemes last in each board area; and if he will make a statement. [80115]

Maria Eagle: The number of children with special educational needs attending summer schemes in special schools and the duration of these schemes, in each of the last four years, is set out in the following tables.

The education and library boards do not have a statutory duty to provide summer schemes for children with special educational needs. They do so, however, subject to available resources and in partnership with local health and social services trusts and district councils.

Belfast education and library board

	Number of children	Duration of summer scheme
2002	128	14-21 days July/August

2005	270	14-21 days July/August

North eastern education and library board

2002	310	14 days
2003	320	13 days
2004	340	13 days
2005	325	10 days

Southern education and library board

	Number of children	Duration of summer scheme
2002	241	14 days
2003	243	14 days
2004	252	14 days
2005	243	14 days

Western education and library board

	Number of children	Duration of summer scheme
2002	163	14 days
2003	168	14 days
2004	172	14 days
2005	164	14 days

Earmarked funding has been provided by the Department of Education, for education and library boards to use in the organisation of summer schemes in literacy and numeracy. In addition the Department is also aware that some schools finance summer schemes using other resources. Information on the number of children with special educational needs attending these schemes could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Vehicle Registration

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland have been prosecuted as a result of the introduction of legislation on Statutory Off Road Notices for vehicles. [81670]

David Cairns: Statutory Off the Road Notification (SORN) was introduced in Northern Ireland in December 2002. However, the offence of failing to make a SORN declaration was superseded in December 2003 by the introduction of continuous registration which created the new offence of being the keeper of a vehicle which is neither licensed nor the subject of a SORN declaration. Between December 2002 and December 2003, 1,750 people were prosecuted for failing to make a SORN declaration.

Young Carers

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) support services and (b) financial assistance is in place to support young carers in Northern Ireland. [80948]

Paul Goggins: Young carers have a legal entitlement to an assessment of their care needs which is aimed both at supporting them in their caring role, and at helping to ensure that their education and development do not suffer. Schools have been alerted to the difficulties faced by young carers and to recognise this in their pastoral care policies in the publication "Evaluating Pastoral Care" issued by the Education and Training Inspectorate in 1999. In pursuit of the recommendations of the strategy "Caring for Carers", published by the Department of Health Social Services and Public Safety earlier this year, officials will, in conjunction with the Department of Education, be distributing a DVD later this year on the needs of young carers as a training aide to staff within the Health and Social Services and the Education sector.

Carers over 16 years of age may be entitled to social security benefits such as carer's allowance and/or income support if they satisfy the appropriate qualifying conditions.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Commons Staff's Salaries

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, which posts held by officials of the House of Commons receive an annual salary of more than the basic salary payable to hon. Members. [82243]

Nick Harvey: The basic salary payable to Members is £59,686 per annum. Currently 82 staff are paid an annual salary which exceeds this figure. A list of posts in the Senior Commons Structure and at pay band A1, which have pay maxima higher than Members' current salary, will be placed in the Library. Details of staff pay bands and staff pay arrangements are available on the parliamentary intranet. The salaries of Members of the Board of Management are disclosed in the House of Commons: Administration annual accounts.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government

23. Mr. Bisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the local government White Paper is expected to be published. [81881]

Ruth Kelly: The local government White Paper will be published shortly after the summer recess.

24. Mr. Neil Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her priorities are in relation to funding for local government. [81882]

Mr. Woolas: This Government's priorities for local government finance are to provide councils with stable and predictable funding, and to protect the public from excessive council tax increases.

25. Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice her Department has given to local authorities on fees charged under the high hedges legislation; and if she will make a statement. [81883]

Meg Munn: Our advice on fees under the high hedges legislation is in paragraphs 5.13 to 5.16 of the guidance document 'High Hedges Complaints: Prevention and Cure'. It indicates that each local authority is responsible for deciding whether, and at what level, to charge for dealing with complaints about high hedges.

Housing

26. Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the recommendation by the Select Committee on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister: Housing, Planning, Local Government and the Regions that 200,000 new homes should be built by 2010. [81884]

Yvette Cooper: We welcome the ODPM Select Committee's recognition, in its report on Housing Supply and Affordability, of the pressing need for more housing to meet the needs of current and future generations.

We have simply not been building enough homes to meet rising demand and changing social trends. Households are projected to grow by 209,000 per year up to 2026, driven by people living longer, more divorce and separation and more people living alone. By contrast, last year only around 168,000 additional homes were provided. We need to ensure that housing supply is increased, both for purchase and for rent, to provide homes for future generations.

In our response to the Barker Review, published in December, we set out our ambition to increase the supply of new housing to 200,000 per year by 2016. The package aims to make it easier to buy outright or buy a part share in a home, as well as improving access to high quality, rented social housing. If housing supply is not increased, affordability will continue to worsen. For example, the proportion of 30-year-old couples who could afford to buy a home will fall from just over 50 per cent. now, to around a third by 2016. Government will respond formally to the recommendations contained in the report in due course.

29. Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the recommendation by the Select Committee on the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister: Housing, Planning, Local Government and the Regions that 200,000 homes should be built by 2010. [81887]

Homelessness

27. Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the performance of Birmingham city council in tackling homelessness. [81885]

Meg Munn: Birmingham city council's statistical returns show that there has been a 17 per cent. reduction in homeless acceptances and a 30 per cent. reduction in the use of temporary accommodation over the year to end March 2006. Birmingham has also maintained the two-thirds reduction in rough sleeping. The last count (2005) showed seven against a baseline figure of 56 in 1998.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the £88 million announced by her Department on 12 December 2005 included funding for the Homelessness Innovation Fund. [77673]

Yvette Cooper: On 12 December 2005 I announced the allocation of a further £88 million over two years (2006-07 and 2007-08) as part of our continued investment in homelessness prevention schemes. This funding is additional to the £2.2 million I announced on 2 November 2005 for the Homelessness Innovation Fund (HIF). 19 projects across England were awarded HIF funding to develop new ways of preventing homelessness and reducing the number of households living in temporary accommodation. The projects are expected to reduce the number of households in temporary accommodation by 4,000, and prevent 2,400 new cases of homelessness.

Home Information Packs

28. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the value of a home information pack to a buyer attempting to get a mortgage. [81886]

Yvette Cooper: First-time buyers will receive home information packs for free, because they transfer costs from buyers to sellers.

In addition, we would expect most people to see cuts in the cost of valuations as a result of the Home Condition report, as well as swifter mortgage offers where people do not have to wait for a survey. These issues will be examined further as part of the dry run.

Council Tax

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the council tax collection rates were for 2005-06. [81794]

Mr. Woolas: A statistical release providing council tax collection rates for 2005-06 was issued on 21 June. This is available from the Department for Communities and Local Government website at http://www.local.odpm.gov.uk/finance/ctax/cp056.htm.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many websites there are within her responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79061]

Angela E. Smith: The websites operated by the Department for Communities and Local Government are as listed:

Overhead Power Lines

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the building of new properties in close proximity to electric pylons. [71583]

Meg Munn: The Government have not issued guidance concerning the building of new properties near pylons.

However, following the publication of the (then) National Radiological Protection Board's new Electromagnetic Field guidelines in March 2004, and the associated advice to Government, the Government are giving further consideration to taking the issue of building near power lines and pylons and is consulting with all the relevant stakeholder groups.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate the Government have made of the impact of revised health guidance on overhead power lines on (a) the planning process, (b) house prices, (c) compulsory purchase orders and (d) power line burial in new housing developments; and if she will make a statement. [70399]

Meg Munn: The Government are considering the implications of Health Protection Agency advice regarding power lines with all stakeholders. Implications for the areas outlined in the question will be fully considered in deciding how to implement the advice.

When appropriate policy options have been formulated the Government will undertake a consultation on the options in the normal manner.

Population Estimates

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authority areas have made representations to her about the accuracy of (a) the internal migration statistics and (b) the mid-year population estimates. [81983]

Mr. Woolas: The information is as follows.

(a) Since 5 December 2005, in the context of the local government finance settlement, we have received representations about the accuracy of the internal migration statistics used in the mid-year population estimates from Barking and Dagenham, Brent, Hounslow, Lambeth, Newham and Slough.

(b) Since 5 December 2005, in the context of the local government finance settlement, we have received representations about the accuracy of the mid-year population estimates from Barking and Dagenham, Brent, Enfield, Hounslow, Lambeth, Leeds, Lewisham, Newham, North Tyneside, Slough, Southwark, Telford and the Wrekin.

South East England Development Agency

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the expenditure of the South East England Development Agency has been in each year since its inception in (a) each county and (b) each district in the south east, (i) in total, (ii) per capita and (iii) as a percentage of its budget. [82603]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

PRIME MINISTER

Nuclear Deterrent

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister what (a) approval for and (b) instructions relating to additional expenditure on replacing the UK's existing nuclear deterrent he has given to (i) the Ministry of Defence and (ii) HM Treasury since April 2005; and if he will make a statement. [81682]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave the right hon. Member for Witney (Mr. Cameron) at Prime Minister's Questions on 28 June 2006, Official Report, columns 253-4.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister whether he gave prior approval for the reference to replacing the UK's nuclear deterrent in the Chancellor of the Exchequer's Mansion House speech; and if he will make a statement. [81683]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions (a) he and (b) staff at 10 Downing Street have had with (i) President Bush and (ii) White House staff since April 2005 about sustaining the UK's nuclear deterrent; and if he will make a statement. [81684]

The Prime Minister: It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign Governments.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with carers' organisations about carers' needs. [76781]

Mrs. McGuire: I last met representatives of Carers UK on 15 February and discussed a range of issues in connection with the needs of carers.

During the recent Carers Week I visited the Charlie Ratchford Centre in Camden to celebrate the launch of initiatives to help local carers and to discuss with them issues related to their needs.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate how many more people would be eligible for carer's allowance if the gainfully employed rate was (a) raised to £168 per week and (b) abolished; and if he will make a statement. [80136]

Mrs. McGuire: The requested information is not available because there are no reliable data from which robust estimates might be obtained.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have lost their carer's allowance as a result of reaching pensionable age in each of the last five years. [80447]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The information requested is not available. The information that is available is in the table. Carer's allowance is payable to carers of state pension age who meet the conditions of entitlement to the allowance and do not receive a state pension, or where the weekly rate of state pension paid is lower than the weekly rate of carer's allowance. In those cases a reduced rate of carer's allowance is paid to bring the total amount of state pension and carer's allowance paid up to the carer's allowance weekly rate.

Carer's allowance and state pension cannot be paid at the same time because both of them are non-income-related benefits designed to provide a degree of replacement for lost or forgone income.

In cases where these arrangements preclude the payment of carer's allowance, the carer's entitlement to the allowance gives them access to the carer premium, currently £26.35 a week, in the income-related benefits such as income support, housing benefit and council tax benefit and to the equivalent additional amount for carers in pension credit.

Carer's allowance: number of women aged 60 and men aged 65 awarded a state pension from December 2001 to November 2005 who in the quarterly statistical period in which the award was made were recorded as entitled to, but not receiving payments of, the allowance

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension. [73105]

Mrs. McGuire: Members of the principal civil service pension scheme (PCSPS) can pay additional contributions to top up their pension either through the civil service additional voluntary contributions scheme (CSAVCS), a money purchase arrangement, or by buying added years of service in the PCSPS. As an alternative to membership of the PCSPS recruits from 1 October 2002 have been able to join a stakeholder arrangement, the partnership pension account.

The number and percentage of staff in the Department who are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension as at 31 May 2006 are shown in the table.

	Number	Percentage
CSAVCS	919	0.71
Added years	1,156	0.89
Partnership	281	0.22

Disability and Carers Service

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1477-79W, on sickness/unauthorised absence, what information his Department has on levels of sickness absence at the Disability and Carers Service; and if he will make a statement. [81759]

Mrs. McGuire: The Disability and Carers' Service became an Executive Agency of the Department for Work and Pensions on 1 November 2004. The information has been drawn from the Agency's own records, and the only full year's data are for 2005. The figures represent average working days lost per staff year.

Average working days lost

The rolling year to date data which are captured on a month by month basis within the Agency continue to show a modest but steady trend of improvement; the April 2006 year to date figure was 9.5 AWDL.

Disability Living Allowance Statistics

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households in Surrey include a person with a learning disability who receives the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate. [82449]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of disability living allowance is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service, Mr. Terry Moran. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Terry Moran:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many households in Surrey include a person with a learning disability who receives the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest (b) middle and (c) lowest rate.

The Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, promised you a substantive reply from the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service.

The information available is in the following table:

[80460]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on Freedom of Information requests made to the Health and Safety Executive is as follows:

	2005	2006[1]
Number of requests received	6,975	2,928
Withheld in full	761	501

To date HSE has not received any decisions from the Information Commissioner's Office regarding referred cases.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants moved from the short-term lower rate on to the short-term higher rate without first undertaking the personal capability assessment in each year since the introduction of the assessment. [70791]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 12 May 2006]: Information about the timing of the personal capability assessment (PCA) in relation to the point at which the higher rates of incapacity benefit become payable is not recorded centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants there have been in Bristol East in each year since 2000. [80588]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance claimants in the Bristol East parliamentary constituency, as at November each year

	Number
2005	5,570
2004	5,500
2003	5,330
2002	5,250
2001	5,050
2000	4,980

Ministerial Visits (Overnight Stays)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2006, Official Report, column 1154W, on overnight stays, how the cost of overnight stays by Ministers of State in his Department is monitored; and if he will begin to keep a separate record of such stays. [77190]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department does not keep a separate record of overnight accommodation costs for Ministers. Overnight stays are carried out in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers. There are no plans to start keeping a separate record of the cost of overnight stays.

Motability Scheme

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people aged 13 to 19 years were refused help from the Motability scheme in 2005. [69740]

Mrs. McGuire: The number of people aged 13 to 19 that were unable to receive assistance from Motability in 2005 are in the following table:

2005	Number
Applications for grants received by Motability from people aged 13 to 19[1]	854
Number unable to receive assistance	86

Public Consultations

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2005, Official Report, column 1292W, on departmental expenditure, what mechanisms are in place to ensure value for money in public consultations. [80752]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions follows the Code of Practice on consultation as a key element of its policy development. Criterion 3 of the code requires Departments to ensure that their consultations are '...clear, concise, and widely accessible.'

The Department for Work and Pensions seeks to strike a balance between the accessibility and value for money of its public consultations. In accordance with the code, the Department's consultation co-ordinator advises colleagues on best practice and is integral to consultation planning and delivery. The Department works closely with its key stakeholders, intermediaries, and charitable organisations to broaden the coverage of its consultations. As well as obtaining the views of the wider public, stakeholders have hosted public consultative events on key policy issues which Ministers and officials have attended.

In accordance with Government best practice, consultation documents are made available on-line to ensure the widest possible best-value coverage.

By following the code, and making effective use of consultative channels, DWP has been able to take on board the views both of those likely to be affected and of relevant experts. Consequently Government are considerably more likely to meet their policy objectives, thus rendering consultation invaluable.

Remploy

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the review team looking at the future of Remploy Ltd. to present its final report; and if he will place a copy of the report in the Library once it has been presented to him. [81677]

Mrs. McGuire: I have not yet received PricewaterhouseCoopers' report on Remploy, but expect to do so shortly. A copy of the report will be placed in the Library in due course.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the recommendations on the future of Remploy Ltd. made in the final report of the current review of Remploy's future business options, if he will consult interested parties prior to decisions being made on the future of Remploy Ltd. and any of its factories. [81678]

Mrs. McGuire: In conducting the review, PricewaterhouseCoopers have consulted a range of stakeholders, including employees, trade unions, customers, Remploy managers and DWP's Disability Employment Advisory Committee. As the review team has not yet reported I have not formed any conclusions or developed proposals for the future strategic direction of Remploy. At this stage I cannot therefore determine whether further consultation is appropriate.

Staff Training

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements are in place for monitoring the (a) quality and (b) outcomes of staff training in his Department and its agencies. [80327]

Mrs. McGuire: We have arrangements in place that cover all areas of the Department and its agencies that capture all staff training activity, the effectiveness of the individual training events and the impact on business performance. These arrangements are consistent with the Investors in People standards and are externally validated to help us focus on developing our staff in the most effective way.

Work and Pensions Committee Recommendations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what actions have been taken by his Department to implement Work and Pensions Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 session; and if he will make a statement. [78859]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions does not hold a central record of actions taken to implement recommendations made by the Work and Pensions Select Committee and the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the Government are required to respond formally to reports published by the Committee and those responses set out whether or not the Government accept the recommendations presented by the Committee and the actions it proposes to take.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Compensation

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the extent to which a compensation culture exists. [75833]

Bridget Prentice: The Better Regulation Task Force (BRTF) report: "Better Routes to Redress" published in May 2004 found that the "compensation culture" is a myth, because the number of claims and litigation is not in fact rising. But that it is a damaging myth that needs to be tackled, because the widespread belief that claims are rising, leads to a disproportionate fear of litigation and risk averse behaviour.

The Government are therefore taking forward a wide-ranging programme of work, with the core objectives of preventing a compensation culture from developing; tackling perceptions that can lead to a disproportionate fear of litigation and risk averse behaviour; finding ways to discourage and resist bad claims; and improving the system for those with a valid claim for compensation.

Departmental Staff

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people were employed by (a) HM Land Registry, (b) National Archives, (c) HM Courts Service and (d) the Public Guardianship Office in each region in each of the last 12 months for which data are available; and how many and what percentage of posts were vacant in each region in each month. [51331]

Vera Baird: The figures requested are published in civil service statistics. Departments should refer to Table A which covers staff numbers (FTE and headcount basis) for each organisation. Civil service statistics are available in the Library and at the following address on the Cabinet Office statistics website: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/index.asp.

The number of posts which were vacant in Departments is not collected centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the deposited papers placed in the Library by her Department since 2000; and when each was published. [81266]

Vera Baird: Currently my Department does not record this information. However, a system will be set up to shortly to record all papers that will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Draft Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what draft Bills have been produced by her Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; what draft Bills are still to be produced by her Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if she will make a statement. [81263]

Vera Baird: My Department has published two draft Bills since October 2005, the Legal Services Bill and the Coroners Bill.

The draft Legal Services Bill is undergoing pre-legislative scrutiny before the Joint Committee on the Draft Legal Services Bill, which aims to report by 25 July. The Coroners Bill is undergoing pre-legislative scrutiny before the Constitutional Affairs Select Committee.

A further draft bill may be published this session, the Courts and Tribunals Bill. As yet no Select Committee has expressed an interest in conducting pre-legislative scrutiny nor are there any plans to put together a Joint Committee.

Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny, which will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what her practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations, when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [81264]

Vera Baird: The Department always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. In this regard, consultation is an essential part of the policy-making process, both informal and formal.

The Department's formal consultations, which abide by the code of conduct on consultation, are all available on the Department's website and they are also generally available in hard copy. The DCA website has a "what's new" section on its home page which lists new additions to the website, including new consultations, making them easier to find. Those who access the site can also make use of the Really Simple Syndication (RSS) feed to be alerted when new content, including consultations, has been added to the Department's website.

Following consultation exercises, response papers are normally produced in accordance with the code on consultation to give feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the further development of the policy.

Enduring Powers of Attorney

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what information her Department makes available on the signing of Enduring Powers of Attorney; and why the scheme is ending in April. [81411]

Ms Harman: The Public Guardianship Office (PGO) has information on its website regarding Enduring Powers of Attorney (EPA) and publishes a guide on how to make an Enduring Power of Attorney.

This document can be found on the PGO website at: http://www.guardianship.gov.uk/downloads/EPA.web.pdf This can be downloaded in large font, and easy to read formats.

The Enduring Powers of Attorney Act will be repealed on enactment of the Mental Capacity Act 2005, planned for April 2007. Enduring Powers of Attorney will be replaced by Lasting Powers of Attorney. These new legal instruments will cover deputy decision-making arrangements for both financial and heath and welfare issues. Lasting Powers of Attorney will offer additional safeguards and will provide the donor with more choice and flexibility as to whom they can appoint and the decisions that can be delegated to them.

Although the Enduring Powers of Attorney Act 1985 will be repealed on implementation of the Mental Capacity Act, the legal effect of an EPA already made under the current law will be preserved. It will be possible to make an EPA until the point of enactment, and people will still be able to register and use Enduring Powers of Attorney after the Act is implemented.

Family Court (Imprisonments)

John Hemming: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many people were imprisoned following in-camera hearings of the family court in each of the past three years; how many of these were imprisoned for offences relating to contempt of court; how many were imprisoned for more than a month; and for what offences, other than contempt, they were imprisoned. [79825]

Ms Harman: Information on how many people have been sentenced to a term in prison by the family courts in each of the last three financial years is not recorded. However the following figures show the number of people remanded under custody. These cases include those sentenced to a prison sentence and those kept in police cells. The table also shows the number of people remanded on bail or for medical reports.

Financial year	Bail	Custody	Medical reports	Total
2003-04	217	616	8	841
2004-05	225	565	10	800
2005-06	253	576	2	831

Note:
The figures are from the County and High Courts only and relate to the breach of Family Law Act 1996 orders.

Green and White Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list in date order (a) Green and (b) White papers produced by her Department since October 2005. [81262]

Ms Harman: In the absence of a precise definition for White and Green papers I have included details of all command papers published by my Department.

From October 2005 to June 2006, 11 command papers have been published by DCA. I have listed them in date order as follows:

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what her assessment is of the reasons for the scale of the increase in successful appeals against incapacity benefit decisions since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [80303]

Bridget Prentice: Appeals against incapacity benefit decisions are made to an appeal tribunal under section 12 of the Social Security Act 1998. Each year, the president of appeal tribunals reports, based on the cases coming before appeal tribunals, on the standards achieved by the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in the making of decisions against which an appeal lies to an appeal tribunal.

The following table provides details, since 2001, on the number of: incapacity benefit claims; appeals received; and, the number of those appeals cleared in favour of the appellant, including the proportion successful.

			IB appeals cleared in favour
	IB claims	IB appeals received	Number	Percentage of IB appeals received
2001	—	46,890	14,190	30.3
2002	411,630	59,210	18,150	30.7
2003	802,300	63,220	22,060	34.9
2004	772,490	61,510	21,590	35.1

7. 'Cleared in favour' indicates that the appeal was cleared in favour of the appellant.

Law Commission Reports

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs which Law Commission reports published since 1976 have been implemented in legislation; what the implementing legislation was in each case; which reports are awaiting implementation; which reports awaiting legislation the Government have accepted (a) in full and (b) in part; and which Law Commission reports the Government have rejected. [81455]

Vera Baird: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. For completeness we have included table 5 which sets out those reports that are awaiting a decision by Government.

Post Office Contracts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs for which services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81545]

Bridget Prentice: Neither DCA, nor any of its associated public bodies, hold any contracts with the Post Office.

Repossessions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in (a) Southend West constituency and (b) each borough in Essex in each year since 1997. [81453]

Ms Harman: The following table shows the number of mortgage possession orders made at each of the Essex county courts (Basildon, Braintree, Chelmsford, Colchester, Grays Thurrock, Harlow and Southend-on-Sea) since 1997.

The civil procedure rules provide that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, these county courts cover areas that are not necessarily consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries, and therefore for instance repossessions at Southend-on-Sea county court may relate to properties in other constituencies besides Southend West.

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

[3] Braintree county court closed as of 1 December 1997.
[4] Grays Thurrock county court closed as of 31 January 2000.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in (a) Stroud constituency and (b) Gloucestershire in each year since 1997. [82037]

Ms Harman: Although figures for Stroud constituency are not available (this court closed in 1994), the following table shows the number of mortgage possession orders made at Cheltenham and Gloucester court since 1997.

The civil procedure rules provide that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, these county courts cover areas that are not necessarily consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries, and therefore for instance repossessions at Cheltenham county court may relate to properties in other constituencies besides Cheltenham.

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

[2] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many properties were repossessed in each quarter since 2001, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [82131]

Ms Harman: The information is not available centrally in the exact format requested. The Department for Constitutional Affairs collects data on the number of mortgage possession orders made at each of the county courts in England and Wales. These figures, however, do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

Figures showing the number of these county court possession orders made in every quarter since 2001 are given in the relevant table that has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The civil procedure rules provide that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, these county courts cover areas that are not necessarily consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries, and therefore for each county court, the figures in the given table may relate to properties in other constituencies besides their own.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) the Somerset county council area and (c) the south-west since 1997. [82143]

Ms Harman: The table shows the number of mortgage possession orders made at Yeovil county court, Somerset county council area and the south-west area since 1997.

The civil procedure rules provide that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, these county courts cover areas that are not necessarily consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries, and therefore for instance repossessions at Yeovil county court may relate to properties in other constituencies besides Yeovil.

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

Number of mortgage[1] possession orders made[2] in Yeovil county court, Somerset county council and the south-west, 1997-2005

	Yeovil	Somerset	South-west

[1] Local authority and private.
[2] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

Watkins Report

Mark Durkan: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will publish the findings of the Watkins report into guidelines for procurement in the criminal justice system. [80973]

Bridget Prentice: The Northern Ireland Court Service has established an independent investigation into the acceptance of gifts and hospitality by its staff. This investigation is being undertaken by a retired senior Northern Ireland civil servant, Mr. David Watkins CB. In the course of his investigation Mr. Watkins has provided an interim report into the procurement arrangements of the Northern Ireland Court Service on the basis of which the Court Service has arranged for the procurement service of the Northern Ireland Office to undertake procurement activity on behalf of the Court Service. As this interim report forms part of the overall investigation being carried out by Mr. Watkins, the interim report will not be published until the investigation is concluded.

Caroline Flint: The number of red meat and poultry abattoirs in the United Kingdom which surrendered their licences/approvals to operate or had them revoked in each year from 1997 to May 2006 is shown in the tables.

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she last discussed the issue of abortion with representatives of the Roman Catholic Church; what reply she gave; whether a note of the meeting was kept; whether she has further plans for such a meeting; and if she will make a statement. [80163]

Caroline Flint: My hon. friend, the Secretary of State for Health, met with representatives of the Roman Catholic Church on 21 June. It was a private meeting so no note was kept. However, a statement was issued after the meeting saying:

> "The Cardinal raised several issues with the Secretary of State including the 24-week time limit on abortion. The Secretary of State reiterated the Government's position that it has long been the parliamentary convention that proposals for changes in the law on abortion have come from backbench members and that decisions are made on the basis of free votes. The Government believes this should still be the case and it has no plans to change the law on abortion."

The Secretary of State has no further plans for such a meeting.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1794W, on abortion, if she will ensure that the publication 'Abortion Statistics, England and Wales 2005' is made available on her Department's website on 4 July at 9.30 am; and if she will make a statement. [81164]

Caroline Flint: The 2005 abortion statistics were published on the Department's website at 9.30 am on 4 July 2006.

Agenda for Change

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of whether adjustments need to be made to the calculation that was made of the costs of bank holidays in the Agenda for Change process. [76385]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The estimates of the cost of implementing agenda for change were based on a wide range of assumptions covering all the pay and conditions of service of staff. After taking into account the scope for management action, it was decided to adjust reference prices over and above the planned increase in agenda for change investment in 2006-07 to take fuller account of assimilation costs.

Alzheimer's Disease

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) meetings were held and (b) correspondence was exchanged between (i) Ministers and (ii) officials in her Department and the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) regarding the NICE appraisal of Donepezil, Rivastigmine, Galantamine and Memantine for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. [81667]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Ministers received a brief oral update on this appraisal from National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) officials on 7 June 2006. The progress of this appraisal also has been discussed with Ministers within the context of NICE's wider work programme at meetings on 2 March 2005 with NICE's chief executive and on 9 June 2005 with NICE's chief executive and chair.

Departmental officials have had no meetings with NICE specifically to discuss this appraisal, but the progress of the appraisal has been discussed as part of the regular communications between NICE and the Department.

The Department responded in writing to NICE's two consultation documents as part of this appraisal. Copies of the Department's responses are available in the Library.

Audiology

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to reduce the waiting times for NHS hearing aid patients. [81154]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A national action plan is being developed to improve adult hearing services. The intention is to develop the way forward in partnership with stakeholders.

In addition, several initiatives have been introduced through the modernising hearing aid services programme to increase capacity to deliver audiology services in England. These are the national framework contract (public-private partnership) to bring in additional independent sector capacity, the development of a new degree to help to address the shortage of audiologists and the introduction of Hearing Direct which provides follow-up care and advice for some hearing aid users.

From April 2005, the 164 national health service audiology departments have been able to routinely assess for and fit digital hearing aids. It is for primary care trusts to ensure their local population benefits from the modernised services.

Breast Milk Substitutes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of proposals put forward by the European Commission on the marketing of breast milk substitutes; and if she will make a statement. [81529]

Caroline Flint: The content of the recast European Union (EU) directive on infant formula and follow-on formula is still to be finalised by member states.

The Government will continue to press for changes to the advertising of infant formula and follow-on formula through the recast EU directive and intends to review United Kingdom legislation in this area.

Choose and Book System

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 935W, on the choose and book system, what discussions she had with GP representative bodies prior to the decision to introduce the new system; and what representations she received from (a) representative bodies, (b) GP practices and (c) other organisations; [73289]

(2) pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 935W, what assessment she has made of the response of (a) general practitioner practices, (b) general practitioner representative bodies and (c) other relevant organisations in respect of the introduction of the new system. [74252]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The choice and booking direct enhanced service (DES) was agreed with the general practitioners' committee of the British Medical Association, as part of negotiations for the general medical service contract to take effect from 1 April 2006-07.

An exhaustive list of representations since received by the Department in response to the introduction of the DES could be provided only at disproportionate cost. A brief search has identified over 300 letters and e-mails received on the subject matter relating to choose and book during the period 1 January 2005 to 31 May 2006.

Cognitive Behavioural Therapy

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for cognitive behavioural therapy in each primary care trust in the north-west in the latest period for which figures are available. [81867]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Department does not routinely collect information on waiting times for appointments for treatments such as cognitive behavioural therapy. Data are collected only for consultant-led services, but not when services have been provided by other mental health practitioners.

Information for estimated average waiting times from general practitioner written referral to first out-patient appointment with a psychiatric consultant in each mental health provider trust in each of the last five years is available in the Library. The data are broken down into categories of provider trust, strategic health authority and Government office region where possible.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many websites there are within her responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79069]

Caroline Flint: To determine the number and identify the costs associated with each of the websites which fall within the Secretary of State for Health's responsibilities would incur disproportionate costs.

The Department is currently undertaking an audit of all its websites, as part of a review in accordance with the transformational Government strategy and its own overall communications strategy. This work is due to complete before the end of the year.

Information about the Department's corporate website, externally facing websites managed and maintained by departmental staff, and the Department's executive agencies' websites is as follows:

For the Department, the combined cost of the websites listed below for the year 2005-06 was £1,079,222. These figures include website and search engine hosting and maintenance, development and dedicated staff costs (using agreed civil service staff costs including salaries, common services etc.).

For the NHS in England, the cost of the NHS in England website (www.nhs.uk) for the year 2005-06 was £1,550,716. This figure includes hosting and maintenance, development and dedicated staff costs.

For the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (PASA), the cost of maintenance of the NHS PASA websites (www.pasa.doh.gov.uk and nww.pasa.doh.gov.uk) for the year 2005-06 was £86,000. This cost includes dedicated staff salaries.

For the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), the cost of the MHRA websites (www.mhra.gov.uk and www.gprd.com) for the year 2005-06 was £560,000. This includes editorial content, technical support, hosting and software maintenance. It also includes depreciation of software and build costs.

Diabetes

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people with diabetes were offered retinal screening in Warrington Primary Care Trust in the last year for which figures are available; and what proportion of people with diabetes in the area this represented. [81868]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 3 July 2006]: 6,975 people were offered retinopathy screening in Warrington Primary Care Trust in the last 12 months to March 2006. This represents a proportion of 95 per cent. of people with diabetes.

District Community Nursing

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many district community nurses are employed by the Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority. [81460]

Caroline Flint: The number of community district nurses employed in the Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority area is 627 as at 30 September 2005. The number of community district nurses employed by primary care trusts (PCTs) and acute trusts in the SHA area is shown in the table.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the future of district community nursing. [81480]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 3 July 2006]: District nurses and their teams will play a key role in the future, especially to meet the needs of an ageing population, to support people with long-term conditions and care for people who choose to die at home. There will be a need for nurses with specialist skills and knowledge to lead and provide care for patients in the community. Their role will develop in response to the transfer of care to the community, new technologies, new roles such as community matrons, and patient choice. These changes will require nurses in the community to develop new skills, work in new ways and be part of integrated teams across hospital and community, general practice and social care.

Doctors

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many consultants are available to treat patients in the Bournemouth primary care trust area. [80962]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not available centrally.

Drug Rehabilitation

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the effect of NHS Trust deficits on the provision of drug rehabilitation programmes. [80259]

Caroline Flint: The 2005-06 provisional outturn position shows the national health service as a whole to be forecasting a net year-end deficit of around £512 million, which is less than 1 per cent. of total net NHS expenditure.

A minority of NHS organisations are in deficit. The majority of NHS organisations are in financial balance or surplus and are delivering improvements to access and the quality of patient care.

We have set NHS organisations the requirement to deliver better standards of care and quicker access than ever before. There can be no trade-off between meeting these requirements and delivering financial balance.

The Department, supported by £22 million of funding from the Home Office, will provide drug action teams (DATs) with £394.6 million for drug treatment in 2006-07 which is an increase of over 30 per cent. from last year. This funding is additional to NHS primary care trusts' own investment and will be used for personnel, day-to-day running of services, and building and refurbishment of premises. For every £1 spent on drug treatment, at least £9.50 is saved in crime and health costs.

Elderly Care (Staff Protocol)

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her policy is on the use of first names by nursing staff when addressing elderly patients; and whether any instructions have been issued on this matter. [81972]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have set up a dignity in care initiative to ensure all older people are treated with dignity when using health and social care services. In 2003, we published the Essence of Care benchmarking tool, which contains guidance on respecting a patient's personal boundaries, including agreeing the name by which the patient wishes to be addressed.

Food Safety Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the operation of the Food Safety Act 1990; what recent representations she has received about the operation of this Act; and whether she has plans to amend this Act. [80198]

Caroline Flint: The Food Safety Act 1990 is the main statute on food safety and standards in Great Britain. It was, however, substantially amended in 2004 to take account of Regulation (EC) 178/2002, which lays down some general principles and requirements of food law within the European Union.

A code of practice produced under section 40 of the Act lays down enforcement procedures and was revised this year along with the accompanying guidance.

The Food Standards Agency has received no recent representations about the operation of the Act and there are no plans to amend it further.

Food Supplements

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many dossiers have been received by the Food Standards Agency from manufacturers seeking to gain derogation until 2009 from the provisions of the food supplements directive; in how many cases such derogations were (a) given and (b) not given; for which substances derogation has not been given; and for what reasons derogation was denied in each case; [77047]

(2) when officials of which other European Union member states officials of the Food Standards Agency have recently met to discuss the interpretation and implementation of the food supplements directive; on what date such meetings were held; and what the outcome was of the discussions; [77051]

(3) when officials of (a) her Department and (b) the Food Standards Agency last met the Better Regulation Task Force to discuss the economic impact of the food supplements directive; what actions were agreed at that meeting; and if she will make a statement; [77052]

(4) whether officials of her Department have produced an analysis of the scientific papers upon which the German Government based their negotiating position when the Standing Committee on the Food Chain and Animal Health recently considered the proposal to add boron to the list of nutrients permitted for use under the food supplements directive and the directive on foods for particular nutritional purposes; what steps she intends to take prior to the next discussions on this issue by the Standing Committee; and if she will make a statement; [77053]

(5) whether officials of (a) her Department and (b) the Food Standards Agency have obtained a copy of the report on the safety of vitamins and minerals on which the German Government are basing their negotiating position in relation to the food supplements directive; whether the Government will produce a response to that document; and if she will make a statement; [77054]

(6) what strategy she has adopted to achieve her objectives for the interpretation and implementation of the food supplements directive; what progress she has made to date in implementing that strategy; what progress she has made in persuading other member states to agree to the United Kingdom's objectives for the implementation of that legislation; and if she will make a statement; [77055]

(7) what further steps she intends to take to ensure that right hon. and hon. Members are fully informed about progress towards the achievement of her objectives for the interpretation and implementation of the food supplements directive; [77056]

(8) with Ministers of which other European Union member states Ministers of her Department have recently met to discuss the interpretation and implementation of the Food Supplements Directive; on what date such meetings were held; and what the outcome was of the discussions. [77057]

Caroline Flint: Dossiers for 421 substances were accepted by the Food Standards Agency (FSA) from manufacturers seeking to gain derogation for the substances to remain on the United Kingdom (UK) market. Of these, 46 dossiers were submitted after 12 July 2005 and the FSA had been given to understand that receipt of these dossiers was acceptable, and had advised that the substances covered by these could continue to be used in supplements. The European Commission (EC) has subsequently advised that the substances cannot benefit from the derogation. The FSA is carrying out inquiries of the relevant companies to obtain accurate details of the substances concerned. The 375 dossiers submitted before the deadline are awaiting an opinion from the European Food Safety Authority, and a decision by the standing committee on the food chain and animal health.

Meetings were held with the Netherlands (7 March), Germany (20 March), Finland (31 March), Ireland (6 April), Italy (20 April) and France (24 April). The meetings were used to present the outcome of preliminary discussions in the absence of EC proposals by the FSA board on setting maximum levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements, and the UK market for food supplements. Member states were receptive to the ideas presented by the FSA but had not developed their own definitive positions in the absence of proposals from the EC.

FSA officials discussed what work might be undertaken to provide information on the economic impact of the food supplements directive with respect to setting maximum levels of vitamins and minerals with the better regulation executive on 2 June 2006. It was agreed that this should be discussed further after the EC has published its discussion documents on this issue.

FSA officials have considered the papers provided by the German Government on the safety of boron. FSA officials have discussed with the EC the fact that the issue under consideration is the addition of substances to the annexes in the food supplements directive and, not at this stage, to agree maximum levels for individual vitamins and minerals. The FSA is considering this and the EC is awaiting its advice before there is a further discussion at the EC standing committee.

The FSA has received a copy of the report published by the Federal Institute for Risk Assessment in Germany, which outlines recommended levels for certain vitamins and minerals. A response to the report is not planned. No proposals on setting levels have been published by the EC to date, and member states have yet to indicate their negotiating positions.

The outcome of preliminary discussions by the FSA board on setting maximum levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements, in the absence of EC proposals, has formed the basis of discussions with member states on this issue. The UK strategy has been to encourage discussion with other key member states and to engage in discussions on this subject at this early stage, prior to papers being published by the EC. This strategy has been developed to implement the objectives of Health Ministers. A number of meetings have been held with member states.

Right hon. and hon. Members will be updated on the food supplements directive via ministerial correspondence and replies to parliamentary questions.

No meetings have been held with Ministers from other European Union member states on the food supplements directive. A letter has been sent to all Ministers advising them of the preliminary discussions by the FSA board in September 2005 on setting maximum levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements.

Health Services (Stoke-on-Trent)

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the most recent (a) obesity rate and (b) smoking rate was in (i) Stoke-on-Trent, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England. [80601]

Caroline Flint: The main source of data available on the obesity and smoking rates among adults is the Health Survey for England (HSE) and the General Household Survey (GHS). Data are not available in the format requested. However, tables 1 to 4 show the most recent data available on the estimates of obesity and smoking prevalence at Standard Housing Association, Government Office Region (GOR) and national level.

Table 1 presents the data on obesity among adults in Shropshire and Staffordshire (the former SHA which contains Stoke-on-Trent). The sample size of the HSE does not allow figures to be produced below SHA level.

Health Workers (International Recruitment)

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the government of the Philippines regarding (a) the effects of health worker migration from the Philippines to the United Kingdom and (b) the full inclusion of the Philippines in the Code of Practice on the International Recruitment of Health Workers. [81831]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Departmental officials met the ambassador of the Republic of the Philippines in December 2005. Information was exchanged on both countries' healthcare work force. The Philippines is not included in the list of countries from which recruitment is discouraged.

Hepatitis C

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the average waiting time for hepatitis C patients was from referral to first appointment with a consultant in the latest period for which figures are available; [80929]

(2) what the average waiting time was in the Bournemouth primary care trust for liver biopsy for hepatitis C patients in the latest period for which figures are available; [80930]

(3) how many patients in the Bournemouth primary care trust area received interferon treatment for hepatitis C with or without ribavirin in 2005-06; and how many of these waited for more than three months from their first hospital consultation. [80963]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not available centrally.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what new groups have been deemed at risk of influenza for the 2006-07 winter. [80808]

Caroline Flint: No new groups have been added to this year's recommendation for influenza vaccine.

Management Consultancy

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions she had with primary care trusts about the level of expenditure on management consultancy; [75862]

(2) what guidelines she lays down on expenditure on management consultancy by primary care trusts. [75864]

Ms Rosie Winterton: My hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has not had any specific discussions with primary care trusts (PCTs) about the level of expenditure on management consultancy, neither has the Department issued any specific guidance to PCTs relating to expenditure on management consultants.

NHS Direct

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of calls to NHS Direct have been referred to (a) 999 and (b) an accident and emergency department in each quarter since December 2002. [79041]

NHS IT Programme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2006, on the NHS IT programme, what estimate she has made of total expenditure by NHS trusts on the programme to date. [75251]

Caroline Flint: Total information management and technology (IM&T) expenditure reported by the national health service in the last year for which figures are available (2004-05) amounted to about £1.2 billion. As well as supporting local implementation of the national programme for information technology (IT), NHS spending covers IT requirements such as staff management and finance systems. However, figures for expenditure on implementing the national programme, separate from the totality of NHS spending on IM&T, are not collected centrally.

NHS Staff

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS staff have been made redundant in 2006-07 to date, broken down by category of staff. [78356]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Patient Transport

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cancer patients received (a) full and (b) partial help with travel and parking costs through the hospital travel costs scheme during the last year for which figures are available. [80502]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect figures on the numbers of any type of patient who receive help through the hospital travel costs scheme. It is for primary care trusts, as local commissioners of services, to make provisions so that patients with either a financial or medical need for transport can travel to and from their treatment or care.

Referrals

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many referrals were made by general practitioners through (a) the directly bookable service, (b) the indirectly bookable service and (c) all means in each month since December 2005. [74068]

Caroline Flint: The data requested are shown in the table.

	Directly bookable	Indirectly bookable	Total bookings
December 2005	4,732	15,212	19,944
January 2006	8,094	24,200	32,294
February 2006	12,354	35,395	47,749
March 2006	20,251	48,966	69,217
April 2006	22,005	47,680	69,685
May 2006	37,330	78,222	115,552

Royal Cornwall Hospitals Trust

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her oral statement of 7 June 2006, Official Report, column 264, on NHS performance, what assessment she has made of where responsibility lies for the deficit of the Royal Cornwall Hospitals Trust. [82533]

Caroline Flint: It is for the NHS South West to make any such assessment, and take the necessary action in co-operation with the local national health service. The Secretary of State for Health was advised by KPMG as part of the initial assessment for turnaround in February 2006 that Royal Cornwall Hospitals NHS Trust was a category one organisation and would thus require immediate support to deliver a turnaround.

School Meals

Mr. Mande: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent assessment she has made of the amount of transfatty acids in school meals; and what steps she is taking to reduce it; [81157]

(2) what the recommended maximum level is of trans fatty acids in the national school meal guidelines. [81158]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

The School Meals Review Panel considered the need for a specific standard for trans fatty acids to be included within their proposals, and concluded against imposing a specific standard for the following reasons:

Evidence shows that adult intakes of trans fatty acids are well below the maximum threshold level for health;

Adopting a standard to limit the fat content of school meals would contribute towards controlling levels of trans fatty acids; and

Food-based standards would include restrictions on foods which tend to be higher in trans fatty acids (for example savoury snacks and confectionery).

The School Food Trust supported the panel's view that their proposals would sufficiently control trans fatty acids, and that there was no need to develop a specific standard for trans fatty acids which had the potential to complicate the new standards unnecessarily, making it more difficult for schools and local authorities to implement.

Seat Belts

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the (a) annual savings and (b) total saving to date to the national health service by (i) front and (ii) rear seat belt wearing being made compulsory; and if she will make a statement. [81281]

Caroline Flint: The Government do not have estimates on the savings to the national health service due to wearing of front and rear seat belts. Over 2,000 road fatalities are, however, estimated to be prevented every year by the use of seat belts.

Short Break Provision (Surrey)

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was spent on short break provision in Surrey in the last year for which figures are available; and how many hours break this provided; [82446]

(2) how many hours' short break service, on average, were provided in respect of people with a learning disability in Surrey who received the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate in the last period for which figures are available; [82447]

(3) how many (a) carers of people with a learning disability, (b) children with a learning disability and (c) adults with a learning disability in Surrey receive a short break service. [82448]

Caroline Flint: This information is not held centrally. It is the responsibility of local commissioners to ensure appropriate provision of services to meet their community's needs.

Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the rate of teenage pregnancy was in Lancashire in each year since 1997. [81766]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 4 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the rate of teenage pregnancy was in Lancashire in each year since 1997. (81766)

Available figures are estimates of the number of pregnancies that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or termination.

Teenage conception numbers and rates in Lancashire County from 1991 to 2004 (the most recent year for which figures are available) are given in the table below. Figures for 2004 are provisional.

Teenage conceptions: numbers and rates for Lancashire county, 1997-2004

	Number	Rate[1]
1997	987	46
1998	1,031	48
1999	928	43
2000	1,008	46
2001	922	41
2002	960	42
2003	931	41
2004[2]	968	42

[1] Rate per 1,000 women aged 15 to 17.
[2] Provisional.

Tetanus

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the supply of human tetanus immunoglobulin for prophylactic use. [80302]

Caroline Flint: Reserve supplies of human tetanus immunoglobulin are available for the treatment of those people with tetanus.

Manufacturers have confirmed that sufficient supplies to treat tetanus-prone wounds, where clinically indicated, will be available by mid-July 2006. We have provided clinical advice on the management of tetanus-prone wounds if hospitals do not have adequate supplies of human tetanus immunoglobulin.

Water

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been conducted into the health effects of (a) tap water and (b) bottled mineral water. [75549]

Caroline Flint: The Government are responsible for implementing and enforcing safety limits for tap water and all types of bottled water.

The safety of drinking water is of such importance to public health that the underpinning science is kept under continuous review. The World Health Organisation (WHO) manages a global process of rolling revision of drinking water guidelines on behalf of the water and health regulators in all countries. All countries contribute knowledge based on published peer reviewed studies and on data from their national research programmes.

On behalf of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, the drinking water inspectorate manages the national drinking water quality and health research programme. Executive summaries of all research reports since 1997 are published on the Foundation for Water Research's website at: www.fwr.org, where details can be found of how to obtain copies of the full reports. This website also provides access to other relevant research reports being undertaken in Europe.

The safety standards for natural mineral water and other bottled waters are laid down in European directives. These standards are set taking account of studies reviewed by WHO and the opinion of the European Food Safety Authority.

Wound Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was spent by the NHS on branded wound care products in 2005; and what research her Department has undertaken into the purchase of non-branded products; [71586]

(2) if she will introduce a centralised procurement policy for wound care products. [72761]

Andy Burnham: The national health service spend on branded wound care products through NHS Logistics and prescriptions sent to the Prescription Pricing Authority was £171,132,847 for 2005.

Branded has been interpreted to mean as where product descriptions clearly identify a specific manufacturer and brand of product.

No research has taken place within the Department into the procurement of non-branded products. As part of the procurement process for procurement of products through NHS Logistics, use of clinical staff and product testing is incorporated to ensure that, where appropriate, rationalised product ranges on agreements provide the NHS with value for money.

The Department's policy on the procurement of goods and services in or on behalf of the NHS is based on value for money with due regard to propriety and regularity and ensuring full compliance with the European Union procurement directive and other regularity requirements.

All wound care products spend through NHS Logistics are purchased via national framework agreements where detailed product specification has been placed following discussions with clinical staff.

TREASURY

Causes of Death

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) 14 to 16, (ii) 17 to 21, (iii) 22 to 24, (iv) 25 to 30, (v) 31 to 35 and (vi) 36 to 40 years died as a result of (A) road traffic accidents, (B) suicide, (C) sexually transmitted diseases, (D) drug misuse, (E) alcohol misuse and (F) murder/manslaughter in (1) Southend-on-Sea, (2) Essex, (3) Hertfordshire, (4) the Metropolitan police area of London, (5) the City of London police area and (6) England and Wales in each year since 1986. [81241]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 4 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) 14 to 16, (ii) 17 to 21, (iii) 22 to 24, (iv) 25 to 30, (v) 31 to 35 and (vi) 36 to 40 years died as a result of (A) road traffic accidents, (B) suicide, (C) sexually transmitted diseases, (D) drug misuse, (E) alcohol misuse and (F) murder/manslaughter in (1) Southend-on-Sea, (2) Essex, (3) Hertfordshire, (4) the Metropolitan Police area of London, (5) the City of London Police area and (6) England and Wales in each year since 1986.

ONS routinely publishes numbers of deaths for causes which may be sexually transmitted, such as HIV or Hepatitis B infection. Information is not however normally available from the death certificate on the actual method of transmission for deaths from these causes and so figures for sexually transmitted diseases cannot be provided. Mortality data are not available for Police Areas, therefore we have provided figures for the London borough of City of London and for London Government Office Region.

The most recently available information is for deaths registered in 2005. Figures for deaths in males and females aged 14 to 40 years for land transport accidents, suicide or injury/poisoning of undetermined intent, alcohol-related causes, and assault are shown in the attached tables for each year from 1988 to 2005. I am placing copies of these tables in the House of Commons Library. Data for 1986 and 1987 are not available for area boundaries that are consistent with subsequent years and have not therefore been provided. Figures for drug misuse are only available from a special database containing deaths occurring from 1993-2004.

Construction Industry

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer further to his answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 91W, on construction industry registration cards, how many temporary construction industry services registration cards were issued in each year since 1999-2000; and if he will make a statement. [81609]

John Healey: The total number of temporary construction industry services registration cards issued since 1999 is 350,000 (this figure is rounded to the nearest 50,000).

Estimated numbers issued each year since 1999-2000 are provided in the following table.

	Number of temporary cards issued
1999-2000	41,000
2000-01	23,000
2001-02	24,000
2002-03	40,000
2003-04	54,000
2004-05	74,000
2005-06	77,000

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Paymaster General will answer the letter to of 18 May from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mrs. Christine Hayes. [81895]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Customs (Cornwall)

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officers were on long-term sick leave on 1 June of each year since 1997. [81099]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of former HM Customs and Excise (HMC and E) employees on the HMC and E payroll on long-term sickness absence on 1 June of each year since 1997 are:

1 June:	Number of absences
1998	319
1999	311
2000	319
2001	349
2002	334
2003	334
2004	319
2005	289
2006	268

A long-term absence is defined here as one which has lasted more than four consecutive weeks.

Drug Seizures

Mr. Leech: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many recorded drug seizures there have been around the coast of Devon and Cornwall since 2003. [81634]

Dawn Primarolo: The national information on drugs seizures made by HM Revenue and Customs since 2003 is contained in the Annual Report. The figures for the year ending March 2006 will be published in the next Annual Report.

Information on drug seizures by location cannot be disclosed. Doing so would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Financial Services Division

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people worked in his Department's Financial Services Division sub-departments on (a) financial crime, (b) financial services strategy, (c) financial stability and risk, (d) payments and inclusion and (e) savings and investment in each of the last five years, broken down by grade. [81706]

John Healey [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The organisational structure of the teams responsible for financial services has changed on several occasions during 2000-06. The current breakdown of staff between the five teams is shown in the table. The figures quoted are on the basis of full-time equivalent staff in post on 1 April, rounded to the nearest whole number.

The total number of staff working in the teams responsible for financial services in the finance and industry directorate of Her Majesty's Treasury on 1 April in each of the past five years, on a broadly comparable basis, has been: 62 in 2002, 58 in 2003, 72 in 2004, 74 in 2005 and 72 in 2006. A proportion of the directorate's senior management resources also contributes to the work on financial services.

Range	Financial Services Strategy	Financial Crime	Financial Stability and Risk	Payments and Inclusion	Savings and Investment
E	6	6	6	5	5
D	3	8	6	3	7
A-C	3	3	2	2	21
Total	13	18	15	11	15

Illegal Firearms

Mr. Leech: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate has been made of the number of illegal firearms entering the port of Falmouth since 2003. [81633]

Dawn Primarolo: No estimate is available for the number of firearms illegally entering the United Kingdom through Falmouth.

Figures on the firearms HM Revenue and Customs have seized nationally are available in the Annual Reports of HM Revenue and Customs, the most recent being published 19 December 2005. Figures for the financial period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006 will be published in the next Annual Report.

Illegal Products (Seizures)

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many seizures of (a) illegal firearms, (b) drugs and (c) cigarettes have been made in Suffolk in each of the last 5 years. [82113]

Dawn Primarolo: The national information on seizures made by HM Revenue and Customs since 2003 is contained in the annual report. The figures for the year ending March 2006 will be published in the next annual report.

Information on seizures by location cannot be disclosed, as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Income Data

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the average income per person in Yeovil constituency. [82138]

Dawn Primarolo: The latest estimates for the mean and median of total income (for taxpayers only) by constituency can be found in table 3.15 "Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency" on HM Revenue and Customs website. http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu-by-year.htm#315.

The information is based on the latest Survey of Personal Incomes (2003-04).

Because sample sizes at constituency level are small and estimates can demonstrate a large variability from year to year, inference from the information in the table should take into account the confidence intervals in table 3.15a "Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency, Confidence Intervals".

Similar information including non-taxpayers is not available.

Individual Savings Account

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have taken out the maximum £7,000 individual savings account for the year 2005-06. [81861]

Ed Balls: This figure is not yet available for 2005-06. The latest published figure for the number of individuals subscribing £7,000 to ISAs is 949,000 in 2001-02. This information can be found on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/isa/table9_7_01-02.pdf

More recent data will be available later this year.

Internal Leaks

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many internal leak inquiries have been conducted in his Department in each year since 1997; [80153]

(2) whether his Department's (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers have requested a leak inquiry at the tax credit office since January; and if he will make a statement. [81757]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 10 January 2006, Official Report, column 543W.

National Youth Volunteering Service

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made on the establishment of the national youth volunteering service; and if he will make a statement. [80524]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 27 June 2006]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 822W to my hon. Friend the hon. Member for Birmingham, Selly Oak (Lynne Jones) by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office.

Personal Allowance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will estimate the revenue implications of introducing a personal allowance of £7,185, absorbing the starting rate band on earnings and savings in the basic rate band, cutting the basic rate of income tax to 20 per cent. with tax rates on dividends unchanged, increasing the basic rate limit to £42,815, keeping the personal allowances for people aged 65 to 74 and 75 years at their current levels and abolishing all other age-related allowances; and if he will make a statement; [79293]

(2) if he will estimate the revenue implications of introducing a personal allowance of £7,500, absorbing the starting rate band on earnings and savings in the basic rate band, cutting the basic rate of income tax to 20 per cent., with tax rates on dividends unchanged, increasing the basic rate limit to £42,500, and raising all the age-related allowances to £7,500; and if he will make a statement. [79294]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is in the following table.

Cost of tax options 2006-07

Options[1]	Personal allowance (£)	Starting rate (percentage)	Basic rate[2] (percentage)	Basic rate limit (£)	Personal allowance (aged 65 to 74) (£)	Personal allowance (aged above 74) (£)	Additional cost (£ billion)
Current regime	5,035	10	22	33,300	7,280	7,420	—
Option 1[3]	7,185	20	20	42,815	7,280	7,420	-16.6
Option 2[4]	7,500	20	20	42,500	7,500	7,500	-18.9

[1] The changes are assumed to take place in 2006-07 and the additional costs are estimated liabilities for the same year.
[2] The marginal rate on earnings.
[3] The option assumes abolishing the married couples' allowance.
[4] The option would cost £18.3 billion with the married couples' allowance abolished.

The estimates are based on the 2003-04 survey of personal incomes projected forward to 2006-07 in line with Budget 2006 assumptions.

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioural response to the tax changes, which could be significant given the scale of the changes.

Phoenix Engineering

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will investigate the administrative errors in Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs which have identified overpayments and underpayments of tax by Phoenix Engineering Company Ltd. of Chard, Somerset; and if he will make a statement. [81756]

Dawn Primarolo: I am unable to comment on this particular company's tax affairs because of the requirement for customer confidentiality.

Poverty

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department has taken to reduce poverty in Yeovil constituency since 1997. [82147]

Dawn Primarolo: The Treasury has, in partnership with other Government Departments, tackled poverty and promoted economic opportunity through:

Promoting macroeconomic stability

Supporting work for those who can and ensuring that work pays, through the new deals, a national minimum wage and the working tax credit

Providing financial support for groups at particular risk of poverty, such as child benefit and the child tax for families, and the pension credit for pensioners.

Across the UK, these measures have helped lift more than a million people out of poverty since 1997. Tax credits are benefiting more than 380,000 families in the South West region, and in Yeovil claimant unemployment has fallen by over 50 per cent., youth unemployment has fallen by 67 per cent. and long-term unemployment has fallen by over 90 per cent.

Remittances

Helen Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the total amount of remittances sent abroad by UK-based foreign nationals over the last five years, broken down by country. [82565]

Ed Balls: The UK authorities do not produce official statistics of workers' remittances disaggregated on the basis of destination country. The breakdown of the size of immigrant communities in the UK provides one indicator on the destination of the bulk of remittance flows out of the UK. Estimates of the size of UK remittance market can be found in the report of the UK Remittances Working Group[1], established in 2004 by the Department for International Development (DFID). This shows that DFID believes the most reliable estimate for total remittances from the UK to developing countries to be £2.3 billion in 2005 and that—based on the size of diaspora communities—the primary developing country recipients of UK remittances are India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, the Caribbean, Kenya, Nigeria and China.

Sun Care Products

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will reduce the VAT on children's sun care products to an essential rating of 5 per cent. [82276]

Dawn Primarolo: All taxes are kept under review and any changes are announced by the Chancellor as part of the Budget process. To date the Government have been sparing in our use of reduced rates of VAT and have only introduced them where they offer the best targeted and most cost effective support for Government objectives, when considered against alternative policy instruments.

Outside the VAT system the Government have provided funding to Cancer Research UK's national skin cancer prevention campaign, 'SunSmart'. This campaign includes raising awareness of skin cancer and highlights the need for early detection and presentation.

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax credit overpayment has been written off due to hardship in each quarter since April 2003; and if he will make a statement. [76489]

Dawn Primarolo: Audited details of new tax credit overpayments written off are compiled annually to the end of October. Available figures for overpayments written off due to hardship are shown in the following table.

Year to end of October	£ Amount written off

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what procedures are in place to tackle fraud in the claiming of (a) research and development tax credits and (b) vaccines research relief; and if he will make a statement. [82153]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs manages non-compliance through a process of risk assessment and deploys resources according to the risks identified.

As with other elements of companies' tax or computations, claims for R&D tax credits and vaccine relief research are subject to risk assessment procedures. When significant risks are identified they are pursued through a variety of interventions, one of which involves the opening of an enquiry into the company tax return or claim. If as a result of the inquiry a return or claim is found to be incorrect, steps will be taken to recover the tax due. In such circumstances interest will be charged and penalties will be considered where appropriate.

The document published at PBR "Supporting growth in innovation: next steps for the R&D tax credit" announced that HMRC would set up specialist units to handle all claims dealt with outside the Large Business Service.

The new units are intended to ensure greater consistency in the handling of claims. This should include a more consistent and effective approach to tackling non-compliance.

Where serious fraud is identified the Department will adopt its normal civil or criminal investigation procedures.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the administration costs of (a) research and development tax credits and (b) vaccines research relief; and if he will make a statement. [82154]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to his previous question on 1 November 2005, Official Report, column 991W.

Treasury Select Committee

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when his Department will provide the information requested by the Treasury Select Committee in paragraph 109 of volume one of its fourth report of session 2005-06 (HC994-1), The 2006 Budget; and if he will make a statement. [82093]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's response to the Treasury Committee's report on the 2006 Budget was issued yesterday.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills to which institutions his Department has given funds for adult education in (a) Lambeth and (b) Vauxhall in the last three years; and what the amount was in each case. [78591]

Bill Rammell: In 2003/04 the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) allocated £25.5 million to providers in the Lambeth area for adult provision, £26.8 million in 2004/05 and £26.75 million in 2005/06. Separate figures for the Vauxhall area are not available. The individual provider allocations are set out in the following table.

Apprenticeships

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in Year 10 and above in Yeovil constituency are on the apprenticeships scheme. [82178]

Phil Hope: There are no Key Stage 4 pupils in Yeovil currently on the Young Apprenticeship Programme. 30 Year 10 pupils are scheduled to start the programme in September 2006, with that number divided between Young Apprenticeships in engineering and in hospitality.

Baccalaureate

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in maintained schools in England took the International Baccalaureate in each of the last 10 years. [82001]

Bullying

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance he has issued to schools on tackling bullying via mobile phone; and if he will make a statement. [81695]

Jim Knight: This Government have made clear that all forms of bullying, including bullying via mobile phone, are unacceptable and should be punished.

Misuse of mobile phones was one of the specific issues considered by the Practitioners' Group on School Behaviour and Discipline, in its report "Learning Behaviour" (October 2005). The report points to the fact that, while mobile phones are now a part of daily life, head teachers need a clear policy on their possession and use on school site. The current Education and Inspections Bill re-enacts and strengthens the duty on schools to establish a behaviour policy. The accompanying Explanatory Notes require "the head teacher to determine measures (which may include rules and provision for enforcing them) that promote self-discipline and a proper regard for authority, encourage good behaviour and respect for others, prevent bullying, secure that tasks are completed, and generally secure an acceptable standard of behaviour by pupils" (Clause 76).

We will be producing guidance on that duty which will specifically address the issue of mobile phone misuse.

The seriousness with which bullying by mobile phone should be treated is referred to in our anti-bullying guidance pack for schools "Don't Suffer in Silence". This resource is currently being revised to ensure that schools are provided with the most up-to-date information available.

Child Care

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps the Government are taking to increase the number of child care places in Swindon. [82409]

Beverley Hughes: Statistics collected from local authorities (LAs) from 1999 to 2003 and from Ofsted from 2003 to March 2006 show that almost 2,000 new child care places were created in Swindon during that period.

From 1999 to March 2005 LAs were set child care place creation targets. Since then, the emphasis has been on LAs obtaining a close match between supply and demand and working with providers to develop a sustainable child care market.

General Sure Start Grant funding of more than £9.3 million has been awarded to the LA for 2006 to 2008, much of which may be used to help create places to meet the current and future demands of families in Swindon.

City Academies

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills with which (a) businesses, (b) charities, (c) individuals and (d) voluntary groups Ministers have corresponded about sponsoring city academies since 16 March 2006. [81715]

Jim Knight: My noble Friend Lord Adonis has sent letters to the following organisations:

(a) Businesses

Sunderland Housing Group
Northumbrian Water
Leighton Group
Bee Bee Developments Ltd.
Catalyst Corby

(b) Charities

(Bishop of Warrington) The right Rev. David Wilfred Michael Jennings
The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Liverpool
The Girls' Day School Trust
Edge Foundation
The London Diocesan Board of Schools
United Learning Trust
Garfield Weston Foundation

(c) Individuals

David Dangoor
(The Bishop of Leicester) The Very Reverend Tim Stevens
Lord Harris of Peckham

Community Education

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations he has received on the level of community education in 2006-07. [81836]

Phil Hope: There have been no formal representations on the level of community education in 2006-07. However, my colleagues and I have regular meetings about adult learning, including community education, with providers and stakeholders, including the Association of Colleges, the Local Government Association, the Workers' Educational Association, the National Institute of Adult Continuing Education and the National Federation of Women's Institutes.

Connexions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people below the age of 19 years have received support from Connexions in (a) Yeovil constituency and (b) Somerset in the past 12 months. [82179]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department collects data on the number of interventions provided but not on the number of young people receiving support. In the past 12 months 33,433 young people were counted in the Connexions cohort of young people in Somerset. They received a total of 37,935 interventions. The Department does not hold this information at constituency level.

Departmental guidance is that, to count as an intervention there needs to be some element of assistance involving a substantial or meaningful exchange with the young person. This should be of enough significance to be noted in their client record. It would normally exclude straightforward referrals to specific opportunities, e.g. job submissions, the provision of factual information and simple follow up to find out if the young person still wanted assistance.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80477]

Bill Rammell: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members/peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS. The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Criminal Offences

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by his Department since April 2005, broken down by Act. [76907]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given on 11 January 2005, Official Report, column 450W, and 14 December 2005, Official Report, column 2072W.

Since 1 April 2005 eight new offences were created in legislation sponsored by the Department for Education and Skills.

The Education Act 2005 created five new offences relating to the obstruction of an inspection. These provisions are found in sections 4(3), 10(2), 23(3), 24(4) (which relate to the inspection of schools) and in section 57(5) (which relates to the inspection of careers services in Wales).

Two further offences were also created by sections 109 and 111 of the Education Act 2005. These concern the unauthorised disclosure of certain information arising from provisions introduced by the 2005 Act which permitted tax and social security information to be shared for the purpose of deciding on or checking eligibility for Education Maintenance Allowances and free school meals. Unauthorised disclosure of such information was therefore made an offence.

The Children and Adoption Act 2006 received Royal Assent on 21 June 2006. By section 12(3) of the Act, which is not yet in force, one new offence concerning adoptions from abroad was created. An offence is committed when a British resident brings or causes another to bring a child into the United Kingdom and conditions specified by the Secretary of State have not been met.

Departmental Vehicles

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many Department-owned vehicles have been issued to his staff in the last 12 months; to whom they were issued; for what reason; and at what cost. [81908]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Education and Skills (DfES) has not issued any vehicles owned by the Department to staff during the last 12 months.

Edexcel

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of (a) GCSE, (b) AS and (c) A-level examinations sat in 2006 will be written by Edexcel. [82002]

Jim Knight: These data are collected by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) in the autumn following each examination series and are normally published in March the following year. Consequently, data on the summer 2006 examination series are not yet available.

The data for 2005 are shown as follows:

Qualification for which examination papers were sat	Total of examination papers set	Total of examination papers set by Edexcel
		Number	Percentage
GCSE	1,563	430	27.5
GCE	1,756	478	27.2

Education Funding

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much Government funding for education services was administered centrally by Lancashire local education authority (LEA) in each of the last three years; and how much was administered on average by all LEAs in each year. [81412]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in the Libraries.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the membership is of the School Funding Implementation Group. [81435]

Jim Knight: The School Funding Implementation Group advises the Department on matters relating to school funding, in the context of the wider policy objectives for schools and the Every Child Matters agenda. The members of the group are organisations representing school leaders, school governors, local authorities and the managers of the local education service, and these organisations are responsible for nominating their individual representatives.

The current membership is: the Association of School and College Leaders, the Association of Teachers and Lecturers, the National Association of Head Teachers and the National Association of Schoolmasters/Union of Women Teachers (representing school leaders); the National Governors' Association (representing school governors); the Local Government Association (representing local authorities); and the Confederation of Education and Children's Services Managers (representing the management of the local education service). Representatives of the Audit Commission, the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Learning and Skills Council also attend meetings as appropriate.

Education Premises

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many educational premises have been declared unfit for use since 1997. [81905]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of educational premises that have been declared unfit for use since 1997 is not held by the Department.

Emergency Protection Orders

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many emergency protection orders have been applied for by each social services local authority in each of the last three years; and how many of those were applied for ex parte; [80567]

(2) how many emergency protection orders were applied for by each local authority in each of the last three years; how many were applied for ex-parte; of the ex-parte orders granted how many of each were granted; and how many were for children (a) under and (b) over the age of one year. [81580]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the number of emergency protection order (EPO) applications made by local authorities is not collected by the Department for Education and Skills (DfES). Information on the number of children starting to be looked after for each social services local authority, as a result of an EPO made by the family courts, during the years ending 31 March 2003, 31 March 2004 and 31 March 2005 are presented in the following table. The DfES does not collect information about the numbers of ex-parte EPO applications.

1 Only the first occasion on which a child started to be looked after in the year has been counted.
2 Historical data may differ from older publications. This is mainly due to the implementation of amendments and corrections sent by some local authorities after the publication date of previous materials.
3 To maintain the confidentiality of each individual child, data at national level are rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000, to the nearest 10 otherwise. At regional level, the data are rounded to the nearest 10 and at local authority level data are rounded to the nearest 5. Numbers from 1 to 5 inclusive are suppressed and replaced by a hyphen (—). Zero (0) is shown only when the number submitted was zero. As a consequence of our rounding and suppression figures may not sum to the total.
Note:
Figures are taken from the SSDA903 return which since 2003-04 covered all looked after children.

EU (Teaching in Schools)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his policy is on the inclusion of teaching about (a) the European Communities and (b) EU policies in educational establishments; and if he will make a statement. [82294]

Jim Knight: The Government recognise the importance of pupils gaining an understanding of the workings of the European Union and its history, and this is reflected in the national curriculum. In history, pupils are taught about the history of Britain in its European context. In citizenship, pupils learn about the world as a global community, the role of the European Union and the UK's relations in Europe, including the European Union. Teaching also reflects the underpinning values and principles of democratic life which are already covered in the European and United Nations human rights conventions.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the European Commission's recommendation for teaching about the EU in schools. [81037]

Jim Knight: The Government recognise the importance of pupils gaining an understanding of the workings of the EU and its history, and that is reflected in the national curriculum. Pupils are taught about the history of Britain in its European context in history and about the world as a global community, the role of the European Union and the UK's relations in Europe, including the European Union in Citizenship. Teaching also reflects the underpinning values and principles of democratic life which are already covered in the European and United Nation's human rights conventions. Although the EU can encourage co-operation between member states, the content and organisation of education systems is the responsibility of member states.

Exam Boards

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many examination boards have been approved by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority to set (a) GCSE, (b) AS and (c) A-level examinations for the academic year 2005-06. [82090]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) works jointly with the regulatory authorities in Wales and Northern Ireland to recognise organisations which have demonstrated that they have fulfilled the relevant regulations for offering GCSE and GCE A-level (AS and A2) qualifications.

There are currently five organisations which are recognised by the regulatory authorities in England, Wales and Northern Ireland as providers of GCSE, AS and A2 examinations. These are the Assessment and Qualifications Alliance (AQA), Edexcel, Oxford Cambridge and RSA (OCR), the Welsh Joint Education Committee (WJEC) and the Council for Curriculum Education and Assessment (CCEA) in Northern Ireland.

Exam Entry Spending

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent by schools on (a) GCSE, (b) AS and (c) A-level examination entries in each year since 1997. [81999]

Jim Knight: It was only in 2002-03 that the Department began collecting information in sufficient detail to answer this question. Therefore no comparable data are available for previous years. The information in the following table covers the cost of test and examination entry fees and any accreditation costs related to pupils, and includes GCSEs, A/AS levels and GNVQs.

Academic year	Amount spent on examination entries (£ million)
2002-03	156
2004-05	198

We announced in the FE White Paper "Further Education: Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances" (paragraph 7.16) that the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority will lead a review of examination fees. The review will consider both the level of fees, and how a common format might be created for implementation by the start of the 2007/08 academic year.

Fire Risk Assessments

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many local authorities have carried out fire risk assesments in all their schools. [82044]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have this information. However, the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 requires that fire risk assessments are carried out. With a school maintained by a local authority, the responsibility for ensuring that this happens is likely to be shared between the local authority, the governing body and the head teacher.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding has been made available to local authorities for the training of school staff in fire safety issues. [82046]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect this information. It is a matter for the discretion of local authorities and schools.

Foreign Language Study

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to promote the study of foreign languages in schools. [79401]

Jim Knight: To promote the study of foreign languages for learners of all ages, the Government published its national languages strategy: 'Languages for All: Languages for Life—a strategy for England' in December 2002. To oversee the implementation of the strategy, the Secretary of State for Education and Skills appointed Dr. Lid King as national director for languages in September 2003.

In March 2005, the Secretary of State announced a £115 million "Boost for Modern Foreign Languages", providing support for language teaching and learning until March 2008. For primary schools the funding will provide continuing support for initial and existing teacher training as well as training for support staff. To date we have trained over 2,000 new primary teachers with a specialism in languages. Last October we published, in hard copy and online, our 'Key Stage 2 Framework for Languages', which sets out learning objectives for the four years of key stage 2. It is supported by a national training programme, guidance and a planning tool.

The funding will also support new approaches for teaching and learning for 11 to 18-year-olds, including alternative qualifications and vocational options at key stage 4 which will provide more flexibility for pupils in their studies. We are also funding a range of projects and materials to promote languages and to develop innovative curricular models which will be show-cased to provide schools with delivery ideas and support. For example, we funded CILT, the National Centre for Languages to produce 'Languages Work', a suite of materials designed to promote the value of language learning, support take-up of languages beyond key stage 3, and how language skills can enhance future employability.

Our key stage 3 strategy continues to impact positively on pupils' attainment in languages, especially boys. We plan to provide additional key stage 3 strategy training for teachers in the next academic year.

We have expanded the list of qualifications that count towards performance table scores to include more language qualifications. Most significantly, in September 2005 the new national, voluntary languages recognition scheme, the languages ladder, became available nationally. The scheme can be used by learners of all ages and is currently available in eight languages, including Mandarin Chinese. In September 2006, 13 other languages will be made available through the scheme. The scheme differs from existing approaches to assessment in that there are separate qualifications in each language for reading, writing, listening and speaking. To date over 800 centres—including local authorities and specialist language colleges—have registered to take part in the scheme, with over 10,000 learners entered for qualifications across all sectors taking over 26,000 qualifications.

To address the decline in take-up at key stage 4, my predecessor wrote to all secondary schools setting out her expectations that, from September 2006, 50-90 per cent. of a school's key stage 4 cohort should study a foreign language leading to a recognised qualification.

Further Education

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of 18-year-olds in each constituency went on to further education in the last year for which figures are available. [81038]

Bill Rammell: 38.4 per cent. of 18-year-olds were estimated to be participating in full-time education in England at the end of 2005; 59.3 per cent. were participating in education and training. These are the latest available figures, published in the Statistical First Release "Participation in Education, Training and Employment by 16 to 18 Year Olds in England" (SFR21/2006) on 8 June 2006. The SFR is available on the DfES website at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000658/index.shtml

Percentage figures on participation in education by 18-year-olds are not available for parliamentary constituencies—figures at local authority level in England are available, but for 16 and 17-year-olds only. The latest figures are for 2004, published in the Statistical First Release "Participation in Education and Training by 16 and 17 Year Olds in Each Local Area in England" (SFR13/2006) on 30 March 2006. The SFR is available on the DfES website at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000645/index.shtml

Grandparents (Contact Orders)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to review guidance and secondary legislation in relation to the operation of section 8 of the Children Act 1989 in respect of the requirement for grandparents to seek leave to apply for a contact order from the family court for access to their grandchildren; and if he will make a statement. [76248]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 12 June 2006]: During the House of Commons Third Reading of the Children and Adoption Bill on 20 June 2006, the Government undertook to review the current requirement, as it applies to grandparents without parental responsibility, that the leave of the court must be sought before they may apply for a contact order under section 8 of the Children Act 1989. The review will consider if there is evidence that, where grandparents are denied contact with their grandchildren, they are unable to seek redress through the courts. I expect to publish the findings of the review by the end of 2006.

Head Teachers

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) women and (b) people from ethnic minorities became (i) head teachers and (ii) deputy head teachers in each of the last 10 years. [80537]

Jim Knight: The table provides the number of female teachers promoted to head and deputy/assistant head teacher in each year from 1995-96 to 2002-03, the latest year for which information is available.

Information on the number of teachers promoted to head and deputy head teacher by ethnic origin is not collected centrally.

Juvenile Sleep

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will place in the Library (a) copies of advice his Department gives to parents of (i) primary and (ii) secondary school pupils on the recommended daily amounts of sleep required and

(b) research his Department has (A) undertaken and (B) plans to undertake into sleep and young people; and if he will make a statement. [81319]

Jim Knight: The Department has not issued guidance to parents of primary or secondary school pupils on the recommended daily amounts of sleep required. The Department has not commissioned any research into sleep and young people. There are no current plans to undertake research in this area.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what information he has collated on the number of (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupils who (i) fell asleep in class and (ii) arrived late in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [81236]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

National Curriculum

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on his policy on (a) the teaching of religious studies and (b) teaching about (i) Islam and (ii) atheism within the national curriculum. [81898]

Jim Knight: All maintained schools must provide religious education (RE) which must reflect the fact that the religious traditions in Great Britain are in the main Christian while taking account of the other principal religions represented in Great Britain. This could include Islam. Religious education syllabuses for maintained schools without a religious designation are drawn up by an agreed syllabus conference which advises the local education authority. These bodies represent faith groups, teachers and local schools. For schools with a religious designation the syllabus is drawn up by the governing body according to the trust deed of the school. It is for local authorities, advised by agreed syllabus conferences, and individual faith schools to decide if study of atheism is included as part of the RE syllabus.

The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), in partnership with the Department, launched a new non-statutory national framework for religious education in 2004. The framework provides for opportunities for pupils to study all of the principal religions in Great Britain, including Islam, and other religious traditions and secular philosophies in line with the Government's goals of inclusion, tolerance and diversity. All of the major UK faith and belief communities and professional groups were involved in its development.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his policy is on the teaching of (a) modern (i) East European, (ii) West European, (iii) Asian and (iv) African and (b) ancient languages within the national curriculum. [81899]

Alan Johnson: To promote the study of foreign languages for learners of all ages, the Government published their National Languages Strategy: "Languages for All: Languages for Life—a Strategy for England" in December 2002. The cornerstone of the strategy is that by 2010 all Key Stage 2 pupils will have the opportunity to study a foreign language in class time. It is for individual schools to decide which languages they offer depending on their expertise and access to resources and support.

At Key Stages 3 and 4, secondary schools must give access to at least one course in an official working language of the European Union that leads to an approved qualification. The official working languages of the European Union, for which there are approved qualifications, are: Danish, Dutch, French, German, Modern Greek, Italian, Polish, Portuguese, Spanish and Swedish. Once this offer has been made schools may then decide to offer additional languages. Approved qualifications are available in a wide range of languages in the categories raised in the question.

Ancient languages do not form part of the national curriculum. It is for individual schools and their governing bodies to decide whether to include the classics—including classical languages—in their respective curriculum. Their decision may depend on demand for the subject, having a specialist classics teacher available to teach it, and in meeting the needs of their pupils.

As part of our Specialist Schools Programme, secondary schools can apply to become humanities colleges. As part of this specialism, schools have the option to focus on the teaching and learning of classical studies (that is, Latin, Classical Greek and classical civilisation) alongside a core humanities option of History, Geography or English.

In 2005 the Department launched the Languages Ladder—the national, voluntary recognition scheme for languages—as an alternative qualification route to complement existing qualifications. The Languages Ladder endorses achievement in language skills at all levels of competence for all ages. It is available currently in eight languages: French, German, Italian, Japanese, Chinese, Panjabi, Spanish and Urdu. A further 13 languages, in the first three stages of the scheme, will be added in September this year and will include: Arabic, Bengali, Gujarati, Hindi, Modern Greek, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Somali, Swedish, Tamil, Turkish and Yoruba.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on his policy on the teaching of sciences in the national curriculum. [82292]

Jim Knight: Science is a compulsory subject at all key stages in the national curriculum and the aspects that must be taught are defined by a programme of study.

We have recently made changes to the Key Stage 4 programme of study to make it more engaging and exciting for pupils while maintaining the depth, breadth and challenge of the existing curriculum.

From September 2008, we will be introducing a new statutory entitlement for all Key Stage 4 students to study science programmes leading to at least two GCSEs.

Positive Parenting

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department spent on the promotion of positive parenting in the last period for which figures are available; and what this figure represents per child in England. [82016]

Mr. Dhanda: The Parenting Fund provided £10.7 million to support 132 projects during the last period—2005-06.

The Parenting Fund supports voluntary and community sector organisations that provide a range of information, advice and guidance—including the promotion of positive parenting, to parents when and if they need it. The fund is not allocated on a per child basis. It would therefore be misleading to provide a general population, per child figure for parenting spend.

Pupil Numbers

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which local authorities had an increase in the number of schoolchildren in (a) key stage 1 and (b) key stage 2 between 2001 and 2005. [81989]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in the House Library.

This shows that nine local authorities have reported an increase in the number of pupils in the key stage 1 age group between 2001 and 2005; and over the same period, 13 local authorities have reported an increase in the number of pupils in the key stage 2 age group.

Since 2001 the overall population of five to 10-year-olds has fallen.

School Attendance (Lancashire)

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the truancy rates were for Lancashire in each year since 1997. [81762]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold data on pupils recorded as truant. However, the figures for the proportion of half days missed due to unauthorised absence (of which truancy forms a part) in maintained mainstream schools in Lancashire local authority are given in the following table:

Percentage of half days missed in maintained mainstream schools[1] in Lancashire local authority due to unauthorised absence[2,3]

	Primary schools	Secondary schools
1997/98	0.3	0.8
1998/99	0.4	0.9
1999/2000	0.4	0.8
2000/01	0.3	0.8
2001/02	0.34	0.82
2002/03	0.31	0.82
2003/04	0.32	0.88
2004/05	0.3	0.9

[2] Due to local government reorganisation, regional figures are not available prior to 1998.
[3] Local authority figures are only available to 1 decimal place prior to 2000.

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy.

School Exclusions

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many excluded pupils there have been in Lancashire county council region in each year since 1997, broken down by age. [81763]

Jim Knight: The requested information is given in the following table.

There are known quality issues with exclusions data for 2000/01 and later and these are explained in footnote 5 of the table.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what education provision has been made for excluded pupils in Lancashire. [81764]

Jim Knight: Education for pupils who have been excluded from schools in Lancashire local authority is provided mainly via pupil referral units (PRUs). The local authority has five PRUs for primary age pupils and eight for secondary age pupils, catering for over 500 pupils. Other forms of alternative educational provision for excluded pupils are commissioned through these PRUs and include placements in further education colleges, extended work placements and provision available in the private and voluntary sector.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in (a) England and (b) the East Riding of Yorkshire have been reinstated into schools by the Independent Appeals Panel after being permanently excluded in each of the last nine years; and if he will make a statement. [81444]

Jim Knight: The number of successful appeals against permanent exclusion where reinstatement was directed is only available from 2002/03 onwards. The available information is given in the table.

These figures show that head teachers' judgments on exclusions are not being routinely overturned by appeal panels. There has been a reduction for the third year in a row in the number of pupils reinstated to their former school on appeal.

School Meals

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of primary school pupils (a) were eligible for free school meals and (b) took them up in each local education authority in the last year for which figures are available, listed in ascending order of percentage; and what the equivalent figures were in 1997. Schools' Census

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 9 June 2005, Official Report, column 698W, on school meals, when he expects to decide how best to capture information about school meals provision; and what information about school meals provision is collected by his Department. [81798]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department has commissioned research to assess compliance with statutory National Nutritional Standards and to measure food consumption in maintained schools in England. A study of 'School Meals in Secondary Schools in England' reported in 2004 (DfES Research Report 557). A similar 'Study of School Meals in Primary Schools in England' has been conducted, and reported on 29 June 2006 (DfES Research Report 753).

The Annual Schools Census collects data on free school meal eligibility and take up. An internal DfES survey of local authorities (LA) was conducted in November 2005 to assess the nature of school meal provision and providers, the patter of commercial provision and contractual arrangements.

The Department has asked the School Food Trust (SFT) as part of its remit to monitor progress on school meals and report regularly to the Department. The SFT plans to collect information about school meals provision using several approaches. First, they are working with Ofsted and the national Healthy Schools Programme to develop a way of assessing whether or not the new DfES standards for school meals are being met. The intention is for this to be completed by early 2007. Second, they plan to undertake national sample surveys of primary and secondary schools' food provision and consumption, similar to the two studies commissioned by the Department. These provide baseline information against which the change in the national profile of provision and consumption of foods in school meals can be evaluated. The timing and scale of the national sample surveys will be confirmed by the end of August 2006. Finally, the SFT has just completed a survey addressed to all local authority catering providers in England to assess school meal take-up, the costs of providing a school meal, factors believed to be associated with increases or decreases in take-up, and perceived barriers to change. The survey will be published in July 2006 and repeated annually at the end of each financial year.

School Principals

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of how many hours a week on average (a) head and (b) deputy head teachers worked in the last year for which figures are available. [81696]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the average number of hours worked by head, deputy and assistant head teachers in primary and secondary schools in a week in March 2005. This is the latest information available.

	Average hours
Primary
Head teachers	52.9
Deputy/assistant heads	55.7
Secondary
Head teachers	62.6
Deputy/assistant	58.1

School Sports Facilities

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what procedures his Department has put in place to improve the link between community leisure needs and the opportunities for community use of sports facilities provided under the Building Schools for the Future programme. [81589]

Jim Knight: The Building Schools for the Future programme adopts an area approach to transforming secondary provision. For each phase of the programme, local authorities are required to develop an educational vision in line with our guidance, which takes into account a range of policy areas, including PE and sport facilities, and community use. Our Building Schools for the Future guidance to local authorities covers the preparation of educational visions, joining-up all potential sources of funding and the design of school buildings and facilities. This Department is also represented in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport's "Sports Facilities Infrastructure Programme".

Schools Commissioner

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many candidates applied for the post of Schools Commissioner; how many were invited to the final selection panel interview; and who the members of the selection panel are; [80719]

(2) when he will appoint the Schools Commissioner; [80720]

(3) what performance objectives will be used to determine the bonus paid to the Schools Commissioner. [80989]

Jim Knight: 21 candidates applied for the post of Schools Commissioner and three were invited to the final selection panel.

The panel members are:

Mary-Jo Jacobi, Civil Service Commissioner (Chair)

David Bell, Permanent Secretary, Department for Education and Skills

Ralph Jabberer, Director General for Schools, Department for Education and Skills

Dr. Philip Hunter, Chief School Adjudicator.

The outcome of the competition will be announced as soon as possible after the selection process has been completed and is likely to be during July 2006. A performance agreement, including business objectives, will be put in place with the Schools Commissioner when they take up post. This will be the basis on which any bonus award is assessed.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of his Department. [80654]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 27 June 2006]: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the 'Code of Conduct for Special Advisers'.

Staff Absenteeism

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many working days were lost to his Department and its executive agencies in each year since 1997 due to staff absenteeism, expressed as the average annual number of absent days per employee; and what the estimated total cost to his Department and its agencies of absenteeism was in each year. [77253]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The information is set out in the following table.

Department/calendar year	Days lost per staff year	Estimated cost of absence (£ million)
Education and Skills
2004	9.0	3.3
2003	10.3	4.4
2002	9.8	3.8
2001	8.4	3.3
Education and Employment
2000	7.7	2.9
Employment Service Agency
2000	11.8	29.3
Education and Employment
1999	7.6	2.6
Employment Service Agency
1999	11.5	27.4
Education and Employment
1998	8.2	2.7
Employment Service Agency
1998	11.0	24.8

The data are taken from the report "Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service", which Cabinet Office publishes annually. The information in the "Days lost per staff year" column is quoted directly from the reports; the "Estimated cost of absence" is based on the average basic salary used in each report.

For the years 1998 to 2003, data for the Department for Education and Skills and the former Department for Education and Employment included staff in the Government Office network. In the 2004 report "Government Offices" is shown as a separate Department.

Student Finance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many individual student loan accounts were passed to debt collection agencies from the Student Loans Company in each financial year from 1997-98 to 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [75320]

Bill Rammell: The table shows the number of pre-1998 mortgage-style student loan accounts with debt collection agencies, as at 31 March of each year. Data for 1997/08 are not available.

Referrals with debt collection agents at 31 March—England and Wales

	Number
1999	13,586
2000	17,423
2001	19,244
2002	13,005
2003	11,100
2004	15,955
2006	21,758

On average, referrals to debt collection agents represent 1.8 per cent. of the total number of borrowers. These data should not be equated with the number of loan accounts in arrears; cases may be referred more than once in a year and debt collection agents are asked to locate borrowers as well as to collect loans.

There was a particular drive in 2004/05 to tackle longstanding cases via external collection agents but the volume of referrals to collection agents, and the numbers of accounts in arrears are now decreasing.

There have been no referrals to collection agents of cases under the post 1998 income contingent loan scheme.

Student Safety

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills who is responsible for checking that schools have sufficient smoke alarms and fire extinguishers and that they are in working order. [81666]

Jim Knight [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Department for Communities and Local Government recently published guidance for schools on the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005, "Fire Safety Risk Assessment—Educational Premises". This states that the responsibility for complying with the Fire Safety Order rests with the "responsible person". With a school maintained by a local authority, the duties of the responsible person are likely to be shared between the local authority, the governing body and the head teacher. One of the prime duties of the responsible person is to appoint one or more competent persons—someone with sufficient training, knowledge and experience to carry out the preventive and protective measures required by the Fire Safety Order. The guidance covers what these are. In Part 1, section 3.41 deals with fire detection and warning systems, and 3.42 with firefighting equipment and facilities. They give advice on what to look for in school premises and provide checklists for both detection and firefighting.

Sure Start

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many available places there are on Sure Start schemes in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the south-west; and what percentage of children are on the Sure Start scheme in each area. [82148]

Beverley Hughes: There are two Sure Start children's centres up and running in the constituency of Yeovil offering services to 1,815 children under five and their families including 58 child care places. In Somerset there are 14 children's centres offering services to 10,401[1] children under five and their families including 237 child care places. In the south-west as a whole there are 78 children's centres offering services to 57,155[2] children under five and their families including 2,234 child care places. Data on how many children have accessed services are based on information collected for Sure Start Local Programmes (SSLPs) because data on numbers using children's centres are not yet available.

There are no Sure Start local programmes in the Yeovil constituency. 2,139 children under four live in areas covered by three SSLPs in Somerset. In all 24,613 children under four live in areas covered by 31 SSLPs in the south-west. The latest information available (at March 2005) shows on average 30 per cent.[3] of children in the Somerset and on average 25 per cent.[4] of children overall in SSLPs in the south-west had significant contact (that is, a home visit or attendance at a centre-based activity) with Sure Start.

Sure Start Local Programmes (SSLPs) were set up between 1999 and 2003 offering a range of services to children under four years of age and their families living in defined areas. In 2002, Mini Sure Start programmes were set up in rural areas and pockets of deprivation that would not normally be covered by larger SSLPs. All SSLPs and mini programmes are becoming Sure Start children's centres and will offer services to children under five years of age and their families. Information about the percentage of children reached by SSLP services is now collected once a year. The Department does not keep data on how many children have participated in Mini Sure Start programmes. However, each programme typically covers between 150 and 170 children under four in their catchment areas.

[1] 10,401 children include 2,139 children previously served by the three SSLPs across Somerset that have become children's centres.

[2] 57,155 children include 24,613 children previously served by the 31 SSLPs across the south-west that have become children's centres.

Teach First

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many graduates who have entered teaching via Teach First have continued to work as teachers after the two year commitment had ended. [81752]

Jim Knight: Teach First was launched in 2003 and, of the first cohort to complete the two year programme, approximately 45 per cent. have stayed in teaching.

Teachers

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many trained teachers were employed by the East Riding of Yorkshire Education Authority in each of the last 5 years, broken down by subject taught; and if he will make a statement. [81701]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of regular qualified teachers in service in the East Riding of Yorkshire local authority for each January from 2000 to 2005, the latest year available. This information is not available broken down by subject taught.

Full-time equivalent number of regular qualified teachers in service in the East Riding of Yorkshire local authority, January 2000 to 2005

Tuition Fees

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students from (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the south-west are exempt from tuition fees. [82149]

Bill Rammell: The number of students from Somerset local authority, and the South West Government Office Region making no contribution to their tuition fees in 2004/05 was £2,830, and £29,700 respectively[1]. Data are not available at the constituency level.

Students on full-time undergraduate courses and their families are expected to make a contribution towards the cost of their tuition based on household income. Students from lower income backgrounds are wholly or partially exempt from paying tuition fees.

From 2006/07 upfront fees are abolished and full-time students will be eligible for tuition fee loans of up to £3,000. In addition, we expect around 30 per cent. of students to receive a maximum maintenance grant of £2,700 and an HE institution bursary of at least £300. Overall, we expect around half of all eligible students to receive at least some maintenance grant.

[1] Rounded to the nearest 10 students.

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students from (a) Houghton and Washington East constituency and (b) Sunderland city council area are exempt from tuition fees. [82284]

Bill Rammell: The number of students from Sunderland local authority making no contribution to their tuition fees in 2004/05 was 1,740[1]. Data are not available at the constituency level.

Students on full-time undergraduate courses and their families are expected to make a contribution towards the cost of their tuition based on household income. Students from lower income backgrounds are wholly or partially exempt from paying tuition fees.

University Ranking

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will consider creating a system by which to rank universities; [80577]

(2) what recent representations his Department has received on establishing its own criteria for ranking universities. [80578]

Bill Rammell: We have received no formal recent representations on criteria to rank universities nor do we have any immediate plans to create a ranking system. However, we have started to make more comparative information available to prospective students. However, there is currently no consensus on how English higher education institutions could be ranked taking due account of their increasingly diverse size and missions and distinguishing between inputs and outputs. We will listen to any suggestions on possible ways forward.

Weapons (Schools)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps are being taken by his Department to provide security measures to ensure that (a) knives and (b) guns are not taken into schools. [82264]

Jim Knight: School security is a local matter. Under health and safety law, it is for individual school employers to determine what measures a school should take to keep pupils and staff safe. In the main, schools are very safe places and the majority of pupils have never carried a knife. It is a criminal offence to carry an offensive weapon on school premises. Where schools have suspicions they can call the police, and should do so if they believe pupils or staff are at risk of serious harm. Schools and local police can agree a Safer School Partnership to prevent crime in and around a school. We also propose a power in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill to enable schools to search, without consent, pupils they suspect are carrying a knife or other weapon.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many project licences for animal experiments were (a) applied for and (b) successful in 2004; and for what reasons applications were rejected. [81433]

Joan Ryan: In 2004, 595 project licences were applied for and of those 413 were granted in 2004, 122 in 2005 and two in 2006. None were formally refused. Nineteen are still being processed. Thirty nine applications are recorded as not proceeded with.

A feature of the regulatory regime under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 is the discussion that often takes place at an early stage between applicants (or prospective applicants) and the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate. This means that proposals unlikely to meet the Act's stringent requirements are revised or withdrawn before formal refusal becomes necessary.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) age and (b) sex was of each of those made subject to an antisocial behaviour order in the Bristol local authority area in each year since their introduction. [80591]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is given in the following table:

Asylum/Immigration

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps he has taken to ensure that the supporting documents produced by asylum applicants are recorded. [73700]

John Reid: Any document presented by an applicant at their screening interview in relation to their identity, nationality or route taken to the UK is retained by the screening officer, the applicant is given a copy, and a copy placed on file.

The screening form includes a question 7.38 "What other documents do you have (Record full details and attach copies of all documents to this screening form)". The applicant and screening officer both sign the screening form at the end of the interview.

The Casework Integrated Database has a field for recording documents that have been submitted, the screening officer will update that field, any additional entries will be recorded under the name of the officer who added the information. CID would also record the date and time of any amendments.

It is also practice in the ASU to record on the file minute sheet documents that have been retained.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action is taken in respect of immigration and asylum applicants who are assessed by Immigration and Nationality Directorate officials as posing a security risk. [73691]

John Reid: Where an individual in question is assessed as posing a security risk, and is overseas and is seeking to enter the United Kingdom, they will be excluded. Those applicants assessed as posing a security risk who are already present in the UK, we will seek to deport, consistent with our international human rights obligations.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what language qualifications are required of employees of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate; and if he will make a statement. [73693]

John Reid: All Home Office employees are expected to demonstrate competency in the English language. For those in more operational roles such as immigration officers there is a provision to demonstrate proficiency in languages other than English.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the director general of the immigration and nationality directorate last considered his policy on the quality of decisions made by staff. [73705]

John Reid: The policy on the quality of casework decisions made by staff is kept under constant review.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many employees of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate hold dual citizenship. [77120]

John Reid: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action is being taken to improve the speed of access to the immigration and nationality directorate website; how many complaints the IND has received about this problem; what the estimated cost is of the necessary remedial measures; and when he expects the site to be fully operational. [79019]

John Reid: The immigration and nationality directorate website was re-launched on Wednesday 7 June 2006. Visitors to the site should now find it much faster to access. During the time the site was running slowly, the IND web team received approximately 600 complaints.

CCTV

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of the installation of CCTV cameras on levels of crime in Beverley in each of the last five years. [79531]

Mr. Coaker: The scheme in Beverley was installed at a cost of £203,000. The local police in Beverley have indicated that the presence of CCTV plays an important part in their operational work to prevent and detect crime. The quality of cameras, colour images on screens, recording, storage and photographic reproduction provides the possibility of admissible evidence for court proceedings against offenders.

Compensation Claims

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what financial support is available for people found to be not guilty during their trial to investigate the circumstances and make claims for compensation against the Crown Prosecution Service and the police. [81035]

Vera Baird: I have been asked to reply.

Any party who qualifies for legal aid under the standard means and merits criteria can obtain legal advice and information, or legal representation, for any civil proceedings which are within the scope of the legal aid scheme, including proceedings against the Crown Prosecution Service and the police.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter dated 26 January from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton, with regard to Mr. Rashid Mahmood. [58113]

John Reid: I replied to my right hon. Friend on 16 March 2006.

Crime Statistics (Suffolk)

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many burglaries have been recorded in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [82107]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is given below.

Table 1: Recorded burglary offences in Suffolk—2000-01 and 2001-02

	Number of offences
2000-01	5,738
2001-02	6,346

Note:
The data in this table is prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard. These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.

Table 2: Recorded burglary offences in Suffolk—2002-03 to 2004-05

	Number of offences
2002-03	6,248
2003-04	6,396
2004-05	5,090

Note:
The data in this table takes account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what total amount was paid to Capita as (a) service payments and (b) performance-related payments during each year of the Criminal Records Bureau's operation. [75298]

Joan Ryan: Capita do not operate the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB). The disclosure service operates as a contract between the Criminal Records Bureau and Capita Business Services based upon a public private partnership agreement. Under this agreement, Capita are required to perform contractually specified services and to develop, deliver and maintain the technical infrastructure of the disclosure service. This is to enable the Home Office to discharge its responsibilities under part V of the Police Act 1997 and other supporting legislation, including the Protection of Children Act 1999, to make available to approved organisations information regarding the criminal or related background of individuals.

Other services carried out by the Criminal Records Bureau that are not undertaken by Capita are carried out by civil servants and include the sensitive matching of an applicants personal details to records held on the Police National Computer (PNC) and other lists held by the Department of Health and the Department for Education and Skills.

A contract schedule sets out the service levels for Capita to meet. A further schedule sets out the service credits that apply should Capita fail to meet the agreed service levels. There is provision within this contract for liquidated damages to be charged in the event of late delivery to agreed changes in the service.

In each year since financial year 2001-02, the following payments have been received from Capita for service credits and liquidated damages:

	Amount (£)
2001-02	555,000
2002-03	1,718,000
2003-04	1,528,000
2004-05	53,000
2005-06	92,000

The hon. Member will appreciate that with a contract of this size and complexity, the CRB would not be able to list and explain the context of each occasion when service credits and liquidated damages have occurred without employing disproportionate resources.

However, as an illustration, between August 2001 and November 2001, liquidated damages were applied due to the delays in launching the disclosure service and some of the associated services. Subsequent service credits were also applied in 2003 for operational delays within the disclosure process. These payments relate to the early years of the service.

The contract was originally estimated at £400 million to run over 10 years. In each year since financial year 2001-02, CRB have paid Capita the following as service payments:

	£ million Amount
2001-02	12.1
2002-03	33.5
2003-04	58.5
2004-05	44.1
2005-06	47

There have been no performance related-payments made in any of the above financial years.

Departmental Grants

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to which faith-based organisations his Department has made grants in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) the amount and (b) purpose. [74596]

John Reid: The information could be gathered only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Legislation

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legislation has been introduced by his Department in each year since 1996, broken down by type; and whether Royal Assent was given in the case of each Bill. [74597]

John Reid: The following is a list of all Government Bills and Private Member's/Peer's Bills on Home Office subjects that have received Royal Assent since the beginning of the 1995-96 session.

Royal Assent received during the 1995-96 session
- Wild Mammals (Protection) Act
- Prevention of Terrorism (Additional Powers) Act
- Law Reform (Year and a Day Rule) Act
- Criminal Procedure and Investigations Act
- Sexual Offences (Conspiracy and Incitement) Act

Deportations

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of its potential liability for compensation to the victims and their families following an offence committed by an individual who has been released from prison and has failed to have been deported or removed by the Home Office and its responsible agencies. [67857]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 3 May 2006]: We would not expect there to be any significant exposure to liability in civil law applying the normal principles. Victims of violent crime are of course entitled to apply for compensation under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme in the normal way.

DNA Database

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests have been received from other nations for details from the national DNA database concerning people who were added to the database when they were under 18 years and not charged or cautioned with any offence. [79025]

Joan Ryan: Requests for the exchange of DNA information between the United Kingdom and other countries are usually made through the United Kingdom National Central Bureau for Interpol (UK NCB) based at the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). Other requests may be made as a result of bi-lateral direct liaison between law enforcement authorities; and formal mutual legal assistance channels.

We understand from SOCA that it has not received any requests from other countries for details from the National DNA Database concerning people who had a DNA sample taken and added to the database when they were under 18 years of age and who were not charged or cautioned with any offence. No data are available on the number, if any, of exchanges of DNA information in such cases which occur through direct liaison between law enforcement authorities or formal mutual legal assistance channels.

Drug Intervention Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases in the Drug Intervention Programme (a) handling stolen goods, (b) attenuated acquisitive crime and (c) begging was the trigger for a drugs test in 2004-05. [69542]

Mr. Coaker: I refer to the answer given to the hon. Member on 1 March 2006, Official Report, column 811W.

Ethnic Minority Community Liaison

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with representatives from the (a) African, (b) North African, (c) Arab and (d) Iranian communities since 7 July 2005. [77986]

Mr. McNulty: All Home Secretaries and their Ministers meet with representative groups from an array of countries and organisations during the course of their duties.

Foreign Criminals

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals who are in UK prisons have previously been imprisoned in the UK; for what offences they were imprisoned; and what the dates are of their previous (a) convictions and (b) imprisonment. [68724]

John Reid: The information requested is not available centrally and establishing it from case files would incur disproportionate cost.

Mike Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether a policy has been introduced that all foreign national prisoners are placed in category C prisons. [79501]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: No. The policy on categorisation remains unchanged. The overriding purpose of categorisation remains to ensure that prisoners are retained in custody with a level of security consistent with the need to protect the public.

Knives

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knives have been handed in during the current amnesty in (a) Beverley and Holderness and (b) Humberside Police Authority area; and if he will make a statement. [81702]

Mr. Coaker: Figures for the number of items handed in during the first week of the knife amnesty have been collected at police force level. Humberside police report that 259 items were surrendered to them. 17,715 items were handed in England and Wales during the first week of the amnesty. We worked closely with ACPO to develop the arrangements for the amnesty, which was part of our wider strategy to tackle knife crime. We are also focusing on legislation, enforcement, education and prevention. We have brought forward provisions in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill that will raise the age at which someone can be sold a knife to 18; are introducing a new offence of using someone to mind a weapon; and giving head teachers powers to search pupils for knives. The Home Secretary announced on 19 June that he was giving very serious consideration to the suggestion that the maximum sentence for having a knife or blade in a public place should be increased from the current sentence of two years.

Many police forces are undertaking tough enforcement operations, for example, the Metropolitan police's Operation Blunt and the British Transport police's Operation Shield, which uses search equipment to detect those carrying knives and other weapons on our transport network. We are also supporting educational initiatives that demonstrate to young people the dangers of carrying knives, and reinforce the message that carrying a knife can result in it being turned on you. Though our small grants programme, the Connected Fund, we are also supporting a wide range of local community projects which work with young people to provide mentoring, training, education and other support.

Leave to Remain

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applicants from each of the countries which joined the EU in May 2005 have outstanding applications for leave to remain under the one-off exercise announced on 24 October 2003. [79018]

John Reid: I am advised that as of 16 June 2006, 20 principal applicants from these countries have outstanding applications.

This figure is from internal management information.

London Terrorist Attacks

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of those seriously injured in the terrorist attacks on 7 July 2005 have received (a) partial and (b) full compensation from the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board; and if he will make a statement. [68701]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 8 May 2006]: As at 21 June 2006 the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority (CICA) had received 522 applications for compensation arising from the incidents on 7 and 21 July 2005. They had offered 255 final awards and 165 interim awards, and had paid out over £2¼ million in respect of these claims.

CICA advise that they have made large interim awards in 17 cases where the injuries might be described as extremely serious. These injuries include loss of one or more limbs, loss of an eye, and serious burns to extensive areas of the body.

CICA have not yet been able to finalise any of these seriously injured cases, as they all involve claims for compensation additional to the basic tariff awards for loss of earnings and special expenses, and in all cases the final prognosis for recovery is not yet clear.

CICA will continue to make substantial interim awards in cases where final settlement is not in prospect, provided they have a police report confirming the claimant's involvement in one of the incidents and a medical report confirming the nature and extent of the injuries.

We announced on 8 June 2006 that we were making an extra donation of £2.5 million to the London Bombings Relief Charitable Fund to give assistance to bereaved and the injured victims of the 7 July London bombings. The further support was being made on a special, one-off basis in recognition of the exceptional circumstances of the London bombings, rather than under the rules of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme, which would require a change to legislation 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 38WS.

North Yorkshire Constabulary

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) regular constables and (b) community support officers have been recruited to the North Yorkshire constabulary in the last 12 months. [79482]

Mr. McNulty: In the period 1 June 2005-31 May 2006 the North Yorkshire constabulary have recruited (a) 114 police officers and (b) 12 police community support officers.

Offenders (Unpaid Work)

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will estimate the funds saved through the use of unpaid work by offenders in each of the last 10 years. [63024]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not possible to give a precise figure but the following table provides a broad estimate of the value of the unpaid work done by offenders since 1995. It takes no account of the costs to the probation service of managing the work. Orders that include unpaid work vary in length but the calculation is based on the average number of hours per order. An allowance has been made for the fact that not all offenders complete their orders. The estimated total number of hours has been multiplied by the national minimum wage for each year. (Because the minimum wage came into force in 1999, the introductory figure of £3.60 has been used for 1995 to 1998.)

	Estimated total value (£ million)
1995	18.0
1996	17.5
1997	18.4
1998	19.2
1999	19.2
2000	19.0
2001	18.7
2002	21.1
2003	21.7

Passports

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have applied for a passport in each of the last eight years; and how many of those who have applied were rejected due to the applicant's (a) criminal record and (b) antisocial behaviour in each year. [80308]

Joan Ryan: The number of passport applications received by the Identity and Passport Service (formerly UKPS) in each of the last eight calendar years is in the following table.

A criminal record or a record of antisocial behaviour does not disqualify a British national from holding a passport and applicants are not required to give this information. If notified by the police, the IPS would refuse a passport to a person for whose arrest a warrant had been issued in the United Kingdom, or a person who was wanted by the United Kingdom police on suspicion of a serious crime.

	Passport applications
1998	4,834,000
1999	4,685,000
2000	5,150,000
2001	5,692,000
2002	5,570,000
2003	5,635,000
2004	6,134,000
2005	6,539,000

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of children trafficked into the UK in the last five years. [76842]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 June 2006]: We have no centrally collated data on the numbers of children trafficked into the UK. The Home Office recognises there is an urgent need to improve its intelligence on this issue and for this reason has commissioned a scoping project in partnership with the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) to estimate the scale and nature of the problem including source countries. Additionally newly established Minors Intelligence Teams based at Croydon and Liverpool asylum screening units now provide monthly reports on children who have been identified as being at risk, including those that they believe have been trafficked.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1840-41W, on people trafficking, what proposals for combating human trafficking were discussed at the G8 meeting on 15 and 16 June. [81827]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Both the Attorney General and my hon. Friend the Minister for Policing, Security and Community Safety addressed the issue of human trafficking when addressing

G8 Justice and Interior Ministers in Moscow 15 and 16 June. They urged that the G8 step up its work in tackling organised human trafficking and referred to a UK-led project to establish ways of further enhancing cooperation and the exchange of intelligence to combat organised trafficking and smuggling.

G8 Justice and Interior Ministers stressed the importance of cooperation with Interpol as well as Europol to enhance the efficiency of cooperation in the fight against smuggling and human trafficking and the use of the Interpol Lost, Stolen and Invalid Passports Database. They also called for increased interaction with relevant UN institutions, as well as the International Organization for Migration, the International Civil Aviation Organization, the International Maritime Organization, and the Europol in combating illegal migration.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government have taken to meet their obligations under Section 7 of the Council of the European Union's Framework Decision on combating trafficking in human beings to ensure appropriate assistance is provided for the families of child victims of trafficking. [79229]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 21 June 2006]: The Council of the European Union's Framework Decision on combating the trafficking in human beings, places certain obligations on member states to criminalise and prosecute traffickers, and to protect and support victims of trafficking. Under Article 7, paragraph 3 (Framework Decision 2002/629/JHA) member states are obliged to take the measures possible to ensure appropriate assistance for the family of a child victim of trafficking.

All agencies and organisations within the criminal justice system aim to work in partnership to meet the needs of all victims of crime, including young victims. Advice and information will be offered to families in line with the detailed provisions of Article 4, (Framework Decision 2001/220/JHA), cross referenced in Article 7 (Framework Decision 2002/629/JHA), on the standing of victims in criminal proceedings.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) prosecuted for and (b) convicted of trafficking people since Sections 4 and 5 of the Asylum and Immigration Act 2004 came into force. [78813]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 20 June 2006]: To date there have been no prosecutions or convictions for trafficking under section 4 and 5 of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc.) Act 2004.

Police (Cultural Items)

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many specialist police there are with responsibility for theft and other crimes relating to cultural items in England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [73433]

Mr. McNulty: There is no specific data collected for the number of police officers with responsibility for theft and other crimes relating to cultural items.

As at 31 March 2005, there were 727 full-time equivalent police officers whose main function was "burglary". This includes staff who predominantly investigate offences of burglary. In the same period there were 16,887 full-time equivalent police officers whose main function was "CID". This includes staff mainly employed in plain clothes for the investigation of crime, and includes any specialist squads, e.g. robbery.

Prison Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will place a much larger proportion of short-term prisoners in open prisons. [65573]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The length of a person's prison sentence is not the primary determinant for their categorisation. Prisoners are placed in the lowest security category consistent with the needs of security and control and the need to protect the public. Prisoners are subject to a rigorous and robust risk assessment when being categorised. Only prisoners categorised D and therefore considered to pose a low risk of escape and not represent a threat to the public may be placed in open prisons.

Prison Sentences

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who listed a residential address in Hartlepool constituency at the time of sentencing received a prison sentence in each year since 1990. [77116]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no information recorded on the Court Proceedings database relating to the home addresses of persons sentenced. The information contained in the table shows, however, the number of persons sentenced to immediate custody in the Hartlepool Petty Sessional Area (PSA) (sitting at Hartlepool Magistrates Court) or committed by Hartlepool Magistrates Court to the Crown Court for trial or sentence from 1990 to 2004, the latest year for which data are available.

Persons sentenced to immediate custody by the Hartlepool PSA[1], 1990 to 2004

	Number of persons
1990	104
1991	92
1992	106
1993	106
1994	138
1995	161
1996	200
1997	181
1998	247
1999	242
2000	269
2001	292
2002	264
2003	314
2004	260

Prison Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff are employed in the Prison Service Security Group; and if he will make a statement. [78184]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As at 31 May 2006, 65 staff were employed in the Prison Service Security Group.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many personnel the Prison Service Fraud Investigation Unit employs; how many investigations the unit has undertaken in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [80021]

(2) what assessment was made by the Prison Service of the risk of fraud in its latest assessment of business risk; what the date was of the last assessment; and if he will make a statement; [80024]

(3) how often within the last five years the Prison Service Fraud Investigation Unit interrogated Prison Service corporate data to identify indicators of fraud; and if he will make a statement. [80025]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: There are the equivalent of two full-time staff within the Fraud Investigation Unit, which is contained within the Audit and Corporate Assurance Group. The unit has undertaken 90 investigations over the last five years:

	Number of investigations
2001-02	25
2002-03	17
2003-04	14

Individual establishments and headquarters groups are required to undertake a fraud risk assessment annually and to ensure appropriate controls are in place to mitigate this risk. In addition, one of the key systems in place to manage one of the Prison Service corporate risks measures the effectiveness of compliance with financial controls and standards. The Prison Service Management Board has assessed this as satisfactory at the last assessment on 24 April 2006.

The Fraud Investigation Unit along with other members of Audit and Corporate Assurance have been fully engaged in advising on the design of major Prison Service systems for human resources, Finance and Procurement, in order to reduce the risk of fraud. Once these systems have been fully implemented, it is intended that the Fraud Investigation Unit will use appropriate software to interrogate corporate data systems. It has not yet happened.

Prisons

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are used to determine whether a prisoner should be categorised as category A. [81025]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prisoners are categorised according to the risk they present to the public, to the police or to the security of the state.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what processes are in place for the review of category A status for prisoners; and what records are kept of such reviews. [81036]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The security category of a prisoner is assessed, decided, and kept under review in the light of all available information. The processes in place for reviews of category A status for prisoners are set out in Prison Service Order 1010 which provides for annual reviews of categorisation for sentenced prisoners. Records are kept in the prisoners file at prisons and also at Prison Service headquarters.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions the judiciary has changed the status of a category A prisoner to facilitate the prisoner's attendance at trial in the last 10 years. [81125]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service has responsibility for categorisation of prisoners. The judiciary cannot change the status of a category A prisoner to facilitate their attendance at trial.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many inmates were being held in open conditions who had previously been Category A or Category B prisoners on 31 December of each of the last 10 years. [63082]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only by examination of individual records at a disproportionate cost.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely effect by 2010 on (a) the prison population and (b) prison costs of requiring all prisoners currently under sentence to serve their full sentences. [76608]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Projections of the prison population in 2010 if all prisoners were to serve to their sentence expiry date have not been produced. Prison population projections to 2011 have been produced for a range of scenarios and are published in Home Office Statistical Bulletin 10/05, a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of whether access to (a) naltraczone, (b) subutex and (c) methadone would increase the exchange of illegal drugs within the prison estate; and if he will make a statement. [78102]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prison Service Order 3550 requires that the administration and consumption of prescribed drugs used in maintenance and detoxification programmes is strictly monitored. In possession medication is not indicated for subutex and methadone. Naltrexone is an opiate antagonist which does not have the same potential for abuse as methadone and buprenorphine (subutex).

A comprehensive range of measures is in place to reduce the supply of drugs in prisons, including routes from prescribed medication.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are in place within the Prison Service to advise the (a) police and (b) probation service of unexpected changes in prisoners' release dates brought about by restoration of remission boards; and if he will make a statement. [78103]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Governors are required to notify the police and probation service of the release dates for offenders. In the specific case of high risk offenders coming under Multi Agency Public Protection Arrangements, Governors must ensure that all staff involved in sentence calculation, decisions to restore 'added days' and facilitating release arrangements for high risk prisoners are aware of the need to advise the police and probation service immediately of any unexpected changes to release dates or release arrangements. In all cases where a prisoner is released on licence, a copy of the licence is sent to the supervising probation service shortly before release, and is updated in the event of any change in release date.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the (a) availability and (b) use of (i) naltraczone, (ii) subutex and (iii) methadone in dealing with drug addiction within the prison estate. [78109]

Mr. Coaker: Naltrexone, subutex and methadone are used in the management of those who are addicted to opiates, and as such they can be used as treatment interventions in prison.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prison officers have been reinstated after dismissal in each prison in each of the last three years. [78133]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information is not available centrally on the number of prison officers who have been reinstated following dismissal in each of the last three years. This information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact on the overcrowding rate in female prison establishments of the re-roling of HM Prison (a) Bullwood Hall and (b) Brockhill; and if he will make a statement. [78144]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The impact of the allocation of women prisoners from Bullwood Hall and Brockhill in the women's estate has been assessed and no overcrowding is expected as a result of this change of function. There is still spare capacity within the women's estate.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what checks are carried out by the Prison Service into the nationality of prisoners entering prison establishments who claim to be British; and if he will make a statement. [78196]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prison Service Order 0500 requires prison reception staff to interview all incoming prisoners and note their stated nationality in the prisoner's core record. Any passport or other document providing evidence of the prisoner's nationality will be examined but prison staff do not have the means to carry out any specific checks to confirm the nationality of prisoners claiming to be British. Prisons will report the details of all prisoners who state that they are foreign nationals or dual nationals, all those whose nationality is initially unclear and all those who refuse to give their nationality to the Immigration Service who will then establish their immigration status.

As the Home Secretary outlined in his ministerial statement of 23 May, officials are now looking at the possibility of placing a legal obligation on those suspected, charged or convicted to declare their nationality.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times officials of his Department have met officials at HMP Peterborough since 1 January to discuss prisoner releases from HMP Peterborough; and if he will make a statement. [78919]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Office controller for HMP Peterborough is the key official who meets with the prison's director to discuss operational matters, including the release of prisoners. Formal meetings take place monthly and in addition there are informal weekly meetings. Since January 2006 the controller has discussed with the director cases involving the release of eight individual prisoners, including five meetings between April and June concerning the release of foreign national prisoners.

It is a requirement that release licences for prisoners are signed by the Home Office controller in his or her capacity as a Crown servant. As a consequence of this the contractor's custody management team is in regular contact with the controller's team, who make the necessary checks prior to release taking place.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many prisoners were detained at HMP Peterborough as at (a) 31 March 2005 and (b) 31 May 2006; and if he will make a statement; [79423]

(2) how many prisoners were transferred to HMP Peterborough in the six months to 31 May; from which institutions; how many new prisoners were admitted to HMP Peterborough in the same period; and if he will make a statement; [79424]

(3) how many (a) male and (b) female category A prisoners are held at HMP Peterborough; and if he will make a statement. [79467]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 22 June 2006]: There are no category A prisoners held at HMP Peterborough. From information held on the prison IT system, there were 18 prisoners held in HMP Peterborough on 31 March 2005 (the establishment opened in spring 2005) and 759 held on 30 April 2006, the most recent date for which information has been published; and between 1 October 2005 and 31 March 2006 there were 1,208 first receptions into HMP Peterborough.

Comprehensive information on transfers between prisons is not collected routinely and could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the re-offending rate is for prisoners who have absconded from HMP Sudbury in the last five years for which figures are available. [79994]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Information on re-offending is not held centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what role the (a) Prison Service and (b) police have regarding the capture of absconded prisoners; and what measures are in place to ensure there is liaison between them. [79995]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Prisons immediately inform the police in the event of an abscond and provide them with all relevant details of the prisoner. The police are responsible for recapturing prisoners unlawfully at large.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners have absconded from HMP Sudbury while on the resettlement programme. [79996]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Centrally held records do not separately identify whether absconders are part of the resettlement programme and this information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the value was of property stolen from the Prison Service in the year ending (a) 31 March 2005 and (b) 31 March 2006; and how many prosecutions arose therefrom. [80022]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: In the financial year ended 31 March 2005, there were 37 reported fraud and theft cases with a total value of 5,902. Of these, there were 10 cases with a value of £4,549 due to theft of property. In the financial year ended 31 March 2006, there were 30 cases of fraud and theft with a total value of £5,268. Of these, there were 15 cases with a total value of £3,157 due to theft of property. The Prison Service is aware of four cases with a total value of £8,169 that occurred in 2005-06 and are still under investigation and not yet recorded in the figures above.

The police are informed of most cases of theft of property but no records are kept centrally of the number of prosecutions resulting.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many conflicts of interest were registered in the local registers of conflicts of interest within the Prison Service at (a) each London prison establishment, (b) the London area office and (c) each Prison Service directorate for the year ending March 2006; and if he will make a statement. [80023]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: No central register of conflicts of interest is available from which readily to obtain the information requested. Each individual establishment or group should maintain its own register. Prison Service directorates are not required to compile a register. Given the time constraints and the disproportionate resource costs involved, it is not possible to provide the figures requested.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research (a) he has evaluated and (b) he plans to commission on the incidence of adult attention deficit hyperactivity in penal institutions. [80708]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No such research has yet been commissioned or evaluated.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what average monthly number of prisoners were accommodated at HMP Full Sutton in 2005-06; how many of those prisoners had been given a sentence of more than six months; and how many prisoners had been resident at HMP Full Sutton for more than six months. [80715]

Mr. Sutcliffe: According to the prison IT system, (i) the average number of prisoners held in Full Sutton between 1 April 2005 and 31 March 2006 was 588 (average of end-month figures) and (ii) the number serving sentences of more than six months at end April 2006 was 567. Information on the number held in Full Sutton for more than six months is not held centrally.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what support is available for those with severe personality disorders upon their release from (a) prisons and (b) HMP Lewes; and if he will make a statement. [81047]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 29 June 2006]: The Home Office and Department of Health have established the Dangerous and Severe Personality Disorder Programme. This has developed a range of pilot services in prisons, high and medium secure psychiatric services and residential and case management support in the community in four areas of England.

At present only the prison and high secure pilot services provide some national coverage for those who pose the most serious risk to the public. Access to local medium secure and community pilots is only available to local catchment populations in the pilot areas until evaluation is completed (in 2008) and future service roll out is agreed.

HMP Lewes has access to mainstream mental health services through an NHS mental health in-reach which can plan aftercare for prisoners released to the community. The development of new community personality disorder services form part of the local priority service development plans.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact on family contact for female prisoners from the West Midlands of the re-roling of HMP Brockhill as a male prison. [81201]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The average distance from home area for most women transferred from Brockhill will increase, while remaining within the average for all women prisoners. All women's prisons have arrangements designed to promote family contact.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prison cells and (b) prison wings deemed not fit for habitation by HM inspectorate of prisons have subsequently been kept open at any point in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [81206]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Recommendations by HM chief inspector of prisons to close or refurbish prison cells or wing in a prison are considered as part of the National Offender Management Service's building and refurbishment programme. Decisions on which of these are accepted are based on a number of factors, including priorities across the prison estate, funding and any impact in the operation of the prison.

The information requested can be supplied only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2006, Official Report, column 1212W, on Leyhill Open Prison, how many of the prisoners who escaped and were subsequently captured have been (a) charged and (b) convicted of escape from lawful custody; and what sentence was given in each such case where proceedings are complete. [81964]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not held centrally and may be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what religious teaching is available to prisoners; and if he will make a statement. [82362]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Chaplaincy programmes, which include religious teaching, are developed locally by prison establishments. All prisons have multi faith chaplaincy teams to enable prisoners to participate in religious activities and to encourage their spiritual and personal development whilst in custody and in preparation for release. Chaplaincy teams will run a range of classes and courses depending on the make-up and needs of the prison population. These will include religious education groups or classes, pertinent to all faiths, for those prisoners who wish to attend.

Rendition Flights

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether general aviation reports held by (a) local police special branch and (b) Home Office immigration authorities indicate that non-American nationals were on board registered aircraft (i) N8068V landing at RAF Northolt on (A) 15 May 2004 and (B) 17 May 2004, (ii) N129QS landing at Stansted on 23 February 2005, (iii) N970SJ landing at Luton on (A) 4 September 2003 and (B) 5 February 2004, (iv) N368CE landing at (A) Stansted on 6 May 2004 and (B) Luton on 17 June 2003 and (v) N2189M landing at Prestwick on (A) 18 January 2004 and (B) 25 May 2004; [62603]

(2) whether general aviation reports held by (a) local police special branch and (b) Home Office immigration authorities indicate that non-American nationals were on board registered aircraft N313P landing at (i) RAF Northolt on (A) 19 October 2003, (B) 22 October 2003, (C) 29 October 2003, (D) 1 December 2003, (E) 3 December 2003 and (ii) RAF Brize Norton on (A) 17 October 2003 and (B) 12 December 2003; [62604]

(3) whether general aviation reports held by (a) local police special branch and (b) Home Office immigration authorities indicate that non-American nationals were on board registered aircraft N379P landing at (i) RAF Northolt on (A) 18 October 2002, (B) 16 January 2003, (C) 24 February 2003, (D) 28 February 2003 and (ii) RAF Brize Norton on 20 November 2003; [62605]

(4) whether general aviation reports held by (a) local police special branch and (b) Home Office immigration authorities indicate that non-American nationals were on board registered aircraft N85VM landing at (i) Luton on (A) 26 December 2001 and (B) 12 November 2002, (ii) Edinburgh on 25 November 2002, (iii) Glasgow on 3 March 2003 and (iv) RAF Leuchars on (A) 14 October 2001, (B) 5 October 2002 and (C) 20 September 2003. [62606]

Mr. McNulty: Neither Special Branch nor the Immigration Service hold such information.

Resignation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria he used in deciding to offer his resignation to the Prime Minister. [68675]

John Reid: This is a matter for my right hon. Friend the former Home Secretary.

Security Industry

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licence applications for operatives working in the private security industry were submitted (a) before and (b) after 31 October 2005. [79306]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 21 June 2006]: The information is as follows.

(a) 69,553 applications were submitted from the beginning of licensing until 31 October 2005.

(b) 99,239 applications were submitted between 31 October 2005 and 21 June 2006.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he last met the Security Industry Authority; and what was discussed at the meeting. [62264]

Mr. Coaker: Ministers and officials meet the SIA regularly to discuss a range of issues. I became the Minister with responsibility for the SIA on 4 May, and visited the SIA offices on 1 June to meet staff.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to provide a substantive reply to Question 59554, on the Security Industry Authority, tabled by the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight on 14 March. [63190]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 2013W.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time for an application for registration as a door supervisor with the Security Industry Authority to be processed has been since establishment of the authority. [66519]

Mr. Coaker: The SIA do not calculate average processing times. Some, such as those including overseas criminal records checks, unavoidably take a considerable time. The SIA have a published target of processing 80 per cent. of all applications within six weeks, measured from the date that a properly completed application enters the processing system to the date that a licence is issued. From April 2004 until August 2005 the SIA processed 62 per cent. within six weeks and 88 per cent. within nine weeks. Since September 2005, there has been a backlog of applications that have been waiting to enter the system. These have added an additional time of between two and four weeks to the process, so it is now taking up to 10 weeks to process most applications.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long it has taken on average to process an application for a door supervisor's licence to the Security Industry Authority in the last 12 months. [81127]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) do not calculate the average processing times for applications. Some, such as those involving overseas criminal records checks, unavoidably take a considerable time. The SIA have a published target of processing 80 per cent. of all applications within six weeks, measured from the date that a properly completed application enters the processing system to the date that a licence is issued.

From April 2004 until August 2005 the SIA processed 62 per cent. within six weeks and 88 per cent. within nine weeks. Since September 2005, there has been a backlog of applications that have been waiting to enter the system. These have added an additional time of between two and four weeks to the process, so it is now taking up to 10 weeks to process most applications.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when the Security Industry Authority will reinstate the online application facility; and what alternative methods have been put in place for urgent applications; [81128]

(2) for what reasons the Security Industry Authority has suspended the facility for making online applications for door supervisors' licences. [81129]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) has a number of methods of ordering application forms. Application forms are available from the SIA call centre, the bulk applications department (which was set up in 2005 to enable companies to order volumes of application forms), and via the SIA website. Due to a high volume of requests, most of which were duplicate requests, the website ordering system was temporarily suspended for one month from 24 May to 27 June. The SIA deals with all licences with the same level of urgency. Currently, the SIA have no plans to implement an applicant fast-tracking system.

Sentencing Bodies (Appointments)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what process is used to appoint members to the (a) Sentencing Guidelines Council and (b) Sentencing Advisory Panel; how vacancies are advertised in each case; and what criteria are used to assess candidates. [80355]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Under section 167 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003, as amended by Schedule, Part 1, paragraph 357 of the Constitutional Reform Act 2005, the Lord Chief Justice appoints the seven judicial members of the Sentencing Guidelines Council. The four non-judicial members of the Council are appointed by the Home Secretary after consultation with the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Chief Justice. A person is eligible to be appointed as a judicial member if he is: a Lord Justice of Appeal; a judge of the High Court; a circuit judge; a district judge (magistrates courts); or a lay justice. The judicial members must include a circuit judge, a district judge and a lay judge. A non-judicial member is eligible if he has experience in one of more of the following areas: policing, criminal prosecution, criminal defence, and the promotion of the welfare of victims of crime.

The Lord Chief Justice nominated the President of the Queen's Bench Division, the Vice President of the Court of Appeal Criminal Division, the Chair of the Criminal Committee of the Judicial Studies Board, and the Senior District Judge (Chief Magistrate) to be members of the Council and these appointments were agreed. It was also agreed that the Director of Public Prosecutions would be the member with criminal prosecution experience. The two circuit judges, the lay magistrate and the other non-judicial members were appointed after open competition following advertisements in the national media, and through targeted advertisements in professional publications and websites, including those aimed at BME communities. All appointments were made in accordance with the rules of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments (OCPA) and an independent member sat on the interview panels.

Members of the Sentencing Advisory Panel are appointed by the Lord Chancellor following consultation with the Home Secretary and the Lord Chief Justice. Panel members are appointed following open competition and are drawn from a wide variety of backgrounds both from within and outside the criminal justice system. Panel members serve in a personal capacity, bringing the knowledge and experience they have gained in their professional and voluntary roles to bear on the issues under discussion. As with the appointed members of the Council, advertisements are widely placed and the recruitment process followed the OCPA procedures with an independent member sitting on the interview panels.

UK Presidency (EU)

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the priorities of his Department are for the UK Presidency of the EU. [26648]

Joan Ryan: Our JHA priorities for the UK's Presidency of the European Union were included in the White Paper on the Prospects for the European Union published on 30 June 2005. We also informed Parliament of our priorities during the course of the UK Presidency, in particular in relation to the JHA Councils on 13 July, 13-14 October and 1-2 December and the JHA Informal on 7-9 September.

UK Presidency (G8)

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the priorities of his Department are for the UK presidency of the G8. [26647]

Joan Ryan: Many of the priorities for the UK Presidency of the G8 related to the Secure and Facilitated Travel Initiative (SAFTI) a series of measures designed to improve travel security. By the end of our presidency, 20 SAFTI projects had been completed with four carrying into the Russian presidency. We also completed the International Child Sexual Exploitation Database Implementation Study, agreed a document setting out best practice in dealing with internet content, best practice for law enforcement and network providers on preventing and investigating various forms of electronic attack and organised a workshop in Nigeria dealing with the tracing and return of assets.

We also introduced a number of new initiatives, on the unlawful international supply of firearms for criminal use and in developing mechanisms to enable countries to share DNA data for intelligence purposes in the investigation of crime. At the ministerial meeting held in Sheffield in 2005 Ministers a greed to further work on biometrics, advanced passenger information, human trafficking, drug production in Afghanistan, internet crime and measures to tackle crime and corruption in Africa.

Violent Crime

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the recorded level of violent crime was in Yeovil constituency in (a) 1996 to 1997 and (b) 2004-05. [82135]

Mr. McNulty: Yeovil comes within the South Somerset Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) area. Partnerships were set up under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 and data are only available from 1999-2000. There were 3,058 violent crimes recorded by the police in the South Somerset CDRP in 2004-05.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were recorded in the Humberside Police Authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82465]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is given in the tables.

Since 1997, there have been two major changes to the way in which crime is recorded. The effect of the change in counting rules in 1998 was to artificially increase recorded violent crime nationally by more than 80 per cent. while it is estimated that the effect of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS) in April 2002 caused a further 20 per cent. increase in recorded violent crime in its first year.

Table 1: Offences of violent crime recorded in Humberside—1997

	Number of offences
1997	7,758

Table 2: Offences of violent crime recorded in Humberside—1998-99 to 2001-02

	Number of offences
1998-99	10,947
1999-2000	10,752
2000-01	10,966
2001-02	11,849

Notes:
1. The coverage was extended and counting rules revised from 1998-99. Figures from that date are not directly comparable with those for 1997.
2. The data in this table are prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard. These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.

Table 3: Offences of violent crime recorded in Humberside—2002-03 to 2004-05

	Number of offences
2002-03	19,360
2003-04	28,482
2004-05	26,855

Note:
The data in this table take account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Young Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to reverse the decline in family visits to inmates at young offender institutions. [81205]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prisoners and young offenders have a statutory entitlement to domestic or social visits. In addition, many establishments offer extended or family visits. The frequency of these additional visits remains a matter for each establishment, taking account of resources and regime. Statistics on the number of visitors are not routinely collated so there is no recent evidence as to the overall level of take up. However, in order to support and encourage more visitors, the Assisted Prisons Visits Scheme, which provides financial assistance for visitors on a low income, was extended in 2004. Good Practice Guidelines have also recently been issued to enable prisons and YOIs to examine and improve the effectiveness of their visits arrangements.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the ratio is of staff to individuals held in custody at (a) local authority secure units, (b) secure training centres and (c) young offenders' institutions. [79861]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Staff to trainee ratios are difficult to calculate, for a variety of reasons. For example, some staff spend almost all their time dealing with trainees; others, for example support staff, will have less frequent contact. The following figures are indicative:

Secure children's homes: the number of staff supervising trainees varies between one member of staff to two children and six staff to eight children.

Secure training centres: the number of staff supervising trainees ranges between two staff to five to seven trainees and three staff to eight trainees. Other staff at the centre include custody officers to supervise visits, admissions and movements in the centre.

Young offender institutions: no simple ratio is available. On each wing, there are between 40 and 60 trainees, under the supervision of between three and six staff. In addition, there are teachers, learning support assistants and support staff.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his latest estimate is of the cost per year per inmate at (a) local authority secure units, (b) secure training centres and (c) young offenders' institutions. [79862]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Youth Justice Board for England and Wales commissions and purchases places in the secure estate for children and young people. It estimates the annual cost per place in 2005-06 as follows:

Secure training centre	[1]171,500
Young offender institution	50,500
Secure children's home	194,800

TRANSPORT

Airport Security

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the British Airports Authority on (a) security measures for and (b) congestion of the baggage handling facilities for domestic inbound travellers arriving at the south terminal in Gatwick. [76137]

Gillian Merron: The Secretary of State has not had any recent discussions with BAA on the specific issues raised, although officials in the Department work closely with BAA on a range of issues, including security measures.

China

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the risk of the transfer to China of information which could be used for military purposes through China's involvement in the Galileo project. [81044]

Dr. Ladyman [holding answer 29 June 2006]: The current development phase is a joint project between the Directorate General for Transport and Energy in the European Commission and the European Space Agency (ESA). The Supervisory Board of the Galileo Joint Undertaking is established to ensure an adequate information flow and political control by member states of the implementation of the development phase.

The Government are aware of the sensitive nature of some parts of Galileo. We continue to monitor the project closely. We have been careful to ensure that any agreements with partners in the programme that are not member states of the EU or ESA specifically exclude them from participation in all sensitive aspects.

Individual member states of the ESA and EU participating in Galileo are responsible, under their own national and/or any international export control regimes—such as MCTR (Missile Technology Control Regime) and Wassenaar—of which they are signatories, for the control of strategic exports and should apply these rules to Galileo as required. For example, all EU countries follow the EU Code of Conduct on Arms Exports which prohibits export of military technology, including dual use technologies where a military end use is known or suspected, to non-EU states, including China, where this is inappropriate. An assessment of the risk of diversion to an undesirable end user or end use is a key criterion under the code. The UK Government assess Galileo technology proposed for transfer to non-EU states against these criteria.

Commission for Integrated Transport

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much it has cost to run the Commission for Integrated Transport in each of the last four years. [82215]

Gillian Merron: The principal spend of the Commission for Integrated Transport (CfIT) is on the research programme which underpins its policy advice. The costs of this for the last four years are set out in the following table, together with the Commission's other running costs. Both figures also cover the research and running costs of the Motorists Forum, established by CfIT in January 2000, at Ministers' request.

	Programme costs	Running costs (pay and non-pay)
2002-03	1,378,818	328,950
2003-04	604,124	310,211
2004-05	421,971	279,315
2005-06	492,869	250,970

Cyclist Numbers

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of people who travel by bicycle to work in London each day. [79397]

Derek Twigg: Transport for London (TfL) estimate that 216,000 work-related cycling trips are made each day. However, TfL is in the process of developing a project to track businesses with travel plans called iTRACE, which in future will provide much more accurate information on the issue of cycling to work. This is expected to be operational by 2008.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in the (a) Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [81246]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Leader of the House on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the draft Bills produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were examined or are planned to be examined by (a) a departmental Select Committee or a combination of Select Committees and (b) a Joint Committee of both Houses of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [81640]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport has not produced any draft Bills since October 2005.

Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in his Department are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81392]

Gillian Merron: All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases Certified Emissions Reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

Judicial Review

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80490]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

M11

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he has taken to examine the merits of introducing a toll on the M11. [82319]

Dr. Ladyman: The use of a tolled lane on the M11 was considered and discussed with BAA Plc as part of the modelling of surface access infrastructure supporting Stansted's second runway. This idea was dismissed at an early stage. No further discussions on this issue have taken place.

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81566]

Gillian Merron: Lucy Chadwick, Director of Regional and Local Transport Delivery Directorate, leads on Olympic-related issues within the Department for Transport and sits on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group.

Ports

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much it cost to conduct the review of the management of ports in local authority ownership in England and Wales. [82216]

Dr. Ladyman: This review was carried out over two years using in-house resources. Exact figures are unavailable, however it is estimated to have cost in the region of £70,000. This includes publication costs. The manpower element of this, £56,332, covers all municipal ports issues not just the review.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been budgeted for the cost of the ports policy review. [82217]

Dr. Ladyman: The total expenditure to date on the ports policy review has been £200,000 on two consultants' studies contributing to the evidence base; £203,000 internal staff costs and £19,000 launch costs. A further £150,000 has been budgeted for in-house costs for the completion of the exercise, with £90,000 provision for external costs.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many checks at ports on commercial vehicles were carried out by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in each region of the UK in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06; how many infringements were found; how many vehicles were prohibited for overloading; and what other infringements were recorded. [82034]

Dr. Ladyman: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) is not able to supply detailed statistics on the exact number of checks carried out in or around individual ports. The majority of enforcement is carried out by intercepting traffic on arterial roads leading to or from a port.

Details of the number of vehicle checks carried out in 2004-05 and the number of vehicles prohibited is published in VOSA's Effectiveness Report which is available in the Libraries of the House. The 2005-06 report is to be published shortly.

Post Office Contracts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for which services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81536]

Gillian Merron: Vehicle re-licensing (car tax renewal) and a statutory off-road notification (SORN) service is provided over the counter in approximately 4,600 motor vehicle licensing (MVL) branches. Postal applications are handled in 120 of these offices.

A photo card driving licence premium service, checking application forms and supporting identity documents, is provided in approximately 740 branches.

A range of vehicle and driving licence forms, leaflets and booklets are held in all 14,000 branches.

Over the last five years Post Office Ltd./DVLA has introduced a new electronic system for both vehicle re-licensing and making a statutory off-road notification (SORN) at MVL Post Office® branches through reading barcodes on application forms/registration certificates.

Since August 2004, when re-licensing their vehicle or making a statutory off-road notification (SORN), customers have been able to notify a change of tax class into the disabled tax class at MVL Post Office® branches.

The vehicles' re-licensing contract started in April 2002 and terminates on 31 March 2007.

The premium service contract started in November 2002 and terminates on 31 March 2007.

Negotiations are under way with Post Office Ltd. to continue both services from April 2007 onwards.

Railways

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of rail and underground journeys are made within London. [82090]

Derek Twigg: Statistics on rail travel in and between regions are published in National Rail Trends Yearbook editions, which are available in the House Library.

Data from the London Underground Rolling Origin-Destination Survey show that 99.2 per cent. of London underground journeys are made within London.

Information on other city underground systems are published in the Public Transport Statistics Bulletin, which is available in the House Library.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many new railway stations have been built in London and the South East since 1995. [82086]

Derek Twigg: The answer includes stations that have been re-opened with new buildings.

Silverlink Trains network: Shepherds Bush and Imperial Wharf are under construction.

West Brompton had two new platforms opened in 1999.

C2C network: Chafford Hundred (1995) and West Ham (1999)

One network, Braintree Freeport (1999)

South West Trains network: Chandlers Ford (2003)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he expects all trains to be accessible to disabled people by 2020. [82209]

Derek Twigg: The Disability Discrimination Act 2005 requires that all trains are subject to rail vehicle accessibility regulations by no later than 1 January 2020. We are currently developing the necessary regulations and will be consulting on these in due course.

The Secretary of State will, nevertheless, still have the power to grant exemptions from the regulations, even if these run past the "end date". Parliament accepted the necessity of this during the passage of the Bill for services such as heritage and tourist railways and tramways, which might not be able to meet accessibility requirements in full due to engineering and other constraints.

Road Pricing

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures will be put in place under the proposed road pricing pilot to differentiate between those participating and not participating in the pilot for the purpose of measures taken to compensate those subject to road pricing. [82436]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 25 May 2006, Official Report, column 1954W.

Sustainable Transport Towns

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to his Department's press release of 22 December 2004, which of the shortlisted towns won the competition to be sustainable transport towns. [82207]

Gillian Merron: Details of the Sustainable Travel Towns Initiative, including the three successful towns, can be found on the Department's website at www.dft.gov.uk.

Thames Gateway

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what infrastructure spending he is planning to support the development of the Thames Gateway. [82320]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of Tuesday 4 July 2006, Official Report, column 929W to the hon. Member for North Cornwall.

Transport Links (Yorkshire)

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to improve (a) road and (b) rail transportation links between the major towns and cities of Yorkshire. [77674]

Gillian Merron: The Department has made substantial investment in road transport related schemes in Yorkshire during the first local transport plan period (2001-06) and will sustain this investment throughout the second period, which runs until 2011. This includes significant investment by the Highways Agency on the motorway and trunk road network in the Yorkshire and Humber region over the last five years. This high level of investment is set to continue with, for example, the innovative £1.29 billion programme announced last year to reduce congestion on strategic routes in South and West Yorkshire.

To enable better forward planning, the Government in July last year announced three year regional funding allocations to 2007-08 and planning assumptions for 2008-09 to 2015-16, amounting to over £1 billion for the Yorkshire and Humber region. These cover major (greater than £5 million) local transport plan schemes and major Highways Agency schemes other than on those on roads of the greatest strategic national and international importance.

On rail investment, new services have been introduced between Sheffield and Leeds, and new rolling stock provided to increase capacity on routes to Leeds and Bradford. In addition, the Secretary of State, through the rail re-franchising programme, has sought and will continue to seek improvements to rail links between the towns and cities of Yorkshire.

WALES

Severn Estuary Barrage

9. Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues on a reappraisal of the proposal for a barrage in the Severn estuary. [81356]

Mr. Hain: Regular ones. Tidal energy, such as the Severn Barrage proposal, has huge potential to supply a significant proportion of the country's future energy needs and in turn make a significant contribution to our emissions reduction targets.

Antisocial Behaviour

12. Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the implementation in Wales of measures introduced to tackle antisocial behaviour. [81360]

Nick Ainger: Through measures such as those included in the Respect Action Plan, we are building on the progress we have already made against antisocial behaviour and are now, working to tackle its root causes.

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what average hourly rate was paid by his Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81488]

Mr. Hain: The average hourly rates paid to employment agencies by the Wales Office in 2005-06 are as follows:

	£ Per hour
Adecco	14.19
Kelly	11.28
Acorn	9.76

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 67W, on correspondence, what estimate he has made of the cost of answering the question; and if he will make a statement. [82631]

Mr. Hain: We do not record the staff time taken in replying to letters. To answer the earlier question, we would have needed to monitor staff time taken for a big enough sample of letters from hon. Members and members of the public over a long enough period to give reasonably representative results. We estimated that the total cost of the exercise would exceed three days' work and cost more than £600.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in his Department are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81398]

Mr. Hain: All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases Certified Emissions Reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

Draft Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what his practice is regarding meeting, discussions with and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81653]

Mr. Hain: The Department always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process; both informal and formal. The Wales Office was an early adopter of pre-legislative scrutiny and the national health service (Wales) Bill was scrutinised during the 2001-02 session. Since then, a further three Bills introduced by my Department were published in draft for consultation: the Public Audit (Wales) Bill; the Transport (Wales) Bill; and, the Commissioner for Older People (Wales) Bill. A public consultation has always been conducted in parallel with the pre-legislative scrutiny process. My Department has also introduced two further Bills. My Department had conducted a public consultation jointly with the Welsh Assembly on the principles underlying the Public Services Ombudsman (Wales) Bill, and as there was general support for the proposals, further scrutiny was not considered necessary, and would only have further delayed the legislation. The Government of Wales Bill, which is currently before the House, was introduced without pre-legislative scrutiny, because the proposals need to be implemented for the May 2007 Assembly elections. Extensive consultation was however undertaken on the White Paper, which was published well in advance of this Bill being introduced. All the Department's formal consultations also abide by the Code of Conduct on Consultation.

Energy Review

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what impact he expects the outcome of the energy review will have in Wales. [81839]

Mr. Hain: The energy review will provide a framework for the energy policies of HMG and the Assembly Government to meet the four goals set out by the 2003

Energy White Paper: To put ourselves on a path to cut the UK's CO_2 emissions by some 60 per cent. by about 2050, with real progress by 2020; to maintain the reliability of energy supplies; to promote competitive markets in the UK and beyond, helping to raise the rate of sustainable economic growth and to improve our productivity; and to ensure that every home is adequately and affordably heated.

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81568]

Mr. Hain: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Responsibility for Olympics-related activity in the Wales Office rests within the local government, culture and sport team.

(b) The majority of functions concerned with the Olympic and Paralympic Games are devolved to the National Assembly for Wales. The Assembly Government therefore represents Wales on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group. I do, however discuss Olympic issues with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture Media and Sport on a regular basis, and the Wales Office is represented on the Wales Olympic Steering Group, established by the Assembly Government.

Police Force Restructuring

Mr. David Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent meetings he has had to discuss police force restructuring in Wales. [81358]

Mr. Hain: I have had, and will continue to hold, regular meetings with ministerial colleagues and key stakeholders on this important issue.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81916]

Hilary Benn: DFID does not hold a separate advertising budget. The majority of advertising spend relates to recruitment advertising in newspapers and journals. For the last two calendar years the costs have been as follows:

2005	307,359

Since July 2004, DFID has run the following promotional campaigns:

Trade Matters Campaign

To raise awareness of the role of trade in fighting world poverty and promote availability of a new free publication—Trade Matters. Promotional inserts were placed in the following publications:

Draft Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81324]

Hilary Benn: DFID does not regularly draw up legislation, and has not done so since the International Development Act (2002), the main legislation governing its activities. If it were to be involved in future legislation, it would consult widely, both formally—in line with the Code of Conduct on Consultation—and informally.

EU Water Projects

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the relationship between the EU Water Initiative and the EU Water Fund. [81996]

Hilary Benn: The EU Water Initiative (EUWI) is primarily a political rather than a financial initiative with five objectives, as follows:

Reinforce political commitment to action;

Make water governance effective;

Improve water management through multi-stakeholder dialogue and co-ordination;

Support regional co-operation, and Identify additional financial resources and mechanisms.

The EU Water Fund, formally known as the EU water facility (EUWF), was established, in part, as a response to the fifth objective of the EUWI; namely to identify additional financial resources and mechanisms, but there is no formal link between the two. In contrast to the EUWI, the EUWF is a funding mechanism. The Water Facility has made €500 million available for water and sanitation and aims to leverage additional funds from other sources.

Progress to date has been slow, mainly because of lengthy procurement procedures, but approximately €230 million is currently being committed to co-fund 97 projects, valued overall at €412 million. An initial analysis of these selected proposals by the EUWF has found that by 2010 approximately 10 million people will benefit from access to drinking water and approximately 5 million people will benefit from access to basic sanitation. A second call for proposals has been launched this year and the full €500 million of the water facility will be committed by 2007.

Global Fund to Fight HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the shortfall in funding for the Global Fund to Fight HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria on the ability of the fund to achieve its objectives. [82023]

Hilary Benn: The UK strongly supports the Global Fund and wants it to be effective in the fight against AIDS, TB and malaria. The Global Fund recently revised its resource needs to an estimated US$5.5 billion for 2006 and 2007. There is a current funding gap of US$2.1 billion for 2006 and 2007. Of this, US$1 billion is needed this year to fund a new round of grants which was launched by the board in April. The Mid-Term Review of the Global Fund (4-5 July 2006) will review the fund's performance and mobilise extra resources for 2006-07 to fill the funding gap. The UK has committed £359 million to the Global Fund (2002-08). We have doubled our pledge for 2006 and 2007 to £100 million in each of those years. This means that our overall share of support for the Global Fund at around 5 per cent. is consistent with our support over the 2001-05 period. The UK is meeting its fair share—other donors need to do the same.

The Global Fund is only one part of our contribution to tackling AIDS, TB and malaria. The UK is committed to spend at least £1.5 billion on the global AIDS response over three years (2006-08), including our support to the Global Fund. We also provide support to the Roll Back Malaria (£7 million pledged to 2008) and Stop TB initiatives (over £49 million pledged from 1999 to 2007), as well as direct support to countries to help tackle diseases of poverty.

The UK will continue to encourage other donors including the private sector to support the Global Fund. The Prime Minister has also recently made clear that we are committed to working with developing countries, NGOs and other partners to encourage the development of long-term—10 year—health plans and to help ensure that predictable support is available from donors to support them. This will be key in helping countries strengthen their health systems and to be able to more effectively combat AIDS, TB and malaria.

Health Projects

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department has committed for long-term health sector projects in developing countries for (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09. [81829]

Hilary Benn [holding answer 3 July 2006]: DFID does not track long-term health sector spending because we provide pooled financial support for basic health services. But, as the Prime Minister recently made clear, we are committed to making good on our G8 promises, and a key part of this is to support developing countries with long-term, sustainable financing for health. We are currently working with developing countries, NGOs and other partners to encourage development of long-term—10 year—health plans and to ensure that predictable support is available from donors for them. This long-term support will provide poor countries with the security to make long-term investments and meet the costs of salaries, drugs, infrastructure and training. We have also increased our funding to multilateral organisations supporting countries to strengthen their health services, including to the Global Fund and Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunisation (GAVI). We are spearheading innovative efforts to secure significant additional resources for essential health care through the International Finance Facility for Immunisation, with the first bond issue due in the coming months.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact on the work of humanitarian agencies of Israel's targeting of civilian infrastructure in the Gaza Strip in the military incursions commenced by Israel on 27 June. [82161]

Hilary Benn: DFID is in close contact with the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (UNOCHA) which is monitoring the humanitarian situation in Gaza. All crossing points into Gaza have been closed for goods since 25 June, with the exception of Karni which was open for one day on 2 July. This enabled some humanitarian supplies to enter Gaza. Karni was closed again on 3 July.

Only diplomats are freely able to enter Gaza. All international staff of humanitarian organisations not holding diplomatic passports, such as those working for non-governmental organisations, require prior co-ordination with the Israeli authorities. No Palestinian staff of humanitarian organisations are able to enter Gaza.

DFID is helping UNOCHA by providing a movement and access specialist to help the UN coordinate with the Israeli authorities. Current information on humanitarian access to the West Bank and Gaza is available at http://www.humanitarianinfo.org/opt/.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact on (a) Palestinian health facilities, (b) the Palestinian economy and (c) Palestinian water supply and sewage disposal of Israel's targeting of civilian infrastructure in the Gaza Strip in the military incursions commenced by Israel on 27 June. [82164]

Hilary Benn: The main impact of recent military action has been to the loss of electrical power following damage to Gaza's only power plant. The closure of the Nahal Oz oil pipeline from 26 June to 2 July and greater difficulty in movement due to the destruction of three bridges providing north-south access have also had an effect. Hospitals in Gaza are maintaining services by using back-up generators, although there are reports that supplies of some essential drugs and supplies are nearly finished. It is difficult for anyone from the south to access to the main referral hospital in Gaza city in the north.

The Gaza economy has been severely constrained since March, when Hamas assumed power. Since then, the access point for exports from Gaza has been closed, trade with Israel has all but stopped and a very limited number of public sector salaries have been paid. Most of the water supply to Gaza is pumped from wells. Supplies are being continued by connecting pumps to generators, but there is concern that fuel for these generators is dependent on the Nahal Oz pipeline remaining open.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact on Palestinian schools of Israel's targeting of civilian infrastructure in the Gaza Strip in the military incursions commenced by Israel on 27 June 2006. [82165]

Hilary Benn: Palestinian schools are currently on summer break and are scheduled to resume in September. There are as yet no reports that Israeli military activity has caused any damage to education institutions.

Opium Poppy Cultivation

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment has been made of the methods used to reduce illicit opium poppy cultivation in (a) Laos, (b) Thailand and (c) Vietnam. [81734]

Hilary Benn: The UK Government do not maintain any bilateral programme to reduce illicit opium poppy cultivation in Laos, Thailand or Vietnam and have not made any assessment of the effectiveness of programmes undertaken by others in those countries.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Child Care

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what facilities are made available to Members of House staff to assist with child care costs and arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [81504]

Nick Harvey: The House provides child care vouchers to the value of £8 per child per day. The Commission favours the child care voucher scheme because of its flexibility and availability to staff wherever they are based. Vouchers are available for children up to and including age 11. The vouchers can be used to pay registered child minders, nurseries, playgroups, crèches, nannies, holiday play schemes for school age children, and close relatives who care for children, thus allowing staff a range of choices when making their child care arrangements. Information can be found on the parliamentary intranet. The scheme is currently under review to ensure the House continues to offer the most appropriate arrangements for the majority of staff.

Delegations

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how many officials of the House accompanied delegations of hon. Members overseas in the last 12 months. [81509]

Nick Harvey: The Overseas Office (European Section) in the Clerk's Department comprises five staff, two or three of whom accompany the UK delegations of hon. Members and Peers to each plenary session of the inter-parliamentary assemblies of the Council of Europe, NATO, OSCE and the Western European Union. One or two European Section staff accompany hon. Members and Peers to some of the assemblies' committee meetings.

Over the period from 1 June 2005 to 31 May 2006, eight different House staff were involved in undertaking these duties.

Details of the numbers of staff accompanying Select Committees on visits abroad are given in the annual sessional return published by TSO which is available online, in the Vote Office and in the Library.

The British Group of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, the UK Branch of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, the British-American Parliamentary Group and the British-Irish Inter-Parliamentary Body are funded directly by the Government; the staff who accompany delegations of hon. Members and Peers belonging to those organisations are not employed by the House of Commons Commission.

Senior Staff

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what percentage of the House's senior staff are women; and if he will make a statement. [81507]

Nick Harvey: As at 28 June 2006, 28.9 per cent. of staff in the Senior Commons Structure pay bands were women. This compares with some 48 per cent. for the House service overall. The proportion of women at senior levels is expected to continue to grow in the coming years.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what steps the Commission is taking to improve the representation of ethnic minority communities in the House's senior staff; and if he will make a statement. [81508]

Nick Harvey: The House's diversity forum action plan, available on the parliamentary intranet, has a wide range of actions aimed at all aspects of the diversity agenda. Representation of under-represented groups has improved in recent years as a result of measures to remove potential bias from recruitment and internal career progression arrangements, but the effects will inevitably take some time to feed through fully to senior levels.

September Sittings

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what the cost was of the sittings of Parliament in September (a) 2003 and (b) 2004; how many contracts were changed due to the decision to sit in September in each year; and what resulting additional cost was imposed on the House in (i) wages and (ii) salaries. [82028]

Nick Harvey: The overall daily resource cost of running the House administration in 2003-04 and 2004-05 was £487,000 and £520,000 respectively. The difference in cost between sitting and non-sitting days is small, as the major costs of accommodation and staffing are not appreciably affected. Major works and other contracts were negotiated on the basis of the revised sitting arrangements in both September 2003 and 2004. It is therefore impossible to determine with any accuracy what the actual costs of alternative contracts might have been, but it is estimated that around £90,000 of additional works expenditure was incurred directly by the House sitting in each September period.

Staff Travel Allowances

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what allowances are made available to senior House staff to assist with travel costs in the event of a late sitting. [81506]

Nick Harvey: Senior House staff (in common with all staff) on official duty are entitled to use the late night transport service in the event of a late night sitting. A late night transport service is provided for staff on official duty if:

the House rises between 11 pm (or if the motion for the Adjournment is moved at or after 10.30 pm) and 9 am the next morning; or a Committee rises between 11 pm and 9 am the next morning.

If there is a major disruption to public transport, the late night transport service is provided from 10 pm irrespective of what time the House rises. The House meets the cost of journeys of 25 miles or less. Staff wishing to travel outside this radius are advised (at the time of booking) to enter into a private arrangement with the driver and pay him/her the additional cost of the journey. Where practicable, taxis are shared between a number of staff.

Staffing Levels

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, when staffing levels in the House were last reviewed; and if he will make a statement. [81505]

Nick Harvey: The last significant review of staff numbers was a review of the needs of the Committee Office in 2003, conducted jointly by the House's Internal Review Service (IRS) and the National Audit Office. More generally, staffing levels are controlled by a budgetary mechanism rather than by limits on staff numbers. The IRS has recently completed the first stage of a review of staff grading. Subject to the views of the Administration Estimate Audit Committee, the second phase will be conducted later in the year.

Tours

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, column 1250W, on tours, why it is not the Commission's practice to make available details of the use made by individual hon. Members of the organisation of tours of the House; and if he will make a statement. [81629]

Nick Harvey: Details of the use made by individual hon. Members of House facilities and services are regarded as personal data, and not appropriate for publication.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Authority Constitutions

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities are required to submit revised constitutions to the Department for evaluation. [81726]

Mr. Woolas: There is no requirement for local authorities to submit revised constitutions to the Department for evaluation.

Local authorities are required to submit proposals to the Department for Communities and Local Government in respect of a change from one constitutional model to another. There is no such requirement in respect of revisions to the same constitution. Local authorities will keep their constitutions under review and make amendments as necessary, and it is for the local authorities themselves to ensure that their constitutional arrangements are appropriate and compliant with legislation. The Department has no statutory role in evaluating local authority constitutions.

Outsourcing

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on local authorities outsourcing administrative functions overseas. [81414]

Mr. Woolas: Local authorities are responsible for taking their own procurement decisions subject to the requirements of best value legislation and to the EU/UK regulatory framework. This includes any decision to outsource administrative functions overseas. Any specific complaint that best value is not being met in a particular set of circumstances would need to be addressed in the first instance to an authority's external auditor.

Oversight and Scrutiny Committees

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities do not offer the chairmanship of any oversight and scrutiny committees to opposition parties in the council. [81575]

Mr. Woolas: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not hold the information requested.

Parliamentary Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to make copies of deposited papers available in (a) the Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [82354]

Angela E. Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House.

Renewable Energy

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities use renewable energy for some or all of their (a) power and (b) energy requirements. [80268]

Mr. Woolas: This information is not held centrally although we understand that a number of local authorities have installed micro-renewables to supply energy for their own use and also pursue initiatives to purchase renewable electricity and fuel.

As the 2006 Climate Change Programme made clear, local authorities have a key role in achieving the UK's goals on climate change and sustainable energy. Government strongly support innovative local action in this area.

Social Exclusion

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what responsibilities her Department has for tackling social exclusion. [78361]

Mr. Woolas: The Department for Communities and Local Government leads on policy and delivery in addressing social exclusion and deprivation in deprived areas. The Department has responsibility for the Neighbourhood Renewal Fund which aims to narrow the gap between the 86 most deprived local authority areas and others. It has five key 'floor targets', which are: education, employment, crime, health and housing and physical environment.

The new Social Exclusion Taskforce, based in the Cabinet office and formed from some previous Social Exclusion Unit staff, is currently undertaking work on an action plan looking at key priorities for the Prime Minister such as looked-after children, mental health, teenage pregnancy and tomorrow's problem families.

The Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster chairs the new Social Exclusion Cabinet Committee on which the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government sits as a key member, reflecting the strong synergies between the work of the Cabinet Office and that of the DCLG.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Correspondence

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has power to insist that the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis answer the letter dated 15 August 2005 and reminder letters dated 10 October 2005, 13 December 2005 and 28 April 2006 from the right hon. Member for North East Hampshire concerning his constituent, Mr Jasdeep Bajwa. [82092]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 July 2006]: This is an operational matter for the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police.

Crime Reporting

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether arrangements are in place (a) in Redbridge, (b) in Waltham Forest and (c) in England and Wales for the public to report a crime to the police online; and if he will make a statement. [78554]

Mr. McNulty: The national police portal (www.police.uk) provides the facility for members of the public to report 'non-emergency' crime and hate crime/incidents online. Event specific forms are available that seek information from the public. The information is then sent to the force in whose area the alleged crime is committed.

Guantanamo Bay

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedure is in place to allow hon. Members confidential access to each level of classified material on prisoners in Guantanamo Bay; and in what circumstances access would be denied. [80054]

Mr. McNulty: Hon. Members can either write to the relevant Minister to request material, or make a request to the relevant public body under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. The Foreign Secretary leads on most matters concerning prisoners in Guantanamo Bay.

Access to classified material may be refused in the interests of safeguarding national security

Labour Party Conference

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information detailing the offences the 53 life sentenced prisoners were convicted of, as recorded in paper files for the individuals concerned, is set out as follows:

The vast majority of the cases are automatic life sentences under the previous sentencing regime set out in the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997. This system meant that repeat offenders convicted of a second serious violent or sexual offence, were automatically sentenced to life imprisonment by the trial judge unless there were exceptional circumstances.

This framework has since been replaced with Indeterminate Public Protection sentences provided for in the Criminal Justice Act 2003 for offenders assessed as dangerous. These new sentences apply to a wider range of offences than those set out in the 1997 Act, and can be imposed for a first offence.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his Answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) of 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 810W, for what crimes the 23 former prisoners whose life licences have been revoked were convicted; when the Probation Service lost contact with them; and if he will make a statement. [79536]

John Reid: Of the 23 life licensees referred to in the previous answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), 21 had been convicted of murder, one of manslaughter and one of robbery and possession of a firearm. Four of the 23 offenders unlawfully at large at the beginning of June when the information was collated are now back in custody. Probation Service

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) murders, (b) violent offences, (c) sexual offences and (d) other serious offences have been committed by offenders under the supervision of the Probation Service in each of the last eight years. [77129]

John Reid: This information for the years 1998 to (March) 2005 is published in annual Home Office Statistics. This can be found in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 17/05, Home Office Statistical Bulletin 15/04 and Probation Statistics England and Wales 1999.

School Safety

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures are being taken to ensure that (a) knives and (b) guns are not taken into schools. [82267]

Mr. McNulty: Measures on ensuring school security are a matter for the Secretary of State for Education and Skills. We work closely with the Department on a range of issues, including current legislative proposals contained in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill on powers for head teachers to search pupils for weapons.

Tasers

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the relevance for practice in the UK of the review of the use of tasers being carried out by the US Department of Justice. [82267]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 July 2006]: This review is a long-term study by the National Institute of Justice that will be conducted in stages. The Home Office Scientific Development Branch (HOSDB) are in regular communication with them via the Memorandum of Understanding between the two organisations. No major issues have been identified by the study to date. Tasers in the UK are only made available to authorised firearms officers as a less lethal alternative for use in situations where a firearms authority has been granted in accordance with criteria laid down in the ACPO Manual of Guidance on Police Use of Firearms.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what average hourly rate was paid by her Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81500]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has used two employment agencies to provide temporary staff during 2005-06. The average hourly rate for staff provided by Josephine Sammons was £14.50 and the average hourly rate for Adecco was £13.96.

Dance Facilities

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what central funding is available for dance facilities in local communities. [82414]

Mr. Lammy: Central Government does not provide direct funding for local community dance facilities. However, funding can be made available through local government programmes and through Arts Council England revenue funding for arts organisations. Funding for dance for 2006-07 is £34 million rising to £35 million for 2007-08.

Since 1994 the Arts Council has also invested £126.4 million into establishing a national infrastructure of dedicated dance venues across the country, including Yorkshire Dance in Leeds, the Laban Centre in London and Dance City in Newcastle.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in her Department are carbon neutral; and if she will make a statement. [81405]

Mr. Lammy: All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. DCMS's aviation emissions will be calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset.

Draft Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations, when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [81274]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process, both informal and formal. The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultation which abides by the Code of Conduct on Consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the DCMS then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Gambling

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with (a) her European Union counterparts and (b) Governments outside the EU on the regulation of internet gambling. [82689]

Mr. Caborn: I outlined the Government's internal approach to regulating remote gambling when I met Jean-Francois Lamour, French Minister for Youth, Sport and Community Life recently in Paris.

The Secretary of State will shortly be writing to her counterparts inside and outside the European Union inviting them to participate in an international summit with a view to developing some international minimum standards for remote gambling regulation.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had with credit card providers on the use of credit cards for internet gambling. [82690]

Mr. Caborn: Ministers and officials have met several times with international financial institutions, including credit card providers, to discuss issues relating to internet gambling. We will build on, and develop, these relationships to inform our international summit on remote gambling to explore the development of some minimum international standards for remote gambling regulation.

We are also supportive of the efforts that the remote gambling industry is making to engage the banking sector.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many cases involving misuse of credit cards for gambling over the internet have been reported in each of the last three years. [82700]

Mr. Caborn: The Government do not hold this information centrally.

Judicial Review

Mr. Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of her Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80468]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Library Facilities

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support her Department makes available for library facilities for older people. [82262]

Mr. Lammy: Responsibility for the provision of day to day library services lies with the 149 library authorities in England. Emphasis may differ slightly from authority to authority but older people benefit from library services which are available to all library users. Services include silver surfer sessions, help with charges such as reservations and fines, services to the housebound and homes for the elderly and provision of materials in accessible formats.

People's Network services funded through Framework for the Future strategy programme are of particular benefit including (i) 'Enquire' service, giving round the clock real-time access to advice from librarians and (ii) 'Read' service, an on-line tool for finding interesting books for individual readers. Both these services particularly benefit people who find difficulty in visiting their library.

National Lottery

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the next lottery licence competition. [82260]

Mr. Caborn: The National Lottery Commission (NLC) began preparations for the third national lottery operating licence competition in June 2004 with an extensive period of consultation and analysis. The NLC published its statement of main principles in November 2005 before publishing a draft invitation to apply in April 2006 and the final invitation to apply on 29 June. The NLC has asked for bids to be submitted by 15 December 2006 and aims to announce the preferred bidder in mid-May 2007 and finalise the draft third licence with the next operator by July 2007, giving ample time for transition before that licence commences on 1 February 2009. I am confident that the NLC has done everything possible to provide a fair, open and transparent process to deliver a vigorous, well-run competition.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on progress on the work of the Big Lottery Fund. [82261]

Mr. Coburn: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for East Lothian (Anne Moffat) on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 128W.

Post Office

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport for which services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81544]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) has no contracts with the Post Office.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has over 60 sponsored bodies/Executive agencies and the figures for them could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the Post Office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79202]

Mr. Lammy: DCMS does not have any of its services provided through the Post Office network.

The British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) is the only DCMS sponsored body that has used the services of the Post Office network in the last five years. It provides services for BBC TV Licensing including budget card payments and refunds from all of its available branches. However, I am unable to provide the total number of transactions because the information relating to television licence fees is not collected centrally by post offices.

Tennis

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which organisations are being supported with public funding to encourage aspiring tennis players to stay in the sport. [82265]

Mr. Coburn: Significant levels of funding are being provided to the Lawn Tennis Association (LTA) to support grass roots tennis, increase participation and support talented young athletes. Sport England is providing £8 million in Exchequer funding over the period 2005-09 to support the strategic priorities contained in the LTA's Whole Sport plan. These priorities are to attract and retain juniors in the sport; to increase standards and develop better players through a strong network of tennis providers and to develop talented players and coaches to achieve sustained international success.

Over the same period the LTA has also been provided with £9.4 million in lottery funding through the Community Club Development programme to assist them to develop community sports clubs in order to increase participation and widen access.

The British Tennis Foundation has been awarded £455,000 in 2005-06 and £272,000 in 2006-07 to deliver the Government's PE, School Sport and Club Links programme. The programme aims to increase the take-up of sporting opportunities by five to 16-year-olds so that 85 per cent. of children by 2008 experience a minimum of two hours high quality PE and school sport within and beyond the curriculum each week.

The Talented Athlete Scholarship Scheme (TASS) has supported young tennis players to enable them to continue in their education while pursuing their sporting ambition. During 2004-05 and 2005-06, TASS supported 48 and 66 tennis players respectively.

In addition four tennis players have received support through the TASS 2012 programme. Over £310,000 has been provided by TASS to help athletes with their sporting costs and support services.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the distribution is of UK forces between Operation Enduring Freedom and security assistance to the Afghan Government; and whether personnel may be moved between each role. [81840]

Des Browne [holding answer 3 July 2006]: When the UK forces' current deployment to Afghanistan is complete, there will be around 5,000 troops deployed to Afghanistan, of which the majority will be under the command of the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) with a small number, including the training teams in Kabul and a number of staff officers remaining under Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF) control. Our detachment of Harrier GR7s will be available to support both ISAF and OEF. These are separate and distinct missions, although troops deployed on OEF may also act in support of the NATO mission.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the deployment of 16 Air Assault Brigade to Afghanistan is due to cease. [81994]

Des Browne: The deployment of HQ 16 Air Assault Brigade and associated force elements will end as planned in October.

An announcement on which units will replace them will be made in the House in due course.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 2511W, on Afghanistan, what the time interval was between notification of the incident to the local HQ and the arrival of the CH-47 Chinook helicopter on the scene. [82244]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The CH-47 Chinook helicopter reaches the scene of the incident within the time period determined by the medical planning guidelines for emergency responses of this type. I am withholding the exact details as disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the security of the armed forces. However, a recently completed post-incident report found no fault with the CASEVAC service.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the quality of the intelligence information available to coalition and NATO forces in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [82622]

Des Browne: We constantly assess and evaluate the information and intelligence available to coalition and NATO forces in Afghanistan. Such material is evaluated and, where necessary, graded to ensure only reliable and credible material is used.

Aldermaston

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which proposed new facilities and refurbishment projects at Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston are funded from the £1,050 million allocation announced on 19 July 2005. [79091]

Des Browne: The programme of extra investment at the Atomic Weapons Establishment embraces a range of activity necessary to sustain Trident for its remaining in-service life. Investment will be made in essential accommodation improvements, business communications, infrastructure, laser physics, hydrodynamics, materials science, high performance computing, uranium component manufacture, fissile and special materials handling, explosives handling, and assembly/disassembly. In the absence of the ability to undertake live nuclear testing in the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty era, this investment is necessary to provide assurance that the existing Trident warhead stockpile remains safe and reliable.

Colchester Garrison

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 20, on Colchester Garrison, (1) how many houses the Department is renting from the private sector to accommodate soldiers from the Colchester Garrison; [81780]

(2), how many bed spaces will be provided at the new Colchester Garrison; and whether he expects there to be a shortfall of bed spaces. [81781]

Mr. Ingram: Pursuant to my answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 20, on Colchester Garrison, I can confirm that 55 houses/flats are rented from the private sector to house the 56 soldiers living in Substitute Service Single Accommodation (SSSA).

An additional 48 rented properties are no longer required and are in the process of being handed back to the private sector.

We can confirm that we do not anticipate a shortfall in bed spaces at the new Colchester Garrison based on the current endorsed requirement. The total number of bed spaces is 2,232 and not 2,231 as I said in my reply on 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 20.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80473]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost, however it is of note that the Department has received a total of in excess of 15,000 letters from both hon. Members and members of the public over the past 12 months.

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79942]

Mr. Watson: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

It would therefore be inconsistent for a Government Department to favour credit unions above other financial institutions.

Employees are of course free to join in credit unions if they meet their relevant membership criteria and Departments may provide appropriate levels of support if employees wish to set up a credit union.

Deaths in Action

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Department's policy on the publication of the names of members of the armed forces killed in action has changed since 27 June 2006; and if he will make a statement. [82620]

Des Browne: There has not been a change in the Ministry of Defence's policy on the publication of the names of members of the armed forces killed in action.

Defence Analytical Services Agency

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Reserve Forces data TSP07 for 1 April will be available on the Defence Analytical Services Agency website. [82577]

Mr. Watson: The anticipated publication date of Reserve Forces (TSP07) at 1 April 2006 is August 2006. Data will be made available on the Defence Analytical Services Agency website immediately upon publication. I will write to the hon. Member to confirm when this has been done.

Defence Training Review

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contribution the implementation of the two packages comprising the Defence Training Review private finance initiative programme will make to departmental targets for (a) improved quality of training, (b) cost reduction and (c) contractions of the defence estate. [81425]

Mr. Watson: The Defence Training Review Programme aims to provide the best possible living and learning environment for our people. This programme will make a positive contribution to improving the quality of training while reducing costs through the reduction of the Defence Estate. I am not in a position to make any detailed comment on the exact impact of the Defence Training Review as this will be entirely dependent on the solutions put forward by the Preferred Bidders. An announcement is not expected before the end of the year.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures are in place to ensure that no illegal immigrants are employed in the manned guarding of his Department's premises. [80800]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence has a rigorous basic check process, based on Government guidance given in the Cabinet Office's Manual of Protective Security. The basic check is applied to every employee of the MOD, and to contractors' employees working on MOD property. This employment/recruitment check aims to verify identity and nationality details, requires the applicant to declare unspent criminal convictions, and follows up the applicant's employment references.

We are aware that identity fraud is becoming increasingly sophisticated, and we are taking additional measures to increase the likelihood of illegal immigrants being detected before they are employed. These include the introduction across Government of a more rigorous baseline personnel security standard, replacing the basic check.

Extraordinary Rendition

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, further to his answer of 7 February 2006, Official Report, column 1083W to the hon. Member for Camarthen, East and Dinefwr (Adam Price), on extraordinary rendition, what records were checked in giving his reply. [75033]

Mr. Ingram: Officials consulted both operational reports and records from deployed headquarters in the relevant theatres.

Food Supply Contracts

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 5WS, on defence food supply contracts, for what reasons Purple Foodservice Solutions was selected as the provider of food services; what process was followed to select the provider; and which other companies applied to be considered. [82075]

Mr. Ingram: Purple Foodservice Solutions presented the lowest risk and most technically compliant bid which, overall, offered the best value for money. The contract was run under Public Procurement Regulations, which take full account of UK and EU procurement legislation. The other companies that submitted bids were 3663, First for Foodservice, and Brakes Foodservice Solutions.

Gulf War Veterans

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps have been taken by his Department towards commissioning (a) endocrine studies and (b) genetics studies of Gulf War veterans; and if he will make a statement. [81625]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence is guided on its programme of research into Gulf veterans' illnesses by the Medical Research Council (MRC) and has undertaken studies into: the anthropology of "Gulf War Syndrome", cancer, changing health, mortality/morbidity, neuromuscular symptoms, paraoxonase, reproductive health, testing for squalene in vaccines and vaccines interactions. I am aware of a concern on the part of the Gulf Veterans Association and National Gulf Veterans and Families Association that research should be undertaken on possible endocrine and/or genetics aspects of the illnesses experienced by veterans of the 1990-91 Gulf Conflict, as well as on the synthesis of adenosine triphosphate. We are awaiting detailed proposals which we will then refer to the MRC for their independent advice on the case for the Department commissioning such research, taking account of research already being undertaken elsewhere.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on research into Gulf War Syndrome, broken down by area of expenditure. [81626]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given in another place on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column WA99 by my noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State and Minister for Defence Procurement (Lord Drayson) to the noble Lord, Lord Morris of Manchester.

Infantry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average cost is of (a) recruitment of an infantryman and (b) training an infantryman from recruitment to being ready for overseas deployment in an active formation in the latest period for which figures are available. [82518]

Mr. Watson: The average costs of recruiting and training an infantryman during financial year 2004-05, the latest period for which figures are available, were as follows:

Financial year 2004-05	Costs (£)
Recruitment/selection	7,000
Training phase 1 and 2—the Combat Infantryman Course	23,000

Notes:
1. Costs are calculated on an accrual basis and include non cash items such as depreciation and cost of capital.
2. Only costs that are within the Army Recruiting and Training Division spend are included.
3. There has been no apportionment of indirect headquarters costs to the training and recruiting outputs.

Training of infantry recruits is conducted at the Infantry Training Centre (ITC) Catterick. Since 2000 the infantry have had a combined phase 1 and 2 course at Catterick; the Combat Infantry Course, which prepares the infantryman for his first appointment with the field Army.

Once an infantryman has completed his Combat Infantryman Course at ITC Catterick, he is ready to be deployed on operational service after the completion of the appropriate pre-deployment training, the cost of which is negligible.

All infantrymen will also undergo phase 3 training during their career, known as Career Training, which provides the soldier with professional development and career progression once he has joined his regiment; this training is also conducted through the ITC and costs on average £8,000.

Iraq

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on changes in the security situation in Basra province since March. [81138]

Des Browne: The United Kingdom's area of responsibility in multi-national division (south-east) remains relatively quiet compared to other parts of the country, accounting for around 4 per cent. of overall attacks in Iraq. There has been a rise in violence in Basra, and there have been a number of developments since March that seek to address this. The provincial council has re-engaged with UK forces, allowing the recommencement of the full programme of operational activity for our forces in MND(SE). Most recently, we have secured important undertakings from the Iraqi Government on delivering a new security plan for Basra.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training programmes in Iraqi native languages are available to troops prior to deployment in Iraq; what type of courses are taught; what levels of proficiency are taught; and how many personnel have taken each of the courses available in each of the last three years. [82570]

Mr. Watson: There are three courses specialising in Iraqi language training available for troops prior to deployment to Iraq, each with a different proficiency level. The numbers undertaking this training over the last three years are shown in the following table.

Standard language profile level(SLP)	Proficiency descriptor	Description of competence	Numbers trained training 2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
1	Survival(one soldier per sub-unit)	Copes with routine, social and practical demands and the most limited work demands. Cannot write in the language	36	60	60
1	Basic patrol Arabic (junior commanders and soldiers)	Copes with routine, social and practical demands and the most limited work demands. Cannot write in the language	n/a	250	250
4	Operational Linguist	Copes with routine social and practical demands using spoken and written skills. Copes with some of the more sophisticated and demanding situations encountered when listening to and reading in the language	N/A	12	24

In addition to these courses Cascade Training takes place at unit level during pre-deployment training over anything up to six months. The training is undertaken by those who have completed the Basic Patrol Arabic Course augmented by specially appointed and trained Operational Unit Education Officers. Once deployed training is continued by the same staff augmented by the Theatre Education Centre. Every soldier is also issued with a language card which is taught during pre-deployment training and is practised regularly by all in theatre.

Joint Personnel Administration

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) regular and (b) reserve army personnel have failed to be fully paid by the army personnel centre since the implementation of Pay 2000; what the total of the underpayments is; what assessment he has made of the reasons for the underpayments; whether he expects all payments to be made prior to the roll-out of joint personnel administration; and if he will make a statement. [79650]

Mr. Watson: Pay 2000 is the generic term used to describe the incremental pay system for armed forces personnel. It arose as a consequence of the recommendations made in the independent review conducted by Sir Michael Bett in 1995, and was introduced in April 2001 for regular personnel, and November 2002 for reservists.

Some 4,160 regular and reserve army personnel have been either under, or overpaid electronically at some time since, and as a result of the implementation of Pay 2000. The number of pay accounts in need of rectification was reduced to some 8,900 during 2004-05, and this figure has been reduced further to some 1,000 during 2006. I am confident that the remaining 1,000 pay accounts will be rectified prior to the roll-out of joint personnel administration to the army.

Arrangements ensure that any shortfalls are paid manually at unit level. The primary causes of the problem have been late changes in the interpretation of policy, computer programming difficulties and the ageing army computer systems.

The total amount of electronic underpayments could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Meteorological Office

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will reconsider the Meteorological Office plans to withdraw its (a) mountaincall and (b) mountainfax services from the general public and mountain rescue services; [67147]

(2) what specialist services the meteorological service plans to provide for (a) mountain rescue services and (b) hillwalkers once the mountaincall and mountainfax services are withdrawn. [67148]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 2 May 2006]: The same meteorological information previously provided by the mountaincall and mountainfax commercial services is now provided through a public service available free of charge on the Met. Office website. The service is also available through the Met. Office customer centre.

Military Co-operation with France

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the extent is of UK military co-operation with France. [82305]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 July 2006]: At the recent UK-France summit on 9 June, the United Kingdom and France re-affirmed their shared commitment to act together against evolving threats and challenges to our security and defence and to that of our allies and partners. An important element of this is the long-standing military co-operation between our armed forces, who currently work together on operations and regular exercises, and in the fields of concepts, doctrine and training. This collaboration is undertaken both bilaterally and through multilateral organisations such as NATO and the EU.

Our armed forces co-operate on operations in Afghanistan, Kosovo and Bosnia. Other recent interaction includes:

- Routine integration of Royal Navy and French Navy ships into respective Task Group deployments, most recently in the UK Naval Task Group Deployment AQUILA 2006 and the French Carrier Task Group
- AGAPANTHE 06, which deployed to the Mediterranean, Indian Ocean and Gulf regions.
- British Army staff officers attached to the French Rapid Reaction Corps Headquarters in Lille where they contribute to French work on achieving NATO Response Force readiness.
- The Royal Air Force and French Air Force combining to provide a Joint Force Air Component Headquarters, and substantial force elements, for NATO Response Forces 5 and 6.
- Agreement to co-operate in establishing a network of Peace Support Training Centres in Africa.

This close and highly valued military relationship is fostered through regular dialogue at all levels from the Chief of the Defence Staff downwards and underpinned by bilateral agreements and letters of intent. There is also a network of exchange and liaison officers across all three services. The continuation of our excellent military relationship with France will remain important as we work together to tackle the challenges ahead.

Nuclear Deterrent

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he was informed of the proposed content relating to retention of the nuclear deterrent in the long term of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's Mansion House speech prior to its delivery. [81533]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 July 2006]: I have regular discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on a range of issues.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the time scale is for (a) a national debate, (b) a White Paper and (c) a decision to be made for the replacement of the UK's nuclear deterrent. [82421]

Des Browne: Decisions on the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent will be taken this year. We expect to publish a White Paper once decisions have been taken and, as the Prime Minister made clear on 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 253, the means of consultation will be made clear when we publish the White Paper.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what structures exist within the Government to provide a framework for formulation of policy on the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent; [82422]

(2) what consideration Ministers have given to detailed policy on the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent. [82423]

Des Browne: Work is under way by officials in a number of Departments to prepare for decisions on the future of the United Kingdom's nuclear deterrent. Ministers have been briefed by officials on some of the relevant issues and have requested that further work be undertaken.

It remains the case that no decisions have yet been taken, either in principle or in detail although, as the Prime Minister said on 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 253 decisions will be taken this year.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with Ministers in other Departments about the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent. [82424]

Des Browne: I have regular discussions with my Cabinet colleagues and other Ministers on a wide range of issues.

Search and Rescue Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 2052W, on search and rescue services, what timetable he has set for (a) the assessment to be completed, (b) further announcements to be made, (c) invitations to tender to run the services and (d) other matters relevant to the future operation of search and rescue services in the UK. [81981]

Mr. Ingram: The timing for the competition for UK Helicopter Search and Rescue capability is set out in the Official Journal of the European Union Notice (No 2006/S 90-096731) of 12 May 2006. This advises that it is planned to complete the Competitive Dialogue process in mid 2008, at which time the final invitation to tender is planned to be issued. The final assessment of basing solutions and all other relevant matters will be completed after this, with announcements made when the decisions are mature.

Submarines

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many submarines are operationally available to Commander in Chief Fleet, broken down by type. [82900]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1262W to the hon. Member for Weston-Super-Mare (Mr. Penrose) in respect of operational submarines. Two types of submarines make up the Royal Navy Submarine Service. There are 10 Fleet Submarines, of which eight are operational. There are four Ballistic Missile Submarines, of which three are operational. The position remains unchanged.

Tetanus

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what stock of tetanus immunoglobulin is held (a) centrally, (b) in Iraq and (c) in Afghanistan; [80340]

(2) which naval and military units do not have their required stock of tetanus immunoglobulin. [80341]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence's requirement for tetanus immunoglobulin is low. It is only used to treat patients with wounds who have not received the normal tetanus vaccine. Very few such cases arise in our armed forces since MOD aims to ensure that all its personnel have up-to-date tetanus vaccinations prior to deployment. The only people who would need it would therefore be any service personnel who missed their vaccination and any non-UK individuals who are treated in our medical facilities in theatre.

There is a temporary UK national shortage of tetanus immunoglobulin. We do not currently have any centrally held defence stocks in the UK. However, with the exception of designated field hospitals, units are not required to hold tetanus immunoglobulin, although some do at the discretion of individual medical officers. We are not aware of any stock shortfall of tetanus immunoglobulin in the designated field hospitals and we do not expect a shortfall to arise before supplies become available again.

Routine tetanus immunisation is given by the combined low dose diphtheria/tetanus/inactivated polio (Td/IPV) triple booster which is administered at trainee entrant establishments. Personnel who require a further booster dose because they have sustained an injury from which they could be at risk of an acute tetanus infection can also be given the Td/IPV triple booster. Supplies of the Td/IPV triple booster are not affected by the national shortage of immunoglobulin, and there are currently no known shortages in naval or military units.

In light of the national shortage, the MOD has repeated recent Department of Health guidance on tetanus immunoglobulin to defence medical personnel, advising them of the necessary action they will need to take. This will mainly involve ensuring that all personnel have up-to-date tetanus vaccinations.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Chief Crown Prosecutors

Keith Vaz: To ask the Solicitor-General how many chief Crown prosecutors in England and Wales were from black and Asian minorities in each year since 1997. [81586]

The Solicitor-General: The number of chief Crown prosecutors in England and Wales who were from black and ethnic minorities, for which data are available, is shown in the following table.

Month/year	Item	BME	White	Total percentage
April 2002	Number	4	36
	Percentage	10.0	90.0	100
April 2003	Number	3	40
	Percentage	7.0	93.0	100
April 2004	Number	4	36
	Percentage	10.0	90.0	100
April 2005	Number	6	40
	Percentage	13.0	87.0	100
April 2006	Number	7	38
	Percentage	15.6	84.4	100

Keith Vaz: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps are being taken by his Department to ensure that the number of chief Crown prosecutors in England and Wales from black and Asian minorities better reflects the ratio in the population. [81587]

The Solicitor-General: In common with other Whitehall Departments, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) has produced a diversity delivery plan to support the delivery of targets across the senior civil service (which includes the chief Crown prosecutor grade) range of diversity categories by 2008. As at April 2006, the CPS has seven black and minority ethnic (BME) chief Crown prosecutors (of whom two are of Asian origin). This BME total represents 15.6 per cent. of staff at that level within the service.

Identity Theft

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General what recent discussions he has had with the Home Secretary on prosecutions for identity theft. [81835]

The Solicitor-General: I have had no recent discussions with the Home Secretary on prosecutions for identity theft, but I have discussed the issue with Home Office Ministers, one of whom wrote to the hon. Member in February 2006 about identity theft.

Iraq

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Solicitor-General when he was first informed that "wetting" was official policy for dealing with looters in Basra; what witness statements to this effect were disclosed to Crown counsel; and if he will make a statement. [77183]

The Solicitor-General: I have never been informed that "wetting" is official policy for dealing with looters in Basra. No witness statements saying that "wetting" is official policy for dealing with looters in Basra were disclosed to Crown counsel either prior to the trial of soldiers relating to the death of an Iraqi youth in the Shatt al Basra River or since the conclusion of these proceedings.

I am told that during the trial three witnesses gave evidence as to a practice of putting detained looters in water which appears to refer to "wetting". Mr. Daniel O'Connell, formerly a Lieutenant Platoon Commander, said there was a practice of making looters wet which was discussed at the company "O" Group meetings; however it was not formal policy. He indicated that he had witnessed one such incident of looters being put into a dyke where they were waist high and in no real danger.

Major Peter MacMullen the Company Commander said that the looting problem was discussed at Battle group meetings and that he was aware of a range of sanctions that were being deployed, which included people being put into water so that they would be left cold, wet and miserable.

Mr. Niall Brennan, formerly the Company Second in Command, said he knew of other companies throwing looters into the Shatt al Arab River. He did not consider they were in danger of drowning and claimed that he did not consider this dangerous because it involved the use of minimum force.

Despite this evidence, coming from higher up the chain of command, the evidence given at trial made it clear that neither the commanders on the ground nor the individual soldiers were aware of such a policy or practice (officially sanctioned or otherwise). Not one of the accused raised this in their witness statements or interviews under caution. None of the members of their platoon or section who gave evidence knew of such a policy or had even heard of looters being put into water. Knowledge of the policy, if one did indeed exist, was restricted to the middle echelons of the chain of command only.

During the course of the trial a statement was obtained from the then Battle Group Commander, Brigadier Riddle-Webster, who said that the practice of "wetting" had never been discussed and had he heard of such a practice he would have put a stop to it immediately since he regarded it as illegal, dangerous and immoral. However due to legal reasons this was not put before the Board.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80466]

The Solicitor-General: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost,

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General which Private Members' Bills were drafted by his Department in each Session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [77849]

The Solicitor-General: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government-drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Member's Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81919]

Jim Fitzpatrick: For expenditure on advertising campaigns run by the Department through the Central Office of Information from July 2004 until April 2006, the figures are as follows. Figures include Small Business Service, but exclude VAT.

(The Department does not centrally collect information on other campaigns, including those by non-departmental public bodies, and to do so would entail disproportionate cost.)

Debt Collectors

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether (a) his Department and (b) its (i) executive agencies and (ii) non-departmental public bodies use the services of private debt collectors. [71061]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department does not make use of private debt collectors. Of the executive agencies, Companies House uses the services of a debt collector in connection with the administration of the penalties raised on companies for late filing of accounts. The Insolvency Service uses agents for the collection of book debts (moneys owed by creditors to bankrupts and companies in liquidation) where the Official Receiver is trustee or liquidator and to collect costs from directors who are disqualified as a result of a court hearing.

Among the Department's non-departmental public bodies, the use of private debt collectors is limited to a number of the research councils and regional development agencies as follows:

The Arts and Humanities Research Council has made limited use of an agency to help recover outstanding debts;

The Medical Research Council has used an agent to trace debtors, conduct correspondence, manage recovery schedules and where necessary prepare cases for County Court recovery;

Advantage West Midlands has used a firm of solicitors for collecting sales ledger debts over £500;

The London Development Agency has not had the occasion to employ any debt collectors, but has used firms of certified bailiffs with regard to repossessions, and these firms also provide this form of service. In addition the LDA outsources some of its estate management service to managing agents, and they have used certified bailiffs to recover bad debts;

The North West Development Agency uses certified bailiffs to recover unpaid rent via management agents.

The South West Regional Development Agency uses an agency to collect debts from tenants who owe the Agency rent;

Yorkshire Forward has used agents to collect debts such as non-payment of rent and to pursue small claims.

DNA Sequences

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what regulations are in place to restrict the purchase of sequences of DNA; and if he will make a statement; [79174]

(2) what plans he has to review the regulations governing the sale and possession of sequences of DNA that may be used to prepare viruses; [79175]

(3) what restrictions his Department places on the sale of DNA sequences to private individuals and organisations whose primary purpose is not published research. [79176]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are no specific regulations that govern the sale, supply, or purchase of DNA sequences. The potential chemical hazards associated with the sequence itself would be covered by the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations 2002 (as amended); if DNA sequences were to be used to create a biological agent, the Genetically Modified Organisms (Contained Use) Regulations 2000 (as amended) are likely to apply. These provide for a high level of protection for human health and the environment (including animal and plant health). In addition, the Specified Animal Pathogens Order 1998 (SAPO), administered by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, regulates possession of nucleic acid derived from any animal pathogen specified under SAPO. In all cases the relevant containment and operating requirements laid down by Health and Safety Executive/Defra would need to be met.

Provisions in the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 place an obligation on managers of laboratories and other premises holding specified pathogens or toxins to notify the authorities and to comply with the security requirements which the police may impose.

There is a wide range of legitimate uses to which DNA sequences may be put and the imposition of onerous controls could discourage valuable scientific research and industry use. The Government do not believe that it is necessary to require suppliers of DNA sequences to be licensed or for them to screen customers or check the intended use of the sequences. But we will continue to monitor the situation as the relevant technologies develop.

Electoral Roll Fraud

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department has undertaken an assessment of the extent to which (a) foreign nationals not from the Commonwealth or the Irish Republic, (b) failed asylum seekers and (c) illegal immigrants are fraudulently on the electoral roll in order to obtain consumer credit. [73986]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

We do not hold information as to the reasons why persons may apply to be on the electoral register other than for the purposes of voting in elections. In respect of the numbers of those persons specified in the question who may be on the electoral register, I explained in my previous answer on 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 1045W, that this information is not collected. Electoral registers are available for public inspection and anyone who believes that an ineligible person has been included may notify the ERO who may then make further inquiries as to the eligibility of that individual. Currently, it is an offence to fail to supply information to the ERO and knowingly supply false information on the annual canvass form.

The Electoral Administration Bill strengthens the objection process and creates a new offence of supplying false information of any kind to an ERO, or failing to supply information, in connection with registration, at any time. The electoral register does not specify the immigration or asylum status of individuals entered on it; however, the addition of a "nationality" box in the registration form does provide an opportunity for EROs to determine the eligibility of an applicant for inclusion in the register on the basis of their stated nationality.

Employment Act

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many requests for flexible working have been made in each region since the relevant provisions of the Employment Act 2002 came into force; and how many were granted. [82605]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The table shows the proportion of employees who have requested to work flexibly and the resulting acceptance rate, for each region/nation in Great Britain. These figures are from the second Flexible Working Survey (2005).

The new employment rights introduced on 6 April 2003 gave parents of children under six and disabled children under 18 the right to request flexible working. It is not known how many employees have requested flexible working since the right was introduced. The second Flexible Working Survey was conducted in January 2005 and respondents were asked to consider their last two years of employment.

Heavy Vehicle Fitter Apprenticeships

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many heavy vehicle fitter Apprenticeships have been completed in (a) England and (b) Merseyside in each of the last five years, broken down by sex. [78433]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

A key success criterion for Apprenticeships from the outset has been that the programme should be open to all young people regardless of gender, ethnic origin or disability and it should provide equal access particularly to those from potentially socially disadvantaged or marginalised groups. The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) has worked hard to establish and build on the Apprenticeship Frameworks and procedures required for successful equality. The Apprenticeships Approvals Group (independently chaired by the Skills for Business Network ie Sector Skills Council led) have a key role to play in ensuring that Apprenticeship Frameworks make all reasonable adjustments to maximise participation from diverse groups.

The LSC maintains a website detailing starts, leavers and completions of individual frameworks http://www.apprenticeships.org.uk/partners/frameworks/apprenticeshipsdata/. However, published figures for completions are not broken down by geographical area or sex. For this reason Mark Haysom, the council's Chief Executive, has written to my hon. Friend with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Rob Wye, dated 28 June 2006:

I am responding on behalf of Mark Haysom, due to him currently being on annual leave, to your Parliamentary Question that asked the number of completed Heavy Vehicle Fitter Apprenticeships in England and Greater Merseyside, broken down by gender in each of the last 5 years.

The Vehicle Fitting Apprenticeship framework was implemented on 1st September 2005. This is in effect its first year for apprentices to enrol onto and as yet there is no usable framework completion data at any geographical level.

Prior to 1st September 2005 there were more generic Apprenticeship frameworks in operation for the Retail Motor Industry. An analysis of these framework completions where the NVQ within the framework is for "Vehicle Fitting" shows the following results.

Specific information regarding heavy vehicle fitting is not available at framework level or at NVQ qualification level, hence this response can only look at vehicle fitting in general.

The Learning and Skills Council publishes regular statistical information on Apprenticeships including framework completion data on its website (www.apprenticeships.org.uk). The information is provided for each Apprenticeship framework and as such the volume of completers nationally will be provided in future updates.

Consistent and high quality data is only available from the first full academic year following the commencement of the Learning and Skills Council in April 2001. For this reason the table above only shows information for the past three full academic years.

I trust this provides the information you require.

Milk Co-operatives

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will reform current arrangements for the development of vertical cooperatives in the milk industry. [75985]

Barry Gardiner: I have been asked to reply.

Mergers, acquisitions and other competition matters are the responsibility of the competition authorities. These bodies are independent and the Government have no role in the administration of competition law, except in very restricted circumstances.

Ministerial Flights

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in his Department are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81401]

Jim Fitzpatrick: DTI ensures that all flights undertaken by its Ministers and officials are carbon neutral by participating in the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the major banks which contributed to the cost of the launch of the Post Office card account regarding its termination. [82060]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There have been no discussions on this issue between the Department and those banks that contributed to the establishment of the Post Office card account. The Post Office card account contract between the Department of Work and Pensions and Post Office Ltd will end in 2010 as always intended.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81915]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's records are retained on a financial year basis, and it is only possible to provide annual information on advertising campaigns from April 2004 to present. The following tables show advertising campaign expenditure broken down by year and title:

Bullying

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many incidents of homophobic bullying were recorded by (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each of the last five years. [82670]

Jim Knight: We are unable to provide this information as we do not collect these data centrally. However, individual schools may record incidents of bullying, including homophobic bullying, and some local authorities keep records for their own area.

We take the issue of homophobic bullying in schools very seriously and we gave an undertaking in the White Paper, "Higher Standards, Better Education for All" to issue guidance on bullying motivated by prejudice, including homophobia.

During Anti Bullying week in 2004 we published "Homophobia, Sexual Orientation and Schools: a review and implications for action", by the Thomas Coram Research Unit, which looked at three areas: behaviour and bullying; teaching and learning about sexual orientation and relationships; and employment issues. It collates, summarises and assesses both peer reviewed research material, from this country and abroad, and less formal work conducted by bodies active in this area. It reports the views of a wide range of organisations, 28 in all, with an interest in this area to paint a picture of how the issues are currently perceived. The report is available on the DfES website http://www.dfes.gov.uk/research and the findings will be used to inform future work in this area.

Consultants

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consultants are employed by his Department to work on (a) policy development and (b) cost control; and if he will make a statement. [81858]

Mr. Dhanda: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Emissions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the total carbon emission of his Department in each year since 1997. [81910]

Mr. Dhanda: A complete answer cannot be provided as validated carbon emission information is only available from 1999. The figures presented in the following table are based on kilograms of carbon emitted per square metre of let table area in our HQ buildings.

1990-2000	28
2000-01	30
2001-02	29
2002-03	28
2003-04	32
2004-05	31

Departmental Fax Machines

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many department-owned fax machines have been issued to his staff in the last 12 months; to whom they were issued; and at what cost. [81945]

Mr. Dhanda: A complete answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost, but we do know that 11 fax machines were purchased at a cost of £4,137.17 in the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80089]

Mr. Dhanda: The Director General of Finance of the Department for Education and Skills is Jonathan Thompson.

He is a qualified member of the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA), a member of the CIPFA Council and a member of the Chartered Institute of Management.

He was appointed in May 2006. He was previously Director of Finance of Ofsted, and before that Director of Finance and Resources at North Somerset council. Prior to that he was senior public sector services manager with Ernst and Young.

Departmental Guidance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pages of guidance have been issued by his Department in the last 12 months. [80038]

Jim Knight: The Department only sends hard copy publications automatically to schools in England in exceptional cases having stopped regular paper mailings in December 2004. Most recently a letter regarding the Ofsted report on staff recruitment checks was made available online and schools notified electronically by email.

Discussions with head teachers and detailed research showed that schools wanted to be able to choose the printed publications they needed, when they needed them, and to be able to order multiple copies.

The online ordering system enables schools to choose whether to download electronic copies or order the paper based publications they need at the right time for them and in the multiples they require. This system is linked directly to the fulfilment service and an existing telephone ordering line. A fortnightly email service to schools informs them of new and important publications.

This has resulted in schools being able to order a wider variety of publications from the Department, putting schools in direct control of what they receive, when they receive it.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in the

(a) Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [81237]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons and Lord Privy Seal on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the deposited papers placed in the Library by his Department since 2000; and when they were published. [81294]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not collected.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in each of the last three years; and what percentage this represented of the total number of staff in each case. [75099]

Mr. Dhanda: Annual reports for the last performance year (2005-06) are currently being collated. In the previous year, there were less than five cases of unacceptable performance and this information is therefore suppressed on grounds of confidentiality. In the 2003-04 performance year, five staff failed to achieve an acceptable mark, which represents 0.1 per cent. of all staff at that time.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many of his staff are (a) under and (b) over 55 years of age. [77278]

Mr. Dhanda: A total of 3,350 staff are under 55 years of age, and 418 are aged 55 years and over.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people over the age of 55 years have been recruited into his Department in each of the last three years. [77279]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is given in the following table.

Recruits into DfES over the age of 55

	Number
2004	1
2005	6
2006 (to date)	2

EU Integration

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make it his policy to remove from all EU legislation which he is responsible for transposing into UK law any references supporting EU integration. [82291]

Mr. Dhanda: I have no plans to do so. In cases when EU legislation is proposed which would need to be transposed into UK each proposal will be considered on its individual merits. However, EU competence in education and training is limited to supporting and supplementing the actions of member states, and fully respects the responsibility of member states for the content and organisation of education and training. There is therefore not a great deal of EU legislation in the education and vocational training field to be transposed into domestic legislation. In the majority of cases the Department for Education and Skills responds to EU decisions, recommendations and communications through the development of policy rather than legislative changes.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80476]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Post Office

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills for which services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81541]

Mr. Dhanda: A definitive answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the Post Office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79201]

Mr. Dhanda: A definitive answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Primary Schools

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the most recent average cost per annum was of educating a child at primary school in England; [82076]

(2) what the most recent average cost per annum was of educating a child at primary school in each local education authority area in England; [82077]

(3) what the most recent figures are for the average cost per annum of educating a child at primary school in (a) rural and village areas and (b) town and city areas in England. [82078]

Primary school based expenditure[1] per pupil[2]

In urban and rural schools[3] in England during the2004-05 financial year
Urban primary schools[4, 5]	2,920
Rural primary schools[4, 5]	2,900

[1] School based expenditure includes only expenditure incurred directly by local authority schools. This includes the pay of teachers and school-based support staff, school premises costs, books and equipment, and certain other supplies and services, less any capital items funded from recurrent spending and income from sales, fees and charges and rents and rates. This excludes the central cost of support services such as home to school transport, local authority administration and the financing of capital expenditure. This is drawn from the 2004-05 Section 52 Outturn Statement (Table A line 50).

[2] Pupil numbers include only those pupils attending local authority maintained primary schools and are drawn from the DfES Annual Schools Census adjusted to be on a financial year basis.

[3] Figures are rounded to the nearest 10. Cash terms figures as reported by local authorities as at 30 June 2006.

[4] The urban/rural classification is drawn from the Edubase (the DfES database of educational establishments). As at 30th June 2006, the database did not hold an urban/rural classification for 32 of the 17,864 primary schools included on local authorities' 2004-05 Section 52 Outturn Statements.

[5] Rural primary schools are on average much smaller than those in urban areas. Funding to offset diseconomies of scale therefore increases the amount spent in rural primary schools to a level very close to urban schools.

School Buses

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will set an upper limit on charges local education authorities are permitted to make for school bus journeys under the school transport section of the Education and Inspections Bill. [82417]

Jim Knight: The Education and Inspections Bill includes provisions that will allow a small number of 'Pathfinder' authorities to pilot innovative school travel arrangements. While it will be up to local authorities themselves to draw up a charging policy, the draft guidance to potential 'Pathfinder' authorities, which has been published on the Department's website, suggests a maximum charge of £1 per day.

School Principals

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average salary was of (a) head and (b) deputy head teachers in (i) England and (ii) each region in each of the last 10 years. [81697]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the average salary of full-time regular head and deputy head teachers in maintained sector schools in England and by Government office region. The average salaries are given for March each year from 1996 to 2003, the latest year for which the information is available.

Sexual Health Education

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what expenditure is planned for sexual health education in schools in each of the next three years. [82546]

Mr. Dhanda: It is for local authorities and schools to decide the level of resources required to support sexual health education in schools taking account of local needs. We are working to improve the quality of sexual health education in maintained schools. The Department for Education and Skills, together with Department of Health, is supporting the PSHE certification programme for teachers with over £2 million in 2006-07. In addition, both Departments are supporting the national healthy schools programme with £12.3 million of funding in 2006-07. These programmes support schools in delivering sexual health education as part of broader programmes.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much of the recent increase in local authority spending on special educational needs provision is being used to pay for out-of-authority placements for pupils because of the lack of suitable provision locally. [81438]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is not available in the requested format. The following table shows how much of the total planned net expenditure on the provision of education for children with special educational needs, local authorities have budgeted for fees for pupils at independent special schools and abroad.

The Education (Budget Statements) (England) Regulations. Budgeted net expenditure on the provision of education for children with special educational needs[1,2,3] since 2000-01. Cash terms figures[4] as reported by local authorities[5] as at 28 June 2006

	Budgeted net expenditure on the provision of education for children with special educational needs[1,2]	Of which: Budgeted net expenditure on fees for pupils at independent special schools and abroad[3]

[1] Includes planned expenditure on the provision for pupils with statements and the provision for non-statemented pupils with SEN, support for inclusion, inter authority recoupment, fees for pupils at independent special schools and abroad, educational psychology service, local authority functions in relation to child protection, therapies and other health related services, parent partnership, guidance and information, the monitoring of SEN provision and inclusion administration, assessment and coordination. Also included is the funding delegated to nursery, primary and secondary schools identified as "notional SEN" and the individual schools budget (ISB) for special schools. Does not include any contribution to combined budgets or fees for pupils at independent schools for pupils without SEN.

[2] The ISB for special schools will include some general education costs for pupils with SEN in addition to those costs specifically for SEN while the figures recorded against "notional SEN" are only indicative of the amount that might by spent by schools on SEN. From 2004-05 onwards "notional SEN" delegated to nursery schools was reported on section 52 for the first time and accounts for £7.8 million, £9.5 million and £10.2 million of the 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 totals respectively.

[3] Includes all planned net expenditure on the payment of fees in respect of pupils with special educational needs at independent schools or non-maintained special schools.

[4] Figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000.

[5] 2006-07 data are provisional and are therefore subject to change by the local authority.

Speech and Language Therapy

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the ratio is of full-time speech therapists to pupils at schools which provide speech and language therapy; [81442]

(2) what the average expenditure per pupil on children with speech and language difficulties in the teaching of speech and language therapy was in the last period for which figures are available. [81443]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Teachers' Pension Scheme

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures the Department has put in place to assist pension transferability of public pensions for members of the Teachers' Pension Scheme. [79770]

Mr. Dhanda: All public service schemes pay cash equivalent transfer values to other pension schemes in respect of accrued rights in compliance with pensions law. Under the Fair Deal for Staff Pensions there is a requirement to transfer pension rights when employments are transferred to the private sector under Public Private Partnerships/Public Finance Initiatives and subsequent transfers for former public servants. Public service scheme members can also transfer accrued pension rights by way of the Public Sector Transfer Club. The Club is a network of public and private sector occupational pension schemes which makes it easier for employees who move between employers covered by separate participating schemes to transfer their accrued pension rights.

Unemployment (Yeovil)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department plans to take to encourage long-term unemployed people in Yeovil constituency to return to education and training. [82180]

Phil Hope: Responsibility for encouraging long-term unemployed people to return to education and training is shared between the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and the Secretary of State for Education and Skills.

Both Departments, along with their respective delivery agencies Jobcentre Plus (JCP) and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC), are working closely together to ensure that long-term unemployed people have the skills they need to secure sustainable and productive jobs. There has already been significant progress in joint working between the LSC and JCP and a joint delivery plan is currently being developed which will cover the Yeovil area in order to meet local employment and skills needs.

The Government's skills strategy sends out a strong signal about the priority we attach to helping adults with few or no qualifications to attain a platform of wider employability skills. All those on jobseeker's allowance or income related benefits and their dependents receive free tuition in further education, in addition to the support available through their local JCP office. Unemployed people also have access to in-depth advice about their education and training options through the Learndirect one-stop telephone and online advice service.

The Government do, however, recognise that more needs to be done to tackle long-term unemployment and published a Green Paper in January 2006 "A New Deal for Welfare: Empowering People to Work" including measures to help low skilled adults secure employment through the New Deal for Skills. These include piloting skills coaching in a number of JCP districts and our latest evidence shows that skills coaching is helping long-term unemployed people improve their employability skills.

In addition, the Chancellor announced in his Budget Report that Lord Leitch's review of skills would be extended to include better alignment of measures to tackle worklessness to support labour market flexibility, better employment outcomes and greater progression to productive and sustainable jobs for those with skill needs. We expect Lord Leitch's report this autumn and my Department looks forward to working with the Department of Work and Pensions to take forward Lord Leitch's proposals.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Biodiversity

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the loss of species in the United Kingdom in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [81317]

Barry Gardiner: Extinction of a species within the UK is now a rare event. The UK Biodiversity Action Plan was published in 1995 and included a list of priority species and habitats for which urgent conservation action was required.

In 1999, 2002 and 2005 reports were published on the progress made on these priorities. These reports included actions to be taken and an update on the status of the priority species. In 2002, one species, the Starry Breck Lichen (Buellia asterella), was reported as having become extinct, and two UKBAP priority species, the pool frog and interrupted brome, were reported to have been lost. Both the pool frog and interrupted brome have since been re-introduced. Although both re-introduction projects are at an early stage and there is some way to go before the species are successfully re-established, effectively their extinction has been reversed.

This is the only evidence we have of a UK species becoming extinct within the last 10 years. It is also worth noting that the Pashford pot beetle (Cryptocephalus exiguus), another priority species, has not been found at its known localities for a number of years but this is not thought to represent sufficient evidence of extinction yet.

In terms of non-priority species, we cannot be certain that there have been no extinctions because some species have never been named and others are recorded extremely infrequently.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department has benchmarked the loss of species in the UK in each of the last 10 years against the performance of other countries. [81694]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA has not benchmarked the loss of species because there is no easily accessible source of information on extinctions for other countries. The cost of obtaining the information would far outweigh the benefits we could gain from it.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many instances of bovine tuberculosis have been recorded in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [82112]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Suffolk

	Total new herd incidents	Confirmed new herd incidents
2005	—	—
2002	1	—
2001	—	—

Note:
Provisional data downloaded from DEFRA's animal health database (Vetnet) on 7 March 2006. Subject to change as more data becomes available.

In 2001, the TB testing and control programme was largely suspended due to the foot and mouth disease (FMD) outbreak. When testing resumed in 2002, resources were concentrated on herds with overdue TB tests which would have had a longer period in which to contract the disease. Also the proportion of high risk herds tested immediately after the FMD outbreak was greater than that prior to the outbreak. As a result, data for 2001 and 2002 are not comparable with other years.

Conservation

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice his Department gives to competent authorities intending to carry out appropriate assessment of plans or projects likely to affect European wildlife sites with regard to consulting (a) statutory bodies, (b) other interested parties and (c) the general public; and whether this advice differs according to whether this assessment is carried out under regulation 3 or regulation 48 of the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994 (as amended). [80295]

Barry Gardiner: English Nature provides advice to competent authorities intending to carry out appropriate assessment of plans or projects likely to affect European wildlife sites, with regard to consulting statutory bodies and the general public. This is done through their Habitats Regulations Guidance Note 1 ("The Role of the Appropriate Assessment in Regulation 48 of the Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) Regulations 1994"). This guidance relates to assessment being carried out under regulation 48 of the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994. The Guidance Note does not provide specific advice for consulting other interested parties, though it does advise that consulting the general public,

"may include taking the opinion of others with relevant knowledge or expertise".

This advice in relation to consulting statutory bodies, other interested parties and the general public does not specifically relate to the obligations placed upon competent authorities under regulation 3 of the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994 (as amended).

My Department is currently considering what further guidance is necessary in relation to obligations placed upon competent authorities regarding appropriate assessment of plans and projects. These considerations will be informed by the results of the public consultation on Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) (Amendment) (England and Wales) Regulations 2006 due to end on 30 June 2006.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how competent authorities are required to report the results of appropriate assessment of plans or projects under the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994 (as amended) to (a) the UK Government, (b) the European Commission and (c) the Scottish Executive; and whether the appropriate assessments are public documents. [80296]

Barry Gardiner: There is no requirement in the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994 for competent authorities to report the results of appropriate assessment carried out under regulation 48 of these Regulations to (a), (b) or (c) if the authority concludes the plan or project will not adversely affect the integrity of a European site.

Where a competent authority other than the Secretary of State proposes to agree to a plan or project under regulation 49 (that is where a plan or project is considered necessary in the overriding public interest), notwithstanding a negative assessment of the implications for a European site, it must notify the Secretary of State in England. There is no requirement under the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994 to report the outcome of the appropriate assessment in these circumstances to the European Commission. As a matter of policy however, the Secretary of State reports the outcome of such assessments in the above circumstances to the European Commission, including details of how appropriate compensatory measures have been secured. Equivalent provisions exist in Scotland. Appropriate assessments carried out under the planning regime would normally constitute public documents.

Appropriate assessments carried out under other consent regimes would normally, where not already in the public domain, be available under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 or the Environmental Information Regulations 2004.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answers of 30 March 2006, Official Report, column 1098W, on the EU Habitats Directive, whether competent authorities proposing to agree a plan or project of a type not specified by Regulations 54 to 85 of the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc.) Regulations 1994 (as amended) notwithstanding a negative assessment of the implications for a European site are required (a) to notify the Secretary of State and (b) not to agree to the plan or project for a period of 21 days unless the Secretary of State notifies them that they may do so. [80426]

Barry Gardiner: Competent authorities proposing to agree to a plan or project not specified by Regulations 54 to 85 of the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc.) Regulations 1994, notwithstanding a negative assessment of the implications for a European site, are (a) not required to notify the Secretary of State and (b) not required to agree to the plan or project for a period of 21 days unless the Secretary of State notifies them that they may do so.

Correspondence Costs

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80479]

Barry Gardiner: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members'/Peers' correspondence. The Report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Dairy Industry

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the dairy supply chain forum. [79757]

Barry Gardiner: The dairy supply chain forum, now chaired by my noble Friend Lord Rooker, meets on a quarterly basis. Recent discussions have covered: the environmental challenges facing the dairy sector; barriers to innovation; the National Farmers' Union's paper, "A Vision for the Dairy Industry"; the Milk Development Council's paper, "Raw milk contracts and relationships—the need for change"; and animal health and welfare initiatives.

Notes of the meetings are available at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/foodrin/milk/supplychainforum/dscfworkofforum.htm

Departmental Catering

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has held with other Ministers on the sourcing of publicly-procured food; and what proportion of such food was of British origin in 2005. [78163]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 16 June 2006]: DEFRA Ministers have had recent discussions with other Ministers on the sourcing of publicly-procured food and announcements will be made in the very near future.

The Department is not aware of any central source of information on the proportion of publicly-procured food that was of British origin in 2005. The information could be determined only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Press Office

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) black and Asian and (b) other people are employed in his Department's press office. [74357]

Barry Gardiner: The Department currently has 31 members of staff employed in the Press Office, of which 15 have declared they are white, three black and Asian, and 13 are unknown/undeclared.

Information on the ethnicity is collected on a voluntary basis.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of his staff are (a) under and (b) over 55 years of age. [77272]

Barry Gardiner: As at 31 December 2005, there were (a) 5,212 staff under and (b) 735 staff over 55 years of age in DEFRA.

End-of-life Vehicles

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what obligations are placed on members of the public wishing to sell vehicle parts on (a) the internet and (b) elsewhere under the End of Life Vehicles legislation. [82427]

Mr. Bradshaw: End of Life Vehicles legislation does not place any requirements on members of the public selling vehicle parts on the internet or elsewhere.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Environment Agency in enforcing the End of Life Vehicles legislation. [82428]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA is satisfied with the way the Environment Agency are enforcing the End of Life Vehicles legislation.

In 2004, the Environment Agency took 15 prosecutions for offences involving the keeping or treating of End of Life Vehicles (ELVs). The figure for 2005 was 30. There have been 13 in the first five months of 2006. These are cases where ELVs were the main or a significant proportion of the waste being handled illegally.

English Nature

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the grant-in-aid to English Nature for 2006-07 will be paid. [81083]

Barry Gardiner: Grant in aid is paid to English Nature on a monthly basis. Payments totalling £16 million have already been made to English Nature during the first quarter of this financial year. The next monthly claim, for £4 million, has recently been submitted by English Nature to cover July operational costs and this will be paid within the next week. My Department expects to be in a position to confirm English Nature's overall financial settlement for 2006-07 shortly.

Fisheries

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Libyan counterpart on British fishing rights in Libyan waters. [81461]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have participated in no recent discussions regarding fishing opportunities for UK fishermen in Libyan waters.

Fishing opportunities for European Fishermen in Third Country Waters are negotiated by the European Commission through a Fisheries Partnership Agreement. Under the Common Fisheries policy the European Commission has competency to represent the member states in this context.

Currently there is no Fisheries Partnership Agreement between Libya and the European Community and there are no plans to make one in the foreseeable future.

This would not prevent individual UK fishermen gaining access to Libyan waters under a private agreement with Libyan fishermen. There are no European or UK laws preventing this at present. However this would be a private business venture up to the fishermen involved, and would necessitate the agreement of the Libyan Government.

Housing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the Affordable Rural Housing Commission; and when he expects to make a decision on additional funds for housing in rural areas. [77813]

Barry Gardiner: The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Minister for Housing and Planning both took part in discussions of the Affordable Rural Housing Commission report on the day of its launch. Affordable rural housing will continue to be one of the subjects covered in the regular dialogue between the two Departments and across Government.

The Government are currently considering the report and will use a range of channels and mechanisms to respond in a constructive way to the agenda set by the Commission, including in the forthcoming Spending Review.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside his Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in his Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71792]

Barry Gardiner: In each of the last five years, the Department (core Defra only) has spent the following on information technology (IT) sourced from outside the Department:

	Amount (£)
2001-02	29,713,164
2002-03	43,297,947
2003-04	54,704,124
2004-05	41,214,953
2005-06	86,253,815

Notes:
1. These figures do not include expenditure on Capital Equipment or Construction in Progress (CIP)*.
2. Capital Expenditure (Capex) is shown on clearing account balance sheets, if expenditure is not cleared to the Fixed Assets Register (FAR) and CIP Register.
3. Therefore the end year balances on the Clearing equipment and CIP balance sheets may include expenditure c/f from earlier years.
4. There are no central records of actual IT Capex spend for these years.
5. Costs include consultancy expenditure related to the E-nabling programme.
6. Does not include any IT spend hidden in programme—0460.

The Chief Information Officer, Chris Chant, is responsible for the successful delivery of IT projects within Defra. He has extensive experience in leading business transformation, large programme management, strategic supplier management and change management. His previous experience includes being the Service Delivery Team Director in the e-Government Unit of the Cabinet Office, and responsibility for the Inland Revenue e-Services Programme.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) outturn cost was in each of the five largest information technology contracts agreed with outside suppliers over the last five years. [71793]

Barry Gardiner: The Department is able to confirm that over the last five years there have been three large IT contracts agreed with outside suppliers, and these are with Accenture, IBM, and LogicaCMG.

Accenture

(a) Original estimated cost—£34.10 million

(b) Recently estimated costs—£55.04 million

(c) Outturn costs—£55.04 million (plus enhancement work to the value of £928,000 in 2005-06 and £2.7 million in 2006-07).

IBM

(a) Original estimated cost—£85 million per year

(b) Recently estimated costs—£85 million per year

(c) Outturn costs—£24,499,785 in 2004-05 and £97,217,291 in 2005-06.

LogicaCMG

(a) Original estimated cost—£16.10 million

(b) Recently estimated costs—£17.492 million (plus annual indexation)

(c) Outturn costs—Cost of supply was £6.7 million in 2002. The balance is for support and maintenance to be paid over the remainder of the contract, which ends in 2014.

Smaller, local IT contracts will also have been agreed; however, information on these is neither managed nor maintained centrally, and therefore it would incur disproportionate costs to collate. Only by reference to such information would it be possible to determine which are the fourth and fifth largest IT contracts, agreed with outside suppliers, in the Department.

Meat Imports

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many samples of imported beef and beef products from (a) other EU member states and (b) other countries were tested for residues of (i) oestradiol, (ii) testosterone, (iii) progesterone, (iv) zeranol, (v) trenbolone and (vi) melegesterol acetate in (A) 2004 and (B) 2005; [81209]

(2) what the most recent date on which beef imported into the UK was tested for residues of oestradiol; and how many samples were collected. [81210]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2004, the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) organised the testing of 301 samples of imported beef for trenbolone and zeranol (one sample was found to be of UK origin and one was unassayable on arrival at the laboratory).

Of the 299 assayable imported samples, 82 were from other EU member states and 217 were from other countries. No detectable residues of either trenbolone or zeranol were found in 2004, which was also the case in 2003. Trenbolone and zeranol were therefore removed from the imports surveillance programme for 2005 on the recommendation of the independent veterinary residues committee, which oversees the surveillance work of the VMD and advises the food standards agency on relevant surveys. They may be included again in the future.

	2003		2004
Substance	Samples	Positive	Samples	Positive
Trenbolone	300	—	299	—
Zeranol	300	—	299	—

Testing was not carried out for the other listed substances in 2004 and 2005 and imported beef has not been tested for residues of oestradiol. All of the results of the VMD's surveillance for residues of veterinary medicines and other substances are published in its quarterly magazine, (MAVIS) available from its website at: www.vmd.gov.uk

Oestradiol is a naturally occurring hormone. It will be present in beef at varying concentrations, dependant on the physiological state of the animal when it was slaughtered, and also its sex and age. Muscle, which is the matrix available for testing is not ideal. The EU's community reference laboratory recommends serum, which is not available in imported beef.

Scientific advice from two of the UK's national reference laboratories for veterinary residues analysis is that any difference in concentrations between untreated animals and those treated with exogenous oestradiol is very small. So, distinguishing between them would be unlikely. Therefore no testing has been carried out on imported beef in the last 10 years. Responsibility for testing produce from non-EU member states rests with the country of entry into the EU. Once produce has entered the EU, it should have free circulation within all member states, as part of the single market.

EU legislation imposes a series of health and supervisory requirements on non-EU countries before they export food to the EU. These are designed to ensure that imported animals and animal products meet standards at least equivalent to those required for production in, and trade between, member states. The use of the listed substances as growth promoting hormones is banned in the EU, and therefore they should not be present in beef imported into the EU.

The European Commission's Food and Veterinary Office check on compliance with such legislation in EU and non-EU countries exporting to the EU.

Milk Industry

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance he is making available to encourage co-operation in the milk industry. [76072]

Barry Gardiner: The Government are helping to promote greater co-operation through the Dairy Supply Chain Forum. The group regularly brings together all the key links in the supply chain to discuss the challenges facing the dairy industry, and to develop collaborative solutions.

The dairy industry also directly benefits from grants awarded under the Agriculture Development scheme. These are helping to fund benchmarking workshops and create a network of dairy best practice groups.

The Government are also supporting the work of English Farming and Food Partnerships (EFFP). Its aim is to promote and encourage greater co-operation and collaboration in all sectors of the farming and food industries, and all the major dairy co-operatives in England are involved. EFFP is currently taking forward an initiative called "share to milk", which will highlight examples of successful collaborative activity and best practice in the dairy sector.

Minister of State (Sustainable Farming and Foods)

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 June 2006, Official Report, column 100W, of the Minister of State (sustainable farming and foods), if he will estimate the proportion of the time that Lord Rooker has devoted to official duties that he has spent on the affairs of his Department. [79226]

Barry Gardiner: Lord Rooker works full-time on Defra affairs. His other responsibilities, as Northern Ireland spokesman and Deputy Leader of the House of Lords, are undertaken on top of his departmental duties when he is in the House of Lords.

New Technologies (Research)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of his Department's budget was spent researching new technologies in the last period for which figures are available. [76807]

Barry Gardiner: Science, engineering and technology (SET) statistics provide a breakdown of Government R and D expenditure by primary purpose and Department. The following table outlines spend for the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for 2003-04 on Technology Support and gives this as a percentage of the Department's total budget. The category Technology Support includes strategic as well as applied research, and pre-competitive research. These figures exclude funding of the research base under the science budget and are derived from SET statistics. Tables 3.5 and 3.10 are available on the DTI website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/science/science-funding/set-stats/govt-exp-r&d/index.html hard copies of which are available in the House of Commons Library.

Analysis of DEFRA R and D expenditure

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the inter-departmental steering group for the Olympics. [81562]

Barry Gardiner: Jonathan Tillson, head of the sustainable communities division, is responsible for Olympics-related activity within the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and sits on the inter-departmental steering group for the Olympics.

Rural Enterprise Scheme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will enable surplus funds in his Department's rural enterprise scheme and processing and marketing scheme to be re-allocated to the South-West England region to cover the funding shortfall; and if he will make a statement. [81760]

Barry Gardiner: The rural enterprise scheme and processing and marketing grant have been very popular and successful across the country. The announcement, in February this year that these schemes would close on 30 June led to a large increase in the number of applications, all of which were seeking funding from a limited budget.

DEFRA and the Rural Development Service (RDS) expect to be able to award fully the remaining funds to projects in the respective regions where that money was scheduled to be allocated. In the event that any money remains unallocated after the final Regional Appraisal Panels have met (in August), RDS have put in place plans and procedures to allocate any surplus to the highest quality reserve projects from around the country.

Good quality reserve projects from the South-West region would be included in this exercise, but in such an event projects will be judged on their merits regardless of the region they are from.

Rural Payments Agency

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his estimate is of the costs of running the Rural Payments Agency for each year since 2001. [71515]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency (RPA), an agency of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA), was formed on 16 October 2001. Its main objective is to administer the common agricultural policy for England. The gross running costs associated with the administration of the payments to farmers for each of the five years are given as follows. The figures for 2000-01 are the combined figures for the Intervention Board and the elements of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food that merged to become RPA in October 2001.

	Amount (£ million)
2000-01	140.0
2001-02	[1]126.5
2002-03	[2]186.4
2003-04	198.4
2004-05	249.2

[2] Restated figure under merger accounting.

The detail supporting each of the years can be found in RPA's annual report and accounts under House of Commons publication numbers HC 1197 (for both 2000-01 and 2001-02), HC 940, HC 1009 and HC 82 respectively.

Single Farm Payments

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent progress has been made in making single farm payments to farmers in Northamptonshire. [72937]

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many single farm payments have been made in (a) England and (b) Shropshire in excess of entitlements; and, in each case, by what aggregate amount. [74175]

Barry Gardiner: As at 23 June 2006 104,230 payments had been made in respect of Single Payment Scheme applications. This figure consists of full and partial payments. Work is continuing by the Rural Payments Agency to pay as many claims as possible using a variety of methods by the end of the payment window on 30 June.

Payments have been calculated and paid based on the number of entitlements established, including a substantial number of partial payments, where the payment was calculated on the basis of an estimated number of entitlements.

Details of payments made in England up to 30 June 2006, including by constituency and county, are not presently available but will be published in due course.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the chief executive of the Rural Payments Agency will receive a financial bonus for the complete payment of single farm payments. [76182]

Barry Gardiner: The chief executive of the RPA was replaced after advising Ministers that, contrary to earlier assurances, the bulk of 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) payments would not be made by the end of March. The current interim chief executive, who is now responsible for turning the system around, will be eligible for a bonus payment at the end of this financial year subject to the achievement of challenging targets. These will be set in the light of his plans to improve the RPA's performance and will certainly cover the administration of the SPS.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments have been made to third parties in relation to administering the Single Payment Scheme. [74071]

Barry Gardiner: The main third parties whose services have been used to set up the administration of the Single Payment Scheme are Accenture, Infoterra and Black & Veatch. Payments made to date to each of these companies are detailed as follows:

Main third party	£ million
Accenture	49.9
Infoterra	9.36
Black & Veatch	0.4

In addition, the Rural Payments Agency has employed agency staff and consultants.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent discussions he has had with the European Commission regarding EU fines for not paying all of the Single Farm Payment by 30 June 2006; whether the deadline will be extended; and if he will make a statement; [79894]

(2) how much the European Commission will fine the UK Government for missing the 30 June 2006 deadline for Single Farm Payment if (a) 85 per cent., (b) 86 per cent., (c) 87 per cent., (d) 88 per cent., (e) 89 per cent., (f) 90 per cent., (g) 91 per cent., (h) 92 per cent., (i) 93 per cent., (j) 94 per cent., (k) 95 per cent., (l) 96 per cent., (m) 97 per cent., (n) 98 per cent., (o) 99 per cent. have been paid by the deadline. [79895]

Barry Gardiner: The end of the regulatory payment window for the 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) is 30 June 2006. Discussions with the European Commission suggest that a formal extension to that window is unlikely, but those discussions will continue, focussed on the application of separate regulatory requirements on the EU funding of payments. As things stand, those requirements are, in summary, that where payments made after 30 June in any member state amount to 4 per cent. or less of what was paid out before that date, no reduction in EU funding will be imposed. For any amounts outstanding after 30 June over and above the 4 per cent. threshold, reductions will apply as follows:

up to 1	10
up to 2	25
up to 3	45
up to 4	70
up to 5 or more	100

Furthermore, where the 4 per cent. threshold has not been used by 15 October, it will be reduced to 2 per cent.

Whether there is any reduction in EU funding of UK 2005 SPS payments and, if so, how much will, therefore, depend on the amount and timing of any payments made after 30 June deadline across the UK.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on computer training for the systems to implement the Single Farm Payment. [79897]

Barry Gardiner: The expenditure on training in the new business processes and IT systems in the implementation and ongoing delivery of the Single Payment Scheme was £1,342,296.

Sovereign Strategy

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to his answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 165W, on Sovereign Strategy, on how many occasions (a) he, (b) his predecessor and (c) other Ministers in his Department met (i) Alan Donnelly, (ii) representatives of Alan Donnelly and (iii) others about whom he was informed that they were representatives of Sovereign Strategy, regardless of whether they were acting in that capacity at the meeting, in the last 12 months. [80252]

Barry Gardiner: There is no departmental record of any meeting in the last 12 months between the Secretary of State, his predecessor, or other Ministers, and representatives of Alan Donnelly or Sovereign Strategy.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of his Department. [80647]

Barry Gardiner: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the code of conduct for special advisers.

Uplands Rewards Scheme

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to ensure that the Uplands Reward Scheme provides for (a) appropriate staffing levels and (b) appropriate levels and mix of stock to maintain the integrity of the Uplands. [80701]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 27 June 2006]: The consultation on the future upland reward structure closed on 22 May. We are currently considering responses. A mixed stocking option will be added to the Entry Level Environmental Stewardship Scheme this summer. This will encourage a mix of stock.

Water Companies

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of whether each of the regulated water companies is making a reasonable rate of return on capital as defined in the relevant legislation; and if he will make a statement; [81085]

(2) what assessment he has made of whether water companies are making excessive rates of return. [81583]

Ian Pearson: The Government recognise that companies have to earn a return on their capital and Ofwat has a duty to enable them to reasonably do so. At each price review, Ofwat must make a judgment about what is a reasonable return on capital to be allowed in price limits. If companies outperform Ofwat's assumptions at the last price review, then customers will share the benefit in their bills from 2010.

Rates of return earned by water companies in 2000-05 were lower than 1990-95.

Woodland

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place for the protection of woodland in (a) South Swindon constituency and (b) the Great Western Community Forest. [82415]

Barry Gardiner: A number of measures are in place to protect woodlands in England including South Swindon and Great Western Community Forest. In particular the felling of woodland is controlled through the felling regulations. Additionally, many woodlands are subject to further controls where they lie within designated areas such as sites of special scientific interest or special areas of conservation.

Local planning authorities also have wide powers to protect trees and woodland by means of Tree Preservation Orders.

Where it is intended to fell trees and use the land for another purpose the proposals will be assessed under the Environmental Impact Assessment (Forestry) Regulations and consent for felling under these regulations may also be required from the Forestry Commission.

Planning Policy Statement 9 says that, for areas of ancient woodland that do not benefit from statutory protection, planning permission should not be granted for any development that would result in its loss or deterioration unless the need for, and benefits of, the development in that location outweigh the loss of the woodland habitat.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Mayoral Referendums

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what guidance the Electoral Commission has issued on the classification of expenditure on (a) gathering signatures for a mayoral petition and (b) campaigning for or against a mayoral referendum. [82995]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it does not issue guidance on the classification of expenditure for mayoral referendums as it has no statutory remit in respect of such referendums.

Party Accounts

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Commission is taking to ensure compliance with the law on publication of party accounts; and how many constituency parties or associations of (a) the Conservative party, (b) the Labour party and (c) the Liberal Democrats complied in the last year for which information is available. [82534]

Peter Viggers [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The Commission informs me that it regularly communicates with registered political parties to ensure that both they and their registered accounting units comply with the law on submission of accounts. This includes the provision of information, sending out reminder letters and arranging meetings wherever necessary. Where the Commission feels further action is necessary, officers from the Commission work with individual parties in enhancing their financial reporting systems to improve their ability to comply with the law.

Any registered accounting unit whose gross income or total expenditure in a financial year exceeds £25,000 is required to submit a statement of accounts to the Commission within three months of the year end if these are not required to be audited, and six months if they are. The Commission has no means of knowing, in advance, which accounting units will exceed the £25,000 reporting threshold in any given year.

In the year to 31 December 2004 (the last year for which information is available), the number of constituency parties or associations that submitted accounts were:

	Total submitted	Submitted on time	Submitted late
The Conservative party	314	308	6
The Labour party	46	24	22
The Liberal Democrats	83	76	7

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the composition is of the British Provisional Reconstruction Team in Helmand Province. [82476]

Dr. Howells: The UK-led Provincial Reconstruction Team in Lashkar Gah, Helmand Province, consists of representatives of UK armed forces, the Ministry of Defence, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Department for International Development, and our embassy in Kabul's drugs team. In addition, there are UK-funded advisers working in the fields of governance, police reform, and justice/rule of law. Multinational elements include military and civilian elements from Denmark and Estonia and the US Agency for International Development, US Department for Agriculture and US State Department officials. The Afghan Government are represented by an official from the Ministry of the Interior.

Belarus

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial assistance the UK Government are giving to establish a free Belarus radio. [81847]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Since 1 November 2005, the UK, together with EU partners, has funded independent radio broadcasts into Belarus. The most recently launched project by the European Commission is to last for two years at the cost of €2 million. The project comprises TV and radio broadcasts from Poland, Lithuania and Germany into Belarus. It also provides funding for internet print media and training of journalists.

Bulgaria/Romania

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions Ministers from her Department have visited (a) Bulgaria and (b) Romania in the last 12 months. [82119]

Mr. Hoon: The then Minister for Europe, my right hon. Friend the Member for Paisley and Renfrewshire, South (Mr Alexander), visited Bulgaria and Romania on 5-6 February and visited Bulgaria again from 27-28 April to attend the NATO Foreign Ministers meeting. My hon. Friend the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs also visited both countries on 8-10 May. I hope to visit later this year.

Burma

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of the percentage of the world's uranium supplies which are in Burma. [82538]

Dr. Howells: The International Atomic Energy Agency online database of world uranium deposits lists no entries for Burma. The Burmese Government have identified five sites of uranium ore deposits, located at Magway, Taungdwingyi, Kyaukphygon (Mogok), Kyauksin, and Paongpyin (Mogok). Their official reporting can be found at: www.energy.gov.mm. The total quantity of uranium is unknown, but is likely to be very limited.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of whether the uranium produced and exported by Burma is the kind that can be used in the development of (a) nuclear weapons and (b) dirty bombs. [82539]

Dr. Howells: We are not aware of any exports of uranium from Burma. Burma maintains that its limited uranium production is for ongoing studies into the peaceful use of nuclear power.

Any uranium ore would have to be processed before it could be used in a nuclear facility. In particular, to be used in a nuclear weapons programme, uranium would have to be enriched to more than 90 per cent. U235. We are not aware of any enrichment facilities being operational in Burma.

Uranium is not an effective material to use in the construction of a radiological weapon, or "dirty bomb".

Corporal Gilad Shalit

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on Israel's actions to secure the release of Corporal Gilad Shalit; and if she will make a statement. [82621]

Mr. McCartney: Israel has the right to take steps to secure the release of Corporal Shalit. Any military steps taken should avoid civilian casualties, abide by international law and observe the principle of proportionality. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the current situation in Gaza with Palestinian President Abbas and Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 25 June. We are in regular contact with the Palestinian President and his office. We call for the immediate and unconditional release of Corporal Shalit.

As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 25 June

"I was very disturbed to learn of this serious terrorist attack at Sufa. I send my condolences to the families of those Israeli soldiers who have died. Such continued violence makes the prospect of a negotiated, peaceful resolution more distant".

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations (a) she and (b) her officials have made to the Palestinian Authority regarding the abduction and detention without trial of Corporal Gilad Shalit by Palestinian militants. [82171]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the current situation in Gaza with Palestinian President Abbas on 25 June. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials are in regular contact with the Palestinian President and his office. We call for the immediate and unconditional release of Corporal Shalit.

As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 25 June

"I was very disturbed to learn of this serious terrorist attack at Sufa. I send my condolences to the families of those Israeli soldiers who have died. Such continued violence makes the prospect of a negotiated, peaceful resolution more distant".

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 16 May 2006 on Afghanistan and Iraq. [81452]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade (Mr. McCartney), replied to the hon. Gentleman's letter of 16 May on 29 June.

Democratic Republic of the Congo

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the effectiveness of the UN peacekeeping operation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. [82058]

Mr. McCartney: The UN peacekeeping operation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), MONUC, is the largest and most complex mission that the UN has managed to date. Its key tasks are to facilitate political transition and power sharing arrangements, deal with armed groups outside the political process and to protect civilians.

MONUC chairing aided the peace process since 2002 by brokering cease-fires and peace deals and the International Committee in Support of the Transition, which engages with the Congolese Government. Following MONUC's support for a successful referendum last December, the country is set to hold its first elections since the 1960s. UN expertise and MONUC's logistical support for this process have been crucial to making this possible.

MONUC operates in a dangerous and complex environment and has been mandated by the UN Security Council, under chapter VII of the UN charter, to support the Congolese Army to disarm those groups that are a threat to the peace process and to protect civilians from rebel attack. There has been considerable progress in dealing with armed groups, but attacks on civilians remain at an unacceptable level.

In 2004 a number of cases of sexual abuse and exploitation by UN peacekeepers and staff in the DRC came to light, raising serious concerns about MONUC's management. After a thorough investigation by the Secretary-General's special representative on the issue, a series of measures were introduced to combat the problem of sexual abuse and exploitation by UN peacekeepers across all UN missions. MONUC has stringently imposed these measures on UN staff and peacekeepers. We continue to keep MONUC's performance under close review in all areas of its activity, through our Embassy in Kinshasa and through regular Security Council discussions.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures are in place to ensure that no illegal immigrants are employed in the manned guarding of her Department's premises. [80799]

Mr. Hoon: Only British nationals can work as security guards in Foreign and Commonwealth Office premises in the UK. To ensure illegal immigrants are not employed the pre-employment checks require the following:

application form completed and checked;

four personal references;

and five year employment history.

Departmental Staff

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many disabled staff in her Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82227]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not have a complete record of the number of officers who have received support through the Access to Work scheme. Staff who seek such support contact the Department for Work and Pensions directly and are under no obligation to notify the FCO. However, we are aware of 15 staff who are currently receiving support.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in her Department are carbon neutral; and if she will make a statement. [81408]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) offsets the carbon dioxide and other emissions generated by the air travel of Ministers and officials based in the UK. Each year we offset the previous year's air travel emissions, so in 2005-06 we offset our 2004 emissions. An agreement was signed with the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Partnership (REEEP) at the end of 2005 to offset our 2004 emissions, one year ahead of the requirement for Government Departments to offset air travel by April 2006. Through REEEP we offset our emissions by investing in projects which provide carbon credits from renewable energy and energy efficiency schemes. Investment is concentrated in developing countries, which are highly dependent on fossil fuels and inefficient energy technology.

We are also running a travel management campaign to encourage staff to consider and use means other than travelling to communicate with their colleagues overseas wherever practical e.g. videoconferencing.

East Timor

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answers of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 470W, on East Timor, what assessment she has made of whether precautions to ensure the security of (a) Serious Crimes Unit files on crimes committed in 1999 and (b) other files, including those on the UN investigation into the deaths of Malcolm Rennie and Brian Peters in 1975, were along lines requested by her Department of the UN and of the Government of Timor-Leste; and if she will make a statement. [81724]

Mr. McCartney: We have informed the UN Mission to East Timor and the East Timorese Government of the importance that we attach to the security of all case files. All Serious Crimes Unit files have been copied digitally and are held by the UN. However, as yet, due to the recent civil unrest in East Timor and resulting lack of personnel within the local government, it has not been possible for the UN to establish the location of the UN investigation files relating to Malcolm Rennie and Brian Peters. We will continue to press for this information.

Ethiopia

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations her Department has made to the Government of Ethiopia on the human rights situation in that country; and if she will make a statement. [82056]

Mr. McCartney: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to her on 29 June 2006, Official Report, columns 574-75W.

EU (Qualified Majority Voting)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when officials in her Department first became aware of EU Commission proposals to extend qualified majority voting over police and judicial affairs. [82307]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The possibility of extending qualified majority voting to police and judicial affairs was provided for in the Amsterdam and Nice treaties. Article 42 of the treaty on European Union (TEU)—the passerelle—allows for areas governed by title VI (third pillar) to be transferred to title IV (first pillar) by unanimous Council decision. It is likely, although not inevitable, that this would mean a move to qualified majority voting and co-decision, which is the norm in the first pillar.

The European Commission's plans to put forward proposals for exploiting Article 42 TEU and changing the decision-making arrangements in the field of police and judicial affairs were raised, in general terms, in its communication "A Citizens' Agenda: Delivering Results for Europe" on 10 May 2006. In this communication, the Commission announced its intention to "present an initiative to improve decision taking and accountability in areas such as police and judicial co-operation and legal migration, using the possibilities under the existing Treaties".

The Commission's formal proposals for changing the decision-making procedure for the area of Justice and Home Affairs were not published until 28 June.

The Finnish presidency has also announced its intention to explore the possibility of using the article 42 passerelle to improve the decision-making process. In its "Preliminary Agenda for Finland's Presidency of the EU" of 24 May, the presidency said that the review of the Hague Programme "could include...achieving more effective decision-making on police and criminal law (the "passerelle")".

EU Accession Countries

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment she has made of the suitability of the Republic of Montenegro for membership of the European Union; and if she will make a statement; [82115]

(2) what assessment she has made of whether (a) the Republic of Montenegro and (b) the Republic of Serbia will be first to join the European Union; and if she will make a statement; [82116]

(3) what discussions she has had with (a) European Commission officials and (b) other EU governments on the suitability of Montenegro for membership of the European Union; [82117]

(4) how the Stabilisation and Association negotiations will be re-launched in the aftermath of the separation of Serbia and Montenegro. [82118]

Mr. Hoon: The UK supports both Serbia's and Montenegro's European aspirations. The pace at which each country moves towards membership of the EU will depend upon it meeting the conditions required at each stage. The next stage for each state is to conclude negotiations with the EU on a Stabilisation and Association Agreement. The European Commission is likely to bring forward mandates for the negotiations shortly. Conclusion of agreements will depend, in both cases, on fulfilling the appropriate conditions, in particular full co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. We will maintain regular discussions with the European Commission and with our EU partners on these issues.

EU Fraud

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 301W, on EU fraud, what information is held on allegations by diplomats; to which cases the allegations refer; and if she will make a statement. [81943]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not hold a comprehensive record of EU fraud allegations. Such allegations are addressed to the EU Commission. The Government fully support the Commission's work on this issue.

However, I can confirm that the FCO Europe Directorate does hold the following information compiled when there was public interest in two cases on 9 December 2005:

The European Commission (EC) Staff Regulations require EC staff to raise any concerns they have with either the Director-General of their institution, the Secretary-General, "persons in equivalent positions", or the independent European Anti-Fraud Office.

Porte Schmidt-Brown

Ms Schmidt-Brown recently took a case to the European Court of Justice's Court of First Instance. The Court ruled against her. It would not be appropriate to comment on the Court's judgement.

Hans-Martin Tillack

Mr. Tillack filed a complaint against the European Anti-Fraud Office at the European Court of Justice's Court of First Instance. The Court rejected his case. It would not be appropriate to comment on the Court's judgement.

Extraditions (Colombia)

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what representations she has made to the Irish Government about the extradition request by the Colombian Government of James Monaghan, Niall Connolly and Martin McCauley; [82377]

(2) what representations she has made to the Colombian Government in relation to its request for the extradition from the Irish Republic of James Monaghan, Niall Connolly and Martin McCauley. [82378]

Mr. McCartney: We have made no representations to either the Irish or Colombian Governments over this issue.

Extraordinary Rendition

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the statement of the Secretary General of the Council of Europe on 27 June on extraordinary renditions; and if she will make a statement. [81951]

Dr. Howells: The Government have fully co-operated with the Council of Europe inquiries. We have found no evidence of detainees being rendered through UK territory or airspace where there were substantial grounds to believe there was a real risk of torture. The then Foreign Secretary set out in his written ministerial statement of 20 January 2006, Official Report, columns 37-38WS, the results of the extensive review of Official Records back to May 1997.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she will provide the information on extraordinary rendition requested by the Joint Committee on Human Rights in its nineteenth report, published in May 2006. [81952]

Dr. Howells: The Government are considering the Joint Committee on Human Rights report on the Convention Against Torture and will reply to the Committee in due course.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the British Government will play a role in supporting the secure development of oil and gas exploration facilities in the Falkland Islands waters. [79700]

Mr. Hoon: The Government will play a role in supporting the secure development of oil and gas exploration facilities in the Falkland Islands territorial sea and continental shelf. The Government are responsible for the external security and defence of the Falkland Islands. The provision of routine security and policing of oilrigs is a matter for the Falkland Islands Government and the oil exploration companies.

Gaza

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Israeli authorities about the closure of the Kerem Shalom Crossing in Gaza; and what alternative arrangements are being made to allow access to Gaza for food and medical humanitarian assistance. [82607]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The Kerem Shalom, as well as all other crossing points between Gaza and Israel, remains closed for Palestinian nationals. We raised our concerns about their closure and the humanitarian situation in the Gaza Strip with the Israeli Government on 29 June and we will continue to do so. The Erez crossing remains open for humanitarian cases.

On 2 July the Karni crossing was opened for humanitarian aid. The crossing is expected to be open for six hours a day for four days this week. According to the Israeli Ministry of Defence, Israel would allow 150 trucks carrying food and medicine to pass through the crossing each day.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made by the (a) Government, (b) EU and (c) UN of the effect on the humanitarian situation in Gaza of (i) the closure of all land crossing in and out of Gaza, (ii) the prevention of fishermen accessing the sea and (iii) the destruction of the electricity supply station. [82610]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 4 July 2006]: We are concerned by the humanitarian situation in Gaza, particularly the supply of electricity, water and the closure of the Gaza-Israel crossing points. Our defence attaché in Tel Aviv raised our concerns about the worsening situation in Gaza, including the loss of power and water supplies, with the Israeli Defence Force on 29 June.

On 30 June, the EU said it regrets the destruction of essential infrastructure, which contributes to the deterioration of the humanitarian situation in Gaza. Restoring electricity and water supplies and access for humanitarian organisations must be a priority now to avoid a humanitarian crisis. The EU has continually called upon both parties to implement the 15 November 2005 Agreement on Movement and Access, and for Israel to keep the crossing points between Gaza and Israel open.

On 29 June the UN Secretary-General highlighted his concerns about the humanitarian situation in Gaza. He called on "the Government of Israel to show restraint, to avoid actions that damage civilian infrastructure and that aggravates the hardship of the Palestinian population, and to abide by international humanitarian law. To prevent a further decline in the humanitarian situation, Israel should also act urgently to facilitate the import of essential medical supplies, foodstuffs, and particularly fuel into the Gaza Strip".

The World Food Programme and the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs reported on the situation in Gaza on 30 June. They raised concerns over the water supply, health matters and food scarcity given the lack of electricity and a shortage of fuel caused by closures of the crossing points. We note with concern the World Food Programme assessment of the impact of fishermen not being able to go out to sea.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what monitoring is being undertaken by the UK Government to ascertain whether military equipment and components supplied to Israel from the UK are being used in the military incursions by Israel into Gaza which commenced on 27 June 2006. [82166]

Dr. Howells: In common with all of our diplomatic posts, our Embassy in Tel Aviv monitors local developments closely and notes any information which comes to light that military equipment supplied by the UK has been used in a manner inconsistent with the Consolidated Criteria. The Government will take this into consideration when assessing any future export licence applications. The Government may also revoke relevant licence(s) and ask the authorities in the country concerned to investigate.

All export licence applications from the UK are rigorously assessed on a case-by-case basis against the Consolidated EU and National Export Licensing Criteria, taking full account of the prevailing circumstances at the time of application.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of (a) the number of Palestinians taken by Israeli forces in the Occupied Palestinian Territories who are held in detention without trial and (b) the number of children taken and held in this way. [82170]

Dr. Howells: Administrative detainees are held in both Israeli Defence Force (IDF) and Israel Prisons Service (IPS) facilities. According to figures provided by the IDF to Israeli non-governmental organisations, the IDF was holding, as of 3 January 2006, 741 Palestinians in administrative detention. IPS told our embassy in Tel Aviv that, as of May 2006, 617 administrative detainees were being held in IPS facilities.

We are concerned at the policy of administrative detention, especially when periods of detention are repeatedly extended without trial and involves the detention of minors. We have made no estimate of the number of minors in Israeli prisons.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response she has made to the agreement between Hamas and Fatah regarding acceptance of a two state settlement in Israel and Palestine; and what representations she has made to (a) the Palestinian Authority, (b) Israel and (c) the USA on the subject. [82172]

Dr. Howells: We would welcome any movement toward the three Quartet (EU, UN, US and Russia) principles: renounce violence; recognise Israel; and accept previous agreements, including the Roadmap. We are aware of reports that an agreement has been reached between Hamas and Fatah. We await an official announcement and further details. We will judge Hamas by their actions. We urge all parties to find a way back to negotiations, which are the best way of ensuring a lasting peace.

I refer my hon. Friend to the reply my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave the right hon. and learned Member for North-East Fife (Sir Menzies Campbell) on 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 255.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Israeli authorities about the detention of elected Palestinian representatives. [82611]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 4 July 2006]: At the G8 Foreign Ministers meeting in Moscow on 29 June, G8 Foreign Ministers called on Israel to exercise utmost restraint in the current crisis. They also expressed their concerns over the detention of elected members of the Palestinian Government and legislature.

On 30 June the EU raised its concerns

"about the detention of elected members of the Palestinian Government and legislature. Those detained should be accorded their full legal rights".

We have made no representations to the Israeli authorities on their behalf.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information she has received on the (a) names of the members of the Palestinian Parliament and Cabinet who have been recently arrested by the Israeli authorities and (b) (i) where, (ii) on what charges and (iii) under what legal authority they are being detained. [82618]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Local media has reported that the names of the arrested members of the Palestinian Government are as follows: Omar Abdel Razeq, Dr. Samir Abu-Aisha, Khaled Abu-Arafeh, Wasfi Kabaha, Issa Al- Ja'bari, Fakhri Turkman, Sheikh Nayef Al-Rjoub, Muhammad Bargouti, Basem Za'raier, Khalil Raba'I, Samir Al-Kadi, Muhammad al-Tal, Muhamad abu-Jheishah, Muhammad Bader, Anwar Zboun, Mahmoud Al-Kahtib, Wael Al-Husseini, Muhammad Abu-Teir, Ahmad Atoun, Husni Bureini, Riyad Amli, Yassir Mansour, Ibrahim Dahbour, Ibrahim Abu-Salem, Khaled Abu-Hassan, Khaled Yahia, Ryiad Raddad, Fathi Kara'wi, Imad Nofal, Naser Abdel-Jawad, Abdel-Jaber Fuqaha, Muhammad Totah and Ali Romanin. The arrests took place in the West Bank.

Individual charges against those detained have not been made public. The Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs has said that the arrest of these people "was taken within the context of a normal legal criminal procedure with the intention of questioning those who were arrested. They are suspected of criminal offences...that constitute a violation of the law according to the Ordinance for the Prevention of Terrorism".

Israel has said that those arrested will be entitled to legal defence and that "in the event that there is no basis for putting someone among those arrested on trial, that person will be released".

Kosovo

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions her Department has had with the Serbian Government regarding the final status of Kosovo. [82302]

Mr. Hoon: I met the Serbian Prime Minister Vladimir Kostunica in London on 27 June. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister also held a meeting with Prime Minister Kostunica. On 21 June I also saw President Boris Tadic in London. During these meetings, we both stressed the need for any final settlement for Kosovo to be a realistic one, acceptable to the people of Kosovo and promoting long-term regional stability.

We encourage Prime Minister Kostunica to ensure that the Serbian Government participate constructively in the status negotiations currently being conducted by UN Special Envoy, Martti Ahtisaari.

Russia

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the main priorities are of the UK in its relations with Russia. [81578]

Mr. Hoon: The Government will continue to sustain a productive and successful partnership with Russia which contributes to the achievement of the international priorities set out in the White Paper "Active Diplomacy for a Changing World" (28 March 2006) and the additional priority of climate security announced on 8 June 2006.

UK Ambassadors

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the names are of those who (a) approve and (b) select UK ambassadors. [80046]

Mr. Hoon: All Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) appointments are made in accordance with the rules in the Diplomatic Service or Home Civil Service Orders in Council.

As with other FCO appointments, applications for Heads of Mission positions are invited and candidates considered by the relevant FCO Selection Board, as follows:

the No 1 Selection Board (for appointments in Senior Management Structure Pay Bands 2-4 and all Governorships of Overseas Territories) is chaired by the Permanent Under-Secretary, and consists of the five Directors General and a non-Executive member of the FCO Board of Management;

the No 2 Selection Board (for appointments in Senior Management Structure Pay Band 1) is chaired by the Director, Human Resources and consists of all FCO Directors in Senior Management Structure Pay Band 2, and the Directors for the Americas and for Russia and Central Asia, as well as an independent observer; the Delegated Grades Band D Board is chaired by the Human Resources Assistant Director (Operations). Three independent board members sit on each board, drawn from a pool of Senior Management Structure officers who have volunteered for this role, undergone diversity training and been agreed by the Trade Union Side.

Some Heads of Mission appointments will be considered by interview panels, at the discretion of the Boards.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary approves all Head of Mission appointments, and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister approves all Head of Mission appointments in Pay Bands 2-4 and all Governorships of Overseas Territories, before the names of the individuals are submitted to Her Majesty the Queen for her approval.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to the Zimbabwean authorities on freedom of expression by opposition spokespersons in Zimbabwe. [81865]

Mr. McCartney: Our ambassador in Harare, Dr. Pocock, makes repeated representations to the Government of Zimbabwe and the Zimbabwe African National Union Patriotic Front leaders to reverse their policies which are causing immense suffering to Zimbabweans and to restore the democratic space, including by permitting freedom of expression for all Zimbabweans as well as civic society and opposition representatives. Dr. Pocock made these representations most recently during a call on Minister Mnangagwa on 17 May.

We will continue to work for the restoration of good governance and the rule of law in Zimbabwe.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate the Government has made of the amount of Zimbabwean beef licensed for export to the EU which comes from confiscated (a) land and (b) stock. [81944]

Mr. McCartney: The Statistical Office of the European Commission estimate that around 33 tonnes of beef products were imported into the EU from Zimbabwe in 2005. It is not possible to identify whether this came from confiscated land or stock. It is clear, however, that seizures of commercial beef farms have greatly affected production, and further demonstrates the extent of the damage caused by the Zimbabwe Government's misguided policies.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Crown Courts

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when her Department expects to finalise plans to increase Crown court capacity in Buckinghamshire; and what assessment has been made of providing Crown court facilities at (a) Aylesbury, (b) Milton Keynes and (c) both. [82285]

Ms Harman: A strategic business case has been prepared which outlines the need to seek to replace the current Aylesbury Crown court facilities with modern premises that provide additional capacity for the future.

The business case was prepared on the basis of reviewing the current and future requirements for the county of Buckinghamshire including Milton Keynes Unitary Authority.

At this stage it is considered that the facility will be in one location, still to be defined, and will serve the county of Buckinghamshire, including Milton Keynes.

The business case has been submitted to Her Majesty's Courts Service (HMCS) to be reviewed and receive detailed consideration by the National Property Board in the coming months. If the business case is determined as appropriate, it will be subject to prioritisation in the future HMCS building programme, and will then be dependant on Treasury approval of the HMCS capital spending programme.

In the meantime, the current Crown court requirements for Buckinghamshire and Milton Keynes are being reviewed to ensure that all courtroom capacity in the Thames Valley HMCS area is fully utilised to facilitate the early scheduling of cases. This does, on occasions, require the transfer of cases to other locations until a new facility is built to replace Aylesbury Crown court.

It is not anticipated that any new court building would be available before 2010, should it receive an early approval by the National Property Board for inclusion in current and future building schemes.

Parliamentary Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make it her policy to make copies of Deposited Papers available in (a) the Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library of the House; and if she will make a statement. [81454]

Vera Baird: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House.

[75994]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the following tables.

Total cases where recoupment from damages awarded to accident victims has been made by the Compensation Recovery Unit in each of the past three years

Departmental IT Systems

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) of14 March 2006, Official Report, column 2167W, on departmental IT systems, if he will list the suppliers and contractors involved in each project; and what proportion of listed outturn for each project was paid to each supplier and contractor involved. [61401]

James Purnell: The following table shows the project name, purpose, actual end date and outturn included in the answer to the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) of 14 March 2006, Official Report, column 2167W. We have added supplier/contractor and proportion of outturn columns and included the name of the principal IT suppliers/contractors for each project and the proportion of the outturn paid to these suppliers/contractors.

[1] This resource expenditure relates to 64 per cent. of the total DOI figure. The remaining 36 per cent. of the total relates to capital expenditure—the records that would allow us to provide an accurate picture of how this capital expenditure was split over the suppliers has been archived. The costs associated with the retrieval of these documents, and the accompanying staff time costs required to go through the records to identify these by supplier/contractor, would be excessive and time consuming.

Notes:

1. Outturn figures show the final investment cost for the completed projects.
2. The New Tax Credits project has not been included above as the project is still ongoing. It was inadvertently shown as completed in my response to the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) of 14 March 2006, Official Report, column 2167W.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many surviving spouses of members of pension schemes (a) have completed and (b) are in the process of completing the financial assistance scheme eligibility process. [72744]

James Purnell: The financial assistance scheme eligibility process is completed once a decision has been made as to whether or not a member is eligible for payments from the financial assistance scheme.

The process has (a) been completed for nine surviving spouses of members and (b) 10 are still being processed.

Housing Benefit

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent on housing benefit in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [79533]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the table.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of housing benefit (a) overpayments and (b) fraud was to Luton Council in each of the last five years. [80369]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the table.

Overpayments and recoveries by Luton Council, 2004-05

Value of overpayments identified by Luton Council	Subsidy paid by DWP to Luton council (40 per cent. of overpayments identified)	Net cost to Luton council before recovery	Recovered by Luton council	Net cost after recovery
986,776	394,710	592,066	1,007,423	-415,357

Notes:
1. A negative amount implies a surplus.
2. The cost of overpayments is calculated first from the difference between the value of overpayments identified due to fraud and claimant error, and the subsidy received by Luton council for these overpayments. This value minus any overpayments subsequently recovered from claimants or landlords is presented here as the net cost after recovery. Administrative costs, such as those for fraud teams and for recovering overpayments, have not been included in this answer.
3. The amount recovered by Luton council in 2004-05 includes overpayments identified in earlier years.

Information is not available on local authority performance in respect of the level of Housing Benefit fraud present in their caseload, since it is not possible to robustly estimate the amount of undetected fraud and error at a local authority level.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on housing benefit for tenants in (a) council property, (b) housing association property, (c) registered social landlord property and (d) private sector housing in Tamworth constituency in each of the last three years. [80135]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available broken down by constituency. Information cannot be broken down by landlord type other than by council or private tenancies. The latter includes housing associations and registered social landlords. The available DWP information for Tamworth borough council is in the table.

Kvaerner Pension Fund

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received regarding the decision of the pensions regulator on the future contributions of TH Global to the Kvaerner Pension Fund. [73211]

James Purnell: My Department has received seven written representations from Members of Parliament about the decision of the regulator in respect of the Kvaerner Pension Fund since the two press releases in April and May on the future of the scheme.

James Purnell: The information is not available in the format requested. Information on female beneficiaries of pension credit in Great Britain is in the following table. In Northern Ireland, pension credit administration is a matter for the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

1. These figures are early estimates. The preferred data source for figures supplied by DWP is the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS). However, the figures provided are the latest available figures which are taken from the GMS scan at 17 February 2006. These are adjusted using the historical relationship between WPLS and GMS data to give an estimate of the final WPLS figure. Average amounts are displayed as at the scan reference data of 17 February 2006.
2. Case loads are rounded to the nearest 10. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
3. Percentages are rounded to the nearest full point.
4. Figures may include female partners who are aged under 60.
5. Population figures used in the percentage calculation are based on ONS mid-term 2004 population estimates.

Department for Work and Pensions 100 per cent. data from the Generalised Matching Service (GMS). Pension credit scan taken as at 17 February 2006.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the (a) number and (b) proportion of pensioners who will be entitled to receive pension credit in (i) 2010, (ii) 2020, (iii) 2030, (iv) 2040 and (v) 2050, assuming pension credit remains linked to earnings growth; and if he will make a statement. [70286]

James Purnell: The numbers eligible for pension credit in the future are subject to a range of uncertainties and a number of factors including policies on uprating different benefits. Table 1 shows the projected number and proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit under the proposals contained in the White Paper "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system."

Table 1: Projected number and proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit for selected years under the White Paper proposals

	Number of pensioner households eligible (million)	Percentage of pensioner households eligible
2010	4.15	44
2020	3.45	41
2030	2.95	31
2040	2.80	27
2050	2.95	29

Notes:

1. Projections of the number and proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit are sensitive to modelling assumptions and to projected changes in the distribution of pensioner incomes.
2. The estimates of proportions shown here are the mid-points of projections taken from two separate micro-simulation models. Modelling of the reform proposals does not include any increase in private saving from the introduction of personal accounts, which would further reduce the numbers eligible for pension credit.
3. Projections of the number of pensioner households eligible for pension credit are derived from the projected proportions eligible and projections of the number of pensioner households in Great Britain.
4. These projections assume: continued earnings uprating of the standard guarantee credit; earnings uprating of the savings credit threshold from 2008 to 2014; earnings uprating of the basic state pension from 2012; price uprating of the maximum savings credit from 2015; measures to improve coverage of the basic state pension described in the White Paper.
5. Estimates cover all those aged above women's state pension age in the private household population of Great Britain.
6. Estimates account for equalisation of state pension age between 2010 and 2020. They also account for the proposed further increases in state pension age described in the White Paper. The estimates assume that the minimum age at which people can claim pension credit rises in line with women's state pension age.
7. Estimates are calibrated to the mid-points of the 2004-5 National Statistics range estimates of non-eligibility to pension credit, which adjust 2004-05 Family Resources Survey data to take account of possible biases in reporting. Although the estimates here are not presented as ranges, they are subject to a margin of uncertainty.
8. Estimates of the number of pensioner households eligible are rounded to the nearest 50,000.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the proportion of pensioner benefit units entitled to pension credit in each year between 2002-03 and 2020-21; and if he will make a statement. [70296]

James Purnell: The numbers eligible for pension credit in the future are subject to a range of uncertainties and a number of factors including policies on uprating different benefits. Table 1 shows the estimated proportion of all pensioner households eligible for pension credit from 2003-04—the first year in which pension credit was available—to 2007-08. Table 2 shows projections from 2008-09 to 2020-21 under the proposals contained in the White Paper "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system."

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many plastic folder-style pension credit wallets have been printed by the Pension Service. [80874]

James Purnell: The pension credit "plastic folder style" wallets were designed to allow customers to store their pension credit correspondence. Production of these wallets ceased in February 2003; approximately 1,350,000 were produced.

Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the effect on retirement income for pensioners who are members of defined contribution schemes in (a) 2020, (b) 2030, (c) 2040 and (d) 2050 of a reduction equivalent to the value of the contracted-out rebate in contributions. [77998]

James Purnell: The amount of pension derived from the contracted-out rebate for defined contribution schemes depends on investment returns and annuity rates at the point of retirement and it is not possible to predict the amount of that pension.

Where people contract out under such schemes, they forego all or part of their State Second Pension and, in return, part of their National Insurance Contributions is rebated and invested to build up a funded pension. The value of these rebates, subject to an age cap, is actuarially neutral in relation to the State benefit foregone. If a person ceases to be contracted-out, they will start to build up rights to State Second Pension. Given the actuarial neutrality of the rebate, they should generally be no better or worse off in retirement as a result of not receiving the contracted-out rebate.

Security in Retirement

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the proposals in "Security in retirement" whether earnings-related accruals in the state second pension (SSP) scheme up to 2030 will be paid to those receiving SSP for the first time after 2030; and how the earnings-related accruals to SSP will taper away after the restoration of the earnings link to the basic pension. [75246]

James Purnell: Earnings-related accruals of state second pension would be tapered away by around 2030 by freezing the national insurance upper earnings limit, for the purpose of state second pension accruals, in cash terms from the point at which earnings uprating of the basic state pension as proposed in the White Paper is introduced. Earnings-related accruals built up under the state earnings-related pension scheme and/or the state second pension prior to 2030 would be fully protected and would continue to be revalued in line with earnings from that date. The combination of our proposals to 'flat-rate' accruals of the state second pension and earnings uprate the basic state pension would ensure that the state pension outcomes for people reaching state pension age after 2030 would not be reduced. The following table shows examples of the state pension outcomes for individuals under the proposed reforms.

	Low earner (c £12,000 a year)	Median earner (c £23,000 a year)	High earner (c £33,000 a year)
Under Reform (2053)
Basic State Pension	73	73	73
State Second Pension	61	66	67
Total State Entitlement	134	139	140
Without Reform (2050)
Basic State Pension	33	33	33
State Second Pension	56	67	69
Total State Entitlement	89	100	102

Notes:
1. Figures have been expressed in 2005-06 earnings terms and reflect the value of pension entitlement in 2050 or 2053 relative to expected changes in the level of average earnings over time.
2. We have assumed that standard rate class 1 national insurance contributions have been paid or treated as paid over a working/caring life of around 40 years, from age 25 to state pension age.

Senior Citizens Forums

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the Department provides funding for senior citizens forums. [73399]

James Purnell: The Department does not directly fund senior citizens forums.

Senior citizens forums are responsible for securing their own funding and are financed mainly through membership fees, grants (usually from local government or organisations such as Age Concern) and lottery funding.

However, we do indirectly provide support to the development of senior citizens forums through our partnership in, and financing of, Better Government for Older People (BGOP).

We have no plans to offer a government grant to Shrewsbury senior citizens forum.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will meet the leaders of Shrewsbury Senior Citizens Forum to discuss their priorities for senior citizens. [74334]

James Purnell: I will be happy to consider a meeting if the hon. Gentleman will write detailing the areas of DWP policy the forum members wish to discuss.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were receiving treatment for AIDS in the Province in each of the last three years, broken down by health board area. [82103]

Paul Goggins: The number of diagnosed HIV infected-individuals resident in Northern Ireland, whose most advanced clinical stage ever was AIDS (including those who died of AIDS) seen for care in the survey year, broken down by health board area, is detailed in the following table.

Assembly

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the next plenary session of the Assembly to take place in Northern Ireland. [82628]

Mr. Hain: The next plenary session of the Assembly will take place at 10.30 am on Friday 7 July.

Bullying

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether his Department has any strategies specifically tailored to combat bullying of children with special needs; and if he will make a statement. [79786]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education makes clear that all forms of bullying are unacceptable and actively promotes the development of anti-bullying initiatives through its Anti-Bullying Programme.

Information about the scale and nature of bullying in Northern Ireland schools is contained in a research report published in October 2002. A research briefing summary is available on the Department's website at www.deni.gov.uk/rb8_2002.pdf.

The Department has recently commissioned updated research into bullying, in all its forms, and the results are expected to be ready for publication by mid 2007.

Children and Young People's Funding

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what criteria were used to ensure that funding from the Children and Young People's funding package would reduce under-achievement and improve life chances of children and young people by enhancing their educational development and fostering their health, well-being and social inclusion. [81785]

Maria Eagle: The criteria for the inclusion of activities under the Children and Young People Funding Package are as follows:

Provision of high-quality structured learning and related activities, support and services, offered from 8 am to 6 pm in schools, youth settings, pre-school centres, child care settings, Sure Start and Children's Centres;

Development of innovative approaches to delivery that build capacity and ensure that children and young people who are disadvantaged or marginalised, including those in rural areas, can benefit fully from early years education and after-school activities, supported by appropriate health related services;

Strengthening child protection arrangements and fostering inter-agency co-operation and collaboration;

Improving education provision and support for Looked after Children and vulnerable young people;

Developing and implementing an integrated framework for service delivery, that delivers high-quality, cost-effective and flexible provision that meets the needs of children and young people and their families.

Putting in place, from the outset, monitoring and inspection arrangements to assure Departments that the provision is making a positive difference to children and their families.

To ensure maximum impact from the available funding, the programme is being taken forward on a phased basis, targeted initially on children and young people who are disadvantaged, marginalised or have the most limited access to current services.

Departmental Contracts

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what contracts above the European Union threshold have been awarded by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies and non-departmental public bodies since 2000. [80967]

Mr. Hanson: Contracts awarded above the European Union threshold since 2001 by Northern Ireland Departments, their agencies and non-departmental public bodies will be placed in the Library.

Details relating to the year 2000 cannot be provided, as this information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Dietary Supplements (Schools)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether education and library boards in Northern Ireland are using omega 3 and fish oil supplements in school meals; and whether boards have plans to use such supplements. [81835]

Maria Eagle: The education and library boards regularly provide certain foods in school meals that contain naturally occurring omega 3 and fish oils, and therefore do not currently provide these as supplements.

The Department of Education is currently considering responses to its consultation on new nutritional standards for school meals and other food in schools. One of the new food-based standards will ensure that oily fish is available at least once every three weeks.

International Monitoring Commission

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish an audit of the implementation of recommendations from the International Monitoring Commission to Government and Government bodies. [80968]

Paul Goggins: Decisions by the Government in relation to implementation of recommendations of the Independent Monitoring Commission are a matter of public record. There is no intention to publish a comprehensive audit at this stage.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80488]

Mr. Hain: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Knockavoe School and Resource Centre

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the new Speech and Language Unit and Behavioural Unit at Knockavoe School and Resource Centre in Strabane was completed; what the total capital expenditure on the unit was; when this unit will be commissioned to operate; what the reason was for the delay in the commissioning of the unit; for what reason the unit did not have sufficient recurrent expenditure to open upon completion; and if he will make a statement. [81815]

Maria Eagle: The new Knockavoe School and Resource Centre, Strabane, including Speech and Language Unit and Behavioural Units, was completed in June 2005 at a total capital cost of £3.68 million.

The school is to accommodate pupils with both severe learning difficulties (SLD) and with moderate learning difficulties (MLD). In planning for the establishment of the Speech and Language and Behavioural Units, the Western Education and Library Board always envisaged that it would be a phased three-year project in order to allow time to establish what staffing complement would be required for the pupils and to establish the extent of provision required within the two units.

Additional recurrent funding of £170,000 was allocated to Knockavoe School in 2005-06 to develop staff resources and equipment, with a further £174,000 provided in 2006-07 for additional staffing costs. The final phase is planned for 2007-08 with the opening of the Speech and Language and Emotional/Behavioural Disorder Units. Funding of £490,000 has been earmarked for 2007-08 to facilitate this and includes for teaching and classroom assistant staff and equipping of both units.

Lindsay School

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future of the Lindsay School at the Forster Green Hospital in Belfast. [81812]

Maria Eagle: The South Eastern Education and Library Board has commented that the board's education committee at a meeting on 13 June 2006, agreed to commence consultation on the possible closure of the Lindsay School. Such a closure will not take place until an alternative appropriate model of educational provision is in place.

Any proposal to close the school will require the board to publish a development proposal, which initiates a two-month public consultation period during which comments, including objections, may be submitted to the Department of Education. The Department will give full consideration to all representations made during this two-month period, before making a decision on any such proposal.

Local Government

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland has been tasked with developing a generic policy for the retention of local government documentation. [81784]

Maria Eagle: Records of all public authorities, including local government, in Northern Ireland are subject to the provisions of public records legislation. It is the responsibility of public authorities to draw up retention/disposal policies to ensure that records of historical or other research importance are identified and, ultimately, transferred to the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland (PRONI) for permanent preservation. Under the Lord Chancellor's Code of Practice on the Management of Records by Public Authorities, issued under Section 46 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, it is the responsibility of local government authorities to develop policies for the creation, keeping, management and destruction of their records. This can include the development of a generic policy for the retention of local government documentation. PRONI would advise local government in the development of the policies and quality assure them.

Lung Cancer

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many lung cancer specialists are working in Northern Ireland; and what steps are being taken to increase the number of specialists. [80955]

Paul Goggins: Information on the number of lung cancer specialists is set out as follows:

Lung cancer specialists working within the NI HPSS by board area as at June 2006

	Medical staff		Nursing staff		Other staff		Total
	Headcount	WTE	Headcount	WTE	Headcount	WTE	Headcount	WTE
Northern board	2	2.00	1	1.00	0	0.00	3	3.00
Eastern board	28	21.50	4	3.30	5	3.60	37	28.40
Southern board	5	2.70	1	1.00	1	0.50	7	4.20
Western board	9	8.00	2	1.50	3	3.00	14	12.50
Total	44	34.20	8	6.80	9	7.10	61	48.10

Notes:
1. This information was obtained directly from the NI HPSS trusts.
2. WTE = whole-time equivalent.
3. Medical staff include consultant physicians, thoracic surgeons, cardiothoracic surgeons, radiologists and oncologists, and specialist registrars.
4. Nursing staff include grade F, G and H clinical specialists.
5. Other staff include physiotherapists, speech therapists, occupational therapist and other palliative care staff.
6. Altnagelvin reported that the lung cancer specialists do not work exclusively in lung cancer but are all active members of the lung cancer multidisciplinary team.
7. Belfast City Hospital stated that all respiratory physicians within Belfast City Hospital Trust investigate lung cancer, and that lung cancer is just one of the specialties within the consultant oncologists' job, therefore it is difficult to provide the exact time spent working on lung cancer.
8. Newry and Mourne HSS Trust stated that they have one respiratory physician who spends 5 per cent. of his time on early diagnosis of patients with lung cancer, before referring them to cancer specialists in Craigavon Area Hospital or Belfast.
9. Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust stated that the medical staff detailed in their reply deal with the surgical element of the lung cancer specialism only.
10. United Hospitals Group HSS Trust stated that the two physicians employed there treat lung cancer patients as part of their work, but are not solely employed as lung cancer specialists. They were unable to determine how much of their time was spent specifically on lung cancer patients.
11. Western board area figures exclude Sperrin Lakeland Trust who were unable to provide an answer to this PQ within the specified time.

While local staffing arrangements are the responsibility of relevant trusts the Department has a role in ensuring that sufficient suitably qualified staff are available to meet the needs of the health and personal social services and provide modern cancer services. For example, in medicine, numbers in training in the relevant specialty areas will accommodate an increase in specialist numbers in future years.

MRI Scans

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are being taken to reduce waiting times for MRI scans at the Royal Victoria Hospital. [81617]

Paul Goggins: A range of service improvements have been implemented by the Royal Group of Hospitals HSS Trust to reduce waiting times for MRI scans at the Royal Victoria Hospital. The current MRI scanner is operated for 49 hours each week; nine of these are evening sessions funded by the Eastern Health and Social Services Board as part of a waiting list initiative. Since April 2006 an additional eight hours have been resourced to facilitate access to emergency scanning at weekends.

A computerised information system has been introduced to optimise management of the waiting list. This includes patient validation, data cleansing and regular monitoring. A partial booking system has also been implemented with an associated reduction in 'Did Not Attend' rates to 1 per cent.

A second MRI scanner has been procured for the new Imaging Centre at the Royal and is likely to become operational in spring 2007. This will have the potential to double current activity.

Northern Ireland Police Fund

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of staff at the Northern Ireland Police Fund are employed by his Department. [80979]

Paul Goggins: Three members of staff at the Northern Ireland Police Fund are employed by the NIO.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the names are of each (a) director and (b) former director of the Northern Ireland Police Fund. [80983]

Paul Goggins: I have been advised by the Northern Ireland Police Fund that the names of (a) the current directors of the Northern Ireland Police Fund are Mr. D. McClurg, Mrs. C. Carlisle, Mr. I. Clarke, Dr. J. Galway, Mr. C. Jenkins, Mr. R. Miller, ACC McCausland, Ms G. Rice, Mr. T. Spence and (b) the former directors of the Northern Ireland Police Fund are Ms A. Paisley, Mrs. F. Paul Goggins: One meeting has been held at which the alleged security breach in the Northern Ireland Police Fund was discussed.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether Mr. Colin Ashe is an employee of the Northern Ireland Office. [80987]

Paul Goggins: Mr. Colin Ashe is an employee of the Northern Ireland Office.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) serving and (b) former members of the Police Service of Northern Ireland have been forced to move house as a result of the 2003 alleged security breach at the Northern Ireland Police Fund. [80988]

Paul Goggins: I have been advised by PSNI that no serving or former officers of the PSNI have been forced to move house as a result of the 2003 alleged security breach at the Northern Ireland Police Fund.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland to whom the directors of the Northern Ireland Police Fund report; by whom they were appointed; what the appointment process was; how often the directors meet; and how many have resigned since July 2003. [80992]

Paul Goggins: The directors of the Northern Ireland Police Fund are accountable to the Secretary of State. To facilitate the setting-up of the Fund, the Secretary of State put in place the first Board of Directors; subsequent appointments of directors, the associated processes and the frequency of meetings have all been matters for the Fund. A total of five directors have resigned since July 2003.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland from what budget the Northern Ireland Police Fund is funded. [81007]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Police Fund is funded by the Northern Ireland Office.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the appointment of (a) Mr. Desmond Clayton and (b) Mr. Thomas Hale to the Northern Ireland Police Fund was conducted under the auspices of the Northern Ireland Office. [81008]

Paul Goggins: The appointment of staff to the Northern Ireland Police Fund is a matter for the Fund.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on what date Mr. Colin Ashe was appointed as acting Chief Executive of the Northern Ireland Police Fund. [81009]

Paul Goggins: Mr. Colin Ashe was appointed as acting Chief Executive on 5 July 2004.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) serving and (b) former members of the Police Service of Northern Ireland have written to ask about their personal details being handed over to the Provisional IRA following the 2003 alleged security breach at the Northern Ireland Police Fund. [81010]

Paul Goggins: Representations have been made to Ministers on behalf of three members of the PSNI to inquire if their personal details have been compromised following the alleged security breach at the Northern Ireland Police Fund. It has not been possible to ascertain if they were serving or former members.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been paid out in grants by the Northern Ireland Police Fund in each year since its foundation. [82380]

Paul Goggins: I have been advised by the Northern Ireland Police Fund that the following amount has been paid out in grants.

	Grants amount (£000)
2002-03	1,546
2003-04	1,162
2004-05	899
2005-06	1,618

This excludes the additional payments allocated by NIO to the pre-1982 widows.

Spend in the current year on grants up to 30 June is £326,000.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been allocated to the Northern Ireland Police Fund in each year since its foundation. [82381]

Paul Goggins: The budget allocation for the Northern Ireland Police Fund was as follows:

	Budget allocation (£000)
2002-03	2,300
2003-04	1,500
2004-05	1,800
2005-06	[1]2,080
2006-07	1,800

[1] The budget allocation for 2005-06 included a carryover of £250,000 from the previous year

Nurses and Midwives

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many redundancies of (a) nurses and (b) midwives there have been in each health board area in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [80942]

Paul Goggins: In the last five years no nurses or midwives have been made redundant in the HPSS.

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81570]

Maria Eagle: Paul Sweeney, permanent secretary in the Department for Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) has responsibility for Olympics-related activity and Edgar Jardine, DCAL deputy secretary, sits on the Olympics Inter-Departmental Steering Group (IDG) for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games.

Pensions

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what advice he has received on future public expenditure implications arising from possible shortfalls in public service pension funds. [79972]

Mr. Hanson: The main public sector pension schemes are unfunded or 'pay as you go'. This is the case for the principal civil service pension scheme (Northern Ireland); the health service superannuation scheme; the fire service superannuation scheme; the police pension scheme and the teachers' superannuation scheme.

The local government officers' pension scheme (NI) is a fully funded scheme and any deficit would be met by an increase in contributions from scheme employers.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessments have been made of the ability of Northern Ireland's public service pension funds to meet their liabilities. [79973]

Mr. Hanson: All public sector pension schemes are subject to regular actuarial valuation.

The main purposes of the actuarial valuation are:

to assess the value of the liabilities accrued under the scheme up to the valuation date; to compare the value of the liabilities with the value of the assets deemed to be applicable for assessing funding levels, and to make a recommendation on the contributions to be paid to scheme participants.

The resource accounts for the schemes are produced in accordance with Treasury guidelines on resource accounting, and contain a report on the scheme liabilities, with the exception of NILGOS, whose accounts are incorporated into their annual report. Copies of the accounts are published and placed in the Library. Library References are included in the following table.

The table shows the date at which the last full actuarial valuation for each of the Northern Ireland public sector pension schemes was carried out and the date at which the next valuation is due.

Police Officers

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent on the advertising campaign for part-time police officers in (a) Moyle, (b) Ballymoney, (c) Foyle, (d) Newry and Mourn and (e) South Belfast. [81857]

Paul Goggins: I have been advised by PSNI that the total amount spent on the advertising campaign for the current police officer part-time recruitment campaign is £104,000. This spend cannot be broken down by region/district.

Positive Parenting

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Department for Education spent on the promotion of positive parenting in the last period for which figures are available; and what this figure represents per child in Northern Ireland. [82017]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education's earmarked budget for parenting initiatives is currently £250,000 per annum and is allocated entirely to the education and library boards. It is primarily a matter for each board to determine how these earmarked resources should be used and they are also free to supplement this funding by allocating further resources from within their overall block grant.

Funding has recently been made available to 471 schools from the Children and Young People Funding Package for the Extended Schools Programme. This will enable schools to develop initiatives some of which may involve parents. In addition, a further £10 million has recently been issued directly to all schools and it is open to schools to determine whether some of this additional funding should be used to support parenting initiatives.

Based specifically on the earmarked funding allocated by the Department to the boards for parenting initiatives the figure represents £0.78 per pupil attending grant-aided schools in Northern Ireland. However, this figure is clearly not a true reflection of the actual resources spent on promoting positive parenting within the education sector.

Public Pensions (Transferability)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures the Department has put in place to assist pension transferability of public pensions for personnel working in Northern Ireland departments and agencies. [79769]

Mr. Hanson: The Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (Northern Ireland) [PCSPS(NI)] provides pensions for all personnel working in Northern Ireland departments and agencies. The PCSPS(NI), in parity with GB public service schemes, pays cash-equivalent transfer values to other pension schemes in compliance with pension law. Members of public service schemes can transfer accrued pension rights by way of the Public Sector Transfer Club. The Club is a network of public and private sector occupational pension schemes which makes it easier for employees who move between employers covered by separate participating schemes to transfer their accrued pension rights. There is also a requirement under the Fair Deal for Staff Pensions to transfer pension rights when employments are transferred to the public sector under Public Private Partnerships/Public Finance Initiatives or under Machinery of Government movements and subsequent transfers for former public servants.

Racial Equality

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what resources have been put in place by each Northern Ireland Department to implement the Racial Equality Action Plan. [82379]

Mr. Hanson: Northern Ireland Departments, the Northern Ireland Office and the Police Service for Northern Ireland will spend at least £7.5 million per annum (£6 million in programme expenditure) in support of the key aims of the Racial Equality Strategy for Northern Ireland.

Some of the key actions from the Racial Equality Strategy Implementation Action Plan include: £3.2 million towards supporting English as an additional language; almost £1.1 million across all Departments to support Irish Travellers; and £0.7 million per annum to encourage capacity building within minority ethnic communities and to assist integration.

This remaining costs figure includes where Departments have allocated staff resource to implementing the strategy. The staff estimate includes those staff processing migrant worker national insurance applications and where each Department has appointed a "Racial Equality Champion" from within their senior managers to direct the implementation of the strategy within their respective Departments including actions contained in the Racial Equality Implementation Action Plan.

Recycling

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what controls are in place to ensure that waste intended for recycling is not deposited in landfill sites. [80944]

David Cairns: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave the hon. Member for North Down (Lady Hermon) on 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 367W.

Ritalin

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many young children and young adults in the Province are on Ritalin; and what alternative treatments are being offered. [82102]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety does not hold age specific data on the prescribing of Ritalin. A young person should have a full assessment and ideally, prior to prescription of medication, should have tried some behavioural management techniques, parental support and advice and possibly dietary advice. This would be provided through community paediatrics or child psychiatry.

School Trips

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many post-primary school children from the (a) Catholic and (b) Protestant communities have participated in trips to America funded by the (i) Government and (ii) EU in the last five years, broken down by education and library board area; and if he will make a statement. [80116]

Maria Eagle: No post-primary school children have participated in trips to America funded by the EU. The following have had a small Government contribution, about £60 per child, through the Youth Service Community Relations Support Scheme for cross-community trips.

Senior Citizens

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to offer senior citizens in Northern Ireland more security in their homes. [53075]

Mr. Hanson: Statistically older people in Northern Ireland are still the least likely group of citizens to become a victim of crime. However over the past couple of years there has been a disproportional increase in domestic burglaries committed against those aged 65 years and over as a proportion of the population. It is also recognised that the fear of crime among older people is significant.

The Community Safety Unit of the Northern Ireland Office has developed and funds the Lock Out Crime Scheme (LOCs) which supplies and installs free of charge additional home security in the form of door and window locks, door chains and viewers, and external front and rear door lighting to the homes of all those aged 65 and over who are in receipt of housing benefit or a rate rebate.

Since the launch in May 2004 up until 3 June 2006, 52,688 letters have been issued and 16,087 individuals have so far returned forms and have been admitted to the scheme. Since that date a further 4,361 letters of offer have been issued for which registration is on-going.

In addition on 27 March 2006 I launched a mobile pilot handy van service in the Greater Belfast area. This service, which is being managed by Help the Aged, fits free additional home security measures for those older people who do not qualify for the LOC Scheme. There is also the Unknown Callers TV Advertising campaign aimed at providing information to older people about answering the door to bogus callers. This advert was screened for a total of six weeks during 2005.

The police offer free advice about home security and personal attack alarms to older people and several of the Community Safety Partnerships (there is a partnership in each district council area) have included the safety of older people as a priority issue in their action plans for tackling crime. These plans have now been agreed with the Community Safety Unit and the Partnerships are currently in the process of setting up their projects.

Finally, the police have established a special team to co-ordinate the investigations of attacks upon older people across the Downpatrick, Newry and Mourne, Craigavon, Banbridge, Armagh, Dungannon and South Tyrone, Fermanagh, Cookstown, Omagh, Strabane and Magherafelt districts. I understand that this initiative has identified a number of persons who have been charged and are remanded in custody awaiting trail in relation to burglary offences against older people.

Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 7 June 2006, Official Report, column 701-02W, on teenage births, how many under 16 year olds from Northern Ireland had a pregnancy terminated in each of the last five years. [81864]

Paul Goggins: The Abortion Act 1967 does not extend to Northern Ireland. Consequently the termination of a pregnancy is not permitted except where necessary to save the life of the mother or where continuation of the pregnancy would involve risk of serious injury to her physical or mental health.

While the information required is available, the numbers involved are very small and individual patients could potentially be identified. It is felt inappropriate therefore, to disclose information on the number of terminations performed on those aged 16 years or younger.

Under-age Drinking

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Police Service of Northern Ireland is taking to combat the delivery of alcohol by taxi firms to under-age drinkers; and if he will make a statement. [80118]

Paul Goggins: The Police Service of Northern Ireland has advised me that there have been a number of specific incidents in several District Command Units. Police in these DCUs have been in contact with local taxi firms/associations advising them of the implications should taxi drivers be found delivering alcohol.

Victims' March (Dublin)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the Answer of 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 508W, on Victims' March (Dublin), whether he has had discussions with Republic of Ireland authorities on the attacks upon citizens of Northern Ireland while in Dublin. [69237]

Mr. Hain: I raised this issue with Irish Ministers at the time. The Taoiseach stated in the Dáil on 22 March that the rioting in Dublin on the day of the Love Ulster parade was in no way representative of the views of the vast majority of the people there. He further added that he did not believe that it would have any lasting impact on the peace process or on relations generally and that the rioting was organised by a small group of agitators and had been rightly condemned on all sides.

Violent Crime

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are being taken to tackle violent crime against the elderly in Northern Ireland. [48279]

Mr. Hanson: Older people in Northern Ireland are still the least likely group of citizens to become a victim of crime. However the recorded crime statistics for 2004-05 and 2005-06 to date would indicate that those persons aged 65 years and over are disproportionably affected by domestic burglary as a proportion of the population. It is also recognised that the fear of crime among older people is significant. To address these issues the Community Safety Unit of the Northern Ireland Office is currently leading on the development of a strategy for the safety of older people. It is planned to publish the draft strategy document for consultation in the autumn of 2006.

On a practical level the Unit has developed and funds a number of ongoing initiatives to tackle the problems of crime and the fear of crime amongst older people. These include the Unknown Callers TV advertising campaign which provides information to older people about answering the door to bogus callers and the Lock Out Crime Scheme that supplies and installs free of charge additional home security, in the form of door and window locks, door chains and viewers and external lighting to the homes of all those aged 65 and over who are in receipt of housing benefit or rate rebate. A mobile pilot Handy Van service was also launched on 27 March 2006 in the Greater Belfast area to fit free home security devices for the elderly who do not qualify for the LOC Scheme.

The police, in addition to offering free advice about personal security and personal attack alarms, have introduced Operation Bullent in the Downpatrick, Newry and Mourne, Craigavon, Banbridge, Armagh, Dungannon and South Tyrone, Fermanagh, Cookstown, Omagh, Strabane and Magherafelt districts. This project deals with the problem of travelling criminals who commit burglary offences, including those that involve violence, predominantly against persons over 65 years in these districts by co-ordinating their intelligence, investigations of crimes and delivery of preventative measures. I understand that this initiative has identified a number of persons who have been charged and are remanded in custody awaiting trial in relation to burglary offences against older people.

At community level, several of the Community Safety Partnerships (there is a partnership in each council area) after conducting a community audit, have included the safety of older people as a priority issue in their respective action plans to tackle crime. These plans have now been agreed with the Community Safety Unit and the partnerships are currently in the process of setting up their initiatives.

Waste Incineration

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the incineration of (a) municipal and (b) industrial waste is eligible for funding under the Environment and Renewable Energy Funding package. [80877]

Maria Eagle: The Environment and Renewable Energy Fund has an £18 million allocation for Energy from Waste projects, and those which could utilise either municipal or industrial waste may be eligible for support. The Department of the Environment's Waste Management Strategy and its guidance on Best Practicable Environmental Option will be strictly adhered to for all assisted projects and this could include incineration as a suitable technology.

Water Service

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what debt recovery powers the new Government-owned water company in Northern Ireland will have. [81615]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan of 5 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a parliamentary Question about what debt recovery powers the New Government-owned water company in Northern Ireland will have (81615). I have been asked t reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

There are no special measures in the water reform legislation to assist Northern Ireland Water Ltd in recovering debt and the new company is unable to disconnect domestic customers if they fall into debt. Northern Ireland Water Ltd will rely o the normal law relating to civil debt, which involves enforcement through the courts and via the Enforcements of Judgments Office, under the Judgments Enforcement (Northern Ireland) Rules 1981. Consideration is currently being given as to whether the company will require any of the additional debt recovery measures that are available to other utility companies.

The implementation plan for the introduction of the new customer charging and billing arrangements includes an intensive communications campaign covering the domestic and non-domestic sectors. It will reflect input from the Consumer Council, Citizen's Advice Bureau and Advice NI on payment plans and avenues for advice on debt.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent on water and sewage infrastructural improvements in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years; and how much is expected to be spent over the next five years. [81616]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan dated 5 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a parliamentary Question about how much has been spent on water and sewerage infrastructural improvements in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years; and how much is expected to be spent over the next five years (81616). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

In the 10 year period from 1996-97 to 2005-06, Water Service's capital expenditure on improvements to the water and wastewater infrastructure amounted to £556 million and £614 million respectively. The following table sets out the annual investment for each of these years.

£ million

	Water	Wastewater
1996-97	40	31
1997-98	43	26
1998-99	44	31
1999-2000	44	22
2000-01	47	25
2001-02	60	49
2002-03	73	55
2003-04	62	75
2004-05	72	140
2005-06	71	160

Over the next five years, Water Service plans to invest a further £185 million on water infrastructure and £340 million on wastewater infrastructure. This will be augmented, during the first two years, by a programme of infrastructure improvements. The Alpha Project will provide water supply projects valued at around £110 million and the Omega project will provide wastewater and sludge disposal management projects valued at around £122 million

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the pension rights of those employed with Water Service will be protected when they transfer to the new government-owned company in April 2007; and whether any changes to the pension scheme require the agreement of the Minister with responsibility for regional development. [85647]

David Cairns: Those employees transferring to Northern Ireland Water Limited will become members of a pension scheme which mirrors as closely as possible the terms of the civil service pension scheme. The new scheme will be required to have a certificate of broad comparability from the Government Actuary's Department in line with the 'Fair Deal' policy. The scheme's members will have protections through the running of the scheme by the trustees who will be drawn on a 50:50 basis from management and member nominees; from the pension regulator under whose remit the scheme will fall; and through the scheme's membership of the pension protection fund.

The precise terms of the trust deed and rules have yet to be finalised.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent by the Department for regional development from 1 April 1999 to 31 March 2006 on water infrastructure improvements; and to what projects the funding has been allocated. [85649]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan, dated 5 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about how much was spent by the Department for Regional Development from 1 April 1999 to 31 March 2006 on water infrastructure improvements; and to what projects the funding was allocated (85649). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

During the period from 1 April 1999 to 31 March 2006, Water Service invested some £428 million on improvements to the water infrastructure throughout Northern Ireland. Almost 950 major capital projects, together with many minor works projects, were carried out to improve a number of water treatment works, including Drumaroad, Lough Bradan, Fofanny and Derg. Improvements to the watermain network system were also carried out. The scale and extent of this work varied from small watermain extensions to serve individual housing developments, to large-scale projects such as the replacement of part of the Mourne Conduit which transfers water from the Silent Valley to supply Belfast and surrounding areas.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what European Union funding was spent on the upgrade of water infrastructure in Northern Ireland between 1 April 1990 and 31 March 2006; and to what projects the funding was allocated. [85650]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan, dated 5 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about how much European Union funding was spent on the upgrade of water infrastructure in Northern Ireland between 1st April 1990 and 31st March 2006; and to what projects the funding was allocated (85650). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

During the period from 1st April 1990 to 31st March 2006 Water Service, received £44.822 million of European Union funds for improvements to water treatment works. The funding was allocated to projects benefiting the following works:

Working Days Lost (Public Sector)

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days were lost per staff year in each (a) core department of the Northern Ireland administration and (b) associated public body in (i) 2004-05 and (ii) 2005-06; what the total number of days lost was in each case; and what the cost was to each such (A) department and (B) public body in each year. [76895]

Mr. Hanson: For the purpose of answering this question, it has been assumed that the information requested relates to the level of sickness absence in each of the 11 Departments of the Northern Ireland administration, the Northern Ireland Office, departmental executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs).

The table at Annex A reflects both the position for 2004-05 in respect of non-industrial staff and industrial staff in NI Departments and their executive agencies. It should be noted that there are differing methods in place across Departments for recording industrial sickness absence, and information such as the average days lost per staff year is not available in all cases. The information on sickness absence levels for 2005-06 is not yet available but will be published in September 2006.

Information relating to all NDPBs is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, where the information is available, this is reflected in the tables at Annex B.

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81920]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Upper Bann (David Simpson) on 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1075W.

Child Trust Fund

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the administration costs of the Child Trust Fund in each year since it was introduced. [82708]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Gentlemen to the answer given to the hon. Member for Leeds, North-West (Greg Mulholland) on 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 2214W.

Consignment Relief

Jim Dowd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will (a) reduce the minimum transaction value on low value consignment relief and (b) apply for complete derogation for the UK. [83069]

Dawn Primarolo: Import VAT is not chargeable on commercial consignments of goods with a value below £18 that are imported into the UK from outside the EU. The Government are aware that this relief is currently being exploited, and it now costs the Exchequer around £85 million per year. If the relief continues to be exploited by businesses using offshore locations, the Government will consider changes to prevent this type of behaviour.

Drug-related Deaths

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many drug-related deaths were recorded in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [82110]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many drug-related deaths have been recorded in Suffolk in each of the last five years. (82110)

Available figures relate to the number of deaths from drug-related poisoning, not the total number that were drug-related. The most recent year for which figures are now available is 2004. The table below shows the number of deaths for which the underlying cause was drug poisoning, for the years 2000 to 2004.

Deaths from drug-related poisoning[1] Suffolk[2] 2000-04[3]

	Number of deaths
2000	23
2001	37
2002	24
2003	29
2004	34

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes 292, 304, 305.2-305.9, E850-E858, E950.0-E950.5, E962.0 and E980.0-E980.5 for the year 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes F11-F16, F18-F19, X40-X44, X60-X64, X85 and Y10-Y14from 2001 onwards.
[2] Usual residents of the county of Suffolk.
[3] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

EU Labour Market

Helen Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the impact of EU labour market liberalisation on the UK economy; and if he will make a statement. [82097]

John Healey: A more dynamic and open Europe would be a Europe of increased employment, confidence and growth, a Europe which would both promote and facilitate the UK's efforts to boost its own productivity and raise its own economic performance.

The Government place great importance on economic reform in Europe, and on encouraging greater use of policies that promote flexible labour markets.

The Treasury keeps EU labour market developments under review, and continues to argue the case for reform in Europe. In a recent joint paper with the Swedish Ministry of Finance,—"Social Bridges—Meeting the Challenges of Globalisation" (http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk./documents/international_issues/European_economic_reform/social_bridges_paper_cfm) the Government again made the case for reforming labour markets and for policies that protect people's employability rather than specific jobs or sectors.

Households

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) single parent households with children under the age of 16 years and (b) single parent households there were in Yeovil constituency in each of the last 15 years; and what estimate he has made of the number of cohabiting couples living in Yeovil constituency in each year. [82137]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your requests for the following figures for the Yeovil constituency in each of the last 15 years: the number of single parent households with children under the age of 16 years, the number of single-person households and the number of cohabiting couples. (82137)

Estimates of these figures are not produced on an annual basis for local areas. Available figures are from the censuses of 1991 and 2001. These are shown in the table below.

Numbers of (1) lone parent households with dependent children aged under 16 (2) one person households and (3) cohabiting couples in households: Yeovil, 1991 and 2001

		1991	2001
1.	Lone-parent households with dependent children aged under 16	1,035	1,810
2.	One-person households	9,378	12,023
3.	Cohabiting couple households	[1]1,118	3,807

[1] In 1991 responses to relationship questions were only processed for approximately 10 per cent. of the population. The figures in this table have been grossed up by a factor of 10.16 to account for this.

Late Tax Returns

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have been liable for the £100 fine imposed by the Treasury for late declaration of their annual income in each of the last three years; and how much was raised in total as a result. [81862]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers I gave the hon. Member for Wellingborough (Mr. Bone) on 12 January 2006, Official Report, column 776W. The detail for last year is in the following table.

	Return year 2004-05
Year issued: 2005-06
Total number issued	876,000
Year to end October 2005
Penalties paid (£ million)	39.40

Minimum Wage

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people aged (a) 22 years and over, (b) 18 to 21 years and (c) under 18 years are receiving the minimum wage in (i) Yeovil constituency and (ii) Somerset. [82146]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question to ask how many people aged (a) 22 years and over, (b) 18 to 21 years and (c) under 18 years are receiving the minimum wage in i) Yeovil constituency and ii) Somerset. (82146)

Estimates for the number of jobs paid at the minimum wage for Parliamentary Constituencies and Local Authorities are not available. However the Office for National Statistics (ONS) calculates estimates of the number of jobs paid less than national minimum wage rates for the United Kingdom and Government Office Regions. A guide to measuring low pay and associated articles and data can be found on the National Statistics website at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=5837&Pos=1&ColRank=1&Rank=272

Pension Rights (Bankruptcy)

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2006, Official Report, columns 864-65W, on pension rights (bankruptcy), what estimate he has made of the revenue foregone as a result of his Department relinquishing its preferred creditor status in insolvency cases. [82499]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 17 September 2003, Official Report, column 868W. Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs confirm that the estimate given then has not changed.

Population Estimates

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which local authorities have had a reduction in population according to the (a) 2001 Census and (b) 2004 mid-term population estimates. [81984]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about which local authorities according to the 2001 Census and the mid-2004 population estimates had a reduction in their populations. (81984)

The best comparison between 2001 and 2004 is based on the mid-year population estimates for those years, as the mid-2001 population estimates take account of adjustments to a number of areas as a result of the studies conducted after the Census. The attached table shows population estimates for those local authorities whose population decreased between mid-2001 and mid-2004.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the methods of collecting local authority population statistics; and if he will make a statement. [81985]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about what assessment has been made of the methods of collecting local authority population statistics. (81985)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) liaises with users of population statistics across Government including the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG). The ONS provides advice to DCLG on the use of population statistics and on any issues raised by individual local authorities concerning the data and methodology used. Nevertheless, as an ONS product, any assessment of methods used in calculating population statistics remains a matter for the ONS. It is for this reason I have been asked to reply to your question originally addressed to the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government.

The detailed methodology for population estimates is published here: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=575

This methodology has been developed over a large number of years. Development of the methodology, together with the methodology for other population statistics, is done in conjunction with the Central Local information Partnership (CLiP) subgroup on population estimates.

The usually resident definition which formed the basis of the 2001 Census enumeration, and hence the mid-year estimates, was the result of extensive consultation with users and was reported in Census Advisory Group paper AG(99) 04 'Population Definitions for the 2001 Census'. A similar process is currently underway for the 2011 Census. For international migration, the population estimates use the United Nations definition of an international migrant (someone who migrates for a period of at least twelve months.)

The Cohort Component Method, which is the method used in the UK, is an internationally respected method used for estimating population estimates in a large number of countries. ONS is undertaking a study of the Cohort Component Method for the national population estimates, comparing the method used with those used in other countries. This is part of a larger project, Improving Migration and Population Statistics, about which I have written in more detail in other replies to you.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to improve the collection of statistics on (a) internal and (b) international migration. [81986]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what steps are being taken to improve the collection of statistics on (a) internal and (b) international migration. (81986)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) are currently carrying out an extensive programme of work titled Improving Migration and Population Statistics Project which is designed to investigate improvements to the population and migration statistics produced by ONS. Further information on this work can be found at: www.statistics.gov.uk/IMPS.

As part of this work, ONS is investigating how improvements may be made to estimates of internal migration which are currently produced using health records. In particular, the movement of students and young men are being considered and research is being carried out so that we have a better understanding of the movement of these and other mobile groups. We are also investigating other data sources that may inform our estimates of internal migration.

The programme of research described above is also taking forward recommendations from the National Statistics Quality Review (NSQR) into International Migration. The quality review made recommendations for improving the estimation of total migration flows to and from the UK and the allocation of international migration to local areas. This work includes investigating administrative sources that may be used in producing or quality assuring the international migration estimates, investigating potential sources of information about short-term migrants and making improvements to the current source of information on international migrants, the International Passenger Survey (IPS). The latest Progress Report on taking forward the recommendations of the NSQR on International Migration can be found at http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/quality/reviews/population.asp

ONS are also conducting Local Authority case studies as part of the IMPS programme of work. These aim to get a better understanding, from a local perspective, of the administrative data sources that are currently used in the population estimation procedure. They will also investigate any other high quality sources that the local areas use themselves for population purposes.

The local areas selected for these studies are ones that are known to have reasons which make their population difficult to estimate, e.g. those with a high volume of migratory moves. It is intended that these studies will contribute towards the improvement of both internal and international migration statistics.

In May ONS set up a Task Force on Migration Statistics with other Government Departments, to identify improvements that could realistically be made over the next couple of years.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the accuracy of the mid-term population estimates; and if he will make a statement. [81990]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about what assessment has been made of the accuracy of the mid-year population estimates. (81990)

Population estimates are calculated using an internationally respected methodology. Further information can be found in the detailed methodology guide 'Making a population estimate in England and Wales'. This is published here:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=575

It is becoming increasingly difficult to estimate the size of the population because of changes in society, which include increased mobility and different living arrangements. Nevertheless, the mid-year population estimates remain the best available estimates of the population on a national basis. The decennial Census provides a benchmark against which national and sub-national population estimates can be assessed. Substantial work has been done on the difference between mid-year population estimates and the 2001 Census. This work is summarised in the final report of the 2004 Local Authority Population Studies, which can be found here:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/LAStudy_FullReport.pdf

Migration is acknowledged as the most difficult component of population change to estimate. My answer to your question about the steps being taken to ensure population estimates more closely reflect the effects of migration provides more detail.

In addition, extensive annual quality assurance is undertaken in order to ensure the accuracy of the annual mid-year estimates. Quality assurance starts with detailed checking of the source data used in the components of change (birth, deaths, etc.). Procedures are then in place to ensure that these data sources are correctly processed when deriving the estimates. the calculated national and sub-national estimates, for all 376 local authorities in England and Wales, are then subject to a further set of quality assurance procedures before they are published. These procedures include reviews of sex ratios and age profiles, comparisons of change over time, and comparisons of fertility and mortality rates. Substantial effort has already been undertaken, in recent years, to improve the quality assurance of population estimates.

The Office for National Statistics is also now investing substantially in a project to Improve Migration and Population Statistics (IMPS). (More information on this project can be found at: www.statistics.gov.uk/IMPS) The key aims of this project are to reduce the size of the difference between the 2011 Census results and the mid-year estimates and to better understand any difference that does remain.

As part of this project, we are developing a data comparator tool to enable us to compare the annual mid-year estimates against a range of administrative sources. This work is ongoing and the results will inform our understanding of the accuracy of the mid-year population estimates. The tool was trialled in the mid-2004 population estimates, which were published in August 2005.

Another strand of the IMPS project is a review of the quality assurance procedures that are currently in place for population estimates. One of the aims of this review is to assess what improvements can be made to existing procedures, and determine whether additional quality assurance is required.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what criteria were used to decide which local authorities would be involved in the improving migration and population statistics project; [81991]

(2) when he will decide which further local authorities will join the improving migration and population statistics project. [81992]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent questions asking what criteria have been used to decide which local authorities were involved in the Improving Migration and Population Statistics (IMPS) project and when the Chancellor will decide which further local authorities will join the IMPS project (81991,81992).

Information was published on the method used for selecting local authorities for case studies on the NS website in March 2006. For more information see http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/specific/population/future/imps/updates/default.asp

Work is currently progressing on four local authorities. We are expected to report on the findings during the autumn. The outcome of the four case studies areas will then be evaluated. The selection and approach of any further case studies will be considered following the outcome of the review.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that the mid-year population estimates more closely reflect the effects of internal and external migration; and if he will make a statement. [81993]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question regarding what steps are being taken to ensure that the mid-year population estimates more closely reflect the effects of internal and international migration; and if the Chancellor will make a statement. (81993)

Migration is particularly difficult to estimate due to a rapidly changing population structure, which includes an increase in mobility and complex changes in living arrangements. ONS recognised this was a particular issue before the 2001 Census was undertaken.

The sources used to estimate internal migration were changed before the 2001 Census. Up to 1998 the National Health Service Central Register (NHSCR) was used in conjunction with data from electoral rolls. There were known limitations with the electoral roll data source. For example there were variations in the registers caused by the procedures used to maintain them. It was also possible for people to be registered in two different areas, such as students, and those under 18 were not included. Research was carried out that identified a higher quality data source in GP registers. From 1999 onwards, the internal migration component of the population estimates was based on a combination of NHSCR and GP register data.

Population estimates use the United Nations definition of an international migrant, which is somebody who migrates for a period of at least 12 months. Mid-year population estimates therefore estimate those that are 'usually resident' at that time. Following the 2001 Census a number of improvements were made to the methodology of international migration. Improvements were made to allow for those who stayed in their destination country for longer or shorter than they had originally intended, and therefore either became or were no longer considered a migrant (migrant and visitor switchers). Improvements were also made to fully allow for the migration of dependants of asylum seekers and to fully estimate outflows of failed asylum seekers and their dependants. Along with more minor technical adjustments to migration estimates, these changes have been incorporated into the revised 1991 to 2001 estimates.

The National Statistics Quality Review (NSQR) on International Migration was commissioned before the 2001 Census results were published. Please see the following link for further details of the NSQR:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/quality/reviews/population.asp

Following publication of the 2001 Census the 'Improving Migration and Population Estimates' (IMPS) project was set up and incorporated recommendations of the NSQR. The IMPS project is primarily research based and concentrates on aspects of improving both internal and international migration and population statistics through methodology improvements and the identification of the most relevant and reliable data sources. The project is currently involved in liasing with a number of local authorities (LAs). ONS is working in partnership with these LAs to investigate whether local knowledge can help improve migration and population estimates. Any findings can potentially be applied to LAs with similar characteristics.

More specifically the IMPS project will consider how further improvements can be made to the internal migration methodology and data sources, one example of this is the issues around students registration with GPs. Research involving international migration will consider improvements in how to distribute International Passenger Survey (IPS) flows within England and Wales. In addition to this, other possible data sources will be considered, as will improvements to the estimations of IPS flows by altering and adding to existing questions in the IPS. In addition, ONS set up a Task Force on Migration Statistics in May. This aims to identify improvements that could realistically be made over the next couple of years.

We are also researching the feasibility of producing estimates of short-term migrants. The population estimates measure those that are usually resident and therefore do not measure those that are temporarily living in England or Wales. It is hoped that estimates of short-term migrants will be able to be used in conjunction with the existing population estimates.

Please find further details of the IMPS project here:

Retirement Age

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 13 February 2006, Official Report, columns 1695-96W, on retirement age, whether the conclusion set out in the answer depends upon the assumption of changes in current practice with regard to continued eligibility following career breaks. [82512]

Mr. Timms: The probability of a 20-year-old public sector worker leaving employment before age 60 was based on analysis of recent experience. No change was assumed in eligibility for pension scheme membership following career breaks.

Road Pricing Pilots

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether motorists participating in the proposed road pricing pilot will be entitled to lower rates of fuel duty when driving outside the area covered by the pricing scheme; [82204]

(2) whether motorists participating in the proposed road pricing pilot will be entitled to a fuel duty rebate. [82257]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by the Minister of State, Department for Transport, (Dr. Ladyman) on 25 May 2006, Official Report, column 1954W.

Tax Credits

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which local authorities had an increase in the number of people claiming tax credits between 2001 and 2005. [81985]

Dawn Primarolo: A comparison of the number of recipients of working families tax credits and disabled person tax credits as at May 2001, and in-work families with children receiving more than the family element of child and working tax credits in 2004-05, shows that all local authorities have had an increase in the number of recipients.

Geographical breakdown of children's tax credits is not available.

Estimates for the number of recipients of working families tax credits and disabled persons tax credits, from May 2001 to November 2002, are published in "Working Families and Disabled Persons Tax Credit Statistics, Geographical Analyses", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/wftc/wfdptc_geog.htm

Estimates for 2003-04 and 2004-05 of the numbers of in-work families with tax credits awards, by local authority, based on final family circumstances and incomes for 2003-04 and 2004-05 are published in "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Awards 2003-04 Geographical Analysis" and the "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Awards 2004-05 Geographical Analysis". These publications and provisional estimates for the number of in-work families by local authority with tax credit awards as at selected dates in 2005-06 are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm.

Unemployment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the change in (a) male and (b) female unemployment in Yeovil constituency has been in each of the last five years. [82252]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 5 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about unemployment.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey and Annual Population Survey following International Labour Organisation definitions. However, sample sizes are insufficient to provide estimates of change in male and female unemployment in the Yeovil Parliamentary Constituency.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). Table 1, attached, shows the annual changes in levels and proportions of working-age resident population for male claimants of JSA, resident in the Yeovil constituency, for May of each year from 2001 to 2006. Table 2 shows corresponding data for female claimants of JSA.

Alcohol-related Hospital Admissions

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people (a) under and (b) over the age of 18 years were admitted to hospital for alcohol-related problems in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by region. [81693]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table, by Government Office Region. It provides data on finished admission episodes for people under and over 18 years admitted to hospital for alcohol related problems in 2004-05.

Counts of finished admission episodes for selected[1] alcohol related diseases by regional office of residence and age grouping in national health service hospitals 2004-05.

Notes:
Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Primary diagnosis
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the hospital episode statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital. Primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) data quality PCT and SHA data was added to historic data-years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of treatment and SHA of treatment is poor in 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of general practitioner (GP) practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data.
Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data; that is the data are ungrossed.
Low numbers
Due to reasons of confidentiality, figures between one and five have been suppressed and replaced with an asterisk.

Breast Milk Substitutes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what surveys she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into (i) the perception of pregnant women and women with young children of advertising of breast milk substitute and (ii) the ability of consumers to distinguish between infant and follow-on breast milk substitutes. [81528]

Caroline Flint: The Department commissioned a survey of pregnant women and women with young children in August 2005 to establish whether there was any confusion among consumers relating to advertising of follow-on formula milks.

The results of the survey suggest that there is some confusion among consumers. Of the total respondents surveyed, 39 per cent. stated they had seen infant formula advertising, rather than follow-on formula, which is not allowed under European Union law.

Cadbury Schweppes (Chocolate Contamination)

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when Cadbury Schweppes plc first became aware of the risk of contamination of its chocolate at its plant near Leominster; when tests first confirmed the existence of salmonella in its production; when the company first notified (a) the Food Standards Agency and (b) her Department of the (i) risk and (ii) tests results; what requirements are placed on food companies to report such potential contamination; what penalties may be imposed on them for failing to do so in a timely manner; and if she will make a statement. [81092]

Caroline Flint: Cadbury's Schweppes plc first informed the Food Standards Agency (FSA) on 19 June 2006 that, in relation to the current incident, they had detected Salmonella contamination of products from their Marlbrook plant in January 2006. The FSA relayed the information to my Department.

Information subsequently provided by the company indicated that contamination of its products with Salmonella Montevideo had been identified in April 2002, but these products were destroyed.

Since 1 January 2005, food businesses operators have been required to inform the competent authorities if they consider, or have reason to believe, that a food which they have imported, produced, processed, manufactured or distributed, is not in compliance with the food safety requirements as set out in article 14 of EC regulation 178/2002.

Under the General Food Regulations 2004, the maximum penalties for not informing the competent authorities as above are two years' imprisonment, an unlimited fine, or both.

Care Costs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost was of delivering an episode of care in (a) 1979, (b) 1997 and (c) the most recent period for which figures are available, at constant prices. [76948]

Caroline Flint: The average cost of delivering an episode of care allowing for health pay and price inflation is shown in the table:

	Cost per episode (£)
1997-98	1,159
2003-04	1,200

A patient admitted to hospital is assigned to a practitioner responsible for their treatment. This period of care is termed an episode.

There are no data available for 1979.

Information is not available on a comparable basis after 2003-04.

Care Homes

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) nursing and (b) residential care homes there were in the London borough of Bexley in (i) 1997, (ii) 2001 and (iii) 2005. [78067]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of homes was collected by the Department for the years 1997 and 2001. The table shows the number of residential and nursing care homes in Bexley, as at 31 March, in 1997 and 2001.

Number of residential and nursing care homes in Bexley, as at 31 March, 1997 and 2001

	1997	Rounded data 2001
Residential homes[1]	60	60
Nursing homes[2,3]	20	25
Total homes[2,4]	75	80

[1] Residential data are for Bexley authority.
[2] Nursing data in 1997 are for Bexley health authority, whereas nursing data for 2001 are for the Bexley and Greenwich health authority. This followed a merger of the two Health authorities Bexley and Greenwich health authority; the number of nursing homes in Greenwich was not recorded in 1997.
[3] Nursing data include places in general nursing homes, mental nursing homes and private hospitals and clinics.
[4] Totals may not equal the sum of parts due to rounding
Sources:
Department of Health RA and RH(N) returns.

The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) produces data on the number of care homes and places registered as at 31 March each year, beginning with 2003. There are some definitional differences between these data and those for years up to 2001.

I understand from the chair of CSCI that, as at 31 March 2005, there were four nursing and 29 residential care homes in Bexley local authority. I am informed by CSCI that the reduction in numbers is due to several factors:

Since 2001, 20 homes in Bexley have de-registered.

Data collected up until 2001 by the Department included private hospitals and clinics, which were counted as nursing homes. These are now registered by the Healthcare Commission and are not included in data on care and nursing home numbers produced by CSCI.

Bexley local authority covers a smaller area than the Bexley and Greenwich health authority.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations (a) inspect and (b) regulate the care home sector. [79673]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI), as the independent inspectorate for all social care services in England, is the statutory body which inspects and regulates the care home sector. CSCI took over the regulation and inspection of care homes in England from the National Care Standards Commission (NCSC) on 1 April 2004, under powers given to it under the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003.

Independent healthcare providers in England, including independent nursing homes where care is provided by medical practitioners, must be registered with the Healthcare Commission. To register, they need to demonstrate compliance with the Care Standards Act 2000 and associated regulations.

Care homes are also subject to inspection and regulation by bodies such as local authority environmental health departments, the fire services and the Health and Safety Executive.

Carers

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the financial cost saving to her Department of voluntary carers in the last year for which figures are available. [82159]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This Government recognise the valuable and vital role played by the estimated 6 million carers in the United Kingdom. The Government have made no estimate of the savings to public funds resulting from the activities of people who provide care on a voluntary basis.

Carers Champion

Dr. Francis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions she has had with carers' organisations on their proposal for a carers champion within Government; and if she will make a statement; [82642]

(2) what recent discussions she has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on the implementation of the Carers (Equal Opportunities) Act 2004 in Wales; and if she will make a statement; [82643]

(3) what recent discussions she has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on its decision to appoint a carers champion within government and the implications of that decision in England; and if she will make a statement; [82644]

(4) whether she has made an assessment of the policy towards carers in other EU countries; and if she will make a statement. [82645]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This Government have noted the call for the establishment of such a post but we believe that existing national directors, for example in relation to social care, older people and disease-specific groups such as cancer and diabetes, should already be taking the needs of carers into account.

In addition, we believe it is more appropriate that local health and social care professionals work together to support carers locally. This is why, in the White Paper, we encourage councils and primary care trusts to nominate leads for carers' services.

We have not made an assessment of the policy towards carers in other European Union countries neither have we had any discussions with the Welsh Assembly Government on the implementation of the Carers Equal Opportunities Act 2004 in Wales.

Children (Medical Procedures)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which types of medical procedure may be provided to children under 16 years of age by a medical practitioner (a) without the consent of their parent or guardian and (b) where such consent can be waived by the medical practitioner; and if she will make a statement. [80195]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Valid consent to treatment is central to all forms of healthcare, from providing personal care to undertaking major surgery. If a young person has the capacity to give consent for themselves then health professionals should seek consent directly from them. If a young person does not have capacity then consent should be sought from someone with parental responsibility.

In cases of life-threatening emergency where consultation with a person with parental responsibility is impossible, the courts have stated that doubt should be resolved in favour of the preservation of life. In such cases a health professional could undertake treatment to preserve life or prevent serious damage to health without consent.

Community Hospitals

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Government have to make extra funding available to NHS trusts to prevent the closure of community hospitals. [58921]

Andy Burnham: Revenue allocations are made directly to primary care trusts (PCTs) and not to national health service trusts. The allocations are determined on the basis of the relative needs of PCTs' populations. On 9 February 2005, PCTs were informed of their revenue allocations up to 2007-08. The 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations represent £135 billion investment in the NHS, £64 billion to PCTs in 2006-07 and £70 billion in 2007-08. The Department has no plans to make extra funding available to PCTs.

As outlined in the recently published White Paper "Our health, our care, our say": a new direction for community services, the Department aims to provide more care in more local and convenient settings. This will partially be achieved by introducing a new generation of community hospitals and the Department published "Our health, our care, our community: investing in the future of community hospitals and services" on 5 July which describes how the Department intends to invest up to £750 million over the next five years in a new generation of community hospitals.

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 31 May, about the NHS dental contract. [81450]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The letter was replied to on 26 June 2006.

Dentistry

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what dental research projects are supported from public funds; at which research establishments such research is being conducted; how much has been allocated to each project in each year; and which researchers are in charge of each project. [81280]

Andy Burnham: The main agency through which the Government support medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council (MRC). The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department of Trade and Industry via the Office of Science and Innovation. Details of current and recent MRC dental and oral health projects are shown in the table.

The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the national health service. Current and recently completed research related to dental health and forming part of the NHS national programmes includes:

A systematic review of the effectiveness and cost-effectiveness of HealOzone for the treatment of occlusal pit/fissure caries and root caries.

Chief investigator: Aberdeen health technology assessment (HTA) group, University of Aberdeen

Cost: circa £50,000[1]

The cost-effectiveness of screening for oral cancer in primary care.

Chief investigator: Professor Paul Speight, University of Sheffield

Cost: £67,331 over five years

High performance bioactive structures for bone replacement and tissue growth.

Principal investigator: Dr. Russell Harris, Loughborough University, Leicester.

Cost: £237,943 over three years

Refinement and in-vivo performance of implanted composite structures.

Principal investigator: Dr. Colin Anthony Scotchford, University of Nottingham

Cost: £156,300 over three years

A new and emerging applications technologies programme feasibility study of advanced material/bone interface analysis using four computerised tomography.

Mrs. Sheila Fisher, University of Leeds

Cost: £34,351 for one year

The Department also supports the oral health research and development support unit based at university of Manchester. The unit's research director is Professor Martin Tickle. It receives an annual grant from the Department of £100,000. Its purpose is to:

expand research capacity in dentistry;

develop the research infrastructure in primary dental care; and increase research outputs to improve dental services for patients.

More information about the work of the unit, including details of current and completed research, can be found at www.ohu.ac.uk

Over 75 per cent. of the Department's total expenditure on health research is devolved to and managed by NHS organisations. Details of individual projects including a large number concerned with dental health are available on the national research register at www.dh.gov.uk/research

[1] This project was commissioned by the HTA programme on behalf of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence on a call-off contract basis so an exact figure is not available.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the response by the Durham and Chester-le-Street primary care trust to the withdrawal of dentists from NHS service in Durham City. [78950]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The responsibility for the performance management of primary care trusts (PCTs) rests with strategic health authorities (SHAs). The Chester-le-Street PCT and the County Durham and Tees Valley SHA continue to receive support from the NHS dentistry support team in developing a commissioning plan for NHS dentistry provision in the PCT area.

The support team will work with the PCT to develop a robust commissioning strategy, along with providing advice on recommisioning and tendering. This exercise will be conducted in discussion with the four neighbouring PCTs which will merge with the Durham and Chester-le-Street PCT to form the new County Durham PCT from October 2006.

Approximately £1 million remains in the PCT's dental allocation to recommission additional dental services for its population, with the potential to provide an additional seven fully committed NHS dentists.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the written statement of 18 May 2006, Official Report, columns 63-64WS, on NHS dentistry, what assistance she expects to be made available to the Durham and Chester-le-Street primary care trust to provide salaried dentist services. [79026]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Resources are allocated directly to primary care trusts (PCTs) to be used according to the healthcare needs of their local populations. Funding for salaried dental services forms part of their unified budget. It is the responsibility of PCTs to commission salaried dentist services, using funding from this budget according to the needs of their local populations and against national priorities.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the written statement of 18 May 2006, Official Report, column 63WS, on NHS dentistry, how much of the capital investment for dentists is ringfenced for IT in dentistry. [79643]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It will be for strategic health authorities and primary care trusts to make decisions locally on priorities for deploying the £100 million capital investment for NHS primary dental care services announced on 18 May. We intend to publish guidance shortly on potential ways in which this funding could be used most effectively to support dental practices and improve patient services, but we do not intend to ring-fence any element of the funding for specific types of investment.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether there are plans to extend the provision of training for dental technicians at the new dental schools. [79791]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As part of a major investment programme for the expansion of dental education, we announced in January the establishment of a new Peninsula dental school with bases in Plymouth, Devonport and Truro and the development of outreach dental education in Central Lancashire and Hull. It is for higher and further education institutions to determine the provision they make for the training of dental technicians. I understand a number of dental schools are considering whether provision for the training of dental technicians could be incorporated into the expansion programme, but no specific proposals have yet emerged.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the Department will measure the merits of the new General Dental Services contract against the previous fee per item system, with particular reference to complex treatments. [79792]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has established an implementation review group comprising dentistry, patient and national health service representatives to review the impact of the recent dental reforms. The group will shortly be considering how most effectively to assess outcomes under the new arrangements. It will take time for sufficient treatments to have been completed to allow a meaningful assessment, particularly in relation to complex treatments.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been allocated to (a) dental technology and (b) dental laboratories in each of the last five years; and what allocations have been made over the next three years. [79797]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not allocate funds to dental technology or dental laboratories. The costs involved in having dental appliances manufactured for national health service patients are met by general dental practitioners from within the overall remuneration they receive for providing NHS services.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1539W, on dentistry, what proportion of all payments due to dentists since 1 April (a) have not been paid correctly, (b) have not been paid on the due date and (c) have been paid neither correctly nor on the due date. [80305]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The NHS Business Services Authority (BSA) reports that 2 per cent. of the payments due to dentists since 1 April have been found to have been incorrect, 4 per cent. were not paid on the due date and 1 per cent. were both paid after the due date and later found to be incorrect. The BSA, in liaison with the relevant primary care trusts, has already corrected or is in the process of correcting these payments.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there were in Shrewsbury in (a) 1980, (b) 1997 and (c) 2005. [80338]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data for 1980 are not held centrally by parliamentary constituency.

As at 31 March 1997, there were 35 national health service dentists in the Shrewsbury and Atcham parliamentary constituency. At the same point in 2005 there were 80 NHS dentists.

The England figure as at 30 September 1980 was 13,591. The number of NHS dentists in England as at 31 March 2005 was 20,088.

Notes:

1. A dentist with a general dental service or personal dental service contract may provide as little or as much NHS treatment as he or she chooses or has agreed with the primary care trust. Information concerning the amount of time dedicated to NHS work by individual dentists is not centrally available.

2. Data on dentists who work only in private practice are not held centrally.

3. Dentists consist of principals, assistants and trainees. Prison contracts have been excluded.

4. The postcode of the dental practice was used to allocate dentists to specific geographic areas.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the index of orthodontic treatment need is used in the allocation of resources. [80683]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Resources for primary dental services, including orthodontic services, have been allocated to primary care trusts for 2006-07 on the basis of expenditure on general dental services and personal dental services during the reference period October 2004 to September 2005, adjusted for pay uplifts and with some allowance for subsequent growth in services.

The index of orthodontic treatment need is not designed as a basis for resource allocation, but as a way of ensuring that needs assessment is carried out more fairly and that resources are targeted on those with the greatest needs.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the (a) demand for and (b) supply of orthodontic specialists in the United Kingdom for each of the next 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [80684]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is now the responsibility of the strategic health authorities to assess future work force needs and make decisions on number of training places. In 2005, the work force review team, which works on behalf of the national health service to co-ordinate and synthesise information about the health work force in England, made estimates for the requirement for the numbers of whole time equivalent hospital based orthodontic consultants and projections for staff in post as follows:

	Requirement	Orthodontic consultants
2005	264	184
2006	264	192
2007	264	199
2008	264	199
2009	264	202
2010	264	203
2011	264	203
2012	264	207
2013	264	204
2014	264	201

Orthodontic specialists work in both hospitals and primary care settings including high street dental practices. The new commissioning arrangements introduced in April 2006 will in the future enable primary care trusts (PCTs) to plan and commission services across primary and secondary care trusts. We are looking to develop services outside hospital by encouraging PCTs to contract with specialists working in the community and, where appropriate, general dental practitioners with a special interest in orthodontics.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received from orthodontists regarding the impact of running costs on practices under the new dental contract; and if she will make a statement. [80685]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The representations that the Department has received from orthodontists have focused largely on new or growing orthodontic practices, where the value of their most recent national health service caseload (prior to the implementation of the recent dental reforms) exceeds their NHS earnings during the October 2004 to September 2005 reference period used for calculating minimum guaranteed contract values under the new arrangements. It is for primary care trusts to decide locally whether and, if so, how far to adjust contract values in these circumstances, based on assessment of local needs and taking into account local priorities.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the new dental contract arrangements on access to orthodontic treatment; and if she will make a statement. [80686]

Ms Rosie Winterton: New arrangements are designed to provide a more consistent method of assessing orthodontic needs and enable primary care trusts (PCTs) to target resources more accurately on children with the greatest needs.

PCTs will need to form a local view on whether to reduce, maintain or increase the level of orthodontic activity commissioned from dentists in line with the local population's needs and local priorities. It is too early to make any assessment of changes in levels of access to orthodontic treatment.

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of people were registered with an NHS dentist on 29 June in each constituency in England. [81211]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected in the form requested.

Information will be available in due course via the NHS business services authority on the numbers of patients who receive care or treatment from national health service primary care dentists on one or more occasions within a given period of time. This will provide a measure that is broadly similar to that of patient registration under the former system of general dental services. We expect the first information to be available in the autumn.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health why the UK Government have objected to the European Medical Devices Expert Group's recommendation that a statement of conformity be given to the patient from his or her dentist on supply of a custom-made dental appliance. [82152]

Andy Burnham: This proposal, which was made by the European Commission as part of their recommendations to amend the medical devices directive 93/42/EC, is still under negotiation between member states in the Council of Ministers working group and no final decision has been reached. The United Kingdom Government will implement whatever amendment is made to the directive in this respect once it has been ratified by the European Parliament.

Departmental Annual Reports

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in her Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in each of the last three years; and what percentage this represented of the total number of staff in each case. [75113]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As part of the annual staff appraisal process, the performance of individuals is classified against one of the four performance-related pay categories, where box one is the highest category marking, box four being the lowest. The number of staff who received a box marking of three and four is shown in the table.

	Number unacceptable	Percentage
2002-03	24	1.6
2003-04	18	1.0
2004-05	31	1.6

Notes:
Box three—most but not all objectives have been met, meaning that performance is stronger in some parts of the job than in others and further development needs can be identified and performance improvements made to reach good all-round standards. These needs must have been communicated to the individual during the appraisal year. Box four—overall performance is weak and objectives are not being met. Development opportunities have not had a significant effect. By this stage, the individual concerned should have been counselled and been must have been aware that their work is unsatisfactory in both discussion and in writing.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of staff in her Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension. [72992]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Members of the principal civil service pension scheme (PCSPS) can pay additional contributions to top up their pension either through the civil service additional voluntary contributions scheme (CSAVCS), a money purchase arrangement, or by buying added years of service in the PCSPS. As an alternative to membership of the PCSPS recruits from 1 October 2002 have been able to join a stakeholder arrangement, the partnership pension account.

The number and percentage of staff in the Department who are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension as at 30 April 2006 is shown in the table.

	Number	Percentage
CSAVCS	91	4.05
Added years	161	7.17
Partnership	18	0.01

Diabetes

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people with diabetes in England have been provided with structured patient education in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006; [79374]

(2) how many primary care trusts are delivering National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines for structured education for people with diabetes. [79375]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally. However, from January 2006, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) health technology appraisal No 60—"Guidance on the use of patient education models for diabetes" requires all primary care trusts to implement NICE recommendations by providing all people with diabetes with high-quality, structured education. Compliance with NICE health technology appraisals is a core standard and is assessed by the Healthcare Commission as part of its annual health check.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings her Department's Commercial Directorate held with her Department's diabetes policy team about the potential impact on patient care of the Drug Tariff Part IX consultation before 24 October 2005; and how many such meetings have been held since that date. [81109]

Andy Burnham: A formal meeting was held between Dr. Sue Roberts, national clinical director for diabetes, on 21 June 2006 with representatives from the Department's commercial directorate and the pricing and supply directorate.

Digital Hearing Aids

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she plans to introduce a minimum waiting time of 18 weeks for patients in need of a hearing aid. [82194]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 29 June 2006, Official Report, column 604W.

Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received on the decision not to renew the contract for the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin. [76552]

Andy Burnham: At 27 June, the Department has received 1,282 letters regarding the decision not to renew its contract for the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin.

Hon. Members and peers have also tabled 14 and 10 parliamentary questions respectively to the Houses on this issue.

Gender Dysphoria

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what choices of provider are available for those referred for assessment, counselling and treatment, including surgery for gender dysphoria and related gender role anxieties and conditions; whether the achievement of national waiting list targets apply to such referrals; and if she will make a statement. [78616]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The care and treatment pathway for people with gender dysphoria and related conditions usually begins with the patient's referral by their general practitioner to a psychiatrist or psychologist for assessment. If the referral is to a consultant psychiatrist, national waiting targets will apply.

Mental health services are not currently required to offer a choice of provider at the point of referral. If, following an appropriate period of assessment, gender reassignment surgery is recommended, that is usually the subject of a consultant to consultant referral which is also outside the scope of the requirement to offer a choice of provider.

The Department recognises that transsexualism is a medical condition and that the availability of gender reassignment surgery should be dependent on the clinical need of the individual patient. Primary care trusts commission gender dysphoria and surgery services on the basis of their assessment of the needs of their populations and available service capacity.

Health Services (Stoke-on-Trent)

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evaluation has been made of dental health for under-five-year-olds in (a) Stoke-on-Trent, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. [80599]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information available centrally shows that average number of decayed, missing or filled teeth (DMFT) among five-year-olds in the area of South and North Stoke on Trent primary care trust (PCT) is 2.01, compared to 0.97 for West Midlands and 1.49 in England as a whole.

We have also taken note of the fact that Oldbury and Smethwick PCT, which has similar social profile to North Stoke, but receives fluoridated water, has a DMFT of 0.93. Changes we have made in the legislative framework governing fluoridation give communities with high levels of dental decay a real option of having their water fluoridated.

Independent Sector Treatment Centres

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the potential percentage increase is in the capacity for elective procedures in each relevant area for each independent sector treatment centre that has reached invitation to negotiate stage or beyond. [79280]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Invitations to negotiate have been issued for 14 schemes which are proceeding on current indicative figures which are approximate and subject to commercial negotiation.

Total elective activity in England in 2004-05 was 5,577,523 finished consultant episodes. In total, the phase two procurement is expected to provide 250,000 elective procedures per annum, which would be an increase in capacity of approximately 5 per cent. This is in addition to the capacity from the first wave of independent sector treatment centres.

Influenza

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1940W, on influenza, whether the invitation to tender indicated a preference for UK rather than overseas manufacture. [80824]

Ms Rosie Winterton: European Union procurement regulations do not allow us to specify a preference for United Kingdom rather than overseas manufacture in our invitation to tender.

Insulin Inhalers

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will estimate (a) the extra number of NHS psychiatrists that would be needed and (b) the extra cost that would be incurred to implement the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's proposals for psychiatric testing for the prescription of insulin inhalers. [81108]

Andy Burnham: A second appraisal committee decision on inhaled insulin from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) was published on 21 June for consultation. This does not constitute the NICE'S formal guidance on this technology. The recommendations made are preliminary and may change after consultation.

Leftover Prescription Drugs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) advertising and (b) information campaigns her Department has conducted on how to return (i) unused, (ii) unopened and (iii) leftover prescription drugs in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [81431]

Andy Burnham: The Department actively promotes safe use, storage and return of unused, unopened and unwanted medicines to pharmacies for safe disposal. Since the introduction of the new community pharmacy contractual framework from 1 April 2005, the collection and disposal of unwanted medicines has been an essential service provided by all community pharmacies.

Information on the safe use, storage and return of unused and left over medicines has been included on the NHS Direct website. The NHS Direct self-help guide in the Thompson local directory, which has been distributed to 17 million households across England from April 2006, has a full-page advert encouraging people to return old and unwanted medicines to pharmacies for safe disposal. Messages about safe use, storage and disposal of medicines were also included in the "Ask About Medicines Week" campaign in November 2005.

Macmillan Nurses

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice she has offered primary care trusts on whether they should fund Macmillan nurses after the initial period of funding provided by the Macmillan Cancer Support organisation. [81077]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No central guidance has been issued to primary care trusts (PCTs) on whether they should fund Macmillan nurses after the initial period of funding from Macmillan Cancer Support.

It is for trusts to decide how many nurses, including palliative care nurse specialists, are employed in each specialty within hospitals. It is for local cancer networks, working in partnership with PCTs, strategic health authorities and their workforce development directorates, to assess, plan and review their workforce, education and training needs for all staff linked to the delivery of local and national priorities for cancer.

Mental Health Act

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what parts of the Mental Health Act 1983 she expects to be repealed by the forthcoming Mental Health Bill. [80843]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In amending the Mental Health Act 1983 to deliver our policy objectives, our intention is to repeal some elements of that Act. In particular, our plans are to introduce:

a new and simplified definition of mental disorder, which would involve amending those provisions that refer to different categories of mental disorder; an appropriate treatment test, which would involve repealing provisions which relate to the so-called treatability test; and supervised community treatment, which would involve the abolition of aftercare under supervision.

Motor Neurone Disease

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will ask the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to appraise the use of non-invasive ventilation in motor neurone disease treatment. [82419]

Andy Burnham: The Department has no plans to ask the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to issue guidance on the use of non-invasive ventilation in motor neurone disease treatment.

Members of the public and professionals are free to make suggestions on possible topics for interventional procedure guidance via NICE's website at www.nice.org.uk.

NHS Banks

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many regional NHS banks have been established since 1990. [79669]

Andy Burnham: There is only one NHS Bank, which covers all areas of the NHS in England. The Government's commitment to establish an NHS Bank was included in "Delivering the NHS Plan" published in July 2000. The NHS Bank existed in shadow form in 2002-03, and from 2003-04 it has continued as an advisory body.

NHS Complaints

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints against the NHS brought to the attention of the Healthcare Commission and closed by April took longer than (a) eight weeks, (b) six months and (c) one year from receipt of the complaint to closure. [82586]

Andy Burnham: The Chairman of the Healthcare Commission has confirmed that the Commission has faced higher than expected numbers of cases referred to it for independent consideration of national health service complaints since taking on the role in July 2004. From launch to the end of June 2006, 15,460 requests for independent review were received by the Healthcare Commission. Some 2,321 complaints are waiting to be investigated by a case manager. The average age of these queuing cases is 6.5 months. Of these, 2,021 have been waiting longer than eight weeks, 1,198 have been waiting over six months and no complaints have been waiting one year or longer for the start of a case manager review. In addition, there are some 2,907 cases under active review by case managers.

The Department and Healthcare Commission are working together to see how the NHS complaints process might be improved and how better local resolution of complaints can be achieved.

NHS Direct

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the pay reform agenda at NHS Direct; how many sites are waiting for payment of back pay; and when she expects this process to be completed. [82008]

Ms Rosie Winterton: NHS Direct has advised the Department that they are making good progress on pay reform and are working in partnership with unions locally.

Information is not held centrally on how many sites are waiting for payment of back pay but I understand that NHS Direct is currently working on the cost of arrears of pay and expect to have evaluated all relevant timesheets by July/August so that staff can receive their back pay as soon as possible thereafter.

NHS Finances

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the likely impact on services in trusts which have approved budgets which do not take into account interest and other payments on loans. [80923]

Andy Burnham: In 2006-07, the informal and untransparent system of cash brokerage and planned support that had previously operated across the national health service has been replaced by a formal system of interest-bearing loans and deposits.

NHS trusts that require additional cash will take out interest-bearing loans with the Department that will be disclosed in the balance sheet. This transparent reporting of financial performance will encourage organisations to address financial problems earlier.

Strategic health authorities are responsible for performance-managing both cash management and financial planning and should ensure that interest accruing on loans with the Department is included in the financial plans for 2006-07.

NHS Managers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria she uses when deciding to increase the number of NHS managers. [78444]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of managers employed in each national health service organisation is a matter for local determination.

NHS Treatment

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many British taxpayers were charged for NHS treatment due to residency outside the UK for more than 6 months of the year in each year since 2000; how much revenue was raised from such charges; what criteria were used in deciding to apply such charges; and if she will make a statement. [80421]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Entitlement to access free national health service hospital treatment is based on whether someone is ordinarily resident in this country, not on British nationality or the past or present payment of National Insurance contributions or United Kingdom taxes. Anyone who is not ordinarily resident is subject to the National Health Service (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989, as amended. These regulations place a responsibility on NHS hospitals to establish whether a person is ordinarily resident, or exempt from charges under one of a number of exemption categories, or liable for charges.

Anyone who lives outside this country for more than 6 months is no longer automatically entitled to free NHS hospital treatment as they will not be considered ordinarily resident here. They will therefore be liable to charges unless they return to the UK to resume their permanent residency, or if they are exempt under another exemption category.

Successive Governments have not required the NHS to provide statistics on the number of overseas visitors seen or treated under the provisions of these regulations or on the costs of treatment. It is therefore not possible to provide the information requested.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were treated by the NHS for wounds caused by (a) a knife, (b) a dagger, (c) a sword, (d) other types of bladed article and (e) a firearm in each year since 1997; what proportion of the victims were (i) male and (ii) female in each category in each year; and how many in each category in each year were admitted as emergency cases. [79600]

Andy Burnham: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Nurses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost is to the public purse of training a nurse. [79666]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The latest year for which figures are available show that in 2004-05 the national average cost of tuition to train a nurse over the three years of their course was £19,740. Diploma students would also be entitled to a non-means tested bursary, which in 2004-05 averaged £6,547 per annum.

Obesity

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what targets have been set for healthcare professionals for assisting patients to manage their weight. [80187]

Caroline Flint: National targets are set out in "National Standards Local Action: Health and Social Care Standards and Planning Framework 2005-06-2007-08". For obesity, the current target is to tackle the underlying determinants of ill health and health inequalities by halting the year on year rise in obesity in children under 11 by 2010 in the context of a broader strategy to tackle obesity in the population as a whole. Any local targets are set and performance-managed at a local level.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guideline daily amounts of (a) salt, (b) energy, (c) fat and (d) saturates are recommended by the (i) Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition and (ii) Food Standards Agency. [80190]

Caroline Flint: The Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition (SACN) supports the dietary recommendations set out by the committee on medical aspects of food policy (COMA). Dietary reference values for nutrients form the basis of nutrient recommendations on dietary intakes and are used for assessing the adequacy of diets. For adults the recommendations are:

a reference nutrient intake of four grams of salt per day, and a target reduction in the average population intake of salt to six grams per day for adults. Lower targets have been set for children according to age; energy intake recommendations are set according to age, body weight and physical activity levels; total fat intake should average 35 per cent., of energy derived from food; and saturated fats— an average for the population of 10 per cent. total dietary energy.

All the above recommendations of SACN and its predecessor, COMA, are endorsed by the Department and the Food Standards Agency.

Overseas Visitors (NHS Care)

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the outcome of her Department's consultation in 2004 on proposals to exclude overseas visitors from eligibility to free NHS primary medical services. [79296]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department's public consultation on proposals to exclude overseas visitors from eligibility to free national health service primary medical services concluded on 13 August 2004. The response to the consultation has raised some complex issues, which we have been working across Government to resolve.

Palliative Care

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been allocated to palliative care in (a) England and (b) the West Midlands in each of the past 10 years. [80123]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not routinely collect the data requested.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible within the national health service for commissioning and funding services for their resident population, including palliative care. The NHS is currently receiving the largest sustained increase in funding in its history, but growth money is not identified for specific purposes. PCTs will be able to use these extra resources to deliver on both national and local priorities, including palliative care.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the financial impact on acute trusts of doubling funding for palliative care, as set out in the Labour Party's 2005 election manifesto. [80609]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Ministers have asked the National Cancer Director, Professor Mike Richards, supported by Professor Ian Philp, National Director for Older People, to prepare a comprehensive strategy to develop and progress end of life care. The strategy will establish the means whereby the Government's manifesto commitment on palliative care and also the end of life care strategy outlined in the White Paper "Our health, our care, our say" will be delivered.

The strategy will set out in more detail the rationale for the new developments on end of life care that were heralded in "Our health, our care, our say" and provide guidance to commissioners and providers on how to bring about improvements in end of life care at a local level and will need to take account of:

- funding issues for hospices and specialist palliative care issues;
- the various issues around choice at the end of life;
- the need to improve the quality of end of life care in hospitals and care homes; and
- the need for more improved co-ordination of services across organisational boundaries.

Professor Richards has been asked to report back to Ministers in the autumn.

Parkinson's Disease

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research her Department has commissioned into possible links between Parkinson's disease and use of pesticides. [81122]

Caroline Flint: The independent advisory committee on pesticides (ACP) provides authoritative advice to Government on all aspects of pesticides. At its meeting in November 2004, the ACP considered a report produced by its medical and toxicology panel on the possible links between pesticides and Parkinson's disease. At that meeting, the committee concluded that although this review indicated a correlation between recalled pesticide exposure and Parkinson's disease it did not point to a particular toxic mechanism or a hazard from a specific compound or group of compounds.

However, the committee did advise that further mechanistic and epidemiological research be carried out on the association between pesticide exposure and Parkinson's disease. The tender process has been organised by the pesticides safety directorate and has now finished. Two research proposals have now been funded by the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs, one is an epidemiology study, the other a mechanistic study.

The issue was briefly discussed at the ACP meeting of 27 June 2006 and a full evaluation is expected soon. A new study by the Harvard School of Public Health has recently been widely reported in the press and ACP shall review this as soon as it becomes available.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the reorganisation of primary care trusts will necessitate a change in the way resources are allocated in the NHS. [80791]

Andy Burnham: Revenue allocations are made to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. The weighted capitation formula is used to determine PCTs' target shares of available resources to enable them to commission similar levels of health services for populations in similar need.

The method used to allocate the 2006-08 revenue allocations to PCTs will not change as a result of the reconfiguration of PCTs. The advisory committee on resource allocation will continue to oversee the development of the allocations formula and will make recommendations to Ministers on any future changes to the weighted capitation formula for PCT revenue allocations post 2007-08.

Practice-based Commissioning

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2006, Official Report, column 1083W, on practice-based commissioning, what her latest estimate is of the number of GP practices engaged in practice-based commissioning in (a) England and (b) each strategic health authority; and if she will make a statement. [79044]

Caroline Flint: Information on the number of practices taking up an incentive payment to participate in practice-based commissioning is shown in the following table.

Strategic health authority (SHA) name	Number of practices in SHA	Number of practices taking up an incentive payment	Percentage of practices taking up an incentive payment

Notes:
The information is correct as of 31 May 2006.
Engagement in practice-based commissioning is measured through take up of an incentive payment. This may be the national directed enhanced service for practice-based commissioning or a local alternative.
The Department is planning to publish information on the take-up of practice-based commissioning for future months. This will be available on the Department's website.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) timetable is and (b) arrangements are for the (i) submission of applications and (ii) consideration of the appointment of the (A) chairperson and (B) members of the board of the new primary care trust covering Thurrock. [79295]

Andy Burnham: The NHS Appointments Commission is the body responsible for the appointment of chairs and non executives (NEDs) to all new primary care trusts—both non-reconfiguring primary care trusts (PCTs) and reconfiguring PCTs.

The final candidate who is being considered for the post of Chair of South West Essex Teaching PCT, which will be the new PCT covering the Thurrock area, will be interviewed on 24 July and the Appointments Commission anticipate that the chair-designate will be appointed at the end of July at a special board meeting of the Commission.

The non-executive director posts have been advertised and applications received. Once the chair-designate is known, the dates for shortlisting and interviewing these candidates can be arranged. The Appointments Commission aim to make the first NED appointments in September.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 4 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1782-83W, on primary care trusts, what the figures for revenue allocation for primary care trusts in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08 represent per head of population across each (i) strategic health authority and (ii) Government region. [80254]

Andy Burnham: Revenue allocations for primary care trusts (PCTs) in 2006-07 and 2007-08 aggregated to strategic health authorities (SHAs) and Government regions and presented per person are shown in the tables.

Public Consultations

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which public consultation exercises have resulted in the closure of (a) beds, (b) services and (c) other NHS facilities in each of the last three years; [80729]

(2) how many public consultations the NHS carried out in each of the last 3 years; and what the outcome was in each case. [80730]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally.

National health service organisations have a duty to involve and consult patients, the public and their representatives in the planning and development of, and any changes to, the operation of services. NHS bodies are also under a duty to consult overview and scrutiny committees on any plans to make substantial variation to NHS services. Those committees have the powers to refer any proposal to the Secretary of State if they believe the plans are not in the interests of the health service. Currently there are four referrals being considered by the Secretary of State.

Redundancy Arrangements

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether redundancy arrangements for chief executives of primary care NHS trusts and strategic health authorities are published. [79680]

Andy Burnham: There are two documents covering these arrangements:

"Strategic health authority reorganisation: chief executive transitions, ensuring good human resource practice and value for money" is specifically aimed at strategic health authority (SHA) chief executives affected by "Commissioning A Patient-Led NHS" changes and was circulated by the Department to SHAs on 8 May 2006; and

"Standards for implementing good human resource practice and value for money when staff are affected by organisational change" covers all other staff including primary care trust chief executives. This guidance was published on the NHS Employers website on 15 June 2006.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether (a) primary care trusts, (b) NHS trusts and (c) strategic health authorities which make senior managers redundant are able to reclaim some of this cost from central resources. [79681]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no central fund to finance the cost of redundancy. National health service organisations have been asked to minimise the cost of severance, and where possible these should be financed from in-year management cost savings. The recurring savings will exceed one-off redundancy costs.

Reproductive Health

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many morning-after pills were sold over the counter in pharmacies in each primary care trust area in each year since 2001, broken down by age of user. [81278]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Brent East (Sarah Teather) by the then Minister of State, Department of Health, the right hon. Member for Liverpool, Wavertree (Jane Kennedy) on 11 January 2006, Official Report, column 731W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on how she is carrying out her duty under section 5 of the National Health Service Act 1977 with regard to family planning services. [81283]

Caroline Flint: It is a matter for local primary care trusts (PCTs) to determine what level of contraceptive service it provides, and whom it commissions the services from, in order to meet the needs of its local population.

Improving access to, and persuading people of the benefits of using contraceptive methods to avoid the risk of unplanned pregnancies or sexually transmitted infections is one of the key aims of the Government's White Paper, "Choosing Health: making healthy choices easier".

Earlier this year, all PCT sexual health leads were asked to complete a baseline review of contraceptive services to inform locally and nationally gaps in service provision. The Department has so far received responses covering 245 PCTs.

Departmental officials are currently collating these data and will publish best practice guidance for reproductive health services later this year. This will link into the White Paper and highlight findings from the review, share good practice and draw out guidance to support at local and national level the provision of contraceptive services.

To support modernisation of contraceptive services we are investing £40 million (£20 million in each 2006-07 and 2007-08). We have also reduced the rate of value added tax on condoms and emergency hormonal contraception from 1 July to the lowest level of 5 per cent., making the costs of these items more affordable and are working with the industry to increase the supply of free condoms to high-risk groups.

Seasonal Influenza Vaccine

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to ensure sufficient supply of seasonal influenza vaccine for the 2006-07 winter. [80787]

Caroline Flint: Departmental officials meet with the United Kingdom (UK) vaccine industry group each year to discuss flu vaccine requirements for the UK. Information on the supply of vaccine for the forthcoming flu season is detailed in the letter from the Chief Medical Officer to the profession dated 29 June, a copy of which is available on the Department's website at: www.info.doh.gov.uk/doh/embroadcast.nsf/vwDiscussionAll/1268E83B317864A28025719C002E5973.

Copies have been placed in the Library.

Sir David Henshaw

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints the NHS Appointments Commission has received about the appointment of Sir David Henshaw as chair of the North West strategic health authority; and whether they have been forwarded to the Commissioner of Public Appointments. [79007]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The NHS Appointments Commission received four complaints regarding the appointment of Sir David Henshaw, chair of the North West strategic health authority.

The NHS Appointments Commission is not required to refer complaints to the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Smoking

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of women aged under 30 years who are smokers; what the figure was (a) five years and (b) 10 years ago; and if she will make a statement. [80196]

Caroline Flint: The information is not available in the format requested. However, data on the most recently available estimates of the prevalence of smoking among women in 2004, 1998 and 1994 in each of the age groups 16 to 19, 20 to 24 and 25 to 34 is shown in the table. The figures demonstrate the success of the tobacco control policies the Department has introduced since the White Paper "Smoking Kills" was published in 1998.

Speech and Language Therapy

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many speech and language therapists were employed by each primary care trust in 2005-06; and what the ratio of speech and language therapists to the population was. [76672]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on the number of many speech and language therapists employed by each primary care trust PCT and the ratio of speech and language therapists to the population has been placed in the Library.

In some larger areas, which cover a number of PCTs, one PCT will take on the responsibility of providing speech and language therapists for the others. This normally happens where the local authority boundary is coterminous with the boundaries of the PCTs involved.

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to increase the number of speech and language therapists employed by the NHS. [76673]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for primary care trusts in partnership with strategic health authorities, local authorities and other local stakeholders to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health, tackling health inequalities and modernising services. This process provides the means for addressing needs within the local community including the provision of speech and language therapy.

The number of qualified speech and language therapists employed in the national health service has increased by 1,329 (24 per cent.) since 2000 to 6,759 in 2005. The number of speech and language therapy undergraduate commissions has increased by 149 (27 per cent.) since 2000 to 707 in 2005.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria are used to decide on the proportion of funding for speech and language therapy coming from (a) central Government and (b) local government. [81437]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for primary care trusts in partnership with strategic health authorities, local authorities and other local stakeholders to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health, tackling health inequalities and modernising services. This process provides the means for addressing local needs within the health community including the provision of speech and language therapy.

St. Ann's Hospital, Haringey

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect of closing down the x-ray department at St. Ann's hospital in Haringey. [81577]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for the local national health service to make assessments and decisions on how local services are delivered. However, I understand that North Middlesex University Hospital NHS Trust has held a consultation, on a proposal to transfer x-ray facilities from St. Anne's hospital to the North Middlesex University hospital site. The consultation ended on 13 June 2006 and proposals will be put before a meeting of the local overview and scrutiny committee, before any final decisions are taken.

Tourists (Health Care Funding)

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account her Department takes of increased summer populations in coastal areas and other holiday destinations when allocating funds to primary care trusts; and if she will make a statement. [80718]

Andy Burnham: Primary care trust (PCT) populations are defined for resource allocation as the patients registered with general practitioner (GP) practices forming the PCT and unregistered patients within their geographical boundaries.

The prescribing component of the weighted capitation formula includes a weighting for temporary residents on GP practice lists which advantages PCTs in coastal areas and other holiday destinations.

The advisory committee on resource allocation is reviewing the population base for the next round of allocations.

There are separate funding arrangements for patients who need emergency treatment away from home where the treating trust invoices the patient's home PCT.

Treatment Abroad

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health following the ruling of the European Court of Justice of 16 May 2006 on the reimbursement by the NHS of a patient who receives treatment in another member state under the E112 scheme, whether patients seeking infertility treatment would be eligible for treatment under this scheme. [78585]

Ms Rosie Winterton: From 1992 to date, 11 applications have been approved for in vitro fertilisation (IVF) treatment abroad under the E112 scheme.

The Court of Justice's judgment in the Watts case confirmed that it is justifiable for patients seeking hospital treatment abroad, at national health service expense, to be required to obtain prior authorisation from their healthcare commissioner before being treated. The judgment also confirmed that the conditions that apply to service availability within the United Kingdom can also apply to requests for treatment elsewhere in the European Union: primary care trusts will consider requests on a case by case basis.

General guidance on the implications of the Watts case will be issued to the NHS shortly.

Turnaround Teams

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts in turnaround have had their (a) management team, (b) budgetary controls and (c) reporting systems rated good or better by her Department and external auditors. [80717]

Andy Burnham: The turnaround teams were announced by the Secretary of State in a written ministerial statement on 1 December.

The first stage was a baseline assessment which aimed to ensure there is an agreed understanding of the local financial problem and that actions are in hand to address this. The contract for the baseline assessment was awarded to consultants KPMG. The results of the assessment were published in the report from Richard Douglas on 25 January 2006.

The assessment was not "good or better" but has four categories (1-4) which gives an overall assessment:

(1) Immediate priority. Need for urgent intervention to drive turnaround;

(2) Additional expertise/resource needed to support the turnaround;

(3) Drive/focus. Maintain high priority of actions; and

(4) Regular challenge of management. Encourage to share what works and deliver easy wins.

The numbers of PCTs in the turnaround cohort by overall category are listed in the following table.

	Number
Category 1	11
Category 2	20
Category 3	18
Category 4	3

KPMG also provided a management ranking (1-4) which represents an assessment of management's capacity to deliver the turnaround:

(1) Management are unlikely to have the capability to deliver the turnaround;

(2) The management team will likely require additional resource to deliver turnaround;

(3) The management team will require careful monitoring to ensure they are delivering the turnaround but do not require any intervention; and

(4) The management team have the capability to deliver the turnaround.

The numbers of PCTs in the turnaround cohort by management category are listed in the following table.

	Number
Management ranking 1	11
Management ranking 2	20
Management ranking 3	18
Management ranking 4	3

There was no quantifiable assessment of budgetary controls or reporting systems.

Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1818W, on waiting times, in what detail data were collected in 1979; whether her Department has previously attempted to calculate the (a) mean and (b) median waiting time in 1979; and what the (i) mean and (ii) median waiting time was in each year for which figures are available since they were first collected. [80825]

Andy Burnham: The following information on waiting times was collected in 1979.

In-patients

Total list size of patients waiting for ordinary admission.

Out-patients

No waiting time information collected.

Due to the lack of detailed data available, mean and median waits have not been calculated for 1979. The mean and median waiting times are available on a commissioner basis back to 1993-94 for in-patients, and 1997-98 for out-patients. However, figures are available on a provider basis back to 1987-88 for in-patients and 1993-94 for out-patients.

The figures are shown in the following tables.

West Cheshire Primary Care Trust

Christine Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated to the West Cheshire primary care trust for the provision of sexual health services in each of the next three financial years. [82672]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Funding is allocated to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. It is for PCTs to determine how to use the funding allocated to them to commission services, including sexual health services, to meet the healthcare needs of their local populations. Allocations made to the Cheshire West PCT from 2005-06 to 2007-08 are shown in the following table.

	Allocations (£ million)
2005-06	164.1
2006-07	196.6

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Leader of the House which matches (a) he and (b) the Deputy Leader of the House attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contribution from third party organisations. [83597]

Nigel Griffiths: None.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women are known to have died within one month of operations for termination of pregnancy notified under the Abortion Regulations in each year since 1997; and what cause of death was recorded on the death certificate in each case. [81176]

Caroline Flint: The confidential inquiry into maternal and child health reports information on deaths following termination of pregnancy up to one year after the event. In the period 1997 to 2002 there were only seven such deaths known to the inquiry. Further information is contained within the two triennial reports on confidential inquiries into maternal deaths in the United Kingdom for the periods 1997-99 and 2000-02, which are available at www.cemach.org.uk.

Arun Community Hospital

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to be in a position to decide on the future of the Arun community hospital in Littlehampton. [82483]

Caroline Flint: Responsibility for decisions on the future of Arun community hospital rests with the local national health service.

Black/Asian Employees

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) black and Asian and (b) other people are employed in her Department's press office. [74362]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of staff employed in the Department's press office is 48. The number who have disclosed their ethnicity status cannot be given under grounds of confidentiality.

Breast Milk Substitutes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the adequacy of regulations to protect against the promotion of products inferior to breast milk. [81530]

Caroline Flint: The Department is working with the Food Standards Agency to continue to press for changes to the recast European Union directive on infant formula and follow-on formula advertising.

The Department also intends to review, later this year, the United Kingdom regulations on infant formula and follow-on formula advertising, a commitment set out in the "Choosing Health—Making healthy choices easier" White Paper.

Childhood Immunisation Services

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GP practices have opted out of providing childhood immunisation services following the introduction of the new GP contract in 2003; and where each is located. [79773]

Caroline Flint: In 2004, 6.3 per cent. of general medical services (GMS) partnerships had opted out of providing childhood immunisation services. In 2005, the proportion of GMS partnerships opting out was reported to be 36.7 per cent.

Comparison between 2004 and 2005 childhood immunisation services opt-out data should be undertaken with caution. Data as at 30 September 2004 was the first year in which opt-out data was collected on a partnership basis following the change in the general practitioner (GP) contract in April 2004. The figures published as at 30 September 2005 (a revision of earlier collected data) shows a great increase in the number of partnerships opting-out of childhood immunisation services, with no corresponding explanation of the increase.

The 2004 and 2005 data is published in full by The Information Centre for health and social care and can be found at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/10/73/41/04107341.xls. A copy has been placed in the Library.

However, as part of its statutory duties, each primary care trust, under section 16CC of the National Health Services Act 1977(a), must provide a childhood immunisation scheme. If a GP opts out, then one per cent. is removed from the GPs global sum payment. This allows the primary care trust to re-provide the service with another contractor or to self-provide.

Connecting for Health

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her latest estimate is of the total implementation costs of Connecting for Health, including the cost of local implementation. [76973]

Caroline Flint: The value of contracts let for the core components of the national programme for information technology, which is being delivered by the department's NHS Connecting for Health Agency, amounts to £6.2 billion over 10 years and this has not increased. Information about local national health service expenditure on implementing the programme, separate from the totality of NHS spending on information technology, is not collected centrally.

However, the National Audit Office (NAO) have calculated that the full gross cost of the programme including national contracts and legitimately approved additions, other central expenditure, and local implementation costs is approximately £12.4 billion at 2004-05 prices. But this figure does not take into account anticipated savings in the price paid by the NHS for information technology goods and services due to the central buying power of NHS Connecting for Health, or in NHS staff time saved through using the programme's systems and services. The NAO report acknowledges an independent evaluation that confirms that £4.5 billion has been saved by central rather than local procurement and also acknowledges a further £860 million of savings achieved through centrally negotiated enterprise wide arrangements.

Consultants

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many consultants per capita there were in (a) Gloucestershire and (b) England in each year since 1997. [77827]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 15 June 2006]: The number of consultants per 100,000 weighted population and per 100,000 unweighted population in England and Gloucestershire in each year since 1997 is shown in the table.

Departmental Documents

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) individuals and (b) organisations received an embargoed copy of each (i) consultation document and (ii) White Paper produced by her Department in 2006; and if she will make a statement. [77567]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information sought by the hon. Member with respect to all consultation documents could only be supplied at disproportionate cost.

Embargoed copies of the "Our health, our care, our say" White Paper were provided on the day of publication to Parliament under the usual conventions, to journalists and to seven members of the citizen's panel who advised on the development of the White Paper.

Digital Hearing Aids

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding has been made available for the introduction of digital hearing aids; and if she will make a statement on the progress of their introduction. [82193]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The modernising hearing aids service programme (MHAS) was managed by the Royal National Institute for the Deaf (RNID), on behalf of the Department from 2000 to 2005. Through this programme, the Government have invested £125 million to ensure that by 2005 all national health service hearing aid services could routinely fit modern digital hearing aids.

There have been other significant improvements:

working with the RNID we have ensured that high quality digital hearing aids are now available throughout the NHS with an estimated 750,000 people fitted with digital hearing aids by the NHS;

the current public private partnership is also proving very successful; by February 2006 approximately 68,600 patients had been fitted with a hearing aid; and RNID and NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency working together have negotiated a reduction in the cost to the NHS of digital hearing aids.

Direct Payments

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will set a timetable for the extension of direct payments made in lieu of social services provision to people who are currently ineligible. [82251]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government are exploring ways to extend direct payments to those currently excluded, by using an agent for those without capacity to consent, or unable to manage even with assistance. There will need to be legislative changes to enable this to happen and we will make these as soon as parliamentary time allows.

Drug Rehabilitation

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average expenditure per patient was for drug rehabilitation in (a) England, (b) the West Midlands and (c) Stoke-on-Trent in the last period for which figures are available; and what plans there are to provide additional funding. [80257]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment has been made of the cost-effectiveness of drug rehabilitation funding. [80258]

Caroline Flint: There has been no recent assessment of the cost-effectiveness of drug rehabilitation funding.

GP Referrals

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has commissioned on the clinical effectiveness of adopting a maximum 18-week waiting time target for all GP referrals. [78012]

Andy Burnham: Research specifically into the clinical effectiveness of introducing a maximum 18-week waiting time was not commissioned. However, there was extensive clinical input to the plans for delivering the 18-weeks commitment, which was published in "Tackling hospital waiting: the 18-week patient pathway" on 10 May 2006. The vision is to provide patients with fast and convenient access to hospital care, enhancing clinical outcomes wherever appropriate. As now, those with conditions requiring urgent attention will be treated much faster than the average and most waiting times from referral to treatment will be much shorter than 18 weeks.

Herceptin

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether Herceptin will be available on the NHS in Gloucestershire in 2006. [80774]

Caroline Flint: There is no restriction on the national health service to prescribe drugs, within their licensed indications, while the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is developing guidance.

On 9 June, NICE published its draft guidance on Herceptin. These recommendations are subject to an appeal period which closed on 28 June 2006. The final guidance is expected to be issued at the beginning of July 2006, assuming there are no appeals.

Once finalised, the recommendations will mean that all eligible patients with early stage HER2-positive breast cancer should receive Herceptin on the NHS within three months of NICE issuing final guidance. Although the recommendations are subject to appeal, there are no national restrictions on the NHS using Herceptin.

Health Care (Shropshire)

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) Down's syndrome birth rate and (b) birth defect rate was for each electoral ward in Shropshire, in each year from 2000 to 2005. [82401]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 6 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the (a) Down's Syndrome birth rate and (b) birth defect rate was for each electoral ward in Shropshire in each year from 2000 to 2005. (82401)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) is responsible for maintaining the National Congenital Anomaly System (NCAS) notifications in England and Wales. These notifications are collected only for live and stillbirths (e.g. terminations are excluded) and are provided by NHS Trusts on a voluntary basis either directly to ONS on form SD56 or via local congenital anomaly registers that exchange data with ONS. Information on congenital anomalies is routinely published for strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by electoral ward because of the risk of disclosing individual's information due to very small number of events.

Notifications of congenital anomalies, numbers and rates, in Shropshire County from 2000 to 2004 (the most recent year for which figures are available) are given in the table below.

Congenital anomaly notifications - Down Syndrome, All babies: number and rates for Shropshire county, 2000-04

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2000-04
Babies notified with Down syndrome	*	*	*	*	*	5
Rates per 10,000 live and stillbirths	*	*	*	*	*	0.4
Babies notified with a congenital anomaly	13	16	14	16	13	72
Rates per 10,000 live and stillbirths	4.7	6.1	5.1	5.6	4.7	5.2

* Numbers smaller than 5 and rates based on these numbers have been suppressed to protect confidentiality of individuals.

Information Technology

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on information technology by (a) NHS trusts and (b) primary care trusts in (i) 2002-03, (ii) 2003-04, (iii) 2004-05 and (iv) 2005-06. [74060]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table.

	2002-03	2003-04	£ millions 2004-05
NHS trusts	653	741	768
Primary care trusts	257	350	428
Total	910	1,091	1,196

These figures, rounded to the nearest whole million pounds, comprise revenue expenditure reported through a national survey of information technology investment by national health service organisations; and capital expenditure, including information technology additions and software licences, identified in NHS accounts. They do not include expenditure by strategic health authorities, special health authorities, or central expenditure funded by the Department.

For each year in the table, revenue expenditure is understated because a small percentage of NHS organisations, averaging four per cent. per year, failed to complete returns.

Information for 2005-06 is not yet available.

Malnutrition

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of people (a) admitted to and (b) discharged from hospital were malnourished in the last year in which figures are available, broken down by age; and if she will make a statement. [81699]

Mental Health

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will seek to amend the rules governing confidentiality of personal information for those with severe mental health problems to ensure that specified family members may be given full disclosure of medication and treatment. [77114]

Caroline Flint: The rules governing confidentiality of personal information distinguish between individuals who lack the capacity to meaningfully consent to, or dissent from, information being shared, and those who have this capacity. Where capacity is judged to be absent, a health professional is expected to share information with those who need to know, including family members where appropriate, where this is in the patient's best interest or where the public interest in sharing outweighs the obligation of confidentiality.

Where an individual has the capacity to consent but refuses to do so, a health professional may still disclose information where the public interest served by doing so outweighs the obligation of confidentiality. This may include, where the risk is sufficient to warrant it, the protection of the individual's health or to safeguard others.

Where a patient is being cared for under the provisions of the Mental Health Act 1983, their nearest relative has certain statutory rights in relation to their detention and guardianship.

The Department will be revising its confidentiality guidelines during the course of this year and the importance of keeping family members informed will be given appropriate emphasis.

NHS Care Records Service

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons she has delayed the introduction of the NHS Care Records Service (CRS); where she expects the pilot sites to test the NHS CRS will be established; and what information will be uploaded onto the national system (a) under the NHS CRS pilots and (b) when the NHS CRS is fully enabled. [75440]

Caroline Flint: The NHS Care Records Service (NHS CRS) is the key component of the new systems and services being delivered through the national programme for information technology. It has a number of applications, including:

personal demographics service (PDS), which holds nationally demographic information for every patient covered by the national health service in England, accessible through local systems, and is currently processing message transactions at a rate of over 9 million per month;

spine directory services, which holds reference data such as users and locations. Over 260,000 users are now registered, around 50,000 currently access the system on any given day;

access control framework, which registers and authenticates users, including patients, and provides a single log-in and a record of each professional accessing a NHS care record; and transaction messaging system, which processes and routes data messages, for example from a GP to a hospital or from one general practitioner to another.

Introduction of the NHS CRS has not been delayed. These four elements went live on time and to budget in July 2004 to support choose and book. Among other planned applications, the first stage of the secondary uses service went live in June 2005 to support payment by results. Other core modules are scheduled for release over the course of 2006 and 2007. However, ambitious initial targets were set to drive the programme, and some individual components have been delayed.

In general implementation is being achieved in carefully managed stages, via incremental roll out both geographically, and by increasing functionality over time to build the care record. The programme is about patient and clinician benefit and improved safety. We believe it is best to get things right in the long term rather than to push on regardless against a rigid timetable and risk getting things wrong in the short term. In the context of a 10-year programme the impact of this is limited.

When fully deployed, the NHS CRS will be made up of records of individual clinicians recording episodes of care, key aspects of which will be placed in the detailed care record for sharing with others as their roles allow within local health communities, and a summary care record. The national programme's national clinical leads, working with NHS Connecting for Health, have undertaken work with a wide range of groups including the British Medical Association and the royal colleges to consider the best way of populating and launching the summary care record.

As a result, a limited amount of clinical information will be automatically uploaded, such as prescriptions and allergies. More detailed information would then be added on a case by case basis. This approach is supported by the BMA on the basis that as it takes full account of the views of patients.

NHS Direct

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will ask the chief executive of NHS Direct to explain to the hon. Member for Chorley the reasons for the delay in replying to his letter dated 16 May. [81463]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have asked the chief executive of NHS Direct to write to the hon. Member for Chorley to explain the reasons for the delay in replying to his letter dated 16 May 2006 and understand a reply has been sent. I know that the chief executive of NHS Direct has also offered to meet the hon. Member and he may wish to consider whether he accepts that offer.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many calls to NHS Direct were (a) received, (b) handled and (c) abandoned in each year since 1999-2000; and how many and what percentage of calls that were handled were redirected to other services. [62596]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 March 2006]: The available information requested is shown in the table.

NHS Direct data: calls offered, calls answered, calls abandoned and the percentage of calls redirected by NHS Direct to other parts of the national health service, including 999, accident and emergency, general practitioners, walk-in centres, dental and other professionals.

	Calls offered	Calls answered	Calls abandoned after 30 seconds	Percentage of calls abandoned after 30 seconds	Proportion of calls redirected as a percentage of calls answered
January 2003 to March 2003	2,075,764	1,633,282	158,564	9	49
April 2003 to March 2004	8,176,571	6,404,478	759,858	11	49

April 2005 to March 2006	7,919,118	6,811,751	743,733	10	52

Notes:
1. Clinical sorting data was not collected at a national level prior to January 2003.
2. Data are shown for the periods January 2003 to March 2003 and for financial years April 2003 to March 2006.
3. Data includes combined calls = 0845, out-of-hours and other.
4. Definitions of data:
Calls offered—number of calls offered/made, including wrong numbers and people hanging up within 30 seconds.
Calls answered—number of calls answered/handled after the introductory message.
Calls abandoned—number of calls abandoned after the introductory message.

NHS Information Technology

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she has taken to achieve adoption and acceptance of the NHS IT programme by trust executives since 2002; and what estimate she has made of future levels of adoption. [76387]

Caroline Flint: Following publication of the strategy 'Delivering 21st Century IT support for the NHS', the NHS chief executive wrote to the chief executives of all national health service bodies in September 2003 explaining their responsibilities for implementing the national programme for information technology (NPfIT) and for using programme contracts.

Local programmes, led by trust executives and supported from the Department, have always been at the heart of implementation, taking responsibility for planning the pace and sequence of deployments. In addition, the Department has routinely used its planning and performance management regime to support local implementation of the national programme. For example, during 2004 annual planning round, the NHS were provided with targets relating to the planning and implementation of the programme. Similarly, in June 2005, the Department wrote to all strategic health authority (SHA) chief executives requiring the establishment of integrated service improvement programmes as a vehicle for bringing together benefits and improvements from current NHS initiatives and programmes, including NPfIT. In November 2005 the Department's delivery director reiterated the importance of giving close attention to issues relating to delivery of the programme, and that implementation and use of NPfIT systems and services should be one of the key priorities of all NHS organisations.

The new SHA and primary care trust chief executives will in future be the senior responsible owners for implementation of the national programme in their areas.

We remain on track to complete the national programme, as planned, by 2010.

NHS IT Support

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the contracting timetable in paragraph 4.4.1 of Delivering 21st century IT support for the NHS, how many of those procurements have been made; when they were made; from whom; and what the value is of the contract in each case. [75129]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the tables. Contract values are for the whole life of the contract.

NHS Staff

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average earnings were of a (a) doctor, (b) dentist and (c) nurse in (i) 1979, (ii) 1997 and (iii) the most recent period for which figures are available, in (A) nominal and (B) real terms. [76970]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The available information is shown in the following tables. Table one shows the average earnings of doctors in the hospital and community health services and of qualified nurses and midwives in 1998 and 2004 based on the national health service staff earnings survey. This data is not available prior to 1998. Table two shows the intended average net income for general medical practitioners in 1979-80 and 1997-98 and their estimated average net income in 2004-05. Table three shows average general dental service (CDS) income for dentists with a reasonable CDS commitment in 1997-98 and 2004-05. Figures are not available on a comparable basis for previous years.

Table 1: Average estimated total earnings for all doctors in the hospital and community health services and qualified nurses and midwives, England

	Estimated annualised average total earnings (£)
	1998		2004
	Nominal	Real terms	Nominal	Real terms
All hospital and community health services doctors	44,700	53,500	67,700	70,800
Qualified nurses and midwives	19,600	23,500	26,400	27,600

Notes:
1. The NHS earnings survey is based on a sample of payroll data from approximately 50 per cent. of NHS trusts.
2. Earnings figures are based on monthly payments in August, multiplied by 12 to give annual equivalent amounts.
3. Averages are calculated by dividing total payments by total full time equivalents.
4. Figures are rounded to the nearest £100.
5. Real term figures are calculated using the HM Treasury GDP Deflator Index using 2006-07 as the base year.

Table 2: Intended average net income (IANI)[1] for general practitioners (GPs), 1979-80 and 1997-98, and estimated average net income (ANI), 2004-05, Great Britain

	IANI (Nominal) (£)	IANI (in 2004-05 prices) (£)
1979-80	14,284	45,353
1997-98	46,031	54,094
	Estimated ANI £	Estimated ANI in 2004-05 prices £
2004-05[2]	87,076	87,076

[1] The concept of IANI (which related to all principal general medical service (GMS) GP's, full-time and part-time) disappeared for 2004-05 onwards, when new contractual arrangements came into place.
[2] The 2004-05 average net income figure for GMS/primary medical service GPs was estimated by the joint DH/BMA/NHS Employers Technical Steering Committee (TSC). It is not directly comparable with the earlier IANI series.

Table 3: Estimated average general dental service (CDS) net income for dentists with a reasonable CDS commitment[1], 1997-98 to 2004-05, England and Wales

	Estimated average net income (Nominal) (£)	Estimated average net income (in 2004-05 prices) (£)
2004-05	70,000	70,000

[1] Dentists with a reasonable commitment to the GDS are defined as dentists with GDS earnings equivalent to at least £40,000 in 1993-94 in fees for treatments and patient capitation. This equivalent is calculated each year by adjusting figures to take into account the effect of fee increases. The equivalent figure for 2004-05 is £59,100.

Notes:
1. Commitment payments started in 2001.
2. Figures since 2000-01 use a different methodology to calculate the contribution from other non-fee/capitation payments.
3. Figures prior to 1997-98 are not available on a comparable basis.
4. The income figures cover both estimated fees for treatments and patient capitation as well as other estimated payments such as seniority payments and commitment payments and payments for maternity and sickness. They exclude dentists' income from private sources.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS posts have been vacant for more than three months since January, broken down by strategic health authority. [78359]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The latest information available on the three month vacancy rate and number for non-medical and medical staff by strategic health authority has been placed in the Library.

Nursing Staff

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) community matrons, (b) health visitors and (c) school nurses have been appointed in each primary care trust area in each of the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [67421]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of community matrons, health visitors and school nurses in post in primary care trusts (PCTs) at September 2005 is shown in the table.

	Headcount
	Health visitors (England)
1997	10,025
1998	12,572
1999	12,800
2000	12,827
2001	13,053
2002	12,774
2003	12,984
2004	13,303
2005	12,818

The number of health visitors has increased by 2,793 (28 per cent.) since 1997.

School nurses were collected for the first time in the 2003 census. However, the data was incomplete as only 27 per cent. of PCTs coded staff using the new school nursing codes.

The table shows the increase in school nurses since 2004.

England	Headcount		Full time equivalent
	Total qualified school nursing nurses	of which qualified school nurses	of which full-time	Total qualified school nursing nurses	of which qualified school nurses
2005	2,887	943	182	1,913	665
2004	2,409	856	151	1,619	607

There were 943 (665 full-time equivalent) nurses who held a school nursing qualification in 2005 an increase of 87 (10 per cent.) since 2004.

Obesity

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to reduce childhood obesity; and if she will make a statement. [67832]

Caroline Flint: Reducing obesity is one of the six overarching priorities of the "Choosing Health" White Paper, published in November 2004. In July 2004, the Government set a public service agreement (PSA) target to halt the year-on-year increase in obesity among children under 11 by 2010 in the context of a broader strategy to tackle obesity in the population as a whole.

Specific actions to reduce childhood obesity include:

requirements to meet healthy eating and physical activity criteria to achieve Healthy School status;

new school food-based standards from September 2006, followed by more stringent nutrient-based standards in primary schools by September 2008, and secondary schools by September 2009;

ensuring the school sports strategy and sports partnerships are making the maximum impact on child obesity; looking at ways of restricting the marketing of unhealthy foods to children; working with the food industry to reduce levels of fat, salt and sugar in products, and to provide front-of-pack labelling to enable consumers to make informed choices; development of a healthy living social marketing campaign; and providing an activity toolkit for schools to support physical activity across the school day, including the journey to school and after school clubs.

In addition, we have published a self-help guide to assist parents in managing their children's weight, a care pathway for treating and managing childhood obesity and an obesity bulletin to give practitioners and managers new tools to handle obesity. We are strengthening our actions in early years through schemes like Sure Start and through health visitors' targeted interventions. The data on height and weight that primary care trusts (PCTs) will be collecting in primary schools from this summer will help them identify which areas, schools or children's centres need particular help. Comprehensive National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on the prevention and treatment of obesity will also support PCTs' and practitioners' contribution to tackling obesity locally.

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which officials in her Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the inter-departmental steering group for the Olympics. [81563]

Caroline Flint: Professor Sue Atkinson, regional director of public health - London, is responsible for Olympics and paralympics-related activity within the Department and represents the Department on the inter-departmental steering group. Hilary Ross, public health manager in the regional public health group—London, is the Olympic co-ordinator in the Department.

Osteoporosis

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made by her Department following the announcement in April 2005 of funding for DXA bone density scanners; and if she will make a statement. [81623]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department allocated £3 million revenue (£214,000 each), on a non-recurrent basis in 2005-06, to 14 strategic health authorities (SHAs) for the purchase of dual X-ray absorptiometry (DXA) scanners on the basis of their lack of scanning capacity, according to evidence provided to us by the Office for National Statistics. Capital provision of £17 million has been made available in 2006-07 and 2007-08 to improve national health service capacity through investment in new Dexa scanning equipment. Responsibility of delivery for spend rests with SHAs.

Our Health, Our Say

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what task groups have been established to take forward the "Our Health, Our Say" White Paper implementation plan; and who has been appointed to each such group. [79448]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Papilloma Virus Vaccine

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what preparations her Department has made for a human papilloma virus vaccination programme. [81620]

Caroline Flint: A sub-group of the joint committee on vaccination and immunisation (JCVI) met in May 2006 to review all the available information on human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccines and will hold further meetings during 2006. Implementation plans will be based on the advice of JCVI as to the most effective immunisation schedule should HPV vaccine be judged to be beneficial.

Sexual Health

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1567W, on sexual health, which sexually transmitted disease clinics have (a) opened and (b) closed in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [81439]

Caroline Flint: There are a number of different kinds of services that provide testing and treatment for sexually transmitted infections, which primary care trusts use to meet the needs of their population. Information on these services is not collected centrally.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the ability of genito-urinary medicine clinics to cope with the possible additional demand for their services arising from the sexual health education campaign; and what representations she has received on this; [83035]

(2) what date she originally expected her Department to launch its latest sexual health education campaign; and when it will be launched. [83036]

Caroline Flint: In developing the campaign, the Department is consulting with stakeholders, and the possible impact of the campaign on the demand for sexual health services is being carefully considered.

The campaign planning process takes account of the fact that many areas will need time to make use of the major new investment, provided through the 'Choosing Health' White Paper, to improve capacity.

The campaign will particularly target 16 to 24-year-olds, the group at highest risk, and links closely to the joint Department and Department for Education and Skills media campaign that supports the teenage pregnancy strategy. It will initially focus on strong prevention messages to minimise the immediate pressure on services until such time as the number of new infections begins to stabilise or decline. Only then will the campaign start to signpost people to screening and treatment. And this will happen gradually through local mechanisms to help ensure clinics will be able to meet demand, as progress is made in modernising sexual health services through the chlamydia screening programme, improved access to genito-urinary medicine and reproductive health services.

The Department has not set a firm date for the campaign launch but current plans are being developed for later this year. We are committed to the most effective action possible and ensuring that we work closely with stakeholders. The overall aim of the campaign will be to drive greater personal responsibility for sexual health.

Wheelchairs

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect of NHS trust deficits on the provision of wheelchairs for disabled children. [82042]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No assessment has been made of the effect of national health service trust deficits on the provision of wheelchairs for disabled children.

Funding for all NHS wheelchair services comes out of revenue funding to primary care trusts (PCTs). This funding is not ring-fenced and it is for each PCT to assess local need and allocate funds accordingly.

TREASURY

Advance Pricing Agreements

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many advance pricing agreements (a) have been made and (b) were in force with multinational companies in each year since 2001; and in how many cases in each year (i) enforcement action was taken and (ii) penalties made in transfer pricing disputes. [82680]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is as follows.

(a) and (b) The number of advance pricing agreements within s85 FA99 made in each year (and in force at the end of each year) was:

	Number	In force at end of each year
2000-01	6	5
2001-02	9	14
2002-03	6	16
2003-04	10	22

	Number	In force at end of each year
2004-05	10	22
2005-06	7	18

All agreements relate to multinational companies.

(i) The number of occasions where an Inland Revenue/HMRC intervention has resulted in a transfer pricing adjustment to a tax computation are:

	Number
2001-02	1,022
2002-03	1,172
2003-04	1,671
2004-05	1,588
2005-06	1,724

(ii) Penalties following transfer pricing inquiries have been agreed on five cases. These all fall in 2005-06.

AIDS

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with G8 Finance Ministers on establishing a funding plan to achieve AIDS treatment for all by 2010. [83211]

Ed Balls: The UK has continued discussions with G8 partners on how to take forward the Gleneagles commitment to achieve universal access to HIV treatment for all those who need it by 2010. On 2 June 2006, the UN General Assembly agreed a political declaration on AIDS which commits to providing additional resources from donor countries and from national budgets. This follows the UNAIDS estimate that $20-23 billion dollars will be needed annually by 2010 to provide universal access to comprehensive prevention programmes, treatment care and support. The political declaration commits to ensure that costed, credible national HIV/AIDS plans are developed and funded, and include ambitious national targets for achieving universal access by 2010. The UK has also sought G8 commitment to ensure that the Global Fund for AIDS, TB and malaria has sufficient resources.

The UK has committed to spend £1.5 billion to tackle the spread of HIV and AIDS between 2005-06 and 2007-08. We are working with UNAIDS who are leading the global effort of other donors, multilateral agencies, civil society and the private sector to ensure that additional resources are committed to support our efforts to achieve universal access.

BDO Stoy Hayward

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last met BDO Stoy Hayward; and what matters were discussed. [70827]

John Healey [holding answer 15 May 2006]: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Biodiesel

Mark Hunter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps are being taken through the taxation system to encourage the production and availability to the motorist of biodiesel. [82322]

John Healey: The Government are committed to supporting biofuels as part of a long-term strategy to promote low carbon transport. The Budget announced the extension of the 20 pence per litre duty differential for biofuels until 2008-09, and set out a range of announcements about the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation, which will begin in 2008-09 and will ensure biofuels comprise 5 per cent. of the road fuels market by 2010-11. Furthermore, we are awaiting state aid clearance to introduce an enhanced capital allowance (ECA) for the cleanest biofuels production plant, to support innovation and help develop the lowest-carbon biofuels production methods.

Birth/Death Statistics

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) age-standardised mortality rates, (b) still-birth rate and (c) pregnancy (i) termination and (ii) miscarriage rate was for each electoral ward in Shropshire, in each year from 2000 to 2005. [82402]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 6 July 2006

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the (a) age-standardised mortality rates, (b) stillbirth rate and (c) pregnancy (i) termination and (ii) miscarriage rates for each electoral ward in Shropshire, in each year from 2000 to 2005. (82402)

Information on stillbirths and on conceptions leading to terminations is routinely published for local authorities and strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by electoral ward because of the risk of disclosing individual's information due to very small number of events.

(a) Age-Standardised mortality rates for electoral ward are not available. However, Standardised Mortality Ratios (SMRs) and life expectancy at birth for wards in England and Wales for the period 1999-2003 are available on the National Statistics website at the addresses below.

(b) Stillbirth rates for Shropshire County and county districts within Shropshire for each year from 2000 to 2004 are shown in the table below.

(c)(i) Conceptions leading to termination rates for all ages for Shropshire County and county districts within Shropshire for each year from 2000 to 2004 (latest year for which figures are available) are shown in the table below. Figures for 2004 are provisional.

(c)(ii) Figures on conceptions leading to miscarriages are not available because Competitiveness

David Tredinnick: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the principal factors affecting the competitiveness of UK businesses. [82823]

John Healey: The Budget Report provided an assessment of all areas of the UK economy, and action needed by Government to provide the right environment for businesses competing in the global environment.

The Government's strategy for advancing productivity growth is based on two pillars: providing macroeconomic stability to allow firms and individuals to invest in the future, and making microeconomic reforms to ensure that markets function efficiently and that barriers to productivity growth are tackled.

Contributions Agency

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on failures by the Contributions Agency to collect and credit national insurance contributions in 2004-05; and what action is being taken (a) to avoid the issue of incorrect notices of deficient contributions and (b) to restore contribution records to individuals affected by such failures. [82928]

Dawn Primarolo: There have been well publicised delays in processing 2004-05 Employer's Annual Returns. HM Revenue and Customs has now processed all error free returns.

HMRC has posted 99 per cent. of the 42.7 million relevant individual national insurance records for employment to its National Insurance Recording System (NIRS) by June 2006. The number of records yet to be processed is in line with what HMRC would normally expect to have at this point in the year.

HMRC is working hard to get the remaining data through to NIRS prior to the commencement of the Deficiency Notice (DN) exercise which is planned for September. It is anticipated that there will not be any increase in the amount of DNs issued than in any other normal year.

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Paymaster General will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 15 May 2006, on the tax credit system (PO Ref: 4/25865/2006). [81932]

Dawn Primarolo: I expect to be in a position to write to the hon. Member very shortly.

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Chief Secretary to the Treasury will reply to the letter of 22 May from the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan regarding civil service pay and conditions. [82683]

Mr. Timms: I have done so.

Council Tax/Regional Rate

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of (a) council tax in England and (b) the regional rate in Northern Ireland was returned to central Government in each of the last three years. [82597]

Mr. Timms: Council tax is collected and retained by English local authorities and contributes towards their expenditure.

The Northern Ireland regional rate is collected by the Rates Collection Agency and is paid into the Northern Ireland Consolidated Fund. This income contributes towards the funding of public services in Northern Ireland.

ECOFIN Meeting

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date he agreed to attend the ECOFIN meeting on 7 June 2006; and if he will make a statement. [76944]

John Healey: It is the Chancellor who holds the UK seat at the European Council of Finance Ministers.

Engagements

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he next plans to visit Coventry. [71276]

John Healey [holding answer 18 May 2006]: As part of his official duties the Chancellor of the Exchequer visits the regions and nations of the United Kingdom and will be continuing to do so over the coming months.

EU Nationals

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many nationals from the EU accession states have applied for (a) child benefit and (b) tax credits since May 2004; and how many such applications have been (i) approved, (ii) rejected and (iii) terminated in each case. [82905]

Dawn Primarolo: These figures are included in the joint Accession Monitoring Report produced by the Home Office, Department for Work and Pensions, HM Revenue and Customs and Department for Communities and Local Government on 23 May 2006 and published on the Home Office Immigration and Nationality Directorate's website (http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/accession_monitoring_report)

Families (Father Involvement)

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans the Government have to include consideration of ways to encourage fathers' involvement within the family in the cross-cutting review of support for children and young people being conducted as part of the 2007 comprehensive spending review. [82785]

Ed Balls: Budget 2006 launched a policy review of children and young people to inform the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review. Copies of the review's terms of reference have been placed in the House of Commons Library.

In "Support for parents: the best start for children", published at the pre-Budget report, HM Treasury and the Department for Education and Skills recognised the contributions that mothers and fathers make and their potentially different needs for support as parents. As part of wider examination of the role of and support for parents in improving outcomes for children and young people, the review will consider the contribution of fathers and other male carers.

Life Expectancy

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the long-term trend for life expectancy in Stoke-on-Trent; and if he will make a statement. [80603]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 6 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the long-term trend for life expectancy is in Stoke-on-Trent. I am replying in her absence. (80603)'

Figures for life expectancy at birth for English regions and local authorities are published annually by ONS based on three-year rolling averages. Results are available from 1991-1993 to 2002-2004 and are included in the table below.

Life expectancy at birth (years) by sex in Stoke-on-Trent, 1991-93 to 2002-04[1]

	Males	Females
1991-1993	71.5	77.1
1992-1994	71.9	77.5

1994-1996	72.2	78.6
1995-1997	72.5	78.6

2000-2002	73.5	78.9
2001-2003	73.3	78.9
2002-2004	73.2	78.7

[1] Results are based on death registrations and mid-year population estimates for each three year period.

Pension Rights

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what mechanism is in place to ensure staff transferring from public to private sector under Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) terms have their pension rights protected; and whether he has made an assessment of the compliance of existing arrangements with the Government's guidance on, Staff Transfers in the Public Sector: A Statement of Practice. [82876]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury guidance: (Staff Transfers from Central Government: A Fair Deal for Staff Pensions) supplemented by further guidance issued in 2004 and Cabinet Office guidance: (Staff Transfers in the Public Sector Statement of Practice) remain in force. It is incumbent upon bodies or organisations transferring staff from the public sector to the private sector to be familiar with the guidance.

Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to pages 58 and 59 of the White Paper Security in Retirement; Towards a New Pensions System, what the evidential basis is for the statement that (a) 75 is the appropriate upper age limit for annuities and (b) annuities offer good value for money. [82527]

Ed Balls: Latest Government Actuary Department (GAD) analysis shows that the guaranteed rates of return available on annuities by around age 75 become so large relative to other investments that increasingly unrealistic investment returns need to be achieved in order to match or do better than the income that could be achieved through an annuity. Any investment vehicle with an expected yield greater than an annuity after 75 would inevitably be both expensive and carry a significant degree of risk, which people in the later stages of life may be ill-equipped to bear. Of course the optimal age for individuals to annuitise before 75 will depend on a range of individual circumstances.

A comprehensive academic survey on annuity pricing was published in March 2006. The authors conclude that after looking at the most recent analysis, "The mark-up paid to life insurers—measured by the so-called money's worth ratio—is relatively small and fairly constant, thus suggesting that annuities are fairly priced".

These findings are in line with previous annuity pricing studies covering different countries and time periods. The full paper can be found at: http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5/rports2005-2006/rrep318.pdf, DWP research paper 318 'Annuities—A Pricing Survey', Edmund Cannon and Ian Tonks.

The Government are committed to publishing a technical paper setting out the evidence base for policy in this area later this year.

Retirement Age

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 13 February 2006, Official Report, columns 1695-6W, on retirement age, if he will break down the estimated percentage probability by (a) female and (b) male workers; what assumptions have been used by the Government Actuary's Department in relation to the impact of the announced changes in early retirement rights on staff turnover levels; and if he will place in the Library the supporting data for the answer produced by the Government Actuary's Department. [82511]

Mr. Timms: Estimated probabilities that new entrants aged 20 will not remain in the scheme at normal retirement are in the following table.

	Percentage of workers
Scheme	Male	Female
IPS (E and W)[1]	82	93
NHSPS (E and W)	93	95

[1] Includes all members who leave the scheme before normal retirement age, even those who subsequently rejoin and are members at normal retirement age.

These figures are based on the analysis of staff turnover in the Government Actuary's Department's latest actuarial valuations of the teachers' pension scheme (England and Wales) and the national health service pension scheme (England and Wales), which are available in the Library.

The assumed rates of turnover are derived from an analysis of the actual turnover experienced in the past. Allowance has been made for the strong link between resignation rates and duration of employment. Levels of staff turnover may be different in the future. The introduction of new pension schemes for new entrants is one of many factors that will influence staff turnover; others include future economic conditions and the ease of mobility in the labour market. Given these uncertainties and the link between employment length and resignation no explicit allowance for the effect of introducing new public sector pension schemes was made in calculating the figures.

Tallow

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the value is of support through the tax system for the use of tallow in the production of biodiesel; [82874]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of decisions of other European Governments to lower or remove subsidies for the burning of tallow for power or in the production of biodiesel. [82875]

John Healey: The use of tallow in the production of biodiesel used as road fuel is supported through a duty incentive. Fuel produced from tallow is eligible for the rate of duty for biodiesel (currently 27.10p per litre) if it meets the legal definition of biodiesel for tax purposes set out in section 2AA of the Hydrocarbon Oil Duties Act 1979. In other cases it is liable to duty at 47.10p per litre.

In addition, tallow used in power generation is not liable to any duty, while fuel oil (which is mainly used for this purpose) is liable to duty at the rate of 6.04p per litre.

We have not carried out any assessment of the impact of decisions of other European Governments to lower or remove subsidies for the burning of tallow for power or in the production of biodiesel.

Tax Credits

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his ministerial responsibilities are in relation to tax credits. [77906]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary on 7 June 2006, Official Report, column 862W.

TRANSPORT

Airspace (Northern Home Counties)

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the terms of reference are for the review of the management of the airspace over northern home counties of England being undertaken by the National Air Traffic Services. [82536]

Gillian Merron: This is an operational matter for NATS. I suggest the hon. Member writes to the chief executive of NATS, Paul Barren, for information on the matter.

Antisocial Behaviour (Trains)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) staff and (b) passengers on the rail network were assaulted in the last 12 months, broken down by region. [77782]

Derek Twigg: The British Transport Police (BTP) have provided the following data in relation to the number of assaults of (a) staff and (b) passengers on the rail network from 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006.

BTP area	Number of staff assaults
London North	523
London South	745
London Underground	805
North Eastern	108
North Western	191
Wales and Western	275
Scottish	139
Total	2,786

BTP area	Number of passenger assaults
London North	865
London South	1,541
London Underground	1,548
North Eastern	482
North Western	471
Wales and Western	491
Scottish	259
Total	5,657

Buses

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bus compliance officers there are in each region of England; how many orders restricting operators from running services in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06 were issued by traffic commissioners; and how many non-compliant bus operators were called to inquiry by traffic commissioners in the last 12 months. [82126]

Gillian Merron: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer of 15 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1325-6W for the number of bus compliance officers there are in each traffic area of the UK.

In 2004-05 there were 10 orders restricting operators from running services issued by traffic commissioners, in 2005-06 there were eight.

There were 21 non-compliant bus operators called to public inquiry in 2005-06 and in 2006-07 there have been three to 1 June. The number of non-compliant bus operators called to inquiry by traffic commissioners in the last 12 months can only be provided at disproportionate cost due to the way in which VOSA's figures have been recorded.

Detrunking

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what total length of roads has been detrunked in each (a) county council and (b) unitary authority area since 2001. [82317]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Eddington Review

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Eddington review has cost; and how much has been budgeted for the review. [79921]

Gillian Merron: Rod Eddington has been asked to provide advice to the Chancellor and Secretary of State for Transport, and is not being remunerated for his work. He is supported by a team of 10 civil servants drawn from the Department for Transport and HM Treasury. Other admin and programme costs to date total approximately £190,000.

Costs are shared between the Department for Transport and HM Treasury and are being met from the existing budgets for those two Departments.

Freight Containers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the proportion of freight containers in use in England and Wales that will become illegal as a result of the new European regulations on container dimensions. [82314]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no new European regulations on general freight container dimensions. However, the carriage of certain types of container may be prohibited by Directive 96/53/EC which sets out, amongst other things, the maximum dimensions for goods vehicles when carrying freight containers.

Heavy Goods Vehicles

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of heavy goods vehicles on roads in England which were registered abroad in each of the last three years. [83045]

Dr. Ladyman: Estimates of the number and proportion of foreign registered heavy goods vehicles on roads in England are not available. However, estimated numbers leaving the UK are published in table 1 of the quarterly bulletin "Road Goods Vehicles Travelling to Mainland Europe". A copy of this bulletin is available on the DfT website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_transstats/documents/page/dft_transstats_611744.hcsp.

Based on DfT's "Survey of Foreign Vehicle Activity in GB: 2003" it is estimated that foreign heavy goods vehicles account for about 3 per cent. of all heavy goods vehicle kilometres on GB roads.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether foreign-registered heavy goods vehicles are required to have insurance cover comparable to that required of domestic-registered heavy goods vehicles. [83082]

Dr. Ladyman: Yes; all motor vehicles when in use in the UK, including heavy goods vehicles registered abroad, must have insurance cover for third party liabilities meeting the minimum levels of cover required by Section 145 of the Road Traffic Act 1988.

Liverpool Lime Street Station

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he expects the improvements to Liverpool Lime Street Station to be completed in time for the 2008 European Capital of Culture celebrations. [81581]

Derek Twigg: The timetable for completion of any improvements to Liverpool Lime Street Station is a matter for members of the partnership that has been formed to progress the project.

M56

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the problems with the bridge on the slip road between the M56 and the A556 near Altrincham in Cheshire were first identified; how long the exploratory work has taken; and what estimate he has made of the likely date for the full reopening of the slip road. [82309]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency first became aware of deficiencies in the bridge carrying the westbound exit sliproad at Junction 7 of the M56 motorway, following an assessment in 2001. This resulted in the installation of temporary supports and loading restrictions. Since 2001, the Agency has undertaken further detailed investigatory works to confirm the problem and determine the remedial solution required.

The latest phase in the investigatory work, undertaken between late February and mid June 2006, was to confirm the true extent of the defects and to refine the methods of working, in advance of the planned main refurbishment scheme. During these additional investigations, unexpected structural defects in the bridge were identified. As a result, traffic using the sliproad will continue to be restricted to a single lane, with a 40mph speed limit, for safety reasons. Short-term measures, and options for a permanent solution, are under consideration, and the timing of the resulting works will be subject to the scale of the work required and the availability of funding.

Motorcycles

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research has been undertaken by his Department regarding the safety of children of primary school age or below travelling as passengers on motorcycles. [83285]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department has not commissioned any research on this topic.

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which regulations govern the transport of children of primary school age or below as passengers on motorcycles. [83286]

Dr. Ladyman: There is no minimum age limit in respect of pillion passengers on motorcycles but there are a number of regulations with which a motorcycle rider must comply, including that: pillion passengers must be able to sit securely astride properly fixed seats with their feet reaching suitable supports or rests; they must wear a safety helmet that is securely fastened to the head—an adult helmet may not be suitable for children; only motorcyclists who have passed a motorcycle test may carry passengers; and any passenger must be carried in a manner so that no danger is caused, or likely to be caused, to any person either on the vehicle or on the road.

National Motorcycling Strategy

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much it cost to (a) research, (b) write and (c) publish the National Motorcycling Strategy. [82212]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government's Motorcycling Strategy was published in February 2005. This built on the work of the Advisory Group on Motorcycling, which was established in 1999 and produced its final report in August 2004. The work involved in the Advisory Group on Motorcycling and in producing the Government's Motorcycling Strategy formed part of normal civil service duties.

Three documents were published as part of this process.

Information on the design and printing costs for the Advisory Group on Motorcycling—interim report, April 2001 could only be provided at disproportionate cost. The costs of the other two documents are as follows:—

Advisory Group on Motorcycling—final report to Government, August 2004, printing and typesetting, total cost £1,371.60 plus VAT

The Government's Motorcycling Strategy, February 2005, printing and typesetting, total cost £4,260.00 plus VAT

Various motorcycle research projects have been undertaken, as part of the Department for Transport's road safety research programme, which informed the work of the Advisory Group on Motorcycling and the Government's Motorcycling Strategy. The total costs for completed research is £1,295,650 plus VAT and includes the following projects:

'Police fatal road accident reports—Analysis';

'Multivariate Analysis of Motorcyclist's Accident Risk Factors';

'Scoping Study on Motorcycling Training';

'The Older Motorcyclist';

'SUNFLOWER+6 Extension';

'In-depth Study of Motorcycle Accidents'.

There are also several ongoing motorcycle research projects arising from this work. The total cost for these projects is £487,304 plus VAT which are:

'In-depth Study of Motorcycle Training';

'Car Drivers' Skills and Attitudes in Relation to Motorcycle Safety';

'Rider Fatigue and Accident Risk';

'Analysis of OTS Data to Supplement Maids Motorcycle Study'.

Railways

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received from passenger train operating companies regarding fare increases on recently awarded franchises. [82502]

Derek Twigg: The Department for Transport has received no representations from train operating companies regarding fares increases on recently awarded franchises.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether additional premium payments made to the Government by rail franchises under agreements reached since 2005 will be (a) returned to the Consolidated Fund and (b) made available to his Department for spending on transport. [82318]

Derek Twigg: All premium payments received from rail franchises are appropriated in aid by the Department and the funds are made available for spending on transport.

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to introduce high-speed rail links between Edinburgh and London. [82010]

Derek Twigg: The Government have a manifesto commitment to look at the feasibility and affordability of a new north-south high-speed link. The Government have committed to take this forward in the development of a long-term strategy for the railways, drawing on Sir Rod Eddington's advice on the long-term impact of transport decisions on the UK's productivity, stability and growth.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when his Department first learned of First train operator's plans to stop recognising cheap day returns between 4.30 pm and 7.00 pm on Mondays to Fridays; and if he will make a statement. [82304]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 July 2006]: First Group's bid for the Thameslink/Great Northern franchise included a proposal to restrict the use of day return fares during the evening peak on certain routes. They did not give the Department any advance notification of the date they intended to implement the proposal. However, day returns are unregulated fares and it is for operators to decide whether to offer them and, if so at what price and with what restrictions.

Regional Planning Assessments

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much it has cost to research, write and publish each of the Regional Planning Assessments for the railways. [79920]

Derek Twigg: Two Regional Planning Assessments for the railway (RPAs) have been published: the North East and Eastern RPAs. The total costs were £231,900 and £257,266 respectively (including VAT).

Speed Cameras

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras have been vandalised in the Lancashire police authority area in each of the last five years. [83542]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer on 15 February 2006, Official Report, column 2054W, to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans).

Staff Absenteeism

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many working days were lost to his Department and its executive agencies in each year since 1997 due to staff absenteeism, expressed as the average annual number of absent days per employee; and what the estimated total cost to the Department and its agencies of absenteeism was in each year. [78081]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The Department for Transport was only established following machinery of Government changes in May 2002. Each year the Cabinet Office publish an annual report 'Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service' that contains reported sick absence data across Government Departments.

Figures from the Cabinet Office report for the Department and its Agencies for days lost due to sick absence are available for 2003 and 2004 as follows:

	Average annual number of absent days per employee	Estimated cost (£)
2003	10.1	12,242,168
2004	7.5	11,532,057

Figures for 2005 are not available but will be published later this year. Copies of reports are available on the civil service website.

Tonnage Tax Scheme

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the annual cost was to the Exchequer of the SMarT 1 funding scheme for participants in the tonnage tax scheme in each of the last five years. [82083]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available. Some tonnage tax companies and groups contract out training to independent training providers. The SMarT 1 claims made by these training providers are in respect of the training they provide for all of their clients, and disaggregated figures are not available for those within tonnage tax only.

However, the total cost to the Exchequer of SMarT 1 funding for the last five years, and the amounts paid to tonnage tax companies and groups who are also SMarT training providers was as follows:

	Total SMarT 1 funding	Total SMarT 1 funding paid to tonnage tax companies/groups who are SMarT training providers
2005-06	6,948,239	1,578,247
2004-05	6,826,856	1,813,434

Transport Select Committee

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action has been taken by his Department to implement Transport Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 Session; and if he will make a statement. [77847]

Gillian Merron: The Department takes very seriously all recommendations contained in Select Committee reports and where possible, addresses each and every one in our response.

If the Committee do not feel that their recommendations have been properly responded to, they are of course able to publish further reports.

Transport Direct

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people have used www.transportdirect.info in each of the last 12 months. [82211]

Dr. Ladyman: Statistics for both the number of people who have used Transport Direct and the number of pages that they have accessed are as follows:

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcohol Sales

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what controls the licensing regime imposes on the sale of alcohol to minors via (a) fast food delivery outlets and (b) shopping purchases online. [82121]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Since 24 November 2005, it has become an offence to sell alcohol anywhere to a person under 18. There are no longer any exceptions.

Under the new licensing regime, we have:

made protection of children from harm a statutory objective of the Licensing Act 2003; introduced fixed penalty notices for selling to children, and for purchase or attempted purchase by children, and these offences apply equally to mail order or internet purchases; increased the fines fivefold for offences of selling to children, from a maximum of £1,000 up to £5,000; ensured that personal licences can now be lost for a first offence; ensured that premises licences, including those for a fast food outlet or a mail order or internet company, are subject to review for such behaviour, with temporary closures, reduced hours and licence revocation if necessary;

brought forward the Violent Crime Reduction Bill with proposals for a new offence of persistent selling to children and a power to close offending retailers; and created powers by which premises licences can be made subject to conditions restricting or prohibiting the presence of children.

BBC World (China)

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what filtering takes place of BBC World programmes in China. [81848]

Mr. Woodward: I understand that BBC World's programmes in China are not filtered by the BBC but, as part of the channel's distribution agreement, the channel signal is downlinked in China and, in common with other overseas satellite television broadcasters, is re-uplinked on the Sino satellite. On occasion BBC World's signal has been interrupted or suspended by the Chinese authorities prior to the re-uplink of the signal on the Sino satellite platform.

Braille/Audio/Large Print Publications

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding her Department has provided for (a) Braille, (b) audio and (c) large print books, newspapers and magazines in each of the last five years. [73657]

Mr. Woodward: My Department has no specific budget to fund Braille, audio and large print publications. However, these publications benefit through Government support for libraries and the publishing industry generally, and more widely, by the way we encourage all industries to make their publications accessible to all. There have also been almost £10 million worth of Lottery projects which have involved publications for the visually impaired.

Broadcast Rights Payments

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate her Department has made of the lost revenue to UK companies and recording artists from the lack of payments for broadcast rights in the USA; and what estimate has been supplied to her Department by the music industry. [82619]

Mr. Woodward: This Department has not made such an estimate. However, the recording industry has estimated that a change in US law in respect of broadcasting rights would enable it to earn additional revenue of approximately £281 million. Furthermore, in 2001 the European Commission estimated that the US Fairness in Music Licensing Act 1998, had cost composers, songwriters and music publishers some $25 million a year in lost royalties.

Licensing Legislation

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the progress on preparation of the new licensing legislation consultation document. [82673]

Mr. Woodward: We are conducting a review of the guidance issued under section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003 in two stages.

Following an initial review, which covered issues where a broad consensus existed among stakeholders, supplementary guidance was tabled in Parliament on 22 June 2006. The supplement is now in force and has been made available to all licensing authorities.

We will conduct a formal public consultation on the fuller review over the summer with a view to tabling any revised guidance in Parliament by the end of 2006.

Listed Buildings

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions since 1997 a previously listed building has been de-listed (a) after English Heritage had advised against de-listing, (b) after English Heritage has advised in favour of de-listing and (c) because the building was fundamentally damaged; and whether any of the buildings de-listed were subsequently demolished. [82681]

Mr. Lammy: Between 1997 and 2005 inclusive, 696 buildings were removed from the statutory list.

We do not hold data on decisions to de-list buildings in the format you request, and to compile it would incur disproportionate costs. Neither DCMS nor English Heritage holds data on whether de-listed buildings were subsequently demolished.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many buildings were (a) listed and (b) de-listed in each year since 1997; and how many had their listing changed (i) from grade I to grade II and (ii) from grade II to grade I. [82682]

Mr. Lammy: The figures for questions (a) and (b) are set out as follows:

(a) Buildings removed from the list

	Number
1997	144
1998	77
1999	127
2000	72
2001	70
2002	53
2003	38
2004	61
2005	54

(b) Buildings added to the list

	Number
1997	1,217
1998	1,926
1999	2,276
2000	1,310
2001	804
2002	538
2003	543
2004	485
2005	554

We do not hold a central record of cases in which buildings were upgraded from I to II or downgraded from II to I, and to compile it would incur disproportionate costs.

Radio Licences

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 407W, on radio licences, what factors she took into account when deciding that there was not a case for a review at this time; and if she will make a statement. [82635]

Mr. Woodward: It is a well established principle in the UK that broadcasting is carried out independently of Government. Accordingly, decisions on the licensing of radio stations are made by Ofcom, the independent regulator, free from Government intervention. We are not aware of any evidence which suggests that this principle should be reviewed.

Television Licences

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what information TV Licensing provides about local Paypoint facilities in Swansea to pay for television licences; [81970]

(2) what advice is being given to people by TV Licensing about (a) the withdrawal of television licence stamps and (b) arrangements for their replacement. [82005]

Mr. Woodward: The BBC, as television licensing authority, has responsibility for the administration of the licensing system. TV Licensing operates under contract to the corporation. I have therefore asked the BBC's Head of Revenue Management to reply. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the withdrawal of television licence savings stamps. [81971]

Mr. Woodward: The BBC, as television licensing authority, is replacing television licence savings stamps with a new, card-based savings scheme. This scheme offers similar ease of use to stamps and important advantages, including added security for savers, (with a central record of their credit balances). Savings stamps can be used to purchase a TV licence at a post office until 31 July this year, after which they will be redeemable for cash from TV Licensing, without limit of time.

Ann Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people over 75 years in Brentford and Isleworth constituency receive free television licences. [82433]

Mr. Woodward: TV Licensing, which administer (as agents for the BBC) free television licences for people aged 75 or over are not able to provide geographical breakdowns of the number of free licences issued. However, according to the Department for Work and Pensions records the number of households with at least one person aged 75 or over claiming the winter fuel payment in 2004-05 in the Brentford and Isleworth constituency was 4,865.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Departmental Chief Accounting Officer

Chris Huhne: To ask the Solicitor-General what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the chief accounting officer of each of the Law Officers' Departments. [76721]

The Solicitor-General: For my Departments the answer is as follows:

CPS

The DPP, Ken Macdonald QC, is the Accounting Officer. He has an honours degree in politics, philosophy and Economics; and was called to the Bar by the Inner Temple in 1978.

Treasury Solicitor

The Principal Accounting officer for HM Procurator General and Treasury Solicitor is Juliet Wheldon DCB QC. She read history at university and was called to the Bar in 1975.

SFO

The Principal Accounting Officer is the Director of the Serious Fraud Office, Robert Wardle LIB, a solicitor of the Supreme Court who has prosecution experience over 28 years.

RCPO

The Accounting Office of the Revenue and Customs Prosecution Office is David Green QC who is also the Department's Director. He is a graduate of Cambridge University (MA Hons) and has been a member of the Bar (Inner Temple) since 1979.

The role of the Accounting Officer is one that the Permanent Secretary or Head of Department combines with his/her personal responsibility for the overall organisation, management and staffing of the Department and for Department-wide procedures in financial and other matters. The Accounting Officer is assisted in the discharge of these duties by suitably qualified and experienced senior managers, such as the Finance Director.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Solicitor-General when he will reply to question number 77183, on looters in Basra, tabled by the hon. Member for Sunderland, South on 8 June. [83235]

The Solicitor-General: I replied to the hon. Member on 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1111W.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Abandoned Cars

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensuring that abandoned cars are removed from public highways and council land within a reasonable time period. [82411]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 includes provisions that amend legislation relating to abandoned vehicles, with the effect that from 18 October 2005, all abandoned vehicles can be removed immediately from a road. A 'road' is defined in statute but is not restricted to the public highway and includes all roads to which the public have access and will, in many cases, include private roads running through housing estates.

Agricultural Workers

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultations were undertaken with employers of seasonal agricultural workers scheme students on changes to the employment contracts of those students; what discussions he had with the Home Office; and if he will make a statement. [82026]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Seasonal Agricultural Workers' Scheme (SAWS) is operated by the Home Office. Defra provides advice to the Home Office on how minimum wage legislation is applied in the agricultural sector and any implications it has for SAWS. This procedure was followed during the drafting of the contract clarification letter issued by the Home Office on 22 June. The Home Office is not involved in drawing up contracts of employment which are a matter for individual employers and their employees.

Aquaculture

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what compensation is available to aquaculture industries in cases where compulsory slaughter is ordered due to an outbreak of a list 2 disease; and what recent discussions he has had with the aquaculture industry on this issue. [82691]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 5 July 2006]: Under successive Governments, compensation has not been available for the compulsory slaughter of fish due to an outbreak of serious fish diseases; this remains my Department's policy.

Following the recent outbreak of viral haemorrhagic septicaemia on a trout farm in the River Ouse catchment area, I have held meetings with farmers in the area and their representative organisations to hear their concerns and consider options for alleviating current difficulties.

Brixham Fish Market

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to his answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, columns 386-87W, on Brixham fish market, why a final decision on the funding of Brixham fish market will only be made when an assessment of the potential impact of a possible restriction of scallop dredging in Lyme Bay is completed. [83297]

Mr. Bradshaw: To take into account all the factors that could affect the economic viability of Brixham fish market, when taking a decision on whether to grant a significant sum of public funding for its redevelopment. These factors include a possible restriction in scallop dredging. Bearing in mind that scallops form a significant part of the value of landings into Brixham, my officials sought further information on the potential effect of a loss of revenue from this source and an assurance from the applicant that this had been considered.

I am pleased to say that following consideration of this further information and receipt of an assurance from Torbay council, officials have approved the application for grant funding of the market, and the council has been informed of this decision.

Creameries

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has had discussions with Office of Fair Trading officials on the number of creameries available for dairy farmers to sell their products to. [76187]

Barry Gardiner: There have been no discussions on this. However, officials regularly discuss matters relating to the dairy sector.

Dairy Industry

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will set up a regulator of the price of milk for a temporary period. [79755]

Barry Gardiner: The Government supported the conclusion of the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Select Committee in 2004, that there was no compelling evidence in favour of setting up a regulatory body to oversee the dairy industry. It is difficult to see how a regulator could determine a fair price other than by reference to a market price. A price regulator would almost certainly be incompatible with EU competition law and with the common organisation of the market in milk and milk products.

Debt Collectors

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether (a) his Department and (b) its (i) executive agencies and (ii) non-departmental public bodies use the services of private debt collectors. [71063]

Barry Gardiner: The services of private debt collectors are not used by DEFRA, its executive agencies or DEFRA funded advisory non-departmental public bodies (not including minor bodies).

Departmental Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what plans he has for legislation in the next Session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement; [78838]

(2) if he will list those Government Bills sponsored by his Department that are still to be introduced during the 2005-06 Session. [78837]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of food served in his Department's catering establishments was of British origin in 2005; and what instructions he has issued to the provider of food services regarding the sourcing of food. [78162]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 16 June 2006]: From information held centrally, the proportion of food served in the Department's catering establishments that is of British origin is 100 per cent. for eggs and milk products; 90 per cent. for cheeses; 80 per cent. to 100 per cent. for root vegetables; 50 per cent. to 80 per cent. for salad vegetables; 25 per cent. to 40 per cent.

for fruit; 85 per cent. for fish; 100 per cent. for bakery products; 80 per cent. for chicken; 70 per cent. for beef; 15 per cent. for lamb; 25 per cent. for bacon and 90 per cent. for pork.

DEFRA's catering services providers are required to use food produce which is fresh and seasonal including organic produce. They are also required to develop the use of small and medium sized enterprises in their food supply chains. The catering services providers are required to have full regard to the objectives of the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI). The service performance of the catering services providers is the subject of continuous assessment and review.

Departmental Chief Accounting Officer

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the chief accounting officer of his Department. [76794]

Barry Gardiner: I refer to my answer of 30 November 2005, Official Report, column 506W, which gave details of the Department's Finance Director. The Department's Principal Accounting Officer is Helen Ghosh, Permanent Secretary.

Accounting Officer is a role that the Permanent Secretary combines with her personal responsibility for the overall organisation, management and staffing of the department and for department-wide procedures in financial and other matters. The Accounting Officer is assisted in the discharge of these duties by suitably qualified and experienced senior managers, such as the Finance Director.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the pension liability of his Department over the next 30 years. [75274]

Barry Gardiner: A technical note by HM Treasury which was placed in the Library of the House on 2 March 2006 following an oral statement in Parliament by the then Chief Secretary to the Treasury, 2 March 2006, Official Report, columns 388-390.

Pension liabilities are not estimated for individual Departments, they are estimated for individual pension schemes, as shown in the breakdown of liabilities per pension scheme given in table 1 of the technical note. The technical note covers all the major schemes.

The technical note provides detailed information about the size and nature of the liabilities and how they are calculated. Pension liabilities represent obligations already incurred which will fall due to be met over many decades, up to 80 years or more. Neither Government nor private sector pension providers engage in speculation about additional liabilities that might be incurred in future years.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place to ensure that no illegal immigrants are employed in the manned guarding of his Department's premises. [80797]

Barry Gardiner: For our main headquarters buildings we employ a mix of in-house and contract guards. For the former we carry out a robust basic check on all successful applicants which includes confirmation of identity, nationality (including right to work), criminal record declaration and references. Following a successful outcome of the basic check all guards undergo formal security vetting.

All contract guards throughout the DEFRA estate must be licensed under the Private Security Industry Act 2001. This provides us with assurance that identities and criminal records have been checked. For headquarters-based contract guards we also subject them to formal security vetting as a matter of routine.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department has (a) directly and (b) indirectly employed illegal immigrants as security guards. [80814]

Barry Gardiner: We are not aware that we have directly or indirectly employed illegal immigrants as security guards.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people over the age of 55 years have been recruited into his Department in each of the last three years. [77273]

Barry Gardiner: The number of people over the age of 55 recruited into DEFRA, the Government Decontamination Service, the Marine Fisheries Agency, the Pesticides Safety Directorate, the State Veterinary Service, the Veterinary Laboratories Agency and the Veterinary Medicines Directorate in the each of the last three calendar years was as follows:

	Number
2003	58
2004	53
2005	57

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79059]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA directly operates a number of websites, including the main DEFRA website (www.defra.gov.uk) and the Government's sustainable development website (www.sustainable-development.gov.uk).

Direct operating costs—the staff costs for the central team with lead responsibility for updating and maintaining websites and for website policy—are estimated to be around £352,000 for the last financial year. Additional costs arise from the activities of a large number of staff in business units across the Department, contributing to the content of websites as part of their communications activities, but an overall cost for this could not be readily estimated. Website hosting services—as well as a range of IT applications—are provided as part of DEFRA's overall IT service provision and the costs could not be readily disaggregated.

A number of other websites are operated by or on behalf of the Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies, for which costs are either covered by the budgets for specific programmes (and not separately identified), or included within the above figures. Detailed information is not currently held centrally for such websites, and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Farm Employment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people were employed in (a) dairy farming, (b) beef farming, (c) sheep farming, (d) arable farming, (e) mixed farming and (f) other forms of farming in Yeovil constituency in (i) 1990, (ii) 2000 and (iii) 2005. [82184]

Barry Gardiner: The number of people working on agricultural and horticultural holdings in Yeovil constituency by predominant farm type are as follows. constituency level data are not available before 1998. Changes in farm type classifications mean figures for the cattle and sheep and grazing livestock categories are not directly comparable across the years.

Farm type	2000	2005
Employees (including salaried manager and casual workers)
Cereals	17	25

Farm Payments

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to pay interest on outstanding payments due on (a) hill farm allowance, (b) protein supplements and (c) energy crop supplements. [82487]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The protein supplements and aid for energy crops are made under Pillar 1 of the Common Agricultural Policy and have a legal payment deadline of 30 June 2006. As such, the Rural Payments Agency will be making interest payments at the London Interbank Offered Rate +1 per cent., calculated from 1 July 2006, in respect of any such payments which are paid after this deadline and where responsibility for the delay rests with the Rural Payments Agency. This will be subject to a minimum interest payment level of £50.

The hill farm allowance payments are made under Pillar 2 (Rural Development) of the Common Agricultural Policy and have no legal deadline. At present we do not consider that there is a case for the payment of interest in respect of hill farm allowance.

Fish Deaths (Cuckoo Hollow)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will ask the Environment Agency to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death by asphyxiation of 5,000 fish at Cuckoo Hollow, Werrington, Peterborough on 15 June 2006; whether the Agency has in place a plan to prevent similar occurrences during future periods of hot weather; and if he will make a statement. [82453]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The Environment Agency has been fully involved in investigating the incident at Cuckoo Hollow. Agency staff found that dissolved oxygen levels in the lake were very low, largely because of high temperatures over the previous weekend. Action was taken by Agency staff to replenish oxygen levels in the lake, and to ensure that there were no signs of any chemical pollution.

The Environment Agency is continuing to work with Peterborough city council, the owner of the lake, to ensure actions are taken to minimise any possibility of a reoccurrence in the future.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80478]

Barry Gardiner: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Marine Bill

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to present a draft Marine Bill to Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [82157]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 745W.

Meat Imports

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many tonnes of beef and beef products were imported into the UK from (a) other EU member states and (b) other countries in (i) 2004 and (ii) 2005. [81208]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following table shows imports of beef and beef products into the UK split by EU countries and other countries.

Milk

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he plans to have with the (a) Royal Association of British Dairy Farmers and (b) National Union of Farmers on the price for milk paid to farmers. [76175]

Barry Gardiner: The Government share farmers' concerns over the low farmgate price of milk and Ministers meet regularly with both representatives of the diary industry and the NFU. However, price negotiations between producers and processors, are a private commercial matter in which Government cannot get involved, as long as competition rules are respected.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much (a) liquid milk and (b) milk powder was (i) imported and (ii) exported in each of the last three years. [82488]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The following table shows exports from the UK and imports into the UK of liquid milk and milk powder for 2003 to 2005.

		2003		2004		2005

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the liquid whole milk equivalent volume of (a) imports and (b) exports of milk-based products in each of the last three years. [82489]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 July 2006]: It is not possible to provide overseas trade estimates for the different milk products in liquid milk equivalent. It is a complex calculation which can lead to double counting as different components of liquid milk can be used to manufacture different products. The following table shows the UK trade in milk products in tonnage and value for 2003 to 2005.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the sustainability for dairy farmers of the price paid to them for milk. [78386]

Barry Gardiner: Price negotiations between producers and processors, are a private commercial matter in which Government cannot get involved provided competition rules are respected.

Dairy farmers are currently facing a number of challenges, including farmgate prices. In line with the 'Strategy for Sustainable Farming and Food', the Government are working alongside the industry to facilitate and support its future development. For example, the Dairy Supply Chain Forum is providing information to help the dairy industry make informed decisions about its future in a world with much freer trade and lower prices

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average price per litre paid to (a) farmers, (b) purchasers and (c) supermarkets for milk was in each month in each year since 1997. [82451]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The information requested is as follows.

(a) The table shows monthly weighted average farm gate milk prices in pence per litre for the United Kingdom.

The average prices are calculated from monthly surveys of milk purchasers conducted in England and Wales by Defra, in Scotland by SEERAD and in Northern Ireland by DARD.

The farm gate price is the average price received by producers, net of delivery charges. No deduction has been made for superlevy.

(b) Prices paid by retailers to milk purchases are not available.

(c) Prices are derived from the Expenditure and Food Survey and are for the top five shops (in terms of value of food and drink purchased) as identified in this survey. Prior to 2001-02 this information was collected as part of the National Food Survey and cannot be broken down by retail outlet in this way.

National Water Grid

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with the water industry regarding proposals for a national water grid; and if he will make a statement; [82576]

(2) what plans he has to develop a national water grid; and if he will make a statement. [82852]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1448W.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to consult the water industry on national water plans. [82853]

Ian Pearson: A meeting with representatives from across the water industry was held on 1 June, to discuss the provision of water resources over the short, medium and long term.

All water companies have water resources plans, which reconcile supply and anticipated demand over a 25-year horizon, in their own areas of supply.

The production and maintenance of water resources management plans will become a statutory requirement under the Water Act 2003. A consultation on the proposed water resources management plans regulations was held between 31 January 2006 and 25 April 2006. The consultees included water companies. The new regime will commence in April 2007.

Palm Oil (Malaysia)

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the environmental impact of palm oil production in Malaysia. [82873]

Ian Pearson: Palm oil is used in many processed foods as well as cosmetics and detergents. It can also be used to produce biodiesel transport fuel. For this reason, demand is high and may be contributing to the destruction of virgin forest in Malaysia and Indonesia. Environmental groups have highlighted in particular the impact this may be having on Orang-utan populations.

The Government are very conscious that increasing consumption of goods and services in the UK can have environmental and social consequences overseas. It is for this reason that DEFRA is commissioning research work on the environmental impacts of internationally sourced commodity production in general.

Specifically, the Government are also encouraging industry to sign up to the Round Table on Sustainable Palm Oil (RSPO) which is developing a globally acceptable definition of sustainable palm oil production.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Private Members' Bills were drafted by his Department in each Session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [78836]

Barry Gardiner: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills. Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection. However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Members' Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Rural Payments Agency

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of whether there was any element of maladministration on the part of the Rural Payments Agency in its failure to pay the bulk of the 2005 single farm payments by the end of March 2006. [73217]

Barry Gardiner: The assessment my right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) made on learning that the bulk of payments would not be made by the end of March was that there was an urgent need to strengthen the leadership of the Rural Payments Agency. The subsequent appointment of Mark Addison and then Tony Cooper as interim chief executive has lead to the position reported by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 1478, that, as of 20 June, some £1.38 billion, representing more than 90 per cent. of the total fund, has now been paid to more than 100,000 applicants.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the performance of employees of the Rural Payments Agency; and if he will make a statement. [79484]

Barry Gardiner: Most representations have been along the lines of those made by Peter Kendall, President of the National Union of Farmers who, after visiting a Rural Payments Agency office in April, stated that

"From what I have seen, I am convinced that RPA staff are doing their level best to get through mapping tasks and to speed up the validation process."

Concerns have also been raised about the conduct of a minority of employees at one RPA office, which is being addressed in accordance with the Agency's established procedures.

Shrewsbury Flower Show

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will attend the Shrewsbury Flower Show as a guest of the hon. Member for Shrewsbury. [80330]

Barry Gardiner: Unfortunately I am unable to accept the hon. Member's invitation as there are enormous demands on my diary and those of my ministerial colleagues.

Single Farm Payments

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the occasions on which he indicated (a) in public and (b) to the House that payments under the single payments scheme would be met before the legal deadline. [69521]

Barry Gardiner: My right hon. friend the Secretary of State and his predecessor have consistently reported the Rural Payments Agency's targets and forecasts in respect of the timing of payments under the 2005 single payment scheme. Those targets and forecasts have tended to focus on when payments would start and when certain proportions would be completed rather than the position at the end of the regulatory payment window of 30 June. My right hon. friend the Secretary of State's latest report on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 1478 indicated that, as of 20 June, some £1.38 billion, representing more than 90 per cent. of the total fund, has now been paid to more than 100,000 applicants. The outstanding payments will be made as soon as possible.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will seek to extend the single farm payment to those who plant trees on their land as part of an environmental improvement. [81114]

Barry Gardiner: While claimants under the Single Payment Scheme are required to maintain their land in good agricultural and environmental condition, the scheme is not designed to fund environmental improvements.

However, there are other options available to farmers and landlords, such as Environmental Stewardship and the English Woodland Grant Scheme, which do support the environmental improvement of land, including the planting of trees.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of farmers in (a) Shrewsbury and Atcham and (b) England have received their single farm payments. [76184]

Barry Gardiner: The total number of single payment scheme customers is approximately 120,000. As at 30 June 2006, 92 per cent. (107,888) customers have received either a full or partial payment.

Details of payments made in England up to 30 June 2006, including by constituency and county, will be published in due course.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to make partial payments under the 2006 single payments scheme; and if he will make a statement. [77564]

Barry Gardiner: As my right hon. friend, the Secretary of State, reported to the House on 22 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1478-79, the need for the necessary EU legislation to make partial payments has been discussed with the Agriculture and Rural Development Commissioner, Mrs. Fisher-Boel, and the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) has been authorised to start work on the necessary systems. However, until the interim RPA chief executive has had an opportunity to make a realistic assessment of the prospects for full payments, we do not want to commit to a particular timetable or specify whether or when partial payments might be necessary.

Tallow

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact of exempting tallow from the EU definition of biomass. [82872]

Mr. Bradshaw: The EU has defined biomass as "the biodegradable fraction of products, wastes and residues from agriculture (including vegetal and animal substances), forestry and related industries, as well as the biodegradable fraction of industrial and municipal waste...".

As a form of animal substance, tallow is not exempt from the EU's definition of biomass and we are not aware of proposals to make it so. No such assessment has therefore been made.

Timber Imports

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to reduce timber imports from Burma. [79550]

Barry Gardiner: There are no current economic sanctions or restrictions on sourcing goods from Burma. However, Government policy is to offer no support to British companies who wish to trade with Burma, informing those who enquire of the grave political situation, the regime's atrocious record on human rights, and its economic mismanagement.

Government are working closely with the NGO Global Witness on how best to protect Burma's forests. Their report, "A Choice For China", calls for a ban on illegally logged timber. It does not, however, support a ban on all timber from Burma, bearing in mind the complexity of the problem. Instead, Global Witness has called for timber companies not to import illegally logged timber, and for the Chinese Government to suspend imports of logs and processed timber across the China-Burma border. China has taken action by closing its border crossings to timber trucks from Burma. Burma officials have also been trying to stop the trade in recent months, and the military regime suspended tree-cutting, timber transport and log shipments to China at the end of 2005.

Government continues to work through a number of channels with China to tackle the problem of illegal logging in the Asian region.

Wheels to Work

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will provide future funding for Wheels to Work schemes in Northamptonshire. [79556]

Barry Gardiner: Responsibility for delivering the Countryside Agency's rural economic and social regeneration policies, including transport, now lies with the regional development agencies (RDAs) who will determine where and on what it is appropriate to spend funds.

East Midlands Development Agency (EMDA) has funded two Wheels to Work schemes in Northamptonshire using the funds that were transferred to EMDA from the Countryside Agency. £248,990 of EMDA funding has been allocated over three years (2005-08).

As well as support from the RDAs, 'Wheels to Work or Learning' schemes receive funding from local Jobcentre Plus and Connexions offices, Learning and Skills Councils and from local transport authorities. The major source of transport funding in rural areas is local authorities.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Ex-miners (Compensation)

14. Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made in establishing a minimum compensation payment scheme for ex-miners suffering from chronic bronchitis and emphysema. [82780]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department supports the minimum payment proposal in principle and continues to work with the claimants' solicitors group to conclude matters. Discussions are nearing resolution and I hope the issues that remain are now resolved quickly enabling final agreement, including approval from solicitors, to be achieved.

Nuclear Power

15. Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the Government's policy is on nuclear power. [82781]

Malcolm Wicks: The Energy Review, launched by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in November 2005, is considering how to secure clean and affordable energy for the long term. It is exploring aspects of energy supply and demand, focusing on policy measures beyond 2010 including an assessment of the possible future role of civil nuclear and other generating technologies.

The Government will publish their proposals shortly.

British Firms (Export Markets)

16. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he is taking to encourage British firms to develop export markets. [82782]

Mr. McCartney: In a fast moving world the UK needs to be in a position to meet the challenges of globalisation. UK Trade and Investment is addressing this issue by helping British business to respond better to rapid, turbulent economic and social change. It is developing a new programme of support for companies trading internationally in emerging markets such as India and China as well as an increased focus on helping knowledge-intensive and innovative businesses.

UK Trade and Investment has been developing a new five-year strategy outlining how in the future it will undertake this vital role. The proposed launch date for the strategy is 20 July and I will keep the House informed.

Renewable Energy

17. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking to promote renewable energy. [82783]

Malcolm Wicks: The Renewables Obligation is the Government's key mechanism for encouraging renewable generation. This is supported by around £500 million of spending between 2002 and 2008 in the form of R and D and capital grants on emerging low carbon and renewable technologies.

Rural Post Offices

18. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the future of the rural network. [82784]

Margaret Hodge: My hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State with responsibility for the Royal Mail and Post Office (Jim Fitzpatrick), has had a number of discussions with ministerial colleagues in key Government Departments about the future of the Post Office network.

Departmental Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81052]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI is committed to the targets for energy efficiency and reduction in carbon emissions as set out in the Framework for Sustainable Development in Government. During the period 1990-2000 to 2004-05 the DTI HQ and its Agencies have achieved a reduction in carbon emissions from 5.2 to 4.4 (000 tC).

Over the past two years the Department has reduced the size of its London HQ estate by over 30 per cent. with a corresponding reduction in all the associated environmental impacts. This has been achieved by making more efficient use of its existing accommodation and the adoption of flexible desking on the basis of eight workstations for every 10 staff. Other carbon reduction initiatives include the purchase of nearly a third of its electricity from renewable sources between 1999-2000 and 2004-05.

Multinational Enterprises

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many meetings have been convened between complainants and companies by the UK National Contact Point under the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines on Multinational Enterprises since the Guidelines were implemented by the Government; [78633]

(2) what the criteria are by which the UK National Contact Point for the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) Guidelines on Multinational Enterprises decides to include specific instance cases in the official OECD table of specific instances; [78634]

(3) what the criteria are by which the UK National Contact Point for the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines on Multinational Enterprises decides to share relevant information with the complainant during the course of the specific instance procedure; [78635]

(4) to what extent Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines on Multinational Enterprise cover the behaviour of UK companies in dealing with their suppliers; and if he will make a statement; [78636]

(5) when he will implement United Nations Security Council Resolution 1457; [78637]

(6) if he will assess the extent to which his Department has implemented the recommendations made in the report of the All Party Parliamentary Group on the Great Lakes Region on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises and the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development; and if he will make a statement; [78638]

(7) in what ways the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises govern the operations of multinational companies in states where the national government is considered by the UK Government to be perpetrating humans rights abuses. [78628]

(8) how many complaints the national contact point for the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises has received under the specific instance mechanism relating to activities of UK companies in (a) Zimbabwe and (b) Nigeria in each of the last five years; and how many have been resolved; [78629]

(9) what the average time taken to conclude the specific instance procedure for complaints under the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises by the nation contact point located within his Department has been in each year since they were introduced; [78631]

(10) how he will ensure that complainants based in non-Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) countries are able to use the specific instance procedure under the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises in relation to UK companies. [78632]

Mr. McCartney: Governments adhering to the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises encourage enterprises operating in or from their territories to observe the Guidelines wherever they operate. Chapter II—General Policies states that enterprises should

"respect the human rights of those affected by their activities consistent with the host government's international obligations and commitments."

Chapter II—General Policies also states that enterprises should

"encourage, where practicable, business partners, including suppliers and subcontractors, to apply principles of corporate conduct compatible with the Guidelines."

As asserted m the September 2005 stakeholder consultation document on the UK national contact point's (NCP) promotion and implementation of the Guidelines, the NCP will follow its procedures where relevant and practicable if issues arise in non-adhering countries. Where information is not otherwise available, it may be able to obtain this through UK overseas posts. Where parties are unable to make their representations in the UK, it may undertake field visits, for which terms of reference will be established in advance.

The NCP has received no complaints relating to implementation of the Guidelines in specific instances by UK companies in Zimbabwe or Nigeria.

The NCP reports details of all complaints that it has decided justify consideration as a specific instance for inclusion in the OECD's annual report on the Guidelines.

Details of the number of meetings convened by the NCP between parties to a specific instance are not held centrally.

The procedural guidance that accompanies the Guidelines specifically provides that "information and views provided during the proceedings by another party involved will remain confidential, unless that other party agrees to their disclosure."

Accordingly, as asserted in the stakeholder consultation document, in the interests of transparency, the NCP will make available all documentation received from a party to other parties except in accordance with the exemptions provided for under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Details of the time taken to conclude specific instances by the NCP since it was set up following the decision of the OECD Council in June 2000 are as follows:

Company	Complainant	Filed	Concluded
National Grid Transco	Citizens for a Better Environment	July 2003	July 2005
De Beers	n/a	October 2003	May 2004
Avient	n/a	October 2003	September 2004
Oryx Natural Resources	Rights and Accountability in Development	October 2003	June 2005

Other specific instances have been dropped by the complainant or are ongoing.

The handling of UK companies listed in the final report of the United Nations Panel of Experts on the Illegal Exploitation of Natural Resources and Other Forms of Wealth of DR Congo referred to in Security Council Resolution 1457 as unresolved cases and referred to the NCP for investigation and updating was set out in the July 2005 Government response to a February 2005 report of the All Party Parliamentary Group on the Great Lakes Region (APPG) report.

I have arranged for copies of the Government response to the APPG report and the stakeholder consultation document on the NCP's promotion and implementation of the Guidelines to be placed in the Libraries of the House. The Government will shortly publish its response to the stakeholder consultation.

Social Enterprises

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what sources of publicly-funded financial support are available for new social enterprises. [76726]

Edward Miliband: I have been asked to reply.

There are many sources of publicly-funded financial support available to new social enterprises.

The Futurebuilders Fund exists to develop the capacity of the voluntary and community sector, including social enterprises, to deliver public services in England.

There is also the Adventure Capital Fund which aims to strengthen local communities by investing in organisations that work in, and for, those communities, helping them to thrive through enterprise.

Other sources include Unlimited (Unltd), funded through a Millennium Award endowment, with the objective of supporting and developing the role of social entrepreneurs as a force for positive change in the UK. The Big Lottery Fund is also open to applications from social enterprises.

Some Community Development Finance Institutions (CDFIs) are another source of finance, providing loans at commercial rates to social enterprises. There may also be additional regional or local funds available. The local Business Link would be best placed to advise on what support exists locally.

Sustainable Energy

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of grants available to home owners for solar heating; and if he will make a statement. [79528]

Malcolm Wicks: Solar water heating for home owners have been supported as part of the Clear Skies programme, which had a £13.25 million budget over three years beginning January 2003. To date over 5,500 household installations of solar water heating have been completed. We are continuing to support solar water heating, along with other microgeneration technologies, through the Low Carbon Buildings programme with a £80 million budget over the next three years.

Since 2003, we have seen the installer base grow from approximately 80 to over 300 companies. Solar water heating is now a proven and commercial technology and we hope to see payback times reduce as economies of scale emerge in the supply chain, providing further benefits to householders. We also believe the Low Carbon Buildings programme will build on the achievements of the last three years and make a contribution to helping the industry move to a more sustainable market.

World Trade Organisation

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps the Government are taking to encourage progress within the World Trade Organisation for a new trade agreement; and if he will make a statement. [82772]

Mr. McCartney: The Government remain fully committed to securing an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha Development Agenda (DDA). My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry was in Geneva last week to emphasise our commitment to the DDA in meeting with the EU Trade Commissioner, and counterparts in other EU member states. He and I continue to discuss the DDA with the Trade Ministers of other WTO member countries. Other members of the Government have also been in contact with their opposite numbers. We also remain in regular contact with business and civil society.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Official Car

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the make, age and model of his official car are. [83239]

The Deputy Prime Minister: My official car is a Jaguar XJ, capable of running a 5 per cent. biodiesel blend, provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA). In accordance with its established practice, the GCDA replaces its cars every three years. My current car is less than 12 months old.

All travel is carried out in accordance with the guidance "Travel by Ministers".

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

American Embassy

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the City of Westminster about planning permission for the security barriers outside the American embassy. [81022]

Yvette Cooper: There were brief contacts at official level in April 2003 to obtain some background information about the pre-application discussions that were then taking place between Westminster city council and the US embassy. There have been no contacts since.

Brownfield Development

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1744, on brownfield development, if she will break down the south east region figures for 2004 by local authority area. [80713]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 27 June 2006]: The information available is from Land Use Change Statistics, shown in the following tables. The tables show figures for 2004 and the average for 2001 to 2004 for each local authority in the south east. Single year figures at local authority level are not representative due to small sample sizes and are therefore subject to fluctuation, so the average over the period 2001 to 2004 is a better representation than the figure for a single year.

The figures provided in the previous answer included conversions, which are only available at a regional level. The figures in this answer therefore exclude conversions, and as a result the regional total shown will be different.

The tables also include figures for 1989 to 1992. Before 1989 the data was based on smaller samples and so is not comparable.

Building Standards

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received from professional bodies regarding design quality and energy efficiency in building standards; and if she will make a statement. [79966]

Yvette Cooper: On design quality standards Government have an ongoing dialogue with a range of professional bodies, either directly or through the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment. Recently, we have not received any specific representations from specific professional bodies regarding design quality. The most recent was the March 2005 publication of the Royal Institute of British Architects' 'Manifesto for Architecture' (http://www.riba.org/go/RIBA/News/Policy_4440.html). However, this was not specific to Government, but aimed at a wider audience.

On energy efficiency standards we are currently engaging a range of stakeholders in discussions around further reform of building regulations. During the period 2003 to 2005 the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister consulted widely on proposals for raising energy efficiency standards in line with commitments made in the Energy White Paper. These consultations supported improvements in energy efficiency standards through an amendment of the Building Regulations that came into effect on 6 April 2006. I am aware that construction industry professional bodies have been active in disseminating the changes introduced.

Commission for Equality and Human Rights

Mr. Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to include representatives of carers on the new Commission for Equality and Human Rights. [80704]

Meg Munn: The new Commission for Equality and Human Rights will be an independent body, with a minimum of 10 and up to 15 Commissioners. The Commissioners will have to have a demonstrable commitment to, and understanding of, the wider context of the equalities, human rights and good relations agendas. They will need to deal authoritatively with issues of equality that affect different people in different ways, depending on their circumstances.

Correspondence

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons the hon. Member for North Down has not received a response to her letter dated 10 February in relation to the Firefighters Pension Scheme. [83212]

Mr. Woolas: The hon. Member's letter was transferred to the Northern Ireland Office as it concerned matters which were for that Department. Officials of the then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister wrote to the hon. Member on 28 February advising her of the transfer.

[82945]

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1746W, on departmental staff, if she will place in the Library print outs from her departmental intranet of all the Skills for Life pages and links. [82946]

Angela E. Smith: Print outs from the pages of the Department for Communities and Local Government intranet and relevant links regarding Skills for Life will be placed in the Library.

Design Quality

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to make Government funding conditional on good design quality. [80041]

Yvette Cooper: The Government believe good design is essential in creating and maintaining quality places where people want to live and work, now and in the future. Through a range of different interventions we aim to create better, more liveable places through promoting more informed attention to design, the quality of which makes the difference in creating places that will stand the test of time.

The Office of Government Commerce is an independent office of the Treasury which works with public sector organisations to help them improve their efficiency, gain better value for money from their commercial activities and deliver improved success from programmes and projects. Ministers have agreed minimum procurement standards (www.ogc.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?docid=1004956) that are mandatory across central Government. These standards include that all clients should aim to deliver design excellence in accordance with the principles set out in 'Achieving Excellence 9: Design Quality (OGC, 2004)'.

The Department for Communities and Local Government is also promoting and delivering good design through three main channels:

Developing policy and raising design standards of buildings and places. DCLG non-departmental public bodies, English Partnerships and the Housing Corporation, have both set out design quality standards that are requirements for projects that they fund.

Encouraging innovation in buildings and the management of the public realm, through programmes and projects such as the Millennium Communities and the £60,000 home competition that are setting new benchmarks.

Promoting and championing understanding and take-up of good practice, sharing experience and improving design skills, though funding to the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment and the Academy for Sustainable Communities to support work on the ground.

Draft Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what draft Bills have been produced by her Department since October 2005; how many (a) were examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a Departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; what draft Bills are still to be produced by her Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if she will make a statement. [81268]

Angela E. Smith: No draft Bills have been produced by this Department since October 2005.

Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Former Council Properties

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties formerly owned by local authorities are privately let; and what information she has collated on the (a) rents charged for such properties and (b) rent levels for similar council-owned properties in 2005-06. [81607]

Yvette Cooper: No information is available on the number of properties formerly owned by local authorities that are privately let.

Green Infrastructure

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition she uses of green infrastructure. [80504]

Yvette Cooper: The Department for Communities and Local Government takes a broad definition of green infrastructure and through the Growth Area Fund supports improvements to parks and open spaces, improved access between the urban and rural fringe, and habitat creation and protection projects.

The Government believe that communities are more successful and enjoy a better and healthier quality of life if they have easy access to an attractive, well designed and managed green environment which is rich in bio-diversity.

The Department for Communities and Local Government is investing £38 million to support the delivery of green infrastructure projects, meeting our 10 per cent. funding commitment set out in the Government's response to the Barker Report. Examples include the Forest of Marston Vale; the Nene Valley Regional Park; Green Park South, Peterborough; the Wicken Fen Vision; Singleton Environment Centre, Ashford; and Bedford River Valley Park.

In 2004, the Government published Greening the Gateway, a greenspace strategy for the Thames Gateway, which set a strategic context for the delivery of regional and local environmental initiatives. The Department for Communities and Local Government has invested over £26 million in green infrastructure projects in the Thames Gateway, and has supported the development of 'Green Grids' in Kent Thameside, East London and South Essex as examples of best practice in providing an accessible interlinking chain of local green space that encourages travel without cars.

Housing, Tamworth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has to improve the provision of council housing for those with serious disabilities in (a) Tamworth and (b) the West Midlands region. [80125]

Yvette Cooper: Responsibility for planning the provision of housing for those with serious disabilities lies with local housing authorities who are responsible for assessing housing needs within their areas and devising strategies to address them. If an authority identifies the need for more specially appointed social housing for people with disabilities it may decide to modify council houses or to work with Housing Associations on modification or new development. Local housing authorities also have a mandatory duty to fund adaptations to council housing for eligible disabled tenants under the disabled facilities grant legislation contained in the Housing Grants Construction and Regeneration Act 1996.

Hydro-Electricity

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will establish an appeal mechanism for when the Environment Agency decides not carry out an environmental assessment of a planning application for a hydro-electric generating plant; and if she will make a statement. [82624]

Yvetté Cooper: The decision on whether an environmental impact assessment (EIA) is required for a proposed project rests with the appropriate competent authority. In the case of projects which fall within the planning system, the competent authority is normally the local planning authority. The Environment Agency's role for EIA purposes is as a statutory consultation body. There is a statutory appeal mechanism for an applicant for planning permission who disagrees with a planning authority's decision to require EIA. Action against an authority's decision not to require EIA, however, could only be pursued by means of an application for judicial review.

Ministers' Offices

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1599W, on Ministers' offices, which Ministers who previously had offices in 26 Whitehall when part of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister moved to Eland House following the creation of the Department of Communities and Local Government. [82950]

Angela E. Smith: My hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper) and my noble Friend Baroness Andrews moved from 26 Whitehall to offices in Eland House following the creation of the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1599W, on Ministers' offices, who occupies the offices in 26 Whitehall which were previously occupied by Ministers within the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. [82951]

Angela E. Smith: The offices in 26 Whitehall previously occupied by my hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper) and my noble Friend Baroness Andrews are currently empty pending decisions on reassignment.

New Housing (Flood Risk)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many houses indicated in plans scheduled for completion by 2020 in London and the South East are to be built in areas determined by the Environment Agency as liable for flooding, broken down by site. [78956]

Yvette Cooper: This information is not held centrally by the Department for Communities and Local Government but may be available from local planning authorities in London and the South East, as the bodies responsible for preparing development plans.

Planning Policy Guidance Note 25 (PPG25) Development and Flood Risk requires local planning authorities to apply a sequential test to land at risk of flooding. The test has regard to the area liable to flooding, the probability of it occurring and the extent and standard of flood defences among other factors.

For London, the risk of flooding was considered in the Greater London Authority's London Housing Capacity study 2004, which assessed housing potential to 2027. Sites deemed unsuitable on flood risk grounds were excluded and many other sites with lower risk of flooding had their potential housing capacities reduced.

The Regional Monitoring Report 2005 produced by the South East England Regional Assembly indicates that the number of existing properties at risk from flooding in the South East is 235,000.

Permitted Development Rights

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2832W, on permitted development rights, whether he plans to hold a consultation on the Lichfield and Partners report on the Operation of Permitted Development Rights (2003); whether the Department plans to comment formally on the report; to what purpose the report (a) has been and (b) is planned to be put; and what the cost of the Lichfield and Partners review and report was. [63037]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

There are no plans to hold a consultation on the report by Lichfield and Partners or to comment formally on it. Changes to the operation of permitted development rights will continue to be taken forward on a topic-related basis and consulted on as such. For example, we announced on 4 July that we will draw up proposals to revise the scope of householder permitted development rights. The report will continue to inform such consideration. The cost of the report was £102,725.

Planning Permission (Flood Risk)

Sir Malcolm Rifkind: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Government's policy is on the provision of planning permission to create new basement properties. [76439]

Yvette Cooper: As basements can provide extra space without additional land take, the Government supports their provision, in appropriate circumstances, as part of new housing or as alterations to existing properties. Whether planning permission is required depends on the circumstances of each particular case. For example, excavation below an existing property to create a basement would require planning permission whereas adapting an existing cellar would not require planning permission if all the works were internal.

The question of the need for planning permission for their provision in residential properties was one of a number of issues looked at by a group reviewing the subject of householder development consents more widely. The report of that group was published on 4 July 2006 and it recognised that there was concern that the absence of guidance on the planning status of basements discouraged their wider use. We will be undertaking further work on householder permitted development in light of that report with a view to consulting on detailed proposals later this year.

Polytunnels

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to introduce legislation to control the use of polytunnels in (a) rural areas and (b) areas of outstanding natural beauty. [81510]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have no plans to introduce any new legislation to control the use of polytunnels. The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 provides controls on the development and use of land in all areas of the country. Whether the erection or use of any particular polytunnel is deemed to constitute 'development' under the Act will depend on the facts of each case, taking account of such matters as the scale, manner of construction and extent and nature of fixation of the polytunnel. Ultimately, this is a matter for the courts to determine.

Supported Housing Schemes

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to increase the number of supported housing schemes for people with learning disabilities. [82412]

Yvette Cooper: Through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme, the Government fund a range of sheltered and supported accommodation accessible by people with learning difficulties, while the Corporation's HomeBuy scheme can help people with disabilities into sustainable home ownership.

A Government objective, laid out in the White Paper "Valuing People: A New Strategy for Learning Disability for the 21st Century", is to enable people with learning disabilities and their families to have greater choice and control over where, and how they live. Through the Supporting People programme, the Government enable provision of a wide variety of services which help people with learning difficulties to live independently; some of which are sheltered or supported housing schemes, while others are 'floating' schemes which allow people the choice of receiving support in their own home.

Town Centre Redevelopment

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assistance the Government are providing to local councils to redevelop town centres. [82410]

Yvette Cooper: Since 1997, the Government have put in place a range of policy initiatives and measures to assist local authorities to deliver an urban renaissance, including the re-development of town and city centres.

The Urban White Paper "Our Towns and Cities: the Future" published in 2000 identified a range of measures (policies, programmes and tax incentives) to foster and support an urban regeneration, including city centre renewal.

Over £2 billion in funds is provided annually to England's nine regional development agencies (RDAs) to promote regional economic growth and urban regeneration, including support for city centre renaissance. English Partnerships (EP), the national regeneration agency, has a direct role in fostering urban renaissance. Together with the RDAs, EP has helped set up 21 urban regeneration companies, in partnership with local authorities, to drive forward regeneration projects many of them targeted on city centre re-development.

National economic stability has provided a solid foundation for local economic strategies and public-private partnerships which have attracted huge investment into city centre initiatives. Major public investment in civic squares, parks, open spaces, parks and river frontages has also attracted private investors to commit funds to major city centre schemes.

Through the Government's Planning Policy Statement 6: Planning for Town Centres (March 2005), assistance is given to local authorities and stakeholders on how to plan proactively for the redevelopment of town centres. It advises on how the Government's key objective, to promote the vitality and viability of town centres, should be taken into account in producing statutory development plans, and determining planning applications for town centre uses, such as retail, leisure and office development.

Also in March 2005, the Government published the "How to Manage Town Centres" guide, to assist local councils and other stakeholders in applying the powers and tools available for tackling priority issues, particularly those related to making town centres safer and cleaner. The guide includes examples of innovative approaches for using them and examples of good practice, and outlines the importance of pooling and sharing local information, responsive and pro-active local leadership, developing town centre strategies which are linked to local planning, crime and disorder reduction, licensing and transport strategies, and partnership working.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Ministerial Salaries

22. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality whether she receives a full ministerial salary. [82789]

Meg Munn: Yes.

Flexible Working

23. Jim Sheridan: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what information the Government make available to women on their right to flexible working hours. [82790]

Meg Munn: The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI), the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service (ACAS) and the direct.gov website provide guidance for employees (men and women) on the right to request flexible working. The direct.gov website has three interactive tools which help employees make applications to work flexibly. ACAS provide leaflets and also operate a helpline, answering queries from both employees and employers on employment matters including flexible working.

Homophobia (Schools)

24. Simon Hughes: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government plan to take to tackle homophobia in schools. [82791]

Meg Munn: We propose to introduce regulations under the Equality Act 2006 later this year that will make sexual orientation discrimination unlawful in schools. These measures will be backed by guidance for schools on how to tackle such discrimination and will complement existing, and new guidance on tackling homophobic bullying planned for next year.

Equality and Human Rights Commission

25. Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government expect to announce the name of the Chairman of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [82792]

Meg Munn: We hope to announce the Chair of the new Commission in summer this year, with an announcement of Commissioners and Chief Executive to follow in late autumn.

PRIME MINISTER

Special Envoy

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the countries visited by Baroness Symons of Vernham Dean since her appointment as his special envoy; and what the (a) date and (b) purpose was of each visit. [81019]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1614-15W. Baroness Symons has also visited Algeria twice in her capacity as Special Representative for Memoranda of Understanding towards the end of 2005.

Baroness Symons has now ceased her role as Special Representative for Memoranda of Understanding, and as Representative for the Two Kingdoms Dialogue.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Procedures Committee

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of the Animal Procedures Committee have (a) a background and (b) expertise in animal welfare; and what the selection criteria are to become a member of the Committee. [82675]

Joan Ryan: The Animal Procedures Committee (APC) is an independent body set up under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 to advise the Home Secretary and the Department of Health, Social Security and Public Safety Northern Ireland Minister on matters concerned with the 1986 Act and their functions under it.

Excluding the chairman, there must be a minimum of 12 members, one must be a lawyer and at least two thirds must be medical practitioners, veterinary surgeons or have qualifications or experience in a biological subject. At least half of the members must not have held a licence to carry out procedures on animals within the last six years and animal welfare interests must be adequately represented. The Act places certain restrictions on the balance of interests and competences to be represented and also limits the maximum term of membership to two consecutive terms of four years.

There are currently 19 members of the Committee (including the chairman). Seven have a background and expertise in animal welfare. However, all members of the committee share a common concern for the welfare of the animals used in scientific procedures, and, under section 20(2) of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, in considering any matter must have regard both to the legitimate requirements of science and industry and to the protection of animals against avoidable suffering and unnecessary use.

All appointments are made jointly with the Department for Health, Social Services and Public Safety for Northern Ireland (DHSSPSNI). Members are selected on personal merit, and not as nominees, delegates or representatives of any organisations or pressure groups. The posts are unpaid. Nevertheless, every effort is made to ensure that the Nolan principles are applied and to that end we entrust the management of the process to the Appointments Commission. All appointments to the Animal Procedures Committee are announced publicly.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued in Humberside Police Authority area in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [82532]

Mr. McNulty: Humberside Police Authority area is coterminous with the Humberside Criminal Justice System (CJS) area. A table giving annual data, up to 30 September 2005 (latest available), broken down by CJS area is available on the Crime Reduction website at www.crimereduction.gov.uk.

Bail Hostels

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 271W, on bail hostels, how many sex offenders were resident at the bail hostel in Wesleyan Road, Peterborough on 31 May 2006; and if he will make a statement. [82006]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The number of sex offenders accommodated in any approved premises, (formerly bail and probation hostels) will vary at any one time. Statistical information about the type of offences committed by offenders residing at an approved premises at any one time is not collected centrally.

Crime Statistics (Suffolk)

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who reside in Suffolk were prosecuted under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in each year since it was enacted. [82109]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991, in the Suffolk police force area from 1992 to 2004 is in the following table Figures for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006.

Criminal Justice and Court Services Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the operation of section 57 of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000; and what recent representations he has received about the operation of this (a) section and (b) Act. [71014]

Mr. Coaker: Section 57 of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 (CJCS) inserted new provisions in section 38 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE). These provisions enable police custody officers to detain a person after charge for the purposes of taking a sample (of urine or other non-intimate sample) to test for the presence of specified Class A drugs, subject to conditions and procedures set out in sections 63B and 63C of PACE.

The Drugs Act 2005 (section 7 and paragraphs 1-4 of Schedule 1) subsequently amended section 63B and other sections of PACE to allow for the testing of adults for specified Class A drugs on arrest while retaining the powers for testing on charge in the case of adults and the under eighteens (where applicable). Where a person has tested positive under these powers, section 9 of the Drugs Act introduced a new power for the police to require adults to attend an assessment of their drug use or face a criminal sanction.

This legislation forms a core part of the Drug Interventions Programme (DIP) and aims to identify problematic drug misusers at the earliest opportunity of their contact with the criminal justice system and get them into drug treatment and other support. Currently, drug testing operates within the 71 crime partnership areas across England and Wales with high levels of acquisitive crime, the so called 'DIP intensive areas'.

The volume of tests conducted under this legislation continues to grow. Some 17, 400 adult drug tests were carried out in April 2006, more than three times the number in April 2005.

The Home Office has received no specific recent representations about the operation of section 57 of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 although a number of police forces have made enquiries about introducing drug testing in their areas.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Criminal Records Bureau disclosure applications were received in each of the last 12 months; how many were issued; and what the average length of time taken to issue a disclosure was in each month. [81688]

Joan Ryan: The total number of disclosure applications received and disclosures issued by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) in the last 12 months is contained in table 1.

Information on the average length of time taken to process the checks during these periods is not available in the format requested. The CRB operates to a set of a Published Service Standards (PSS) which for the majority of the period was to publish 93 per cent. of Standard Disclosures within two weeks and 90 per cent. of Enhanced Disclosures within four weeks. The monthly performance measured against the PSS is as shown in tables 2 and 3.

The four week target for Enhanced Disclosures is made up of two distinct parts. The CRB is required to process 90 per cent. of valid Enhanced Disclosure applications to the police within 10 days, with the police forces required to process 95 per cent. of the checks within a further 14 days. The CRB consistently exceeded their target in 2005-06 and, for May 2006, processed 97.4 per cent. of applications to the police within 10 days. The CRB and the police forces are working together to reduce police completion times in line with the overall service standard objectives.

The CRB recently published its Five-Year Strategy and Business Plan, 2006-07 and the PSS for the financial year 2006-07 for Standard Disclosures is 90 per cent. within 10 days and for Enhanced Disclosures 90 per cent. within 28 days. The shortening of the Standard Disclosure PSS is the result of the effectiveness of the CRB's internal processes.

Identity Checks (Licensed Premises)

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance his Department has issued to police forces and licensees on the removal of means of identity from those seeking entrance to a licensed premises; and if he will make a statement. [79530]

Mr. McNulty: No guidance has been issued on this subject by the Home Office, the Association of Chief Police Officers, or the Security Industry Authority.

IMPACT Programme

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) pursuant to the written statement of 19 April 2006, Official Report, columns 17-19WS, on the IMPACT programme, how many police forces in England and Wales are using the IMPACT nominal index (INI); how many police officers on average have access to the INI within each child abuse investigation unit; when he expects the INI to be available to all police officers in every force; what further development of the INI is planned; and what assessment he has made of its likely impact on police forces; [73239]

(2) pursuant to the written statement of 19 April 2006, Official Report, columns 17-19WS, on the IMPACTS programme, what estimated (a) funds and (b) manpower will be required by police forces in England and Wales to implement the IMPACT nominal index in other business areas outside child abuse investigation units; [73310]

(3) pursuant to the statement on the IMPACT programme issued by his Department on 19 April 2006, which business areas within police forces will receive the IMPACT nominal index (INI) during 2006 in addition to child abuse investigation units. [73311]

Mr. McNulty: All 43 forces in England and Wales have been using the IMPACT nominal index (INI) since it was deployed in December 2005 to a child abuse investigation unit, with at least two trained users, in each force. The IMPACT programme will complete deployment to force child abuse investigation units by the end of July this year, on the basis of requirements identified by chief constables, which will mean that 850 staff (around a third of all staff in this business area) will be trained in the use of the INI.

Although the IMPACT nominal index is currently intended to be used primarily for child protection, officers from other business areas may, with the authority of an officer of at least superintendent rank, have searches carried out where necessary for the prevention or detection of serious crime. It is our intention to deploy the INI to other business areas following full deployment to child abuse investigation units but we do not plan to train all officers in the use of the INI or to give all officers direct access to the system; searches can be carried out on their behalf. Which areas should receive the application, and in which order, will be determined in consultation with the police service, informed by the outcome of current trials involving the Thames Valley Force Intelligence Bureau; the Child Exploitation and On-line Protection Centre; the East Midlands Regional Special Operations Unit and the Metropolitan Police Counter Terrorism Command. At the conclusion of the trials in August, the IMPACT Programme Board will have a better understanding of the business benefits and resources required to respond to inter-force requests for information following a match on the INI. It is for forces to determine how to manage the resource requirements to implement the new operational capability we are delivering. The INI is being developed to incorporate certain local audit and administration functions. We are currently assessing the impact of INI on forces in terms of the operational benefits delivered by the system and the demands associated with responding to inter-force enquiries. On-site surveys and case reviews are being conducted to identify the type and number of cases where INI-identified data have made a significant contribution to their work. We are also working with forces to identify best practice and potential new applications of the system.

IRA Manchester Bombings

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make arrangements for payments to be made to the victims of the 15 June 1996 IRA Manchester bombings on terms similar to the payments being made to victims of the 7 July London bombings and their families. [76533]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The victims of the Manchester bombing and the 7/7 bombings were/are eligible for criminal injuries compensation under the terms of the statutory criminal injuries compensation scheme approved by Parliament which applied at the date their application was/is received. The payments made to both sets of victims, and indeed to all victims of violent crime in Great Britain, are assessed and paid on the basis of the scheme applying when their application is received. No special arrangements or payments under the current scheme are being made for 7/7 victims.

However, in the immediate aftermath of the 7/7 bombings, the Mayor of London set up the London Bombings Relief Charitable Fund in partnership with the British Red Cross. The Government donated £1 million to the fund in July 2005. The Government announced on 8 June 2006 that, in recognition of the exceptional circumstances of the London bombings, it was donating a further £2.5 million to the fund, Official Report, column 38WS. The trustees of the charity will decide how the extra money will be distributed among victims of the 7/7 bombings in the form of charitable grants.

Knife Amnesty

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knives have been handed in during the amnesty in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire; and if he will make a statement. [82745]

Mr. Coaker: Figures for the number of items handed in during the knife amnesty are being collected at police force level and will be released shortly. 17,715 items were handed in in England and Wales during the first week of the amnesty.

We worked closely with ACPO to develop the arrangements for the amnesty, which was part of our wider strategy to tackle knife crime. We are also focusing on legislation, enforcement, education and prevention. We have brought forward provisions in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill that will raise the age at which someone can be sold a knife to 18; are introducing a new offence of using someone to mind a weapon; and are giving head teachers powers to search pupils for knives. The Home Secretary announced on 19 June 2006 that he was giving very serious consideration to the suggestion that the maximum sentence for having a knife or blade in a public place should be increased from the current sentence of 2 years.

Many police forces are undertaking tough enforcement operations, for example, the Metropolitan police's Operation Blunt and the British Transport police's Operation Shield, which uses search equipment to detect those carrying knives and other weapons on our transport network. We are also supporting educational initiatives that demonstrate to young people the dangers of carrying knives, and reinforce the message that carrying a knife can result in it being turned on you.

Through our small grants programme, the Connected Fund, we are also supporting a wide range of local community projects which work with young people to provide mentoring, training, education and other support.

MI5

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many MI5 files have been destroyed since 1997. [76275]

Mr. McNulty: I am informed that since 1997 approximately 110,000 files have been destroyed.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 1 June 2006, to Question 68479 on MI5 files, how many of the 325,000 files are personal files. [76465]

Mr. McNulty: I am informed that of the approximately 325,000 files held by the Security Service at January 2005, approximately 272,000 were personal files.

Miscarriages of Justice (Compensation)

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many awards of compensation have been made to victims of miscarriages of justice under the (a) statutory and (b) discretionary scheme in each of the last five years; and how many of these awards were for more than £500,000. [82062]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures for the number of final awards made over the last five years are set out in the following table. There are two cases in which applicants whose cases have not been completed have received interim payments on account in excess of £500,000. There are seven cases currently with the independent assessor for final assessment in which the applicants are seeking awards in excess of £500,000.

Final awards made under the statutory and discretionary schemes for compensation for wrongful conviction and/or charge.

2002-03	17	9	8	2
2003-04	27	16	11	0

Northern Way

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what role his Department plays in the delivery of the Northern Way initiative. [74042]

Mr. McNulty: The main role the Home Office plays in the Northern Way is tackling crime, drugs and antisocial behaviour which, if left unchecked, have the potential to undermine regeneration and attempts to improve regional economic growth.

Oxycodone

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the effects on (a) the UK balance of payments, (b) UK jobs and (c) the number of traffic movements of moving the production of oxycodone hydrochloride formulations from the United Kingdom to another country in the European Union; and if he will make a statement. [77134]

Mr. Coaker: No such assessments have been made.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many producers and suppliers of oxycodone hydrochloride in the European economic area are approved as alternative sources of supply of the raw material to UK manufacturers of oxycodone preparations for the British market. [76539]

Mr. Coaker: No application has been received to import oxycodone hydrochloride or its base materials from any territory within the European economic area.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effect on UK producers of oxycodone hydrochloride formulations of other EU countries interpreting the United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs (1961) less restrictively than his Department; and if he will make a statement. [76540]

Mr. Coaker: No such assessment has been made.

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to ensure that production of oxycodone formulations does not move from the UK to elsewhere in the European Union as a result of Home Office interpretation of the United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1961. [76952]

Mr. Coaker: Production of controlled drugs, such as oxycodone, is governed by the United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, 1961 and implemented by the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. Licensed production under the Act limits domestic trade to medical and scientific purposes. The policy on licensing takes no account of commercial considerations nor does the Act confer any power to compel a manufacturer to remain within the United Kingdom.

Party Conference Security

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1036-37W, on party conference security, what the costs to public funds were of policing and general security for the (a) Labour and (b) Conservative party conferences in each year since 1992, broken down by spending at (i) national spring conferences, (ii) national autumn conferences and (iii) regional conferences. [79339]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 21 June 2006]: The table shows the cost to public funds, in the form of special grant paid to police authorities, for policing national spring conferences and national autumn conferences in England and Wales. Funding is not provided for regional conferences. For security reasons, we do not disclose the other costs incurred.

Police

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will seek a report from the Chief Constable of Greater Manchester regarding the case of PC Sean Mullaney. [75414]

Mr. McNulty: PC Mullaney was suspended from duty when the CPS decided to prosecute him for two counts of common assault. He was found guilty on both counts, but successfully appealed against the convictions. PC Mullaney's suspension was consequently lifted, and the decision taken to offer him advice on the standards of conduct expected of him.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officer applications from (a) women and (b) black and minority ethnic candidates there were in each of the last five years in the UK. [73339]

Mr. McNulty: The available information for police officer applications in England and Wales is set out as follows. It is based on responses from forces as these are not data that are collected centrally. Responsibility for recruitment of officers in Scotland and Northern Ireland is the responsibility of my right hon. friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Recruitment fluctuates according to natural wastage as well as specific funding available. The crime fighting fund has driven significant recruitment over recent years, including record levels in 2002-03 when joiners totalled 13,100. Since then, recruitment has slowed down and this is reflected in numbers of female and minority ethnic applicants as shown in the table.

Number of applications to be a police officer (2001 to 2005)

	Female applicants	Number Minority ethnic applicants
2000-01[1]	15,446	3,556
2001-02[2]	14,891	4,604
2002-03[3]	22,838	4,712
2003-04[4]	14,060	3,419
2004-05[5]	10,974	3,060

[2] Total is based on 42 forces providing data.
[3] Total is based on 40 forces providing data.

[5] Total is based on 39 forces providing data.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the answer of 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1046W, on the police, what the total expected cost is of the consultants employed by his Department to advise on police force amalgamations. [75223]

Mr. McNulty: The total costs of employing consultants to help advise the Home Office on police force restructuring is expected to be around £1 million.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assurances (a) Cumbria and (b) Lancashire police authorities have sought regarding the terms of their amalgamation; what progress his Department has made in providing these assurances; and if he will make a statement. [82964]

Mr. McNulty: Ministers and officials in the Home Office have had regular discussions with representatives of Lancashire and Cumbria police authorities covering a wide range of issues. We are working closely with them to resolve all outstanding issues.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions his Department has had with other departments regarding the use of amalgamation orders to harmonise the police precept for council taxpayers where police authorities are amalgamated; and whether his Department plans to use primary legislation to harmonise the police precept for council taxpayers. [82965]

Mr. McNulty: My Department has had regular discussions with other interested departments. I do not envisage that primary legislation will be required to harmonise police precepts.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 2 June 2006, Official Report, column 40W, on helicopter searches, at what time the police helicopter at RAF Benson was (a) placed on and (b) taken off standby. [81217]

Mr. McNulty: The answer on 2 June 2006 referred to helicopter searches from RAF Benson on 18 July 2003. The police helicopter based at RAF Benson was available for tasking from 5.35 pm on 17 July 2003 until the end of its duty period at 2.30 am on 18 July 2003. It was available for tasking again from 8.00 am on 18 July 2003 until 2.30 am on 19 July 2003.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the change in the number of civilian posts which would result if a merger of Cheshire and Merseyside police forces was carried out. [47791]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 February 2006]: I apologise to the hon. Member for the delay in replying to her question.

It has been estimated that a merger of Cheshire and Merseyside police forces would lead to savings of 5 per cent. of the civilian staff payroll. The precise posts involved, or their number, have not been identified.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures his Department will be taking to ensure that local decision-making is preserved under the planned merging of police forces in England and Wales. [75135]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The police basic command unit (BCD) will shortly be put on a legal footing under the provision of the Police and Justice Bill. Local accountability will remain, as operational policing in local areas will continue to be conducted by the BCD under the supervision of the commander. The creation of strategic forces would improve policing by reducing the abstraction of police officers away from neighbourhood policing to deal with serious and organised crime.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of police retirements were ill health retirements in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [75760]

Mr. McNulty: Of the officers who retired with either an ordinary pension or an ill-health pension in 2004-05 10.5 per cent. retired with an ill-health pension, based on available data from 42 out of 43 forces. Since the number of retirements is liable to change from year to year, the rate of ill-health retirement is now measured against the number of officers in service, this being a more stable measure. For 2004-05 the rate of ill-health retirement was three per 1,000 serving officers. These figures are published in HM Chief Inspector of Constabulary's annual report for 2004-05 (page 25) which can be found at: http://www.official-documents.co.uk/document/hc0506/hc08/0842/0842.pdf. This represents a significant improvement in performance, the rate having been 14 per 1000 in 1997-98.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the consistency of first night programmes across the prison estate. [62754]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All prisons must ensure that arrangements are in place to provide for the safety and well-being of newly arrived prisoners, particularly during their first night in custody, and to inform them of what to expect over the next 24 hours. The details of these arrangements are a matter for local prison management, and will vary according to the nature of the establishment and its population, and the needs of individual prisoners. No central assessment has been made of the consistency of first night programmes.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the weighted scorecard of London prisons maintained by HM Prison Service; and what position is occupied by each prison establishment in it. [74013]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The weighted scorecard is an internal performance information management tool, provided to all establishments to help drive performance improvement. The current weighted scorecard has been produced for quarter four of financial year 2005-06, using provisional data. The following table provides the current position of the London establishments.

Establishment	Quarter four position in weighted scorecard
Belmarsh	95
Brixton	91
Feltham	100
Holloway	16
Latchmere House	129
Pentonville	105
Wandsworth	134
Wormwood Scrubs	19

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the transfer of inmates from (a) a category A prison to a category B prison, (b) a category B prison to a category C prison and (c) a category C prison to a category D prison; what changes there have been in that policy since 1 May 1997; on what dates the policy was changed; and how the policy change was made public. [77444]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The purpose of the recategorisation of prisoners is to determine whether, and to what extent, the risks a prisoner presented at their last review have changed and to ensure that the prisoner continues to be held in the most appropriately secure conditions. There have been no significant policy changes since 1997.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average weekly cost of detaining an (a) male and (b) a female person in prison (i) on remand awaiting trial and (ii) after sentence was (A) in the last period for which figures are available and (B) in each of the last 10 years. [82355]

Mr. Sutcliffe: HM Prison Service does not collect cost data in the format requested. Costs are collected at each individual establishment and across the prison estate and this does not distinguish between sentenced and remand prisoners.

Probation Service

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for changes to the Probation Service. [82684]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 5 July 2006]: There have been significant improvements in the performance of the probation service in recent years. However, we need to do more. We published on 30 March 2006 "Working with probation to protect the public and reduce re-offending". This sets out how we will work with the probation service and other partners to develop more effective end-to-end management of offenders throughout their sentence. We intend to bring forward legislation to give effect to our proposals as soon as parliamentary time allows.

Public Order

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders were found guilty of (a) drunk and disorderly behaviour and (b) drunken and aggravated behaviour in (i) England, (ii) Beverley and Holderness and (iii) East Riding of Yorkshire council area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [80454]

Mr. McNulty: Data from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing how many offenders were found guilty of drunkenness offences in England and in the East Riding of Yorkshire are in the following table. We are unable to supply convictions for Beverley and Holderness constituency as the data is not available at the level of detail required. Figures for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006. The table also shows the number of penalty notices (PNDs) for drunk and disorderly behaviour in England in 2004. Data of the number of PNDs issued in the East Riding are not available as figures are not collected at this level of detail.

Safety Cameras

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the maximum distance is over which a LT120.20 mobile speed camera can record speed. [82081]

Mr. McNulty: LTI 20.20 laser speedmeters can be used up to a distance of 999.9m. The instruments are technically capable of operating to distances twice as far, but the maximum distance they can display is 999.9m. Use is therefore limited to this distance.

School Arson

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases of arson attacks on schools a suspect was (a) cautioned and (b) charged in the last year for which figures are available; and what percentage of total cases of arson attacks on schools these figures represent. [79512]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not possible to identify cautions or prosecutions resulting from arson attacks on schools, in the data held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform as such offences cannot be distinguished from all other offences of arson. Data compiled by the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG), formerly the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) show that in England during 2004, there were 677 fires on schools in which deliberate ignition was established or suspected. DCLG do not collect any information on whether the police arrested or charged any suspects, or on subsequent court appearances.

Security Industry Approved Contractor Scheme

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his written statement of 16 February 2006, on the Private Security Industry Approved Contractor Scheme, what assessment he has made of whether companies that have obtained (a) UKAS Quality Assurance standards (EN 45012) or (b) UKAS Product Certification standards (EN 45011) specific to the security industry should be passported through to membership of the scheme. [59022]

Mr. Coaker: It is not currently possible for a company to achieve ACS accreditation via the passporting route. The SIA is currently in discussion with one certification body that is preparing an application for accreditation of a passport scheme. No other expressions of interest have been received to date.

Companies that meet standards that do not directly and exactly cover all the 89 indicators or that cover other criteria in more depth may be eligible for the Fast Track route. This includes companies that have met relevant quality assurance standards and product certification standards as assessed by a UKAS accredited body under EN 45011 and/or EN 45012.

Terrorism (Public Informants)

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are in place to deal with information from the public about those suspected of terrorist acts or conspiracy to commit terrorist acts. [81891]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Any information about suspected terrorist activity should be passed to the police. There are a number of ways in which this can be done including the Anti-Terrorist Hotline. The Metropolitan Police Service Anti-Terrorist Branch would be informed in appropriate cases. Any information received by the Anti-Terrorist Branch is logged, assessed and prioritised formally on a daily basis. This process would include detailed inquiries to establish the veracity or otherwise of the information.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether proper procedures were followed by the police and intelligence services when Mr. Martin Gilbertson approached West Yorkshire police in 2003 about Mohammed Siddique Khan and other individuals responsible for the terrorist attacks in London on 7 July 2005; why the police told Mr. Gilbertson to post the information rather than arranging to speak to a police officer; whether the information received was logged and properly dealt with; and if he will make a statement. [81892]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 July 2006]: West Yorkshire police have released a press statement confirming that they have no knowledge of any contact with Mr. Gilbertson prior to 7 July 2005 in relation to the matters raised by him. West Yorkshire police have informed us that Mr. Gilbertson continues to assist officers as part of the overall investigation into the 7 July bombings.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of progress towards achieving prosecutions in Afghanistan for those involved in the trafficking of narcotics. [82857]

Mr. McCartney: Since August 2005, over 460 individuals have been arrested on suspicion of drugs related offences in Afghanistan. Prosecutors have handled over 350 cases and over 150 individuals have been convicted. This progress is being supported by improvements to the criminal justice system infrastructure, including the establishment of dedicated and secure narcotics courts and prison facilities. A counter narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force of 80 Afghan investigators, prosecutors and judges has been established to work with the Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan specifically to conduct drugs prosecutions. New Afghan counter narcotics legislation was adopted in December 2005. The new law gives wide-ranging powers for prosecution of drugs offenders, covering both those transporting drugs and those facilitating or conspiring to do so, and sets out stringent minimum sentences for drug trafficking offences and tough sentences for public officials interfering in cases.

Amazonian Deforestation Project

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what companies are involved in the Amazonian Deforestation Soya Certification Project in the Para region, Brazil; what proportion come from the region; and if she will make a statement. [82575]

Mr. McCartney: Cargill is the only company involved in the Amazon Deforestation Soya Certification Project. It is a US based privately owned company with regional offices in Santarem, State of Para, Brazil. Approximately 300 local Brazilian producers supply Cargill with soya. All these producers participate in the Amazon Deforestation Soya Certification Project. The project works intensively with approximately 20 of these producers.

British Embassies/High Commissions

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the locations are of British embassies and high commissions staffed by only one UK-based diplomat. [82084]

Mr. Hoon: Two British high commissions are staffed by a single UK-based diplomat. They are in St. John's (Antigua and Barbuda) and Castries (St. Lucia). Our embassy to the Holy See is also staffed by one UK-based officer.

In addition, the following subordinate posts are staffed by one UK-based diplomat:

British Embassy Office, Abijan
The Administrator's Office, Ascension Island
British Consulate-General, Auckland
British Embassy Office, Banja Luka
British Consulate-General, Bordeaux
Embassy Office, Conakry
British Consulate-General, Lille
British Consulate-General, Lyon
British Consulate, Monrovia
British Consulate, Nagoya
Pitcairn Islands Administration, Pitcairn
The Administrator's Office, Tristan de Cunha.

Burma

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of whether the recent move of the Burmese capital is related to the development of a nuclear site in the vicinity. [83206]

Mr. McCartney: We were formally notified of the Burmese authorities' decision to relocate the seat of administration to Pyinmana on 7 November 2005. The State Peace and Development Council claims that moving to a more central location will enable the Government to carry out the development of the whole nation more effectively. We have no evidence that the move was related to the development of a nuclear site in the vicinity.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports the Government have received on the use of chemical weapons by the regime in Burma. [83208]

Mr. McCartney: In 2005 we looked into allegations that the Burmese regime had used chemical weapons against Karenni fighters but there was no hard evidence to confirm this. Since then we have not received any further reports.

International Atomic Energy Agency

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her (a) US and (b) European counterparts on the reinstating of International Atomic Energy Agency verification and monitoring activities in Iraq; and if she will make a statement. [82860]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had discussions with her US or European counterparts on this issue.

There are two distinct International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) activities in Iraq. The IAEA's first mandate is to continue to implement safeguards in Iraq under an agreement pursuant to the global Treaty on Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons.

The IAEA's second mandate in Iraq derives from authority of the UN Security Council under the auspices of adopted Resolution 687 in 1991. This included the establishing of an international inspection regime for disarming Iraq of weapons of mass destruction; in particular to uncover, map, monitor and neutralise Iraq's clandestine nuclear weapons programme. The IAEA, through its Iraq Nuclear Verification Office (INVO), remains responsible for this aspect of the nuclear file in Iraq.

On 17 March 2003, the IAEA and all other UN organisations suspended field activities in Iraq ahead of the announced military operations. During this interruption of inspections, INVO has focused its activities on consolidating and further analysing the information collected, with the objective of identifying lessons learned for the future and determining to what extent the Agency's plan for resuming verification activities needs to be adapted in light of those lessons and the changing situation in Iraq. Periodic reports are filed with the UN Security Council. The IAEA has stated that it remains prepared to resume its field and related activities in Iraq, pending guidance from the UN Security Council.

Iraq

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has received from her US counterpart regarding the statement by the US Commander of Multinational Forces in Iraq that covert Iranian special forces are providing weapons, roadside bomb technology and training to Shi'ite extremist groups; and if she will make a statement. [82856]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discusses the situations in Iran and Iraq frequently with Dr. Rice. As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has said, the nature of some explosive devices used in Iraq, including against British troops, leads us to either Iranian elements or Lebanese Hezbollah, which has close connections with Iran. We continue to investigate. We have repeatedly made our concerns clear to the Iranians in the strongest terms.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what monitoring, beyond seeking information from Israel, is being undertaken by the UK Government to ascertain whether military equipment supplied directly to Israel, or components which are supplied to a third country but which have been re-exported or diverted to Israel, are being used in the military incursions by Israel into Gaza and the West Bank which commenced on 27 June; and if she will make a statement. [83291]

Mr. McCartney: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave him on 5 July (UIN 82166). Our embassy in Tel Aviv monitors local developments taking account of information from all relevant sources which might indicate that military equipment from the UK or other suppliers has been used in a manner inconsistent with the Consolidated Criteria. All relevant information obtained would be taken into consideration as appropriate in the thorough assessment of any future export licensing decisions.

Journalists (China)

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on reports of restrictions being placed on journalists by the Chinese Government. [82827]

Mr. McCartney: The Government are very concerned about the apparent hardening of Chinese policy on freedom of expression, including on journalists and in relation to the internet. We regularly raise these concerns with the Chinese Government and make clear our view that freedom of information is essential to the development of a modern, stable and sustainable society.

Freedom of expression was a particular focus of the May 2006 round of the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue. The EU also made representations to the Chinese Government on this issue in Beijing on 27 June 2006. Several individual cases of concern were raised on both occasions and at the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing on 3 July 2006. I will discuss media freedom issues with the Chinese Government and foreign correspondents during my forthcoming visit to China.

Kashmir

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department is taking to help resolve the dispute over Kashmir. [82692]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 5 July 2006]: My hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East discussed Kashmir with the Pakistani Prime Minister, Shaukat Aziz, during his visit to the UK in March 2006. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister discussed Kashmir with Prime Minister Manmohan Singh during his visit to India in September 2005. My right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) the then Foreign Secretary discussed Kashmir with Indian and Pakistani counterparts during his visit to both countries in February 2005. Officials in both countries also regularly discuss the situation in Kashmir with Indian and Pakistani Ministers and officials.

The Government fully supports the ongoing Composite Dialogue between India and Pakistan, which includes the issue of Kashmir. We will continue to urge both countries to seek a lasting solution to their dispute over Kashmir, which takes into account the wishes of the Kashmiri people.

Kosovo

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has made to ensure that the protection of minorities is properly provided for in the final status arrangements for Kosovo. [82299]

Mr. Hoon: The UK continues to stress to the Kosovo Government the need to focus on delivering UN-endorsed standards relevant to minority communities in Kosovo, and to create the conditions for a multi-ethnic Kosovo. In mid-June the Contact Group (United States, United Kingdom, France, Germany, Italy and Russia, together with EU representatives) Head of Missions in Pristina presented a list to the Kosovo Government of priority standards, including minority rights, where we expected to see progress.

The Contact Group ministerial statement of 31 January and the UN-endorsed Guiding Principles make clear that the final status outcome should offer effective constitutional guarantees to assure the protection of minorities, including mechanisms to ensure their participation in central government and in the new local administrative structures. There should also be robust arrangements for patrimonial sites. Both of these documents can be found in the Library of the House.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has made to ensure that the protection of religious and cultural sites is properly provided for in the final status arrangements for Kosovo. [82300]

Mr. Hoon: In mid-April, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Balkans co-ordinator held a meeting with Mr. Astrit Haraqia, the Kosovo Minister of Culture, and reiterated the importance of protecting and preserving Kosovo's cultural heritage.

UN Status Envoy, Martti Ahtisaari, held talks on 23 May 2006 between Belgrade and Pristina on the protection of cultural and religious heritage sites. A further meeting is due to be held on 17 July 2006. The UK welcomes these meetings and hopes that agreement on this issue can be reached soon.

The UK recognises that the protection of religious and cultural sites will be a key issue during the final status process. The Contact Group's UN-endorsed Guiding Principles refer to the need for any settlement to include specific safeguards for the protection of the cultural and religious heritage in Kosovo, and provisions specifying the Status of the Serbian Orthodox Church's institutions and sites in Kosovo. These Guiding Principles are there to support the work of the UN Status Envoy and have been placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the final status of Kosovo; and if she will make a statement. [82301]

Mr. Hoon: The Government's policy on Kosovo's final status is set out in the Contact Group ministerial statement of 31 January 2006 and the UN-endorsed Guiding Principles.

The Contact Group ministerial statement makes clear that the final status process for Kosovo should be concluded during 2006, that there were a distinct set of circumstances that distinguished Kosovo from other disputed areas and that any settlement needed to be acceptable to the people of Kosovo.

The UN-endorsed Guiding Principles exist to support the UN Status Envoy. They make clear that there should be no partition of, or in Kosovo, and no union of Kosovo with any country or part of any other country after the solution of Kosovo's final status.

Both of these documents have been placed in the Library of the House.

Montenegro

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to exchange diplomatic missions with Montenegro; and who will take up the position of Her Majesty's Ambassador to the state. [83113]

Mr. Hoon: On 13 June 2006, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary wrote to Montenegrin Foreign Minister Vlahovic to propose the establishment of diplomatic relations between the UK and Montenegro, and to announce our intention to upgrade the British Office in Podgorica to an embassy as soon as is practicable. Our ambassador in Belgrade will be responsible for relations with Montenegro until the resident ambassador has been appointed.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Canon Law

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assurances have (a) been sought and (b) received from the new ambassador to the Vatican that at all times he will place UK law above Canon law. [77299]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply.

All Heads of British Diplomatic Missions are bound by Diplomatic Service Regulations which are made under powers vested in the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs by the Diplomatic Service Order in Council 1991 (as amended). These include a Code of Ethics, the Diplomatic Service Code, which makes clear that the duty of all members of the Diplomatic Service is to the duly constituted Government of the United Kingdom. The Code also includes "the duty to comply with the law, including international law and treaty obligations, and to uphold the administration of justice".

This includes the applicable law of the UK and any international legal obligations of the UK. Without prejudice to their privileges and immunities, diplomats are also required by the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations to respect the laws of the receiving State.

Courts Service

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs whether an impact assessment was carried out prior to the decision to implement changes in the Courts Service's budget. [79008]

Ms Harman: With regards to the impact assessment, all parts of HMCS worked up plans to see how they could make savings that would enable them to live within the set budget, while maintaining the services HMCS delivers to its customers and minimising impacts for staff and jobs.

Departmental Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by her Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77298]

Vera Baird: My Department records in its accounting system all expenditure incurred for hospitality purposes in total. It does not allow for the information to be broken down specifically for alcohol expenditure.

All expenditure incurred by DCA is done so in accordance with the principles set out in Government Accounting and supported by the Department's published internal guidance.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans she has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in her Department are carbon neutral; and if she will make a statement. [81397]

Bridget Prentice: All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases Certified Emissions Reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

Development, Innovation and Support Contracts Project

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what progress has been made on the Development, Innovation and Support Contracts project; and if she will make a statement. [82554]

Vera Baird: The DISC Programme is due to announce the award of contracts in the fourth quarter of 2006 and is on target to achieve this.

DNA Bioscience

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 22 June 2006, Official Report, columns 2082-86W, on DNA Bioscience, whether DNA Bioscience made an application to be added to the accredited list. [82475]

Ms Harman: I refer the hon. Member for Yeovil to the answer given to him on 22 June 2006, Official Report, columns 2082-86W. As indicated in the paragraphs headed "DNA Diagnostics Center and DNA Bioscience", DNA Bioscience was not itself accredited by the Department for Constitutional Affairs to carry out court directed tests under section 20 of the Family Law Reform Act 1969. DNA Bioscience was not eligible to be accredited by DCA as it was not a testing facility, so had no ISO 17025 accreditation. Following an application from DNA Bioscience, DCA agreed that DNA Diagnostics Center (the laboratory DNA Bioscience used to conduct DNA tests) could be added to the accredited list. The Department the[illegible]reed orally in December 2004, that DNA Bioscience's details could be added to the accredited list, but this was not as a result of an application for accreditation. The intention was to add those details as a referral route to the accredited body (DNA Diagnostics Center).

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of her Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80474]

Vera Baird: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Libra

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many magistrates courts are using the Libra computer system. [82555]

Ms Harman: There are nine magistrates courts using the Libra case management system.

Official Residences

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the official residences for which her Department is responsible; who occupies each one; what the annual cost is of running each property; what contribution the occupants of each make towards running costs; what the total capital and refurbishment expenditure was on those properties in 2004-05; how much was spent in each property on (a) flowers and plants, (b) wine and entertaining, (c) food, (d) telephone bills and (e) electricity and gas in 2004-05; how many (i) domestic and (ii) maintenance staff are employed at each property, broken down by post; and what the total cost of staff employment was in 2004-05. [50876]

Vera Baird: My Department is not responsible for any official residences.

The Palace of Westminster is responsible for the maintenance of the Lord Chancellor's residence in the House of Lords and for any work that needs to be carried out. There are no permanent staff employed at the residence. The Lord Chancellor's Private Office is responsible for the administration of the residence in terms of organising tours of the residence and keeping the diary of charitable functions. The Department does not make any contributions to the running cost of the Lord Chancellor's residence in the House of Lords.

The cost of (b) wine and entertaining and (c) food for the years 2004 and 2005 are as follows:

	Amount (£)
(b) Wine and entertaining
2005	883.88
2004	2,914.12
(c) Food
2005	15,534.40
2004	29,440.78

My Department is not responsible for (a) flowers and plants, (d) telephone bills or (e) gas and electricity bills nor are we responsible for (i) domestic or (ii) maintenance staff.

With respect to the contribution made by occupants: Ministers occupying official residences do not pay tax on the living accommodation itself. However tax is paid on the ancillary services (lighting, heating etc.) at a sum limited to his/her taxable ministerial salary and benefit (if any).

Parliamentary Boundaries

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when the final outcome of the Parliamentary Boundary Commission will (a) be published and (b) become effective for the purpose of the election on which these boundaries would be used. [81854]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply as this question relates to the Northern Ireland Parliamentary Boundary Commission.

The Parliamentary Boundary Commission for Northern Ireland is required to submit its final report to the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland by June 2007. The Secretary of State must then lay the Commission's final recommendations (with or without modifications) before Parliament for approval.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Economically Inactive

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of the 2 million economically inactive people who would like to work are receiving benefits, broken down by benefit. [75345]

Mr. Plaskitt: In January-March 2006 there were 7,943,000 inactive people of working age in the United Kingdom. Of these 2,019,000 (25 per cent.) wanted to work.[1]

Latest LFS data suggest that of the 2 million inactive people who want to work: around one quarter are claiming housing and/or council tax benefit; around 15 per cent. are claiming sickness or disability benefits (excluding disabled persons tax credit); around 17 per cent. are claiming child benefit; less than two per cent. were claiming jobseeker's allowance; and around one third are not claiming benefits.[2]

Comparison between the data collected by the LFS and administrative data shows that the LFS consistently undercounts benefit claimants. However, the LFS data give an indication of the benefits received. It is important to note because of these caveats and the small sample sizes of the data used, the figures above are subject to a great degree of uncertainty.

Jobcentre Plus

Sir John Butterfill: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on the closure of much of the Jobcentre Plus office in Cotlands Road, Bournemouth; what assessment he has made of (a) the capacity of the revised arrangements to deal with inquiries from claimants unable to get help or advice on the telephone and (b) the number of officers in management roles at the Chippenham office; what the average time taken to process an application for benefits has been in each of the last three months; and if he will make a statement. [71264]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 6 July 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what representations he has received since the closure of much of the Jobcentre Plus office in Cotlands Road Bournemouth; what assessment he has made of (a) the capacity of the revised arrangements to deal with inquiries from claimants unable to get help or advice on the telephone and (b) the number of officers in management roles at the Chippenham office; what the average time taken to process an application for benefits has been in each of the last three months. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I fully accept that the services offered to our customers in Bournemouth and Poole over the last few months has not been as I would want. We are part of the way through the creation of a network of Benefit Delivery Centres to modernise the processing of claims for benefit. Chippenham, which serves customers in Bournemouth and Poole, is one of these sites and I regret to say that there have been a number of local issues which have had the effect of reducing the level of service below acceptable levels. Specifically, we have been short of experienced staff and some key management posts were unfilled which has inhibited our ability to respond to local problems. Experience levels are growing and we have recently filled all of the management posts. We now have four senior managers on site and 22 junior managers to support them.

We have developed a local improvement plan and a number of steps have already been taken with some early signs of improvement showing through in the data for April. These steps include the recruitment of 38 additional staff and the transfer of four experienced Incapacity Benefit staff from another site to bolster experience levels. We have also reviewed our internal process from first contact by the customer to payment, which will reduce the time it takes to assess claims. We are reviewing progress against this plan weekly and putting in place arrangements to clear the arrears of claims that have built up by lending Chippenham additional help from outside.

I have set out in the attached tables the latest data on claims clearance at Chippenham and representations received. Neil Couling, Director of Benefits and Fraud, would be more than happy to meet with you to discuss these.

Finally, you ask about the difficulties being experienced by customers getting through to Chippenham by phone. Some technical issues have exacerbated problems but I am pleased to say that these issues are being addressed. Our contractors hope the service will start to improve in July. Benefit Delivery Centres have a key role to play in supporting the improvements to our services, including improving processing times and reducing fraud and error in the benefit system. For customers who are unable to access our services through the telephone or electronically, we still have other options including office interviews and home visits.

I hope this is helpful.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many individuals diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis who attended a medical tribunal were successful in (a) 2003, (b) 2004 and (c) 2005. [81968]

Vera Baird: I have been asked to reply as responsibility for Social Security and Child Support appeals now falls to the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs.

The requested information is not available. Details are not kept about the nature of the medical condition of people who attend appeal tribunals.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements are in place to ensure that medical tribunals for individuals diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis who are housebound are held in a location convenient for the claimant. [81969]

Vera Baird: I am answering this question as responsibility for social security and child support appeals now falls to the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs.

Social security and child support appeals are heard at a network of around 130 venues throughout Great Britain. Where a party to the proceedings wishes to attend an oral hearing but is unable to travel due to a medical condition, a legally qualified panel member may agree that the hearing can be held at an alternative suitable location, including the person's home.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate (a) the number of people due to retire after 2010 who have paid voluntary national insurance contributions and who would otherwise have qualified for a full basic pension on the basis of 30 contribution years required for a full state pension and (b) the total amount of such overpayment. [77988]

James Purnell: The information is not available in the format requested.

National Insurance Numbers

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals applying for a national insurance number were referred to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in (a) the last six months, (b) the last 12 months and (c) each of the last five years due to (i) suspicion about their eligibility to work in the UK, (ii) the use of false documents and (iii) other reasons. [75703]

Mr. Plaskitt: Between 1 April 2005 and 31 March 2006, 3309 cases were referred to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate. Of these, 772 were referred due to the use of false documents and 2537 were referred as potential immigration offenders. Figures are not available prior to the 1 April 2005 as the information was not formally recorded. No further breakdown is available.

Pathways to Work Pilot Areas

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's estimate is of the cost to date of personal adviser time per work-focused interview in Pathways to work pilot areas. [49802]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The total cost to date per work-focused interview (or unit cost) is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

In response to PSA target requirements, Jobcentre Plus do publish the unit costs for job broking and benefit processing every year in their annual report and accounts. The PSA unit costs for job broking activities and benefit processing for 2004-05 were as shown in the following table.

Benefit	Unit cost (£)
Job broking	197.64
Benefit processing	28.07

Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the number of women in the UK who will retire between 1 May 2005 and 31 April 2010 with (a) 30 years or more of class 1 national insurance contributions and (b) more than 30 but less than 39 years of national insurance contributions. [77999]

James Purnell: The information is not available in the format requested.

Personal Capability Assessment

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) which organisations his Department has had meetings with on the proposed reform of the Personal Capability Assessment referred to in the Green Paper "A new deal for welfare"; [75376]

(2) which individuals form the expert panels set up by the Department since the publication of the Green Paper "A new deal for welfare" to formulate policy on reforming the Personal Capability Assessment; and which bodies they represent. [75386]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As part of the Welfare Reform Green Paper consultation we have met a large number of stakeholders to discuss the full range of our reform proposals. With many of these we discussed our proposals to transform the PCA. Because of the number of organisations involved we are not able to list all the individuals and groups involved. We continue to meet with organisation to discuss the proposals.

In addition, the Department has created a series of working groups, comprising medical, technical and stakeholder experts, to advise and assist in the work to transform the Personal Capability Assessment (PCA). The membership of each of the groups is in the tables.

DEFENCE

9 mm Browning Pistol

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what plans there are to replace the 9 mm Browning pistol in the UK armed forces; [80933]

(2) who makes the 9 mm ammunition used with the Browning side arm in the UK armed forces; and what recent assessment has been made of the trend in the number of stoppages; [80935]

(3) in what years successive marks of the Browning 9 mm pistol came into service. [81102]

Mr. Ingram: The Browning 9 mm pistol entered service in 1967 and no successive marks have been introduced. A replacement pistol is not planned until 2016. The ammunition is manufactured by Israeli Military Industries (IMI). The performance of all weapons systems is continuously assessed and there has been no trend identified regarding stoppages for the Browning 9 mm pistol.

Afghanistan

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment UK officials have made of the feasibility of making concurrent progress on security and counter-narcotics objectives in Afghanistan. [82425]

Mr. Ingram: The UK's aim in Afghanistan is to support the development of a free, secure and stable state. The drugs trade feeds on and contributes to insecurity in Afghanistan and the wider region, and insurgents and drug traffickers flourish in the same ungoverned space. It needs therefore to be tackled to ensure improvements in the overall security.

This cannot be done by military means alone, and so we are working closely with other Government Departments to deliver a comprehensive package of military, economic, diplomatic and developmental support to the Afghan Government.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Sabre and (b) Scimitar vehicles are deployed in Afghanistan. [82829]

Mr. Ingram: To declare the exact vehicle mix currently in or planned for Afghanistan would be detrimental to the safety of UK personnel and disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the security of the armed forces.

Army Continuous Attitude Survey

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 20th June 2006, Official Report, column 1708W, on the Army Continuous Attitude Survey, what the contents were of question 39c in the Army Continuous Attitude Survey September to December 2005; and why this question was not printed in the copy which was placed in the Library on 19 April 2006. [80698]

Mr. Watson: The Serving Personnel Continuous Attitude Survey (CAS) is a management information tool that is used to assess and monitor the attitudes of serving officers and soldiers over time. Its findings inform the development of service personnel strategy and policies. In the ninth Serving Personnel (SP9) survey, which was distributed in September 2005, question 66 was removed and replaced with question 39c, an open-ended question which asks "If within the last 12 months you have suffered unfair treatment, discrimination, harassment and/or bullying and you have chosen not to complain please explain why?". The analysis of open-ended questions is complex and not contained in the Technical Annex of the CAS Report, which is placed in the Library of the House.

The analysis of question 39c is summarised as follows. It gives the number of comments made as well as a more detailed breakdown of the negative comments, which are used to identify areas for improvement. Overall, a total of 90 officers and 252 soldiers commented, which equates to 8 per cent. and 16 per cent. respectively of those who responded to the questionnaire.

Number and type of comments made by respondents:

	Officers		Soldiers
Type of comment	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
Negative	102	78	243	70
Neutral	7	5	14	4
Positive	22	17	90	26
Total	131		347

Breakdown of negative comments made by category:

		Number of comments
Category		Officers	Soldiers
1.	Stigma attached to complaining	8	13
2.	Pressure not to complain	3	7
3.	Fear of further victimisation/bad reaction from person responsible for unfair treatment	4	22
4.	Would have made the situation worse	7	26
5.	Do not know/did not know what to do	3	10
6.	Pointless—nothing changes	22	54
7.	Did not feel the need to/could not be bothered to complain	18	21
8.	Part of Army life	5	7

11.	Currently being dealt with	2	1
12.	Effect on career prospects	7	14
13.	Dealt with in-house/informal complaint made	0	1
14.	Not suffered any unfair treatment	0	0
15.	General comments about unfair treatment suffered/suffering (no mention of complaint)	18	33
16.	Other (any comments that do not fit the above categories)	3	2

Democratic Republic of the Congo

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department is making contributions of (a) funding, (b) expertise and (c) personnel towards the (i) UN and (ii) EU peacekeeping mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [82059]

Mr. Ingram: UK funding for the UN Mission to the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC) is drawn from the Tri-departmental (FCO, MOD, DfID) peacekeeping budget. In 2005-06 this budget made assessed contributions of approximately £37 million to MONUC. The UK also currently provides six officers to MONUC, at a gross additional cost of £740,000 in 2005-06. These officers fill key strategic posts, notably that of the Chief of Staff in the Eastern Division HQ in Kisangani, and the Military Assistant to the Force Commander in the MONUC Force HQ in Kinshasa. In addition, we have provided training support during the stand-up of the Eastern Division HQ and advice, with other nations, through the short-term deployment of a technical assessment mission.

Through the EU Funding Mechanism (ATHENA) the UK has paid, via the same Tri-departmental budget, £1.634 million for the common costs of the EU military mission to the Republique Democratique du Congo (EUFOR RD Congo). EUFOR RD Congo is deploying in support of MONUC and with the approval of the Congolese Transitional National Government. UK MOD is currently providing three personnel for EUFOR RD Congo: one officer for the Operational HQ in Germany; one officer for the Force HQ (FHQ) in Kinshasa, for the duration of the Operation; and one further officer from the European Air Group to the FHQ, to assist with planning and logistics for up to four weeks.

Military Flying Training

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Military Flying Training private finance initiative programme will close. [81434]

Mr. Ingram: I assume the hon. Member is referring to the financial closure of the UK Military Flying Training System contract. Competitive bids are in the process of being assessed, after which the investment decision will be taken. Current planning assumptions expect financial closure to occur in 2007.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the implementation of the Military Flying Training public finance initiative programme on departmental targets for (a) improved quality of training, (b) cost reduction and (c) contraction of the defence estate. [81604]

Mr. Ingram: The NAO Report, HG 880 Session 1999-2000 "Training New Pilots" dated 14 September 2000, recommended a more consistent approach to flying training. This report was instrumental in the initiation of the UK Military Flying Training System Project.

Since the project is still in its competitive phase, it is not possible to predict the full extent of the benefits to be realised through the project at this point. It is anticipated that the primary benefits will come from modernising the flying training processes for all three services, realising efficiencies and, since training is currently spread across several organisations, taking advantage of potential economies of scale. It is assumed that the existing estate will be utilised, although it is possible that there may be opportunities in the future for some estate rationalisation.

Military Vehicles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what vehicles are provided for Explosive Ordnance Disposal personnel on active service in Iraq. [82519]

Mr. Ingram: We currently use three similar types of Explosive Ordnance Disposal vehicle on Operation TELIC. However, the disclosure of any further detail would reveal the strength and capability of UK forces operating in Iraq, which could have a bearing on our operational security, thereby placing our servicemen and women in additional unnecessary danger or potential harm.

Search and Rescue Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 2052W, on search and rescue services, whether the assessment of the future of the Maritime Counter Terrorism role will include consideration of RNAS Culdrose as a possible base for the fulfilment of this role. [81955]

Mr. Ingram: The continued requirement for 771 Squadron's Maritime Counter Terrorism (MCT) role will be fully assessed in due course. Assuming the requirement remains, the task will be fulfilled by an equally capable military unit using an in-service helicopter, operating out of its usual base. Helicopters based at RNAS Culdrose would be considered along with all MOD helicopter types, and Culdrose would be considered as a possible future operating base for fulfilment of the MCT role currently undertaken by 771 Squadron.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 2052W, on search and rescue services, whether relevant factors will include the consideration of (a) support for local air ambulance out of hours, (b) medical evacuations, (c) casualty evacuations, (d) availability of back-up aircraft and (e) capacity to call upon competent trained non-search and rescue aircraft and crews from the same base for large scale emergencies which are functions of the 771 Squadron. [81958]

Mr. Ingram: The requirement specification for the future Search and Rescue Helicopter service is being developed in full consultation with key stakeholders, including senior representatives from RNAS Culdrose, to ensure that the service is at least as effective as the current one. For large scale emergencies the Ministry of Defence policy remains to evaluate the need for Military Aid to the civil community on a case by case basis, dependent upon availability.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 2052W, on search and rescue services, which (a) existing and (b) potential helicopter bases the Maritime Coastguard Agency and his Department have assessed as capable of providing an equivalent search and rescue coverage of the maritime western approaches to that provided by the 771 Squadron at RMAS Culdrose. [81973]

Mr. Ingram: Any assessment of basing for the UK Search and Rescue Helicopter service must take account of the capability provided by the UK bases as a whole. The Maritime and Coastguard Agency and Ministry of Defence "Review of UK Search and Rescue (SAR) Helicopter Provision and Coverage Criteria Report—June 2001" contained a risk assessment of UK Search and Rescue, which included the maritime western approaches. The assessment demonstrated that current basing arrangements, which include RNAS Culdrose, meet the coverage criteria.

Any new helicopter basing arrangement proposed will also be assessed, in terms of the whole UK capability, to ensure that it meets the defined coverage criteria.

Sig Sauer 228 Pistols

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Sig Sauer 228 pistols are in use in the British armed forces, broken down by unit. [80934]

Mr. Ingram: There are 117 Sig Sauer 228 pistols available to the UK armed forces, 36 of which are currently deployed for training purposes as follows:

Unit	Quantity
6 Regiment Royal Military Police	22
Pontrilas Army Training Area (PATA)	1
57 Logistic Support Squadron	6
Defence Human Intelligence Unit (DHU)	7

The balance are currently held in storage.

Trident

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on the development of a replacement Arming, Fuzing and Firing system for the Trident warhead; and when the system will enter service. [80013]

Des Browne: It is not our practice to comment on the details of UK warhead design. I am withholding the information requested because it relates to national security and defence in the UK.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research his Department has carried out to verify the integrity of Trident targeting and fire control software created and tested in the US and from which US-eyes only items have been removed. [82406]

Des Browne: Each new release of Trident fire control software is certified by the US Government under the terms of the Polaris Sales Agreement (as amended for Trident). Under the agreement, the UK has the capability to validate the software models for software performance and verify that the findings are correct. This is undertaken and independently verified by UK experts to ensure the software meets our requirements before being issued to Royal Navy submarines.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) officer and (b) rating complement is of the Trident fleet (i) at full strength and (ii) currently. [82866]

Mr. Ingram: The Royal Navy Trident Fleet consists of four Vanguard-class Ballistic Missile Submarines (SSBNs).

The full complement of a Vanguard-class submarine in a sea-going role is 160 men, consisting of 19 officers and 141 ratings. Of these, 140 go to sea.

Six crews are provided to man the four boats; a total requirement of 114 officers and 846 ratings. The current trained strength is 110 officers and 840 ratings.

Current policy is to ensure that any submarine is 100 per cent. manned at sea, with priority given to the SSBN force.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the training requirements of the Trident fleet crew; and if he will make a statement. [82867]

Mr. Ingram: The Trident fleet consists of four Vanguard-class Ballistic Missile Submarines (SSBNs). Training requirements of the Trident fleet crew are subject to continual review and assessment. This process ensures that training remains up to date, and provides highly capable and well trained personnel onboard Trident submarines.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what average hourly rate was paid by his Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81491]

Barnett Formula

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the operation of the Barnett Formula as it relates to Scotland. [81026]

David Cairns: My right hon. Friend has regular discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on a range of issues.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written by (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public in the last period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum was accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80511]

David Cairns: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/ Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not held in the form requested.

Departmental Chief Accounting Officer

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the chief accounting officer of his Department. [76709]

David Cairns: For administrative purposes, the Scotland Office is within the Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA) and the Permanent Secretary, DCA, is the Accounting Officer. The Head of the Scotland Office, Dr. James Wildgoose, is an Additional Accounting Officer and is responsible for financial and other Accounting Officer activities in the Office. He does not hold a professional accountancy qualification but has full access to advice from professionally qualified staff in both the DCA and the Scottish Executive.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80080]

David Cairns: For administrative purposes, the Scotland Office is within the Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA). The Head of Finance at the Scotland Office is Ian Allen. He does not hold a professional accountancy qualification but has full access to advice from professionally qualified staff in both the DCA and the Scottish Executive.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83627]

David Cairns: None.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Central Office of Information

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will place in the Library a copy of the Central Office of Information's Information and Press Officers Directory. [83001]

Mr. McFadden: A copy of the Information and Press Officers Directory has been placed in the Library, for the reference of Members.

The directory is currently being revised and a new edition will be published at the end of July. The new edition, and subsequent revisions, will also be placed in the Library.

Contingency Telecommunications Provision

Mr. Soames: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when she expects the project for a new Contingency Telecommunications Provision to be put in place; whether it is expected fully to meet contingency voice and data communications requirements; and how much has been allocated to the programme. [81482]

Edward Miliband [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Cabinet Office last year replaced most of the aged Emergency Communications Network with satellite telephones for all responder organisations connected to the Network and a range of other bodies, thereby enhancing the quality, diversity and deployability of fallback voice communications in the event of failure of public fixed and mobile telephone networks. The current budget for this capability is some £500,000 per year.

The Cabinet Office is also taking forward longer-term work to enhance the resilience of responders' communications, drawing on the lessons of recent incidents, especially the response to the bombings in London on 7 July 2005. This work is covering the wide range of communications systems available to responders for use in civil contingencies. Some £3.4 million per year is currently allocated for these purposes.

Departmental Estate

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much her Department has spent on the repair of water leaks within its estate in each of the last three financial years; if she will estimate likely expenditure for 2006-07; and if she will make a statement. [81929]

Hilary Armstrong: The Cabinet Office operates a number of facilities management contracts across its estate. These cover both prescheduled maintenance and minor ad hoc repairs. The scheduling and reporting mechanisms for all such works mean that it is not possible to separately identify the amount spent on water repairs from other costs.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what her practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [81256]

Mr. McFadden: The Cabinet Office always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process; both informal and formal. The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the department's formal consultations which abide by the Code of Conduct on Consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the Code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Departmental Staff

Roger Berry: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many disabled staff in her Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82220]

Mr. McFadden: The following table gives details of the number of disabled staff who have received support through Access to Work. These figures include staff that have started in the Cabinet Office and brought Access to Work assessments with them, who have received on-going support through the Fares to Work provision available through the scheme, and new staff who have approached Access to Work for an assessment and assistance.

April to March each year	Number of staff
2001-02	2
2002-03	3
2003-04	2
2004-05	5

Cabinet Office has a written policy on the provision of reasonable adjustments for disabled staff. Access to Work is only one of the options available, with the majority of costs for assessments and reasonable adjustments being met centrally by the Department.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans she has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in the Cabinet Office are carbon neutral; and if she will make a statement. [81403]

Edward Miliband: Through its commitment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Scheme, as from 1 April 2006 all flights undertaken by Cabinet Office Ministers and officials are being offset and thus carbon neutral. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases Certified Emissions Reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

Public Sector Information

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how the European Directive on the re-use of public sector information is applied to private sector bids for public sector data to be used to build added-value services; and if she will make a statement. [76638]

Edward Miliband: The overriding aim of the European Directive on the re-use of public sector information, and the Regulations that implemented the Directive in the UK (SI2005/1515) was to encourage the re-use of public sector information and stimulate the growth of the information industry and the development of value added information products and services. The key theme of the Regulations is on improving transparency, fairness and consistency. The framework set out in the Regulations is underpinned by a robust complaints process. This will help the private sector ascertain what information is available for re-use and the terms of re-use.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment she has made of the performance of the Office of Public Sector Information in resolving concerns about access to public sector data for the purposes of developing added-value services; and if she will make a statement. [76639]

Edward Miliband: The Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI) has the policy lead on the re-use of public sector information, in accordance with the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations (2005 No. 1515) which came into force on 1 July 2005. Since then OPSI has made a significant contribution in sharing best practice across the public sector. This includes developing an on-line licence that can be used across the whole of the public sector, developing an on-line assessment tool which gauges the effectiveness of public sector organisations in meeting their obligations, and speaking to over 400 public sector organisations about their new responsibilities. OPSI has also played a key role in setting standards of compliance and in the resolution of disputes. These initiatives help to encourage and facilitate the re-use of public sector information in the context of value added information products and services.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Bonfires

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many communal and commemorative bonfires are estimated to have been organised in Northern Ireland during July and August in (a) 1995 and (b) 2005. [81669]

David Cairns: The information requested is not held centrally, however, an Interagency Working Group was set up in November 2003 to compile a report on bonfires in Northern Ireland. Information provided by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive indicated that there were 1203 bonfires in 2003 on their property. Information was also received from 23 of the 26 district councils in Northern Ireland. They indicated that they were only aware of 431 bonfires in 2003. This figure would include some of the bonfires on Housing Executive property. The Group was only in existence during the time required for completion of the report. There has been no update since then.

Child Care

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what strategy the Department for Education has in place to support and facilitate child care through the women's community sector. [82004]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education does not have a remit to support and facilitate child care through the women's community sector. On 6 March my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland announced £14.6 million to help support voluntary and community groups in their work with disadvantaged children: through the Department for Social Development the women's community sector received £1.6 million of this, to support 14 women's centres in providing child care until the end of March 2008.

Child Sex Offenders

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many hostels are used by the Probation Board of Northern Ireland for housing known child sex offenders; where the hostels are; and how many sex offenders reside in these hostels. [80959]

Mr. Hanson: There are five hostels approved by the Probation Board which accommodate child sex offenders. For reasons of public safety it is not in the public interest to provide detailed information about the whereabouts of sex offenders. Effective public protection can best be provided by the relevant agencies through monitoring and supervision of such offenders in a regulated and stable environment.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) letters from members of the public, (b) letters from hon. Members and (c) parliamentary questions from (i) hon. Members and (ii) Members of the House of Lords the Departments under his authority dealt with in each of the last five years. [78877]

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his practice is regarding meeting, discussions with and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81637]

Mr. Hain: The Northern Ireland Office and the Northern Ireland Departments seek a range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process, both informal and formal. Each department holds regular meetings with its principal stakeholder groups and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Departments' formal consultations which abide by the code of conduct on consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the relevant Department then gives feedback on the responses received.

Environment and Renewable Energy Funding

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will review the eligibility criteria for the Environment and Renewable Energy Funding package to take account of recent representations he has received on their appropriateness. [82018]

Maria Eagle: The Environment and Renewable Energy Fund's aim of making Northern Ireland an exemplar region in the use of renewable energy is still on course and no considered review of the eligibility criteria is necessary at this time.

Finucane Inquiry

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many judges he has appointed for the inquiry into the murder of Pat Finucane; and if he will instead hold an independent public inquiry into the murder. [80972]

Mr. Hain: The Government are currently taking steps to facilitate the establishment of an inquiry into the murder of Patrick Finucane under the Inquiries Act 2005. No appointments have yet been made. The Government are clear that an inquiry established under the Inquiries Act 2005 will be fully independent and will also be public to the extent possible.

Foreign Nationals

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many foreign nationals have set up residence in Northern Ireland in the last two years, broken down by country of origin. [80108]

Mr. Hain: This information is not held. However, the 2001 census provides figures on the country of birth of residents in Northern Ireland. This can be accessed at www.nisranew.nisra.gov.uk/census/excel/ks05dc.xls

Knives

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many knife stabbing incidents have occurred in Northern Ireland over the last three years, broken down by Westminster constituency; and how many of these involved fatalities. [77341]

Mr. Hanson: The following tables provide statistics on knife crime incidents over the past three years according to PSNI District Command Units. The incidents are sorted by the recorded crime categories used by the police. While is it known that a knife was used in all incidents recorded, it is not possible to indicate how the knife was used.

Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Organisations

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding was awarded by the Government to lesbian, gay and bisexual organisations in Northern Ireland in 2004-05; and what percentage of funding awarded to all section 75 groups this represented. [59991]

Paul Goggins [pursuant to the reply, 16 May 2006, Official Report, c. 879W]: Unfortunately due to an administrative error the hon. Gentleman was provided with incorrect information. The correct information is as follows:

£596,613 was awarded to lesbian, gay and bisexual organisations in 2004-05. This is approximately 0.8 per cent. of the amount paid by Government to all organisations in the voluntary and community sector.

I apologise for any inconvenience caused.

L'Estrange and Brett

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what services provided by L'Estrange and Brett Solicitors the Northern Ireland Police Fund wrote a cheque for more than £60,000. [82868]

Paul Goggins: The details of payments made by the Northern Ireland Police Fund is a matter for the Fund.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland why the Northern Ireland Police Fund wrote a cheque to L'Estrange and Brett Solicitors for more than £60,000; who signed it; who authorised it; and whether it was (a) discussed and (b) approved by the directors of the board. [82960]

Paul Goggins: The details of the payments made by the Northern Ireland Police Fund are matters for the Fund.

Select Committee Recommendations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what action has been taken by his Department to implement Northern Ireland Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 Session; and if he will make a statement. [78851]

Mr. Hain: Information relating to the implementation of Northern Ireland Select Committee recommendations for each year since the 2001-02 Session is not held centrally. It cannot therefore be readily retrieved without incurring disproportionate costs. In their responses to Northern Ireland Select Committee reports the Government make it clear whether or not they accept the Committee's recommendations.

Sex Offenders

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons on the sex offenders register in Northern Ireland have reoffended while still on the register in each of the last five years. [81809]

Mr. Hanson: The Northern Ireland Sex Offender Strategic Management Committee in its annual report "Managing the Risk 05/06" published on 27 June 2006 reported that of the cases managed at category 2 (medium risk) or category 3 (high risk) one offender was charged or reported for a further serious sex offence during the previous 12-month period ending 31 March 2006. The information for the previous four years and for category 1 (low risk) offenders is not collated centrally by the PSNI and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. At an operational level the police and other agencies involved in the multi-agency sex offender risk assessment and management (MASRAM) procedures are fully aware of the nature of each individual offender's offending behaviour including whether this involves further offences of a sexual nature.

Waste Management

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the environmental effects of the incineration of (a) municipal and (b) industrial waste. [82019]

David Cairns: There are no incinerators in Northern Ireland burning municipal waste. Any future municipal waste incinerator would require a permit from the Environment and Heritage Service (EHS) to operate, would be required to meet the standards of the Waste Incineration Directive and would be required to assess the impact of such an operation on the environment. EHS would also carry out its own assessment of the impact before any permit issued and this would include the use of computer software to model the impact of emissions on local air quality.

There are a few incinerators in Northern Ireland handling industrial waste although the incineration facilities for industrial or indeed other waste are not extensive. All such operations are required by the regulators to meet UK and European standards of operations. These standards, in particular the emission limits on discharges to air, are set at a level to ensure that there can be no meaningful impact on local air quality standards or any detriment to health. All incinerators undergo regular monitoring to ensure these standards are consistently met.

The impact of all incinerators is also assessed by the regulators as part of the process of determining applications for the environmental permits that each incinerator must hold in order to operate. For the larger incinerators this includes the use of computer software to model the impact of emissions on local air quality.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he has plans to introduce compulsory recycling schemes. [82020]

David Cairns: There are no current plans to introduce compulsory recycling schemes in Northern Ireland.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Academies

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether teachers working in academies will retain their national negotiating rights on pay and conditions. [82460]

Jim Knight: Academies, as independent schools, are not bound by the School Teachers' Pay and Conditions of Service Document or by guidance on support staff pay and conditions issued by the National Joint Council, but can negotiate their own pay and conditions arrangements with staff.

Where academies replace existing schools there will in many cases be a transfer of undertakings under the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 1981 (TUPE). In such cases, staff of the closing school have the right to transfer to the academy on their existing terms and conditions, as set out in the Teachers' Pay and Conditions document.

Academies need to respond innovatively to the huge challenges they face. The ability to negotiate their own pay and conditions to meet the particular needs of the academy, its staff and students, is part of the increased flexibility they need to meet these challenges.

Adult Education

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on recent changes in the (a) funding and (b) number of adult education courses, with particular reference to (i) basic skills courses, (ii) other vocational courses and (iii) non-vocational and community education. [79888]

Bill Rammell: Our strategic priorities for adult learning which I announced on 21 October 2005 are to: support adults who lack basic skills or the platform of skills for employability; ensure a wide range of opportunities at level 3; and, ensure the continued availability of a wide range of opportunities for personal and community development (PCDL). I reaffirmed our commitment to safeguard the funding for PCDL in mainstream further education and local authority funded adult education (adult and community learning) with a budget of £210 million in 2006/07.

Overall we have increased further education funding nationally by around £2.5 billion since 1997—equivalent to 48 per cent. in real terms. Our investment in adult learning will remain broadly stable at £2.9 billion but the nature of provision will change. Colleges will provide more publicly funded long courses to meet national skills demands including a new free entitlement to a first full level 3 qualification for young adults for which we are making available new funds of £25 million. Post-16 providers, including colleges, will provide around 3.5 million adult places in 2007/08, a reduction of around 6 per cent. compared to now.

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what average hourly rate was paid by his Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81498]

Mr. Dhanda: The average hourly rate paid by the Department for staff employed through Adecco in the financial year 2005-06 was as follows:

Grade	Average hourly charge rate (£)
AA	8.59
AO	9.81
EO	12.39
HEO	17.24
Messenger	7.97
Pers sec	13.65
Snr pers sec	14.53

Black/Asian Employees

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) black and Asian and (b) other people are employed in his Department's press office. [74355]

Mr. Dhanda: A total of 26 people are employed in the Department's press office of whom less than five are black and Asian.

Information on ethnicity is collected on a voluntary basis.

Child Care

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his policy is on the charging of top-up fees by providers of child care in receipt of monies from his Department. [82968]

Beverley Hughes: Every three and four-year-old is entitled to 12 ½ hours of free high-quality early education and care for 38 weeks of the year. The fees that providers charge parents for additional hours and services beyond the free entitlement are a private matter between providers and parents.

The entitlement must be free at the point of delivery. The funding the Government provide is not a subsidy, and should not be treated as such by providers. Providers must make no charge to parents for the funded hours accessed and must reduce their fees by the amount they would usually charge were the child not accessing a free place. Providers may not require parents to take up additional hours or services as a condition of access to a free place. To allow this practice could result in a two-tier system where real choice exists only for the well-off, and the most disadvantaged—precisely those who stand most to benefit from free provision—are excluded.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the projected budget is of CAFCASS for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [83059]

Mr. Dhanda: The decisions about CAFCASS budgets for 2007-08 and 2008-09 have not yet been made. In 2006-07 CAFCASS received additional funding of £4.69 million for one-off expenditure this year and, following royal assent to the Children and Adoption Act 2006, work is taking place to identify the resources that will be necessary to commence its provisions. I am monitoring the financial position of CAFCASS and I am in ongoing discussions with the Chair and Chief Executive.

Class Sizes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average class size is of (a) primary and (b) secondary school classes in England. [82456]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the following table.

Maintained primary and secondary schools: average class sizes[1, 2] as at January 2006[3] England

Key stage 1 classes[4]	25.6
Key stage 2 classes	27.3
Classes in primary schools	26.3
Classes in secondary schools	21.5

[1] Classes as taught during a single selected period in each school on the day of the census in January.
[2] Classes taught by one teacher.

Final 2006 class size data will be published in September.

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79941]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

It would therefore be inconsistent for a Government Department to favour credit unions above other financial institutions.

Employees are of course free to join in credit unions if they meet their relevant membership criteria and Departments may provide appropriate levels of support if employees wish to set up a credit union.

Departmental Contracts

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the value is of the contracts his Department holds with (a) Capita plc and (b) its subsidiaries which still have a potential duration of five years or more. [83039]

Mr. Dhanda: A complete answer to this question could be supplied only at disproportionate cost. I can tell you, however, that the Department holds the following Capita contracts with a potential duration of 5 or more years:

Teachers' Pensions Administration from 2003 to 2010 value estimated £60.5 million.

National Strategies from 2005 to 2010 value estimated £180 million.

Connexions Card, which was included in the answer to your question on a similar subject on 12 June 2006, will be terminated in August 2006 and will not now have a potential duration of 5 or more years.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will estimate the pension liability of his Department over the next 30 years. [75238]

Mr. Dhanda: The Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) is an unfunded multi-employer defined benefit scheme and individual Departments' pension liabilities are not available. Pension liabilities are estimated for individual pension schemes. HM Treasury deposited a full statement about these liabilities together with a technical note covering all the major schemes in the Library of the House on 2 March 2006, Official Report, columns 388-390, following an oral statement in Parliament by the then Chief Secretary to the Treasury.

The statement and technical note provide detailed information about the size and nature of the liabilities and how they are calculated. Table 1 of the technical note shows a breakdown of liabilities per pension scheme.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list in date order (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by his Department since October 2005. [81290]

Bill Rammell: The Department has produced one Green Paper and one White Paper since October 2005. These were:

"Reducing reoffending through skills and employment" (Green Paper) published on 15 December 2005 and;

"Further education: raising skills, improving life chances" (White Paper) published on 27 March 2006.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81292]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process; both informal and formal. The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations which abide by the Code of Conduct on Consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the Code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Four Government Bills have been introduced to Parliament by the Department in the current parliamentary session, the Children and Adoption Bill, the Childcare Bill, the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Bill and the Education and Inspections Bill.

The Children and Adoption Bill was published in draft for pre-legislative scrutiny by a joint committee of both Houses, and the Government published their response to the report of that committee before the Bill was introduced to Parliament. Prior to that, the policy proposals on which the Bill was based were subject to full consultation through the Green Paper "Parental Separation: Children's Needs and Parents' Responsibilities". Discussions were held with key stakeholders throughout the preparation of the Bill.

Full consultation was carried out on the Childcare Bill, including discussions with stakeholders and a formal consultation from 15 July to 7 October 2005. The Department published a response to this consultation, "Report on Responses to Consultation on Legislative Proposals for the Future of Childcare and Early Years Provision in England", in late October 2005, copies of which can be found in the House of Commons Library. Regular meetings were held throughout the framing and drafting of the Bill with key stakeholders including provider organisations, children's charities and local authority representatives.

The Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups (SVG) Bill was subject to extensive consultation prior to introduction. A range of consultations have informed the development of the centralised vetting and barring scheme for which the SVG Bill will provide the statutory framework. In April 2005 a consultation was carried out on proposals for the vetting and barring scheme (VBS). Further engagement with stakeholders on the policy detail was carried out in December 2005, and January, March and April 2006 on the Independent Barring Board (IBB). The Department continues to consult with stakeholders as the VBS systems and processes are developed in more detail.

Proposals for the Education and Inspections Bill were set out in the Schools White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All—More Choice for Parents and Pupils" published on 25 October 2005. This followed on from the DfES Five Year Strategy published in July 2004 which was extensively consulted upon. In addition, it enacts the policies that were set out in the 2005 Labour party manifesto. The Department discussed the White Paper with a very wide range of stakeholders over recent months.

Electronic Children's Database

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which public sector bodies will have access to the new electronic children's database. [83014]

Beverley Hughes: Practitioners from health, education, social care, and youth justice will be granted access to the information sharing index. Access will be granted according to the role of the practitioner. For example, in a school a small number of named designated staff, such as teachers of children with special educational needs or who have pastoral or child protection responsibilities, would have access.

We will be consulting over the autumn on draft regulations that will bring the information sharing index into operation. Among other issues, the regulations will specify the types of practitioners in the Children's Workforce whose role would make it appropriate for them to have access to the index. All practitioners with access will have appropriate Criminal Records Bureau checks and have undergone relevant training.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the (a) personal attributes and (b) fields which the electronic children's database will have the capability to hold. [83060]

Beverley Hughes: The information sharing index will contain only limited and basic information about children in England and contact details for other services working with the child or young person. It will enable practitioners to identify and contact one another easily and quickly, so that they can share relevant information about children who need services or about whose welfare they are concerned.

It will not record information on personal attributes such as children's diet, church attendance or school attainment. The Children's Act 2004 specifically prohibits the inclusion of any case information on the index. There will be no subjective opinions or observations about a child or parent, no details of assessments such as the Common Assessment Framework and no automatic triggers for action or investigation.

Information fields on the index will hold for each child or young person:

basic identifying information: name, address, gender, date of birth, and a unique identifying number based on the existing child reference number/national insurance number;

basic identifying information about the child's parent or carer;

contact details for services involved with the child: as a minimum school and GP practice, and other services where appropriate and if consent from the child or family has left obtained in respect of a sensitive service.

The facility for practitioners to indicate to others that they have information to share, have taken action, or have undertaken a Common Assessment Framework, in relation to a child; and other information included solely for the purposes of identifying and managing the quality of data in the index, for example the date of the last update to the record.

We will consult over the autumn on draft regulations that will bring the index into operation. The draft regulations will be laid before both Houses for debate under affirmative resolution procedures. Subject to the will of Parliament, the index is expected to be available in all local areas in England by the end of 2008.

Higher Education Funding Council

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans there are for the Higher Education Funding Council to administer (a) Sussex university and (b) the University of Brighton; and if he will make a statement. [83034]

Bill Rammell: There are currently no plans for the Higher Education Funding Council for England to administer or otherwise intervene in the affairs of either university.

Holiday Play Schemes

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what qualifications are required for volunteers helping to run holiday play schemes; and if he will make a statement. [82693]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The national standards for holiday play schemes, and other day care providers looking after children aged under eight, require that the manager of a scheme holds at least a level 3 qualification appropriate to the post; and that at least half of all staff hold a level 2 qualification appropriate to the care and development of children. Volunteers would not need to hold such qualifications if they are counted in the 50 per cent. for whom qualifications are not required.

A wide range of qualifications is acceptable for meeting the requirements of the national standards, and those at levels 2 to 4 are listed on the database of acceptable qualifications now maintained by the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC). Higher level qualifications, such as in teaching or social work, would normally be acceptable for managers.

Learning and Skills Council

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of further education Learning and Skills Council funding was spent on 19 to 25-year-olds in 2005-06; and what proportion is planned to be spent in the next two financial years. [81802]

Bill Rammell: For the most recently completed academic year, 2004/05, 27 per cent. of the adult further education budget was spent on young adults aged 19 to 25. Figures for 2005/06 are not yet available. We have not set out specific plans for the proportion of the adult FE budget to be spent on this cohort for 2006/07 or 2007/08. However, we have announced a new free entitlement to a first full level 3 for 19 to 25-year-olds from 2007/08 and an additional £25 million will be available to support this entitlement.

Modern Languages

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students (a) aged 14 years and over and (b) at university level studied modern languages in each of the last 10 years. [82352]

Bill Rammell: The available information is given in the tables.

New Schools

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many new schools commissioned by the local authority have been built since 2001. [82458]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of schools commissioned by Coventry local education authority that have been built since 2001 is not held by the Department.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many applications he is considering from local authorities to build new community schools. [82459]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State does not normally consider individual proposals for new schools. Proposals for additional secondary schools in a competition under the Education Act 2002 would fall to be decided by the Secretary of State, but there have been no such competitions. Following consultation and the publication of a notice followed by a representation period, proposals would normally be decided under local decision-making arrangements. The Department has been informed that currently 24 proposals for new community schools are outstanding. These are all for merged schools following reorganisation.

Local authorities receive support for capital investment through our main capital programmes. Investment decisions are largely taken locally.

Under the Education and Inspections Bill currently before Parliament, there will normally be a competition for all new schools, and the publication of proposals for new community schools from most authorities will require the consent of the Secretary of State. The proposals will be decided by the local authority or the schools adjudicator.

Personal Finance Education

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what measures are (a) in place and (b) under consideration for teaching secondary school pupils about the management of personal finances; and if he will make a statement; [82903]

(2) how much has been allocated to programmes to educate secondary school children about how to manage personal finances; and if he will make a statement. [82904]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government recognise the importance of personal finance education for all young people. The National Curriculum for Citizenship, which is compulsory at key stages 3 and 4 (11 to 16-year-olds), includes teaching pupils about how the economy functions, including the role of business and financial services. In addition, the DfES has asked the QCA, as part of the wider review of GCSE maths and the emphasis on improving functional skills, to consider including financial capability more explicitly in the maths curriculum. QCA has also developed a package of guidance for teachers of PSHE which includes two units of work on financial capability. In September 2004, we made work-related learning a statutory element of the curriculum, and from September 2005 are funding schools to develop a new focus on enterprise education, defined as enterprise capability supported by better financial capability and economic and business understanding. We are also working closely with the Financial Services Authority to take forward its Financial Capability Strategy which includes support for schools to deliver better personal finance education.

It is for schools and local authorities to decide the level of resources required to support their personal finance education programmes.

School Discipline

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what counselling services are provided for teachers who develop stress-related illnesses as a result of dealing with persistently badly behaved pupils. [82722]

Jim Knight: It is employers who have the responsibility for the health and safety of their staff and this includes access to Occupational Health Services. In addition, governing bodies and head teachers are encouraged to adopt or participate in health awareness programmes so that their staff can make full use of the welfare and counselling services available. The Department is also implementing a wide range of programmes for schools to manage pupil behaviour more effectively.

School Opt-outs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools he estimates wish to opt out of local authority control. [82457]

Jim Knight: The Government have no proposals to allow schools to opt out of local authority control, and therefore no estimates of the number of schools which might wish to do so.

Student Safety

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) education is provided in schools and colleges, (b) information his Department issues and (c) grants are available for the purpose of advising sixth form and college students on personal safety issues. [81470]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is responsible for funding post-16 education and training in schools and colleges. The LSC does not stipulate the training that is required by each funded learner to ensure their health and safety. Each learner's complete learning programme should contain the appropriate personal health and safety training. It is a contractual responsibility of each school or college to determine what training is required and to ensure that this is delivered. Training should be in line with the result of risk assessment taking into account the environment, task, and the learner's age, experience and any special requirements.

The LSC carries out "seeking assurance" activities to satisfy itself that every funded organisation that recruits learners is fulfilling their responsibilities with regard to health and safety. In addition and to spread good practice in health and safety, the LSC maintains a good practice website—where information and teaching materials are available on ensuring learner health and safety www.safelearner.info

Sure Start

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding was allocated to Sure Start in Swindon in each year between 2002-03 and 2005-06. [82837]

Beverley Hughes: Swindon receives Sure Start funding to support the Pinehurst and Penhill Sure Start local programme (SSLP) and, as part of the General Sure Start Grant, they also receive funding to support Sure Start Children's Centres.

Allocated revenue funding for the SSLP was as follows:

	Sure Start local programme revenue (£)
2002-03	684,450
2003-04	756,100
2004-05	775,003
2005-06	794,378

In addition, the SSLP was allocated capital of £1,079,625, which was not allocated to specific financial years.

Funding for Sure Start Children's Centres began in 2004 with local authorities receiving a two year capital and revenue allocation for the period 2004-06. For this period Swindon's allocation was:

Revenue	378,914
Capital	596,692

Teachers

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many foreign teachers, excluding language assistants, are working in maintained (a) primary and (b) secondary schools, broken down by nationality. [81853]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Tuition Fees

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which undergraduate university courses charge a tuition fee of less than £3,000; and how many students are attending such courses in academic year 2005-06. [82450]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 July 2006]: In 2006/07, institutions with an access agreement with OFFA can charge variable tuition fees of up to £3,000. Those without an access agreement can only charge the standard fee rate which will be £1,200. The following institutions are those that have an access agreement to charge variable fees and who will be charging less than £3,000:

Askham Bryan college
Barking college
Bishop Burton college
College of St. Mark and St. John Hull college
Leeds Metropolitan university
Loughborough college
New College, Durham
New College, Nottingham
Newcastle college
Northbrook college, Sussex
Sparsholt college, Hampshire
Thames Valley university
The Grimsby Institute of further and higher education
Trinity and All Saints
University college Northampton
University of Greenwich
West Thames college
Wigan and Leigh college
Worcester college of technology
Writtle college
York St. John college

Details of access agreements are only available at an institutional level. Data are not available at an individual course level. It is therefore not possible to provide details of specific courses which will charge a tuition fee of less than £3,000 or the associated student numbers on these courses in academic year 2005/06.

Information on the amount of fees charged per student and course will be available from the Student Loans Company after the start of the 2006/07 academic year.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of students are exempt from paying tuition fees in each (a) London borough and (b) constituency; and if he will make a statement. [82982]

Bill Rammell: The percentage of students from each London borough making no contribution to their tuition fees in 2004/05 is given in the table.

Barking and Dagenham	64
Barnet	40

Student Loans Company (SLC)

Data are not available at the constituency level.

Students on full-time undergraduate courses and their families are expected to make a contribution towards the cost of their tuition based on household income. Students from lower income backgrounds are wholly or partially exempt from paying tuition fees.

From 2006/07 upfront fees are abolished and full-time students will be eligible for tuition fee loans of up to £3,000. In addition, we expect around 30 per cent. of students to receive a maximum maintenance grant of £2,700 and an HE institution bursary of at least £300.

Overall, we expect around half of all eligible students to receive at least some maintenance grant.

University of Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) full-time equivalent lecturers and (b) students there were at the University of Sussex in each of the last 10 years. [82604]

Bill Rammell: The latest available figures are given in the table:

Student enrolments and academic staff at the University of Sussex

	Enrolments[1]	Lecturers[2]

2003/04[3]	11,105	365
2004/05[3]	11,345	390

[1] Student numbers are on a snapshot basis as at 1 December, and exclude students writing up, on sabbatical or dormant. Figures include undergraduate and postgraduate students.
[2] Full-time equivalent staff figures are on the basis of staff with active contracts in the reporting period. Figures include senior lecturers and researchers and lecturers employed in teaching or teaching/research.
[3] Up until 2002/03 the staff record only included academic staff with a full-time equivalent greater than 25 per cent.; as from 2003/04, all academic staff were included. Therefore, the numbers for 2003/04 and 2004/05 are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Figures have been rounded to the nearest five.

Youth Opportunity Cards

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what arrangements are in place to ensure the technology is available to launch the pilot schemes for the youth opportunity cards in Sunderland during autumn 2006. [82993]

Beverley Hughes: We are currently exploring the options to ensure that the appropriate delivery vehicle is available to deliver the youth opportunity card. There is a great deal of detailed analysis to be done and it is important to take the time to ensure we get it right. The priority is to ensure that the technological solution can deliver the functionality required. We are working to the pilot schemes launch as soon as possible, although we may have to revise the original position of timescale.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Average Temperatures

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average temperature in London has been in each month of the past 10 years. [82821]

Ian Pearson: The following table contains temperature data for London for each month of the past 10 years, collected from the Meteorological Office's London site located in Holborn, on the Clerkenwell road.

The three columns cover the average maximum temperatures recorded on each day in the month, the average of the minimum temperatures recorded on each day in the month, and the overall mean (that is, for the 24-hour period, averaged over all days in the month).

Badgers

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment was made of the psychological effects on each badger captured in the recent field trials of badger body snares. [82468]

Mr. Bradshaw: The study follows the principles laid down in the draft EU directive on humane trapping standards. These include an assessment of the behaviour of the animals as a measure of their psychological welfare. The assessment carried out during work on these methods, in pens, included continuous video monitoring of the animals to assess their welfare and behaviour. This was conducted prior to the start of the field trials. Such continuous monitoring is not carried out during field trials. Following completion of the trials and peer review a full report will be published by the end of the summer.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress is being made towards the target of annual reductions of 3 per cent. of carbon dioxide emissions. [77680]

Ian Pearson: The Government do not have a target to reduce emissions by 3 per cent. per year.

The policies and measures set out in the 2006 UK Climate Change Programme are currently projected to reduce our carbon dioxide emissions to 14 to 17 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010. This would take us close to our domestic goal to reduce carbon dioxide emissions by 20 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010 and help to put us on a path towards our long-term target to reduce carbon dioxide emissions by some 60 per cent. by about 2050, with real progress by 2020.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, announced on 29 June the UK's proposal for the next phase of the EU's Emissions Trading Scheme. The proposal outlines the contribution business needs to make to help tackle climate change and save 8 million tonnes of carbon each year. A saving of this amount would equate to the emissions of 4½ million households.

Cetaceans

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) sharks and (b) dolphins were killed by British fishermen in each of the last 10 years. [79400]

Mr. Bradshaw: Over the past 10 years UK fisheries have landed an average of approximately 12,000 tonnes of dogfishes and sharks per year. Of these, "sharks" (pelagic and unspecified sharks) accounted for approximately 1,000 tonnes per year, although this has decreased in recent years. I do not have information on the numbers of sharks caught because the data on landings is recorded in tonnes and it is difficult to convert this into numbers of sharks due to the wide range of species and body sizes.

Deliberate capture and killing and reckless disturbance of cetaceans is prohibited under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. Bycatch of dolphins and other marine mammals does, however, occur in some fisheries. The exact number of animals that die from bycatch every year is unknown, as it is not feasible to monitor all fishing operations.

Bycatch has been monitored in the bass pair trawl fishery. An average of 180 dolphins per year were bycaught in the bass pair trawl fishery between 2000-01 and 2004-05 winter seasons. Estimates for each year are provided in the following table:

	Number
2000-01	189
2001-02	39
2002-03	114
2003-04	429
2004-05	145
Total	916

Bycatch is known to occur in gill net fisheries in the Channel and Western Approaches, but there are no recent estimates of the numbers involved. The most recent estimate dates from the early 1990s when around 200 common dolphins were being bycaught in the English and Irish gill net fishery for hake.

The long-running DEFRA-funded Cetacean Strandings Contract has shown a 13 per cent. reduction in strandings around the UK coast in 2005 (799 in 2004, 700 in 2005). Figures for the preceding four years (2000 to 2004) had shown a generally increasing trend from 420 in 2000 to 799 in 2004. A report analysing the findings was published on 6 July 2006 and is available on DEFRA's website.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80088]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA's acting finance director is Ian Grattidge, pending a permanent appointment via an open competition, currently under way. Ian Grattidge joined DEFRA on 18 February 2002 and was appointed acting director on 7 November 2005.

Ian Grattidge is a Fellow of the Institute of Certified Chartered Accountants.

Prior to joining DEFRA, Ian Grattidge held finance director posts at the Food Standards Agency and the Veterinary Laboratories Agency. He has also held posts in the Finance Management Division of former MAFF and at the BBC; was Head of Finance and Business Administration at the Laboratory of the Government Chemist, DTI; financial accountant at NMI Ltd; an internal auditor for the DTI and a tax inspector for HM Customs and Excise.

Departmental Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate the Government have made of greenhouse gas emissions from (a) car, (b) aviation, (c) train and (d) ship transportation by Departments in each year since 1997. [80776]

Ian Pearson: The estimates available for greenhouse gas emissions from transport by Departments currently focus on the road car fleet. The most recent estimates for carbon dioxide emissions from this car fleet was published in November 2005 as part of the "Sustainable Development in Government (SDIG): Fourth Annual Report". This covers the period from April 2004 to March 2005. Copies are available from the Sustainable Development Commission website:http://www.sd-Commission.org.uk/watchdog/4th_Annual _Report_(final)_UPDATED_30_11_05.pdf.

All central Government ministerial and official air travel has been offset since 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. Final calculations for the opening year of the scheme, 2006-07, will be carried out in April 2007.

The DEFRA-led Civil Service Travel Group has been created to help improve travel sustainability across the civil service. Its initial focus will be to work with all Departments on a voluntary basis to help them develop, and improve their own management information systems (MIS) on travel activities, alongside developing sustainable travel action plans for them to progress.

Energy Crops Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to re-run the current Energy Crops Scheme. [83269]

Ian Pearson: The Government have agreed in principle to support energy crops under the new Rural Development Programme, which will run from 2007 to 2013. We are currently considering how best to take this forward with regard to the responses to the consultation on the Rural Development Programme for England. The nature of the support may be different to that provided under the current programme.

We hope to send the new Rural Development Programme to the European Commission in the autumn for its approval.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place to encourage companies to carry out regular audits of their buildings to seek opportunities for introducing energy efficiency methods. [79685]

Ian Pearson: The Carbon Trust provides a range of tools and products designed to help companies to make an assessment of the energy they use and to understand where changes could be made. This includes action plan tools, energy surveys, design advice and benchmarking tools. The Carbon Trust also offers small and medium-sized companies interest free loans to help them take practical energy efficiency action. In addition, the Trust's Carbon Management programme provides a systematic approach to managing the risks and realising the opportunities that climate change presents. It looks at both the revenue and cost sides of business and involves areas outside the scope of a normal energy or operational efficiency review.

Environmental Liability Directive

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the environmental liability directive on (a) pollution control, (b) water resources, (c) biodiversity, (d) wildlife, (e) contaminated land and (f) environmental protection in the UK. [81942]

Ian Pearson: Proposals for implementing regulatory measures have to be accompanied by an impact assessment. The first public consultation, to be launched later this year, will be accompanied by a detailed assessment of all costs and benefits of implementing the environmental liability directive, taking account of existing environmental protection regimes.

Environmental Management

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Government (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as in compliance with that standard; and if he will make a statement. [81318]

Ian Pearson: On 12 June the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State announced new sustainable operations targets for the Government estate. Environmental Management Systems (EMS) are a key enabler in supporting improvements in operational performance on the estate, particularly in areas such as energy, water and waste. Therefore, the new targets included a commitment that all Departments should have an EMS in place, based, or modelled upon, a recognised system (such as ISO 14001, or the European regulation EMAS).

In terms of certification some Departments have implemented the international standard ISO 14001 and have obtained external certification. Other Departments are working towards implementation of the standard and some Departments have already put in place bespoke environmental management systems so are not certified to a recognised standard.

Departmental performance against EMS estate targets, including external certification, has been published in annual Sustainable Development in Government reports. The last report published by the Sustainable Development Commission, the independent watchdog, was in December 2005. It covered the reporting period April 2004 to March 2005 and is available at: http://www.sd-commission.org.uk/watchdog.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the total economic cost to the UK of taking part in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme relative to taking no action to control carbon dioxide emissions. [82735]

Ian Pearson: In the recently published Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) for Phase II of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme we estimate that the cost of the scheme to the UK economy could be between £80 million and £640 million per year. This cost assumes a certain level of abatement will take place within the UK and also that the UK will purchase some allowances from the market. The final cost will therefore depend on the market price of carbon.

If Phase II of the scheme was not implemented this would lead to costs predicted to be between £400 million and £1,344 million per year. These estimates are based on the conclusions of the Social Cost of Carbon Working Paper published by the Government Economic Service, and are also set out in the RIA. This cost represents the potential physical impacts of climate change.

These estimates do not take into account the significant benefits to the UK economy that the scheme may generate through the growing market for emissions abatement equipment, and for financial services associated with emissions trading.

Fish Stocks

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will undertake an inquiry into the extent to which small hydroelectric generating plants damage fish stocks in rivers in which they are placed. [83237]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The Government have no plans to undertake such an inquiry in the near future.

The Government and the Environment Agency support the development of alternative, renewable sources of energy that are properly sustainable, taking into account wider environmental needs including protecting and improving fisheries.

The Environment Agency engaged in a workshop with the hydropower industry and representatives from the Department of Trade and Industry earlier this year. The Environment Agency plans to work with the industry to develop good practice guidance, taking into account the needs of fish stocks and fisheries. It published a fisheries research report which included best practice guidance for screening intakes and out-falls[1]. The report is relevant to protecting fish against certain impacts of hydropower schemes, and will inform future discussions.

Flood Defences

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding has been made available for sea coastal defences in (a) Clacton-on-Sea and (b) Holland-on-Sea in each of the past five years; and if he will make a statement. [81016]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency is the principal operating authority with responsibility for flood risk management in England, including for flooding from the sea. DEFRA funds most of the Environment Agency's flood related work and grant-aids individual capital improvement projects and related studies undertaken by local authorities.

The following table summarises the Environment Agency's expenditure in Clacton-on-Sea and Holland-on-Sea from financial year 2001-02 to 2005-06, showing both capital and maintenance expenditure.

£000

	Clacton-on-Sea		Holland-on-Sea
	Capital	Maintenance	Capital	Maintenance
2001-02	—	140	731	106
2002-03	13.4	140	10.8	106
2003-04	78.3	140	17.7	106
2004-05	52	140	110	166
2005-06	80.3	140	105.6	106

Tendring district council received support from DEFRA for their Coast Protection Strategy Plan Study in Clacton-on-Sea as follows:

£000

	Grant	SCA/SCE(R)
2001-02	74.4	42.6
2002-03	40.2	94.3
2003-04	—	3.6
2004-05	12.7	—
2005-06	—	—

Tendring district douncil received support from DEFRA for their Coast Protection Works in Holland-on-Sea and Seawall Below York Road, also in Holland-on-Sea, projects as follows:

£000

	Grant	SCA/SCE(R)
2001-02	105.7	136.0
2002-03	—	1.7
2003-04	7.0	—
2004-05	—	—
2005-06	78.5	149.5

SCA/SCE(R) represents actual spend by the council, which has been approved for long-term support through the Department for Communities and Local Government revenue funding mechanism for local authorities. This method of funding local authority flood and coastal erosion capital improvement projects has been replaced by 100 per cent. direct grant from DEFRA from April 2006.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to assess the way in which genetically modified organisms are regulated; and if he will examine the current operation of the Advisory Committee on Releases into the Environment. [83268]

Ian Pearson: The European Commission has recently undertaken reviews of the main pieces of EU legislation concerning the deliberate release of genetically modified organisms. The Government will take note of the results of these reviews.

We are, at present, satisfied with the way that the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment (ACRE) operates. ACRE is included in a general review being undertaken by DEFRA of its non-executive bodies.

Mobile Telephones

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact on the environment of the regular recharging of mobile telephones. [81863]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA's Market Transformation Programme (MTP) estimates that in 2005 there were nearly 140 million external power supplies of the type used to charge mobile technology such as telephones and digital music players in use in the UK.

Because the power consumed by external power supplies when charging appliances varies significantly with the type and size of appliance and the degree to which the appliance connected to it is already charged no reliable information is available on the impact on the environment of the regular recharging of mobile phones.

However, the MTP has calculated that external power supplies use around 3.4Twh annually while they remain plugged in but not connected to an appliance or when the appliance has reached full-charge. Of this total approximately 1.6Twh is estimated to be attributed to mobile phone chargers.

Encouragingly, all of the major suppliers of mobile phones are signatories of the European Commission's Code of Conduct for the Energy Performance of External Power Supplies which sets a voluntary commitment on manufacturers to supply chargers which meet a minimum level of performance in both standby and charge modes. Aside from a small percentage of older mobile phones (sold before the Code of Conduct was established) the large majority of mobile phones are now supplied with chargers which consume 1W or under while in standby or a no-load condition. In time this will reduce the total UK standby consumption of mobile phones by over 50 per cent.

Pollution

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much carbon dioxide was released into the air by British industries in each of the past five years. [82820]

Ian Pearson: The following table shows carbon dioxide emissions in megatonnes released by British industries from 2000 to 2004. Data for 2005 is not yet available. An average annual amount of CO_2 emissions of 307.60804 megatonnes was released over five years.

	Megatonne
2000	301470.5666
2001	313224.8
2002	300358.14
2003	310629.76
2004	312356.92

Road Transport Emissions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by what percentage carbon emissions from road transport have changed in each of the past nine years. [82344]

Ian Pearson: The following table shows changes in carbon dioxide emissions from road transport from 1997 to 2004. Data for 2005 are not yet available.

	Total emissions in carbon kilotonnes	Percentage change between years	Percentage change from base line year (1990)
1997	31,923.56	1.24	6.53
1998	31,716.86	-0.65	5.84
1999	31,965.63	0.78	6.67
2000	31,752.46	-0.67	5.96
2001	31,751.50	0.00	5.95
2002	32,412.20	2.08	8.16

2004	32,671.36	1.01	9.02

Single Farm Payments

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to prevent late application penalties being handed down to farmers who have not yet received their single farm payment scheme application forms. [76177]

Barry Gardiner: An EU Regulation has been adopted which provides for all 2006 SPS claims to be accepted without penalty until 15 June. This extra time above and beyond the extension to 31 May will mean that around 4,000 farmers will not now be penalised.

Applications will be accepted by the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) until 10 July. However a penalty of 1 per cent. per working day will be applied to applications received between 16 June and 10 July.

Application forms may be obtained from the RPA website, www.rpa.gov.uk: RPA Drop in Centres or by telephoning the RPA Customer Service Centre on 0845 603 7777.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in how many cases claimants have disputed the full or interim Single Farm Payments made to them since April 2005. [76606]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency (RPA) operates a formal appeal procedure to deal with appeals from customers about decisions reached by RPA which affect the amount of payment that they receive. To date 112 SPS related appeals have been received since payments began. In addition, the appeal procedure has dealt with 181 appeals against the Moorland Line and 280 appeals against the historic element of the SPS prior to payments being made.

RPA does not currently have separate data on the number of cases where the claimant has disputed a payment made under the 2005 Single Payment Scheme outside of the formal appeals procedure.

Water Companies

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely (a) environmental and (b) economic impact on (i) South West London and (ii) London of Thames Water's failure to meet its leakage reduction target. [81014]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for West Ham (Lyn Brown) on 29 June 2006, Official Report, column 560W.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many officials from his Department are based in each province in Afghanistan, broken down by job function. [82733]

Hilary Benn: DFID has 16 UK officials currently based in Afghanistan. Fourteen are based in Kabul, one in Badakhshan and one in Helmand. These are listed in the following table and are broken down by job function.

One additional post in Kabul (Economist) and one in Kandahar (Development Adviser) are vacant. Two additional official positions will move from London to Kabul in the next three months (Governance Adviser and Economist). This makes a total planned complement of 20 staff in Afghanistan. The DFID Afghanistan team also has UK officials in London, and Afghan staff in Kabul, and staff from Kabul travel regularly to other provinces (notably Helmand) to support the team there.

The Post Conflict Reconstruction Unit, for which DFID has accounting responsibility, has deployed four UK officials to Helmand at various times in advance of the arrival of other Departments' staff, and has two officials based in Kabul as part of the Strategic Delivery Unit.

DFID officials currently based in Afghanistan are as follows:

Job title	Location
Head of DFID Afghanistan	Kabul
Deputy Head	Kabul
Economic Programme Manager	Kabul
Programme and Strategy Coordinator	Kabul
Policy, Programme and Strategy Programme Officer	Kabul
Livelihoods Programme Manager	Kabul
Livelihoods Adviser	Kabul
State-building Programme Manager	Kabul
Conflict Adviser	Kabul
Deputy Programme Manager	Kabul
Office/HR Manager	Kabul
Transition Manager (to be replaced as Deputy Office Manager)	Kabul
Secondee to the British Embassy Drugs Team	Kabul
ISAF Development Adviser	Kabul
Development Adviser	Badakhshan
Development Adviser	Helmand

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many farmers have been offered grants to grow alternative crops to poppies in Afghanistan; and how much was paid to those farmers in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06. [83283]

Hilary Benn: DFID has not paid any grants directly to farmers to grow alternative crops to opium poppies in Afghanistan in 2004-05 and 2005-06. However, DFID does provide support to farmers, through programme and project support. Benefits to farmers from this support include training in new farming techniques, the introduction of alternative crops and identifying potential markets for these crops, distribution of seeds and fertilizer, and support to improve animal health and husbandry.

In recognition of the need to increase the opportunities for farmers to move way from poppy cultivation, DFID has increased its funding for alternative livelihoods from £13 million in financial year 2004-05 to £45 million in 2005-06.

At the same time as developing agricultural opportunities, DFID is also promoting the development of non-farm alternative livelihoods by supporting national programmes of the Government of Afghanistan which are helping to increase access to credit and improve infrastructure for farmers to transport their produce to markets.

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81056]

Mr. Thomas: Estimated carbon emissions from DFID operational activities:

	Tonnes of carbon from UK buildings	Tonnes of carbon from air travel
2004-05	1,046	1,792
2005-06	1,067	1,754

DFID is strongly committed to the targets set out in the Framework for Sustainable Development on the Government estate to reverse the current upward trend in carbon emissions by April 2007 and to reduce emissions by 12.5 per cent. by 2010-11, and by 30 per cent. by 2020.

During the refurbishment of both our UK buildings, we incorporated many energy saving mechanisms and have established Environment Management Systems in both offices. We have 100 per cent. green electricity at both UK offices and we are also currently working with the Carbon Trust to evaluate various options for renewable energy such as Combined Heat and Power (CHP) units. To reduce emissions from air travel we have significantly increased our video-conferencing facilities and actively encourage staff to use them.

Child Educational Development

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding the UK gives developing countries for child educational development. [84475]

Mr. Thomas: The Government will spend approximately £8.5 billion over the next 10 years. By 2010, we will be providing £1 billion a year in support of education in developing countries. This long-term commitment will provide poor country Governments with predictable funding against which they can prepare ambitious 10-year education sector plans to achieve the education goals. Our support will help in the development and implementation of 10-year plans, which will increase investment in schools, including recruiting and training more teachers, getting more pupils into and completing school and improving the quality of education.

Clean Water

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to improve access to clean water and sanitation in the developing world. [82720]

Hilary Benn: Our approach is to help developing country Governments to implement their own plans for provision of water and sanitation, both by direct financing and providing technical know-how. We are also taking steps to make the international system, particularly the UN, more effective, through our support to UN-Water, and to the Joint Monitoring Programme, which measures global progress towards access to safe water and basic sanitation.

The Millennium Development Goal (MDG) target of halving the proportion of people without access to safe water by 2015 is on track to be met globally, but not in sub-Saharan Africa and parts of Asia. DFID is committed to doubling spending on water in Africa to £95 million by 2008. We are now actively involved in seven African countries (Ethiopia, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), Malawi, Mozambique, Rwanda, Tanzania and Zambia), up from only two years ago; and through our funding of other agencies' programmes, we reach many other countries. For example, the EU plans to provide 10 million people with access to water and a further five million to sanitation by 2010 through projects it has recently approved through the Water Facility.

DFID's Water and Sanitation strategy was set out in the 2004 Water Action Plan. I reinforced DFID's commitment to doing more during my speeches on World Water Day in March 2005, and at DFID's External Water Forum in February 2006. DFID closely monitors progress in water and sanitation and publishes regular updates on the DFID website. The latest update can be accessed on DFID's website address at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Debt Cancellation

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many African countries' debts have been cancelled in the past five years. [83120]

Hilary Benn: Since 2001, 14 African countries (Benin, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Ethiopia, Ghana, Madagascar, Mali, Mauritania, Mozambique, Niger, Rwanda, Senegal, Tanzania and Zambia) have received debt stock cancellation under the heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC) initiative. Another African country, Uganda, received debt stock cancellation under HIPC in 2000. All 15 of these countries have had 100 per cent. of their remaining debt stock at the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank cancelled this year under the new Multilateral Debt Relief Initiative (MDRI). When they completed the HIPC initiative, all these countries also received 100 per cent. cancellation of any bilateral (Government to Government) debts outstanding to the UK.

A further 10 African countries are currently receiving interim debt relief under HIPC, and will receive 100 per cent. debt stock cancellation under the MDRI and on bilateral debts from the UK when they complete the HIPC initiative.

Nigeria has also received considerable debt stock cancellation in the past year as part of the deal agreed with its Paris Club (Government) creditors to resolve 100 per cent. of its debts. Overall, US$18 billion of debt stock was cancelled under the deal, and Nigeria bought back the remaining debt for $12.4 billion.

Prior to 2001, the UK also cancelled the bilateral aid debts of low income African countries.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures are in place to ensure that no illegal immigrants are employed in the manned guarding of his Department's premises. [80804]

Mr. Thomas: Guards at DFID offices are currently a combination of in-house and contracted staff. For all in-house permanent and pensionable staff, a range of nationality and identity checks are carried out at the time of recruitment, which ensure that the individual has the right of employment in the UK. Contractors are responsible for ensuring that similar checks are carried out on any staff whom they employ at any DFID offices.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department has (a) directly and (b) indirectly employed illegal immigrants as security guards. [80813]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has not, as far as we are aware, employed either directly or indirectly illegal immigrants as security guards.

Departmental Travel Costs

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff of his Department have travelled other than in economy class on flights between Heathrow and Glasgow in each of the past 12 months. [82808]

Mr. Thomas: A total of 406 DFID staff made 949 non-economy class flights during 2005. The breakdown of flights by month were as follows:

	Number
January	59
February	105
March	80

November	75
December	38

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the most expensive flight within the UK is which his Department has booked for departmental staff in each of the past 12 months. [82809]

Mr. Thomas: The most expensive flights in 2005 were:

January	367.40
February	418.60
March	366.60
April	422.50

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many official journeys between London and Glasgow have been made by staff of his Department in the past 12 months. [82810]

Mr. Thomas: 1,201 journeys were completed in 2005.

Infrastructure Building (Afghanistan/Iraq)

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress his Department has made in building economic infrastructure in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq. [83240]

Hilary Benn: Improving economic management and aid effectiveness is one of DFID's three objectives for its £102 million (2006-07) aid programme to Afghanistan. DFID is working with the Afghan Government to help improve revenue collection and financial planning, and works particularly closely with the Ministry of Finance. We are supporting them in customs and reform, which will help them to raise money from imports and exports and wealthier Afghan business and individuals, thus reducing their dependence on foreign aid. This is going well with revenues increasing by 30-40 per cent. per annum. We have also helped them improve the national budget process, with good results. The 2006-07 budget was recently approved by Parliament and further endorsed by the International Monetary Fund (IMF), with the launch of a Poverty Reduction and Growth Programme.

DFID also works to build state institutions and improve the livelihoods of rural people, supporting the Afghan Government's own objectives, as set out in their Interim Afghanistan National Development Strategy. Although the rebuilding of Afghanistan cannot be achieved without significant investments in infrastructure, we do not focus on this area. Given the scale of resources required, and the importance of donors working to their respective comparative advantages, we believe other donors are better placed to make these investments—in particular the USA, the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and Japan, all of whom are investing in Afghanistan's infrastructure sector. Part of DFID's livelihoods work does include support for small scale rural infrastructure through funding to national programmes. Through the National Rural Access Programme for example, around 6,000 km of rural roads have been rehabilitated and/or constructed since 2002.

Over 70 per cent. of our aid goes directly to the Government of Afghanistan. The UK is the largest donor to the Government's recurrent budget—covering annual costs such as salaries for teachers and health workers. This is exactly what the Afghan Government want—and is the best chance for building effective state institutions that will last.

In Iraq, DFID has committed over £417 million to specific projects since March 2003, of which over £353 million has now been disbursed. This includes a £70 million contribution in 2004 to the International Reconstruction Fund Facility for Iraq (IRFFI)—trust funds run by the UN and the World Bank; and 19 per cent. of EC contributions to Iraq (£67 million).

DFID has been supporting economic reform in Iraq since 2004 and has committed £13 million to support the Iraqi Ministry of Finance to lead and manage a programme of macro-economic and budget reform. Activities include help with 2007 budget preparation, policy advice on public expenditure and in particular subsidy reform, and keeping the IMF's Standby Arrangement on track. DFID also plans to provide two additional consultants to the Government of Iraq to work on structural economic reform (e.g. oil sector restructuring and financial market reforms).

Since March 2003 DFID has spent £78 million on physical infrastructure improvements in southern Iraq, to improve delivery of power and water services essential to further economic growth. These include:

repairs to power stations in the south which have added and secured enough power in total to supply over 50,000 homes, and improved electricity supplies to 1.5 million residents; work to provide 10 small generators adding a further 15MW to the national grid; construction of a water training centre for use by the southern Governorates replacement of 800 km of water mains, as well as repair of 5,047 leaks across the four southern Governorates; construction of almost 10 km of piped main drainage plus mains connections to 830 houses; supply of technical advice for a major sewage installation in Al Amarah, providing up to half the city's population with access to a piped system and replacing open sewage channels; and installation of new sewage treatment facilities at Mina Prison, Basra;

We have also committed a further £18 million to improve power and water infrastructure in the south includes building a new gas pumping station; essential repairs at power stations; building three new water towers; and two further water projects which will provide drinking water for 500,000 people.

Kosovo (Munitions Clearance)

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Kosovo Protection Corps clearance of UK cluster munitions in Kosovo; and when the clearance is expected to be completed. [83473]

Mr. Ingram: I have been asked to reply

The Kosovo Protection Corps has been trained to UN benchmarks in the clearance of a broad variety of mines, unexploded ordnance and cluster munitions by Handicap International. Alongside non-governmental organisations engaged in explosive ordnance disposal, they have cleared a significant number of designated dangerous areas in Kosovo in 2006 alone. It is anticipated that in 2007 the clearance of dangerous areas will have been completed. A recent report made by the United Nations Mine Action Service stated that the Kosovo Protection Corps explosive ordnance disposal teams will be capable of addressing the residual land mine and unexploded ordnance threat in Kosovo from 2007 and beyond.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many proposals the Department has received to fund clearance of unexploded UK cluster munitions in the last two years; how many related to Kosovo; and how many have been funded in each case. [83474]

Hilary Benn: DFID has received two funding applications related to unexploded UK cluster munitions. Both were for Kosovo.

DFID has not funded either of these.

DFID has spent £15 million on humanitarian landmine clearance and related work in Kosovo, including approximately £3.3 million through the Halo Trust for its work there during 1999-2001. Since 2001, we have judged, in consultation with the United Nations Mine Action Service and our own specialist adviser, that the overall threat from unexploded ordnance in Kosovo has been reduced considerably and that the capacity of the Kosovan de-mining authorities has grown sufficiently to deal with it.

DFID directs its mines action funds to worse affected, less well resourced countries, including funding the Halo Trust in, for example, Sri Lanka, Abkhazia, Afghanistan, Angola, Cambodia, Somaliland and Sudan.

Overseas Projects

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development in what projects the UK is involved in (a) the Palestinian Territories, (b) Iraq and (c) Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [82984]

Hilary Benn: In the Palestinian Territories, DFID support has focused on three areas: supporting the peace process, improving the delivery of humanitarian and development assistance, and helping the institutions of a future Palestinian state to be more effective, accountable and inclusive. DFID has spent £176 million on its Palestinian programme since 2001, plus our share of European Community aid. DFID projects and programmes are as follows:

Support for Palestinian refugees through the United Nations Relief and Works Agency;

Assistance to the Negotiations Affairs Department to support progress towards a negotiated, two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict;

Building the capacity of the Palestinian Authority (currently suspended) and civil society organisations on governance and public administration reform;

Improved analysis of PA institutional development;

A fund to assist DFID to finance strategic interventions to support a peace process and economic development.

Until the Hamas Government agree to the conditions set out by the Quartet, UK Government aid will be channelled outside the Palestinian Authority. We expect to contribute through a new temporary international mechanism to provide support for Palestinian basic needs.

The UK also provides funding through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP), which is managed jointly by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), DFID and the Ministry of Defence (MOD). Current projects in the Palestinian Territories:

Military liaison officer for the Palestinians;

Training needs analysis for national security forces (currently suspended);

Military advisor to the special envoy for disengagement (currently suspended);

Close protection support for President of the Palestinian Authority;

Appointment of a Financial Liaison Officer to the Palestinian Authority (currently suspended); and Water pollution management in Israel, Jordan and Palestinian Authority.

The GCPP also funds a number of relevant projects with Israeli non-governmental organisations. These organisations are:

Peace Now - Settlement Watch;

Ir Amin - advocacy project on status of Jerusalem;

Economic Co-operation Foundation - Gaza disengagement;

Council for Peace and Security - advocacy work on Israeli separation;

HaMoKed/BTselem - Freedom of movement for Palestinians;

Palestinian media activities in support of the Roadmap (jointly funded with USAID); and Ad Hoc Liason Committee - donor co-ordination.

In Iraq, the UK Government have pledged a total of £544 million for reconstruction from 2003 until 2006 (including contributions from DFID, the FCO and the MOD, the GCPP, and the UK's share of EC funding in Iraq). The UK has disbursed over £533 million.

DFID's programme for 2006-07 in Iraq focuses on four key areas of economic reform; infrastructure improvements; governance and institution building; and support for civil society and political participation. This is through the projects listed, through our work as a major contributor to the United Nations and World Bank Trust Funds for Iraq, and by helping other donors to establish programmes in Iraq. DFID is currently funding the following projects:

Iraq Infrastructure Services Project to deliver improved power and water services in southern Iraq;

Operation Ampere providing 10 generators for southern governorates;

Governorates capacity building programme (GCBP) supporting the southern provinces in planning and budgeting skills. In Basra, the UK-led provincial reconstruction team (PRT) is developing an integrated approach to governance, rule of law, economic development and infrastructure. The PRT draws together existing GCBP funding with US funding on governance (plus further programme funding from the US of $15 million from October 2006), US military funding and Danish funds on agriculture and irrigation;

Support to the centre of Government. This programme is building communications, management and core civil service expertise in the Prime Minister's office, Council of Ministers' Secretariat and Government Communications Directorate;

Supporting Economic Reform, helping the Ministry of Finance to lead and manage a programme of macro-economic and budget reform in Iraq;

BBC World Service Trust Project, strengthening independent broadcasting in the south;

Political Participation Fund. This project seeks to encourage broad participation in national and local elections and the constitutional debate; and Civil Society Fund. We provide funding to UK non-governmental organisations who forge mentoring partnerships with Iraqi civil society organisations to build their capacity.

In 2006-07 the Global Conflict Prevention Pool is undertaking the following projects in Iraq:

Police training and mentoring;

Prisons mentoring and support;

Ministry of Interior support to improve accountability and reduce scope for abuses and corruption;

Provision of a justice adviser.

The FCO has also allocated £100,000 for human rights support projects in Iraq.

In Afghanistan, DFID's aid programme (£102 million in 2006-7) supports three of the Afghan Government's own objectives, as set out in their Interim Afghanistan National Development Strategy: (i) building effective state institutions; (ii) improving economic management and the effectiveness of aid to Afghanistan; and (iii) improving the livelihoods of rural people. Current projects are in the following list.

State-building

Afghanistan Stabilisation Programme;

Technical Assistance to Ministry of Counter Narcotics /Ministry of Interior to strengthen Counter-Narcotics Institutions;

Support to Provincial Stabilisation;

Technical Assistance to the Civil Service Commission for Public Administration Reform;

Technical Assistance to the Office of the President's Spokesman;

Afghanistan Research and Evaluation Unit: Drivers of Change research;

Support to British Agencies in Afghanistan Group; and Support to Centre of Government Institutions.

Economic Management/Aid Effectiveness

Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund;

Counter Narcotics Trust Fund;

Technical Assistance to Ministry of Finance on Tax Administration;

Technical Assistance for Customs and the Cabinet Secretariat;

Technical Assistance to Ministry of Finance on Budget Formulation;

Technical Assistance to Ministry of Commerce on Private Sector Development;

Technical Assistance to Ministry of Mines and Industry; and Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency.

Livelihoods

National Solidarity Programme (Government Programme);

Micro-finance Investment Support Facility in Afghanistan (Government Programme);

Eastern Hazarajat Alternative Livelihoods Project (UN FAO);

Alternative Agricultural Livelihoods Programme (UN FAO);

Badakhshan - Aga Khan Development Network AL programme;

Research into Alternative Livelihoods Fund; and Agricultural Input Supply Programme

Technical assistance to Ministry reconstruction and rural development and Ministry of Agriculture and animal husbandry on sustainable livelihoods.

Over 70 per cent. of our aid goes directly to the Government of Afghanistan. The UK is the largest donor to the Government's recurrent budget—covering annual costs such as salaries for teachers and health workers. This is exactly what the Afghan Government want—and is the best chance for building effective state institutions that will last.

Palestinian Authority

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial aid was given to the Palestinian Authority in each year since 2000. [83109]

Hilary Benn: DFID's support to the Palestinian Authority (PA) since 2000 has been as follows:

Financial year	Support to the PA (£ million)
2000-01	8.3
2001-02	13.0
2002-03	14.1
2003-04	15.2
2004-05	14.1
2005-06	13.5

This support has included technical assistance and financial aid, including budgetary support. These figures are in addition to Palestinian projects implemented outside the PA, including contributions to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) for refugees.

Following Hamas' victory in the Palestinian Legislative Council elections of January 2006, and their subsequent failure to meet the Quartet principles, all direct aid to the Palestinian Authority has been suspended.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial aid he expects the UK will give to the Palestinian Authority in 2006-07. [83139]

Hilary Benn: Until the Hamas-led Government complies with the principles laid out by the Quartet (the United Nations, the United States of America, Russia and the European Union), direct aid to the Palestinian Authority will not be possible. The principles are that the Hamas-led Government should recognise Israel, renounce violence, and accept previous agreements and obligations, including the Roadmap.

However, DFID's programme of support to the Palestinian people will continue. In April we released £15 million to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency which provides health, education and other basic services to Palestinian refugees.

The UK also intends to make a contribution of up to £12 million to a temporary international mechanism to provide direct support to the basic needs of the Palestinian people.

School Construction (Africa)

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many schools have been built in the past 12 months in African countries. [83119]

Hilary Benn: The Education for All Global Monitoring Report is the primary source of data on country progress towards the Millennium Development Goal of universal primary education. It does not include data about the building of new schools. For DFID bilaterally to collect such data across Africa would involve a disproportionate cost. We are, however, tracking data on the numbers of girls and boys in school and on progress towards meeting the universal primary education and gender equality Millennium Development Goals.

Skill Sharing

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the ways in which the UK is sharing skills with African countries, with particular reference to plumbers and electricians and training young people. [83118]

Hilary Benn: DFID does not provide any specific vocational training for trainee plumbers and electricians. However, DFID's Higher Education Links programme has facilitated training for many young people. For example, a link between the University of Natal in South Africa and the University of Ulster has enabled the training of community youth workers to work in poor communities.

Following a review of the Links programme, DFID recently launched a new £15 million programme, Development Partnerships in Higher Education (DelPHE) that will run until March 2013. The DelPHE, managed by the British Council, will support a variety of partnerships between higher education institutions, enabling them to collaborate on activities linked to sustainable development, science and technology, and the reduction of poverty.

TRANSPORT

A303 Stonehenge

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects a decision to be made on the review of the A303 Stonehenge Improvement Scheme. [84344]

Dr. Ladyman: The cross-Government steering group, which has been reviewing the options for the A303 at Stonehenge, will be producing a report to Ministers in the summer. This will set out the results of the public consultation and a detailed assessment of the shortlisted options. We will need to carefully consider this report before deciding on a way forward.

Antisocial Behaviour (Trains)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains were (a) delayed and (b) cancelled because of vandalism on the tracks in the past 12 months, broken down by region. [77780]

Derek Twigg: The information is as follows:

(a) The information on delays is not available in the format requested.

(b) The following table shows the percentage of all train cancellations, resulting from vandalism, listed by Network Rail route, from April 1 2005 to March 31 2006.

Network Rail (NR) route	Percentage of cancellations due to vandalism per NR route
Anglia	0.88
Kent	0.65
London North East	0.22
London North West	2.85
Scotland	0.33
Sussex	0.98
Wessex	1.32
Western	0.14

Boats (Blood Alcohol Limits)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Government have any plans to introduce a maximum blood alcohol limit for (a) recreational mariners and (b) those in charge of a boat. [83515]

Dr. Ladyman: Following a consultation in 2004 and more recent evidence given to us, including two Marine Accident Investigation Branch recommendations, we are now working with interested parties to see what appropriate measures should be taken to implement the relevant provisions of the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment the Government have made of the results of the 2004 consultation into a maximum blood alcohol limit for recreational mariners. [83516]

Dr. Ladyman: We are currently reassessing all the views in the light of the Marine Accident Investigation Branch recommendations delivered earlier this year and will make an announcement once that exercise is complete.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment the Marine Accident Investigation Board has made of the number of people (a) killed and (b) injured in (i) recreational and (ii) non-recreational marine craft in each of the past five years; and in how many of these cases alcohol was identified as a contributory factor. [83517]

Dr. Ladyman: The Merchant Shipping (Accident Reporting and Investigation) Regulations 2005 only place a requirement to report accidents involving recreational craft if they are being commercially operated. However, the Chief Inspector of Marine Accidents may investigate accidents involving privately-owned craft if they are brought to his attention.

Details of all accidents reported to the Marine Accident Investigation Branch are contained on its database. Statistics for deaths and injuries for both recreational and non-recreational craft for the past five years are shown in the following table:

	Recreational craft (non-commercial)		All other vessels
	Deaths	Injuries	Deaths	Injuries
2001	3	2	23	651
2002	8	4	27	647
2003	12	10	22	673
2004	3	25	22	647
2005	24	35	22	551

The second table contains numbers of deaths and injuries where alcohol was positively identified as a contributory factor:

	Recreational craft (non-commercial)		All other vessels
	Deaths	Injuries	Deaths	Injuries
2001	2	—	2	12
2002	—	—	—	14
2003	1	—	1	18
2004	—	3	—	14
2005	5	3	5	17

Dangerous Vehicles

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on the number of vehicles driven in a dangerous condition; and if he will make a statement. [83768]

Dr. Ladyman: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) carries out fleet compliance surveys on an annual basis. Vehicles are stopped randomly at the roadside and any found to be in a dangerous condition are issued with an immediate prohibition notice which prevents the vehicle from being driven any further until the defects have been rectified.

As vehicles are stopped and checked at random, we can use the results of the survey to estimate the proportion of vehicles in the entire fleet that may be being driven in a dangerous condition.

The data compiled from the fleet compliance surveys is published in VOSA's Effectiveness Report (tables A1.19, A2.11 and A3.7) which can be found on the VOSA website.

Foreign Nationals (Driving)

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for how long foreign nationals may use the driving licences of their home country to drive on UK roads; and if he will make a statement. [83126]

Dr. Ladyman: The length of time that a foreign licence holder may drive on UK roads is dependent on where the licence was obtained. Full details are available on the website:

http://www.direct.gov.uk/Motoring/DriverLicensing/DrivingInGbOnAForeignLicence/fs/en.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether registered asylum seekers are able to apply for British driving licences. [83127]

Dr. Ladyman: Asylum seekers are eligible to apply for a provisional driving licence provided they meet the requirements specified in legislation. This requires applicants to complete an application, provide a photograph and acceptable supporting evidence of identity.

Government Car Service

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicles in the Government Car Service are leased to HM Treasury, broken down by (a) make and model and (b) vehicle excise duty band. [83586]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government Car and Despatch Agency leases no vehicles directly to HM Treasury. The Agency does provide six allocated cars and drivers to HM Treasury for Ministers and senior officials. These cars are from the Rover 75, Vauxhall Omega, Ford Mondeo and Toyota Prius ranges. All these cars are in band F except for the Toyota Prius, which is in band B.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many motor cars are owned or leased by the Government for the use of Ministers and Government staff; [75616]

(2) how many of the vehicles owned or leased by the Government for the use of Ministers and Government staff are claimed by their manufacturers to produce average carbon dioxide emissions in quantities of less than (a) 120g, (b) 140g and (c) 225g per kilometre travelled; [75617]

(3) which vehicle in the Government's motor car fleet produces the highest level of carbon dioxide emissions; and to what purpose this vehicle is put. [75618]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) provides transport for Ministers and senior officials in accordance with the arrangements set out in Chapter 10 of the Ministerial Code, and the accompanying guidance document, "Travel by Ministers".

GCDA has 191 vehicles in its car fleet. Of these: (a) 38 emit 120 grams per kilometre (g/km) or less of carbon dioxide; (b) five emit between 120 g/km and 140 g/km; and (c) 84 emit between 140 g/km and 225 g/km. The three vehicles emitting the highest level of carbon dioxide are 4.0 litre Jaguars which produce 285 g/km. These vehicles are presently unallocated.

Green Light Warning Beacons

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will seek to extend the legislative provision that allows employment of a green light from a warning beacon fitted to a vehicle by a medical practitioner attending an urgent incident to cover (a) coastguards, (b) lifeboat crews and (c) mountain and cave rescue teams. [83333]

Dr. Ladyman: Green lights are currently reserved for vehicles which are occupied by medical practitioners registered by the General Medical Council and which are being used in an emergency. Users of these lights are not permitted exemptions from road traffic law: for example a doctor is not permitted to exceed a speed limit or to treat a red traffic light as a 'give way' sign.

The use of flashing warning lights needs to be limited in order to prevent their impact being diminished.

The Transport Committee has already recommended that official mountain and lowland search and rescue vehicles should be able to use blue lamps. The Department has accepted this recommendation. Any extension of the use of green lights would need to be discussed on a national basis and would require convincing justification.

Leisure Craft (Accidents)

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how (a) the Government and (b) the Marine Accident Investigation Board (MAIB) records accidents involving leisure craft; whether reporting of such incidents is mandatory; what estimate the MAIB has made of the number of (i) serious and (ii) minor accidents on leisure marine craft that go unreported in a year; and whether MAIB sets out (A) reported and (B) estimated accidents in its published reports. [83534]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Transport's Marine Accident Investigation Branch (MAIB) powers are defined in the Merchant Shipping (Accident Reporting and Investigation) Regulations 2005. These regulations place a requirement on skippers and operators of leisure craft that are being operated commercially to report accidents to the MAIB. Details of these accidents are recorded on the MAIB's Marine Incident Database System.

There is no statutory requirement to report accidents and incidents involving privately owned leisure craft, but skippers are encouraged to do so voluntarily so that accident levels and trends may be identified, and others may learn important safety lessons via articles published in the MAIB's Safety Digest.

The MAIB makes no estimate of the number of leisure craft accidents that are unreported in either the commercial or non-commercial sectors. In its annual report, the MAIB presents accident statistics for leisure craft derived from reported accidents recorded on its database.

Lorry Parks

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to encourage local authorities to provide secure lorry parks with appropriate facilities for drivers. [83407]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department for Transport has published guidance on how to set up and run Freight Quality Partnerships (FQPs).

FQPs are a means for local authorities, businesses, freight operators, environmental groups, the local community and other interested stakeholders to work together to address specific freight transport issues, including provision of secure parking and facilities for the drivers.

DfT has brought together the road haulage trade associations, motorway service area providers, the Highways Agency and the Home Office to seek a common understanding of how best to increase and improve provision of lorry parking. The Department will then follow this up with local authorities to raise awareness of issues facing road haulage operators including access to lorry parking and driver rest areas.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely impact of providing secure lorry parks on (a) crime and (b) road safety; and if he will make a statement. [83408]

Dr. Ladyman: While no formal assessment has been made of the impact more secure lorry parking might have on levels of crime, Home Office experience of safer parking facilities for cars indicates it would be a useful tool for reducing crime and the fear of crime. The Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), owner of the Safer Parking Scheme, is currently preparing guidance specifically to address the type of crime affecting light and heavy goods vehicle parking facilities.

The Department has undertaken no specific assessment on the impact on road safety but encourages drivers to make use of such facilities so that they can rest properly and reduce the risk of sleepiness while driving.

Low Carbon Buses

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to his Department's announcement of 23 September 2003, how many demonstration low carbon buses have been produced using the funding announced. [82560]

Gillian Merron: The allocated funding for demonstration low carbon buses was subject to state aid approval by the European Commission. A review of this programme was undertaken during the state aid notification process and a decision was taken not to proceed with the programme. I refer the hon. Member to the written statement "Transport grant and advice programmes" made by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Transport on 7 June 2006, Official Report, columns 30-32WS, about that decision.

Motorcycles

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of road accidents in each of the past five years which involved children of primary school age or below travelling as passengers on motorcycles. [83287]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of personal injury road accidents reported to the police involving at least one child casualty aged 0 to 11 travelling as a passenger on a two wheeled motor vehicle (TWMV) in each of the past five years is given in the following table.

Accidents involving at least one child casualty (aged 0 to 11) travelling as a TWMV passenger: 2001-05

	Number
2001	60
2002	71
2003	68
2004	65
2005	44

Motorways

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made with the introduction of motorway rest areas. [83348]

Dr. Ladyman: Currently under section 112 of the Highways Act 1980 the Secretary of State is not permitted to establish a picnic area on land adjacent to a motorway. An amending clause is included in the Road Safety Bill which is currently before Parliament. Subject to the acquisition of the necessary powers and funding the Government will consider the establishment of a pilot picnic area.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on current motorway safety programmes; and if he will make a statement. [83243]

Dr. Ladyman: A large proportion of the Highways Agency's 2006-07, £2.2 billion programme budget contributes either directly or indirectly to road safety initiatives. It is not possible to separate specific spend on motorway safety programmes.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what obligations the Highways Agency is under to remove litter from motorway embankments and verges; and how often this (a) should be and (b) is done on the area surrounding the M57 and M58 motorways. [83467]

Dr. Ladyman: The Highways Agency is obliged, by the Environmental Protection Act 1990, to remove litter from motorways, including the central reservations, verges, and embankments. This arrangement has regard to the nature and use of the highway, and the need to limit disruption to traffic. To comply with the Act, which specifies, through a supplementary code of practice, standards of cleanliness and response times, the Agency undertakes a regime of sweeping and litter-picking on the M57 and M58 motorways.

Litter-picking on the verges and embankments is undertaken at regular three-monthly intervals. The offside lanes and central reserves are routinely swept and litter-picked every six months, and the hard shoulders are swept every three months. Where the Agency's daily routine inspections identify a particular problem, additional litter-picking and sweeping is undertaken.

Outer London Orbital Road

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has for an outer London orbital road that would include the part of the A130/A131 in the West Chelmsford constituency. [84076]

Dr. Ladyman: The Secretary of State for Transport has no plans for an outer London orbital road.

Pedestrian Accidents

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pedestrians were (a) killed and (b) injured by vehicles in West Lancashire in each of the past 10 years for which figures are available. [83643]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of pedestrians killed and injured in personal injury road accidents reported to the police in the local authority of West Lancashire from 1996 to 2005 are given in the table.

Pedestrian casualties in West Lancashire local authority, 1996 to 2005

	Fatal	Injured[1]	All casualties
1996	1	57	58
1997	1	54	55

Railways

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the role of the Office of Rail Regulation is in the determination of fare levels. [82501]

Derek Twigg: The Office of Rail Regulation has no role in setting fare levels.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether it is his policy that cheap day return rail fares should apply all day. [82504]

Derek Twigg: Cheap day returns have never been valid all day, only after the morning peak. As these tickets are unregulated, the validity of these tickets is determined by train operators.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the amount by which fares would need to rise to reduce overcrowding by 10 per cent. on the 10 most overcrowded rail routes. [82506]

Derek Twigg: Although we have examined, and continue to monitor, the relationship between fares and demand, the Department has not conducted the specific research to answer this question.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding allocations are planned under the Railways for All small schemes fund. [81938]

Derek Twigg: We have received 43 separate bids covering 106 stations totalling £3.2 million. These bids are currently being assessed. Once this process is complete we will publish details of all the successful bids on our website.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what arrangements are in place for funding projects other than those at stations from the Railways for All small schemes fund. [82047]

Derek Twigg: Access for All Small Schemes funding is intended to support innovative and locally focused solutions to access problems as well as schemes that demonstrate improvements to integrated accessible transport solutions. If projects other than those at stations can demonstrate that they meet the criteria for funding, including the requirement to provide match funding, they will be considered for funding in the same way as schemes for individual stations.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport why the match funding requirement has been introduced for the Railways for All small scheme fund; how the requirement will be operated; and whether the requirement applies to all projects. [82048]

Derek Twigg: The match funding requirement for Small Schemes bids is intended to ensure that the funding is spread across as many schemes as possible. It also ensures that bidders are committed to the schemes and that those schemes have reached a credible stage of development.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which organisations have bid for Railways for All small scheme funding. [82049]

Derek Twigg: We have received bids from 16 different organisations. These bids are currently being assessed. Once decisions on which schemes are to receive funding have been finalised, details of the successful bidders will be published on the Department's website.

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps will be taken to promote bids for Railways for All small scheme funding from as broad a range of organisations as possible. [82050]

Derek Twigg: We are keen to attract bids from as many sources as possible. For future bidding rounds, in addition to any publicity on the Department's website and in the press, the Department will again be writing to a range of industry, local authority and disability organisations to advise them of the fund and the bidding process.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ensure that his Department's Access for All small schemes funding delivers improved accessibility for disabled rail passengers at Clapham Junction station. [82941]

Derek Twigg: Clapham Junction is one of the first 47 stations to be targeted for Access for All funding in the first three years of the Railways for All project. Officials from the Department are working closely with Network Rail and other stakeholders to ensure that an effective design is developed to deliver a step free route that is compatible with any future developments planned for Clapham Junction.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train services (a) were scheduled to run and (b) ran in each of the last 12 months, broken down by region. [82561]

Derek Twigg: That data is not held in full in the format requested.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many assaults there have been on railway station staff in each of the past five years, broken down by police authority area. [82441]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held by the Department for Transport, in the specific format requested. However, I refer the hon. Member to my answer on this subject of 6 July 2006, Official Report, column 1267W. Information relating to assaults on railway station staff is held by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden road, London NW1 9LN.

Road Traffic Accidents

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people died as a result of road traffic accidents in each (a) London borough and (b) constituency in each of the last five years, broken down by age; and if he will make a statement. [82952]

Dr. Ladyman: A table showing the number of fatalities in road accidents in each (a) London borough and (b) national constituency, broken down by age group in each of the past five years has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many traffic accidents in the last year for which figures are available involved drivers who were foreign nationals. [83125]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

DEFENCE

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81911]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the then Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Defence, my right hon. Friend the Member for Islwyn (Mr. Touhig) gave on 28 March 2006, Official Report, columns 899-900W, to the hon. Member for Wealden (Mr. Hendry).

Afghanistan

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the impact of Operation Mountain Thrust on the likely outcome of the NATO International Security Assistance Force mission in Helmand Province, Afghanistan. [82732]

Mr. Ingram: The aims of Operation Mountain Thrust are to: help stabilise the security situation in the south in advance of transfer of authority to the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force; and to create conditions in which reconstruction activities can take place across the region to improve the lives of ordinary Afghans, extend the authority of the Afghan Government and extend the rule of law.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment is of the adequacy of levels of personnel and equipment available to NATO forces in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [82855]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The levels of personnel and equipment have been constantly reviewed by NATO Defence Ministers since the Alliance took command of the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) on 11 August 2003. The UK has been fully engaged with this process and has endorsed the robust force package provided.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the request for additional (a) fixed-wing aircraft, (b) helicopters and (c) personnel made by Lieutenant-General David Richards, Commander of NATO forces in Afghanistan is supported by the Chief of the General Staff; when Ministers will decide what proportion of additional vehicles will be supplied by the UK; and if he will make a statement. [82861]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 July 2006]: Force generation for the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) is the responsibility of NATO. The UK responds to requests from NATO for additional resources as and when received, based on military advice, including from the Chiefs of Staff. The force package the UK has deployed to the South of Afghanistan in support of ISAF expansion was fully endorsed by all the Chiefs of Staff, as was the deployment of HQ ARRC, which Lieutenant-General Richards commands, to command ISAF. A statement will be made in the House should we decide to commit further forces to Afghanistan.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions the Prime Minister has had with (a) his counterparts in other NATO countries, (b) the NATO Secretary-General and (c) his counterparts in other non-NATO countries on force generation for deployment in Helmand Province, Afghanistan in the past three months; what the outcome of these discussions has been to date; whether they are ongoing; and if he will make a statement. [82862]

Des Browne [holding answer 6 July 2006]: My right hon. Friends and I, including the Prime Minister, have regular discussions with our counterparts in NATO and other ISAF troop-contributing nations regarding the deployment of forces into Afghanistan.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether there are plans for International Security Assistance Force personnel to become involved in the interdiction of narcotics production of Afghanistan. [83216]

Mr. Ingram: International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) personnel do not have a direct role in targeted interdiction operations or in the eradication of poppy fields. Under the terms of NATO's operational plan for Afghanistan, ISAF forces can provide, within means and capabilities, training and operational support to Afghan Counter Narcotics forces.

Agencies Merger

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Defence Procurement Agency and the Defence Logistics Organisation are to merge; and if he will make a statement. [82702]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 3 July 2006, Official Report, columns 27-29WS.

Armed Forces Abroad (Telecommunications)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to negotiate with telecommunications service providers preferential rates for family members telephoning members of the UK armed forces serving abroad. [82977]

Mr. Watson: The telecommunications market is one of the most competitive and dynamic sectors of the UK economy, with a comprehensive range of services to suit a wide variety of needs. There is no likelihood that Ministry of Defence intervention in this market in general would provide any additional flexibility. However, for service personnel, their families and the defence community in particular, the Defence Discount Directory is continuing to work with the major service providers to explore what special discounts they might be able to offer. Also, service literature and websites give advice to families on general communications issues, with contact options that include telephone, e-mail, e-bluey and the British Forces Post Office system among others.

British Armed Forces Federation

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what meetings he has had with the newly formed British Armed Forces Federation. [82695]

Mr. Watson: No meetings have taken place.

Clansman Radio

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the timetable is for withdrawing the Clansman radio from service with the UK armed forces. [81850]

Mr. Ingram: The planned out of service date for Clansman is April 2008.

Darfur

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to provide troops for United Nations peacekeeping operations in Darfur; and in what capacity they would serve. [83136]

Mr. Ingram: One UK military officer is currently deployed to the United Nations (UN) Department of Peace Keeping Operations (DPKO), in New York, to help develop UN plans for Darfur.

There are presently no plans to deploy any further military personnel.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81287]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process; both informal and formal. The Department holds meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations which abide by the code of conduct on consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department has (a) directly and (b) indirectly employed illegal immigrants as security guards. [80815]

Mr. Watson: I am aware of one instance in which the Ministry of Defence recruited a security guard who was later identified as an illegal immigrant. The man concerned provided false documentation and references on recruitment. Upon detection later by the Ministry of Defence police, his employment was immediately terminated.

I am not aware of any illegal immigrants being indirectly employed by the MOD as contract security guards.

Diabetes/Depleted Uranium

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research has he (a) commissioned, (b) evaluated and (c) received from other sources on possible links between the incidence of diabetes and exposure to depleted uranium; and if he will make a statement. [83759]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence has not commissioned, evaluated or received any research on possible links between the incidence of diabetes and exposure to depleted uranium.

Diego Garcia

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what requirement there was on the US Administration to inform the UK Government that mines were stored on ships in UK territorial waters surrounding Diego Garcia; and if he will make a statement. [82347]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

The Exchange of Notes between the United States and the United Kingdom concerning the availability for defence purposes of the British Indian Ocean Territory 1966 and subsequent Exchange of Notes between the two Governments do not require the United States to provide this kind of information. It is important to note that the territorial sea surrounding Diego Garcia is the territorial sea of the British Indian Ocean Territory, an Overseas Territory of the United Kingdom.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the British Government has requested a catalogue of military equipment, arms or munitions held on US ships in the UK territorial waters surrounding Diego Garcia, pursuant to its obligations under the Ottawa Treaty in the past five years. [82348]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

The UK is not obliged under the Ottawa Convention to request such a catalogue from the United States and has not done so. The Ottawa Convention, moreover, applies only to anti-personnel landmines. The territorial sea surrounding Diego Garcia is the territorial sea of the British Indian Ocean Territory, an Overseas Territory of the United Kingdom.

Equal Opportunities

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff are assigned to equal opportunities investigation teams, broken down by rank; how many investigations have been undertaken by the teams since their establishment; and how many disciplinary cases have been initiated as a result. [79916]

Mr. Watson: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

EU Emission Trading Scheme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total cost of (a) administering and (b) buying allocations for each military establishment included in the EU Emission Trading Scheme was in its first year of operation. [82736]

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which installations within his responsibilities are registered with the European Union Emission Trading scheme; and what the cost of carbon credits for each installation was in 2005-06. [83370]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) is registered as the operator of 29 sites under the European Union Emission Trading Scheme, with a further four sites registered where the facilities management contractors act as operator on behalf of the MOD.

The table details the cost of carbon credits and administrating and buying additional permits for each of the establishments registered within the first year of operation of the EU Emission Trading Scheme.

Falklands War Commemoration

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy that events sponsored by the Government to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Falklands war include Argentine representatives and the families of those killed in the conflict; and if he will make a statement. [81871]

Mr. Watson: The events commemorating the 25th anniversary of the Falklands war in 2007 will remember and honour those who fought and those who died on both sides. No decisions have yet been made on attendance.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83630]

Mr. Watson: No Defence Minister has attended any of the FIFA World Cup 2006 matches in Germany.

FRES

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the (a) armoured personnel carriers and (b) other armoured platforms being considered for the future rapid effects system offer significant mine and improvised explosive device protection. [82571]

Mr. Ingram: The ability to achieve the required level of protection is a key factor in the assessment of the future rapid effects system, candidate systems and technologies and will be taken fully into account in deciding which option to take forward.

Future Aircraft Carrier

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency plans his Department has developed for the Future Aircraft Carrier project if the UK is unable to negotiate access to US stealth technology and flight control software for the Joint Strike Fighter. [82694]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 5 July 2006]: As I said in my answer to the hon. Member on 29 June 2006, Official Report, columns 535-36W, we remain fully committed to the Future Aircraft Carrier programme and are optimistic that our negotiations with the US administration on the transfer of technology and software for the Joint Strike Fighter will be successful. None the less, appropriate actions have been and will continue to be undertaken to ensure that we have the necessary contingency plans should circumstances change. We are not prepared to discuss those in any more detail.

Gurkhas

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research his Department has undertaken into the living conditions of Gurkhas who have completed their service and are living (a) in the UK and (b) abroad. [82277]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 3 July 2006]: No specific research has been carried out. Ex-Gurkhas living in the United Kingdom are covered by similar after-care arrangements to those of their colleagues in other Army regiments. Headquarters Brigade of Gurkhas works with Gurkha Regimental Associations, the Veterans Agency and organisations such as the Royal British Legion, and any issues concerning ex-Gurkhas' living conditions that are relevant to their former service, would be brought to my attention through these sources.

Traditionally, Gurkhas retire to Nepal, where they live as Nepalese citizens in their own country and their living conditions are primarily the responsibility of their own Government. The Gurkha Welfare Trust, whose work is supported by my Department, maintains a network of welfare centres throughout Nepal providing individual and community assistance, and provides any information we require. Additionally, we assess economic conditions in Nepal every year to inform the annual review of Gurkha pension rates.

We know that ex-Gurkhas work in a number of other countries, but it is neither practical nor appropriate for us to seek information on their living conditions there.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate his Department has made of the number of Gurkhas who have completed their service who are living (a) in the UK and (b) abroad. [82278]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 3 July 2006]: We do not monitor the movements of ex-Gurkhas after they have left the Army, therefore we can only provide information based on pension statistics. As of today, 20,426 Gurkhas are in receipt of service pensions. Of these, all are drawing their pensions in Nepal except for 99 drawing them in the United Kingdom and 15 in other countries. The Gurkha Welfare Trust pays pensions to a further 10,542 ex-Gurkhas who are not entitled to service pensions.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of Gurkha pension payments in each year since 1997; and what the additional cost would be of providing pensions to Gurkha soldiers on the same terms as British servicemen and women. [82370]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 4 July 2006]: We pay over 26,000 Gurkha service pensions to retired soldiers and their dependants amounting last year to some £33 million. The figures for earlier years as far back as 1997 are not centrally held and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The option of transferring Gurkhas to the armed forces pension scheme is being explored as part of the wider review of Gurkha Terms and Conditions of Service, which was announced on 11 January 2005, Official Report, column 10WS, and which is due to be completed later this year. The scope of the review is however restricted to current members of the Brigade of Gurkhas and those who retired on or after 1 July 1997.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost would be of compensating all living Gurkhas, who have completed their service, for pension payments received below levels provided to British servicemen and women serving at the same time. [82371]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Gurkha soldiers are members of the Gurkha pension scheme, which reflects their unique terms and conditions of service and is not comparable to the armed forces pension scheme. This position was vindicated by a judicial review in 2003. Compensation would not therefore be appropriate.

Hawk Fighter Jets

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the (a) effectiveness and (b) employment relations impact of the Babcock contract for service and repair of Hawk Fighter Jets at RAF Valley in north Wales. [81961]

Mr. Ingram: The effectiveness of Babcock Defence Services in relation to the multi-activity contract at RAF Valley is regularly monitored and evaluated. The Ministry of Defence maintains good relations with Babcock which has met and continues to meet the outputs specified in the contract. Employment relations within Babcock are a matter between the company and its work force. We currently have no concerns regarding their impact on the delivery of the contract.

Helicopter Searches

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 2 June 2006, Official Report, column 40W, on helicopter searches, what arrangements exist between the Chiltern Air Support Unit and RAF Benson for the use of facilities at RAF Benson by (a) police helicopters and (b) other aircraft operated by the Chiltern Air Support Unit; and what such arrangements existed in July 2003. [81216]

Mr. Ingram: A single police helicopter of the Chiltern Air Support Unit has been located at RAF Benson Station since March 1998. This arrangement is undertaken through an operating agreement between the police and RAF Benson. This agreement is in conjunction with a ground lease which has allowed Thames Valley Police to locate their own temporary building at the site. RAF Benson charges the Chiltern Air Support Unit the standard Government departmental charge for aviation fuel. The unit used a Squirrel helicopter at RAF Benson until April 1999, when it was superseded by an EC 135. No other police helicopters or any other aircraft operated by the Chiltern Air Support Unit have ever been located at RAF Benson.

Helicopters

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK helicopters are deployed in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq; what requests have been made by commanders for further helicopter support; and if he will make a statement. [82834]

Des Browne: We regularly review force levels, in consultation with commanders and based on military advice, and amend our plans as necessary. However, it has been the general policy of successive Governments not to divulge details of the military capability, including numbers of specific vehicle assets, deployed on operations, since to do so would reveal the strength and capability of UK forces operating in operational theatres, which could have bearing on our operational security, and thereby place our servicemen and women in additional unnecessary danger or potential harm. Where Ministers have, upon occasion, seen fit to release details of military capability in operational theatres, this has been in circumstances where such additional risk is judged not to apply, and greater detail can be offered in order to better inform the parliamentary debate.

Holocaust

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the work of his Department in assisting organisations who aim to enable veterans and survivors of (a) war and (b) the holocaust to share their experiences with children and young people; [79833]

(2) what support his Department gives to organisations that aim to enable veterans of (a) war and (b) the holocaust to share their experiences with children and young people. [79834]

Mr. Watson: There are a number of programmes designed to enable veterans to share their experiences with young people. Funding has been made available to support such programmes through the Veterans Challenge Fund and through regional funding for Veterans Day events. As part of its "Their Past Your Future" programme linked to the commemoration of the 60th anniversary of the end of the second world war, the Big Lottery Fund has also provided money to facilitate world war two veterans sharing their war experiences with children and young people.

We are currently discussing with the Holocaust Education Trust how we might bring together veteran liberators and holocaust survivors as part of future Veterans Day events.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to commemorate the courage and sacrifice of British servicemen made during the second world war, with particular reference to the saving of victims of the holocaust. [79852]

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to commemorate the role of British servicemen during the second world war in saving victims of the holocaust. [80256]

Mr. Watson: We owe a debt of gratitude to all those servicemen and women who served our country during world war two. The events in 2005 to mark the 60th anniversary of the end of that war provided a national commemoration of their service and sacrifices. Notable among the achievement of the armed forces was the role they played in liberating and caring for victims of the holocaust. This milestone in the war was marked in one of the commemorative booklets which the Department published on world war two under the title "The Liberation of the Death and Concentration Camps, Europe, June 1944 - May 1945." Copies are still available by request to the Veterans Helpline (08001692277)

The launch this year of an annual Veterans Day on 27 June to celebrate the contribution made by all veterans has provided another opportunity to commemorate such important events in the history of our nation. In future years we hope to bring together veteran liberators and holocaust survivors as part of Veterans Day commemorative events.

Injured British Servicemen (Treatment)

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many armed forces personnel in (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Air Force and (c) the Royal Navy who were medically discharged from the armed services for injuries sustained in Iraq in each year since 2003 are being treated at the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine at Selly Oak hospital, Birmingham; [82462]

(2) how many armed forces personnel in (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Air Force and (c) the Royal Navy who have been medically discharged from the armed services for injuries sustained in Afghanistan in each year since 2002 are being treated at the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine at Selly Oak hospital, Birmingham. [82464]

Des Browne: None. Once an individual is discharged from the armed forces the responsibility for continued medical care transfers to the NHS.

Iraq

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department has carried out strategic analyses of the experiences from the use of improvised explosive devices by the counter-insurgency in Iraq; whether he has made an assessment of whether the tactics used by the insurgents in that theatre are likely to be met elsewhere in future British Army deployments; and what the implications are for (a) force structures, (b) equipment, (c) tactics and (d) training for (i) medium-weight armoured formations and (ii) other formations intended for deployment as a rapid reaction force. [82514]

Mr. Ingram: We constantly assess all threats to UK forces deployed in theatre at the strategic, operational and tactical level, including evaluating whether these threats are likely to migrate to other theatres in the future.

The Ministry of Defence has an established process to review operational experiences, which provides the primary mechanism whereby we can translate lessons and best practice into enhanced capability. As a result force structures, for both deployed and reaction forces, equipment, tactics and supporting training are continuously evolving in order to meet counter-insurgency threats in the most effective manner. The MOD does not comment in detail on specific measures taken in order to preserve operational security, and to protect the effectiveness, capability and security of UK and coalition forces.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the costs to the UK of security operations in Iraq since 2003. [83372]

Des Browne: The cost of military operations in Iraq for the years 2002-03 to 2004-05 are:

£ million

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Operations in Iraq	629	1,051	747
Expenditure on capital equipment	218	260	163
Total	847	1,311	910

This gives an overall total of £3,068 million.

The costs of operations are calculated on a net additional basis and audited figures are published each year in the Ministry of Defence's Annual Report and Accounts.

The MOD requested resources of £1,098 million for 2005-06 in the Spring Supplementary Estimates published in February. Final figures will be published in the MOD's 2005-06 Annual Report and Accounts later this year.

Iraq Medal

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which journalists who were not employed directly as media personnel by the Ministry of Defence have (a) applied for, (b) received, (c) not yet received and (d) declined the Iraq medal. [81902]

Mr. Watson: In June 2004, media organisations with employees who deployed as war correspondents with United Kingdom forces during Operation Telic were informed of their entitlement to the award of the campaign medal in accordance with DCI Gen 170/04. As a result, the Ministry of Defence received 74 requests for the medal with clasp from entitled media personnel, of which 62 had been distributed to the recipients as at 3 June 2006. The remaining 12 are held pending collection or confirmation of required postal address. Five entitled war correspondents notified the MOD that they did not wish to be considered for the award.

The term war correspondent includes media support staff as well as journalists and broadcast reporters; thus, camera/sound crew, producers, editors, photographers and other support staff are included in the definition. These personnel are also entitled to the medal as detailed in the DCI and are included among the 74 requests made to the MOD.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80472]

Mr. Watson: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Kandahar Airport

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft are based at Kandahar airport, broken down by type; and what radar capability each type possesses. [80937]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the announcements made in the House on 26 January and 25 April 2006, the details of which remain correct. Coalition aircraft are based in Kandahar, but I am withholding the current locations and specific capabilities of each asset deployed as disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the security of the armed forces.

Lyons Review

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress his Department has made in implementing the recommendations of the Lyons review; what the targets are for the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [81424]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence is committed to relocating 3,900 posts out of the south-east as a result of the Lyons review, and is on target to meet this obligation. To date, 1,870 posts have been relocated.

The MOD does not set interim targets for the numbers of posts to be redistributed, but other relocation projects, which will allow us to meet our Lyons commitment by the deadline of 2010, are at varying stages of maturity. Where appropriate, the details of these will be announced in due course.

Helicopters

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will purchase a quantity of light observation helicopters similar to the Kiowa type used by the US armed forces, for use as routine convoy and ground vehicle patrol escorts in Iraq. [82509]

Mr. Ingram: British forces in Iraq have Lynx light utility helicopters which can be used for escort duties if commanders judge that appropriate. There are currently no plans to purchase Kiowa helicopters.

Ministerial Engagements

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 164W, on engagements, on which occasions Ministers from his Department (a) met and (b) otherwise communicated with officers from Thames Valley police between 1 July 2003 and 31 August 2003. [83605]

Des Browne: No Ministry of Defence Ministers met any officers from the Thames Valley police between 1 July and 31 August 2003, nor is there any record of any other communication.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) his and (b) each of his Ministers' official engagements were for Monday 3 July 2006. [82997]

Mr. Watson: The Defence Secretary was engaged on constituency business. His engagements included surgeries at Muirkirk, Logan, Lugar, Auchinleck, Sorn and Catrine.

The Minister for the Armed Forces spent the day visiting staff at the Defence Procurement Agency in Bristol and the Defence Logistics Organisation in Bath to brief them on changes announced in the House that day, 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 27WS.

The Minister for Defence Procurement had one meeting in his office in London with officials before conducting media interviews. He then travelled to Bristol to join the Minister for the Armed Forces before returning to London to repeat the Afghanistan statement in the House of Lords.

I attended the House for an urgent question, for which I prepared by meeting officials in the Ministry of Defence. Following the urgent question, I held a meeting with an MOD official and a meeting with my hon. Friend the Member for Dudley, North (Mr. Austin).

Osprey Body Armour

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of troops serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan have been issued with Osprey body armour. [77613]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 15 June 2006]: All troops deploying to Iraq and Afghanistan are issued with Enhanced Combat Body Armour (ECBA) as standard. The delivery of Improved Performance Body Armour (known as 'Osprey') sets to Iraq and Afghanistan is well under way, and will be provided in addition to ECBA to all personnel who require it. Delivery to both theatres is expected to be substantially complete by late autumn. I am not prepared to comment on detailed percentages as to do so would reveal the present strength and capability of UK forces and potentially compromise operational security by placing our servicemen and women in additional unnecessary danger or potential harm.

Oxfordshire Coroner

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contacts took place between departmental (a) Ministers and (b) officials and the Oxfordshire Coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 March 2004. [83886]

Des Browne: No departmental Minister or official had contact with the Oxfordshire Coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 March 2004 in connection with Dr Kelly. Liaison between the Oxfordshire Coroner and Government on this matter was through the Lord Chancellor's Department.

Personnel and Equipment Requests

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether requests from the heads of each of the armed forces for (a) personnel and (b) equipment for deployment in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan have been refused since the start of the present deployment. [81965]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Chiefs of Staff collectively consider and endorse force packages for the operations in Iraq and Afghanistan as part of the Department's process of regular review. Ministers have agreed every recommendation made by the Chiefs of Staff in relation to present deployments in either theatre of operations.

Peugeot Vehicles

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Department has spent on Peugeot motor vehicles in each of the past 10 years. [81413]

Mr. Ingram: The Department's non-operational vehicles are provided under the terms of two separate contracts, one for the United Kingdom and one for Germany. For the UK a contract was placed in 2001 with Lex Defence Management Ltd (LDM) now known as VT Land (White Fleet Management) Ltd, and for Germany in 1996 with Ryder plc. The vehicles are not owned by the Department and are provided by service contracts in output terms rather than by a specific vehicle model. A breakdown of individual model types for these contracts is not therefore available.

Information prior to the award of these contracts is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

PO Contracts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for which services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81717]

Mr. Watson: British Forces Post Office (BFPO) has an arrangement with Post Office Counters Ltd for the provision of services at Forces Post Offices counters deployed overseas. This includes the sale of postage stamps, postal orders, National Savings and investment transactions, and payments of allowances etc. in deployed forces post offices. BFPO receives a commission for providing this service. The agreement, which came into force on 24 May 1995, has now expired, although the service continues to be provided. A new contract is being re-negotiated with Royal Mail Group.

RAF Northolt

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many civilian movements are authorised at RAF Northolt; how many such movements have taken place in each of the past five years; and whether he plans to change the maximum number. [82609]

Mr. Watson: The following table shows the total number of civil commercial aircraft movements at RAF Northolt in the past five calendar years:

	Number of civilian commercial aircraft movements
2005	7,001
2004	6,999
2003	6,989
2002	7,002
2001	Below 7,000

Notes:
Specific figures for 2001 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Civil commercial aircraft movements at RAF Northolt are subject to a self-imposed limit of 7,000 per calendar year which has been in place since the 1980s.

As expressed by my right hon. Friend the Member for Airdrie and Shotts (John Reid), the then Minister of State for the Armed Forces when he informed the House on 30 June 1998, Official Report, columns 272-3, any changes to the number of civilian commercial aircraft movements would be subject to full consultation with the local authority and all interested parties.

Rarden Cannon

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the life expectancy is of the 30 mm Rarden cannon; [82430]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of rounds which can be fired by the 30 mm Rarden cannon before the barrel needs to be replaced; [82431]

(3) how many 30 mm Rarden cannons are used by the (a) Warrior, (b) Scimitar and (c) Sabre vehicles; [82432]

(4) how many of the 30 mm Rarden cannons in use by the British military will need to be replaced in the next two financial years; and at what estimated cost. [82477]

Mr. Ingram: The Rarden cannon is planned to be withdrawn from service in 2025 and there is currently no requirement to replace any cannons over the next two years. There are currently 575 cannons fitted to Warrior and 329 fitted to Scimitar. Sabre was removed from service in 2004. Each Rarden cannon barrel is changed after 3,750 effective full charges have been fired.

Service Housing

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to improve service housing. [82961]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 6 July 2006]: A Housing Prime Contract valued at some £700 million over seven years has recently been awarded which provides for the repair and maintenance of the Ministry of Defence's housing in England and Wales. Together with the Regional Prime Contract in Scotland, the Housing Prime Contract will ensure improved maintenance of housing and provide better value for money through efficiencies. The MOD expects to spend around £25 million in the current financial year to upgrade some 1,200 properties to the highest standard of condition across the United Kingdom. Our aim is to deliver a minimum of 900 upgrades per year over the subsequent four years.

Overseas, there is a major project in Cyprus, valued at £58 million, to construct 269 new service families accommodations (SFA) between April 2007 and March 2011. In addition, a rolling project valued at £20 million will refurbish SFA throughout Gibraltar, and a further project is set to deliver 12 new SFA in the Falkland Islands by the end of 2007. There is also a major project, funded by the Sultan of Brunei, to provide new SFA for the British garrison in Brunei which will run in two five-year phases from mid 2006.

Shoeburyness Ranges

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the outcomes were of the review of activities at the Shoeburyness Ranges; and whether he plans to relocate any of these activities elsewhere. [82455]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The review into demilitarisation activities at Shoeburyness was completed on schedule by the end of March 2006. I have given initial consideration to all the conclusions made by officials, including the potential for relocating some demilitarisation activities. I have asked for additional advice to inform a more detailed consideration of all the options identified by the review. When that has been completed, I will present the way forward to MPs and the public. I expect to be able to do this shortly.

Territorial Army (Records)

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Reserve Training and Mobilisation Centre records include information on the units to which members of the Territorial Army are mobilised. [45456]

Mr. Watson: The Reserve Training and Mobilisation Centre records include information on the units to which mobilised members of the Territorial Army are initially posted. They do not, however, include information on subsequent postings to other units.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what departmental land in Kent has been earmarked for release to facilitate the implementation of the Thames Gateway project; what the timetable is for release; what the forecast capital receipts are: and if he will make a statement. [83699]

Mr. Watson: It is Ministry of Defence (MOD) policy that the defence estate should be no larger than necessary for operational purposes. Land and buildings, for which there is no present or future requirement, are disposed of as soon as possible in line with Treasury guidelines. A major MOD rationalisation project that could potentially provide land for redevelopment in Kent involves the Royal School of Military Engineering private finance initiative (PFI). Their preferred bidder, Holdfast Training Services, has identified a number of sites for potential release between 2006 and 2012, primarily within the Thames Gateway. Options for taking the PFI forward are under consideration and MOD is liaising with other Departments and stakeholders. It is too early to make any decision on what land might eventually be released.

It is not our practice to release disposal valuations in advance of completion of sale, as to do so could influence the market and would not be in the interests of the taxpayer generally.

Training Exercises

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of training exercises have been cancelled in each of the past five years. [83703]

Mr. Ingram: The Defence Exercise Programme has recorded the following percentage of cancelled exercises in each of the past five years:

Financial year	Percentage
2001-02	20
2002-03	43
2003-04	34
2004-05	20
2005-06	14
2006-07 (to date in financial year)	5

While specific reasons for cancellation are not available in many cases, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost, the programme continues to be affected by competing operational priorities.

Trident

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Trident nuclear weapons programme cost in each of the past five years. [83114]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 713W, to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Lynne Featherstone).

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Academies

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the impact of academies' educational achievement in areas of educational deprivation. [82742]

Jim Knight: We have commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to carry out an independent five-year evaluation of the academies programme. The third annual report is due to be published later this month. The 2005 report concluded that there is a "significant difference in the learning culture in new Academies, compared to their predecessors" and that 97 per cent. of staff think that the principal really believes that the academy can make a difference to the pupils' learning whatever their family background. It also highlighted:

- A generally positive endorsement of the sponsors' role, particularly in terms of establishing a vision for academies and bringing to bear additional resources and expertise.
- Strongly positive feedback, particularly amongst pupils, of the role played by academy principals in terms of transforming the learning culture and raising pupils' aspirations
- Clear evidence of innovative approaches being adopted by academies to the curriculum, staffing, teaching and learning and timetabling
- Evidence of the new academies impacting positively on some aspects of pupil behaviour; and
- innovative approaches being adopted in relation to the design of new academy buildings, and broadly positive feedback from staff, pupils and parents about the overall impact of the new buildings on teaching and learning.

In 2005, academies improved results by nearly 8 percentage points compared to 2004. This is three times the national average increase of 2.4 percentage points. The average five or more A*-C GCSE results of the 14 academies with pupils sitting GCSEs was 36.4 per cent. in 2005, compared to an average 21 per cent. in their predecessor schools in 2002.

David Bell, formerly Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Schools said last year about standards in academies that "in some cases, what has been achieved in a short time is nothing less than remarkable".

Adult Learners

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research his Department has commissioned into the social profile of adult learners in West Lancashire. [83545]

Bill Rammell: The Department has not commissioned research into the social profile of adult learners specifically in West Lancashire. However, we do have some social profile information on West Lancashire adults who have been taking part in learning funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The following information is based on providers' returns to the LSC's Individual Learner Record database for the 2004/05 academic year.

A total of 6,196 adults (aged 19+) from the West Lancashire constituency took part in LSC-funded further education courses in the 2004/05 academic year. In addition, 478 West Lancashire adults took part in work-based learning courses; and 2,079 West Lancashire adults took part in adult and community learning courses. The breakdown of these adults in terms of gender, age, ethnicity and disability is shown in the following tables.

Table 1. Participation by gender

	Percentage
	Women	Men
Further education	65	35
Work-based learning	54	46
Adult and community learning	78	22

The proportion of women in West Lancashire who took part in work-based learning is higher than the national average. The proportion of women who took part in further education is also slightly higher than the national average, whereas the proportion of women in adult and community learning is the same as the national average.

Table 2. Participation by age band.

			Percentage
	19-24	25-59	60 and over
Further education	15	73	11
Work-based learning	97	3	0
Adult and community learning	4	61	35

The age profile of students in West Lancashire in these three types of learning is very similar to the national age profile of students in these three types of learning.

Table 3. Participation by ethnicity

Percentage

	White British	Any other white background	Non-white background	Not known/not provided
Further education	92	2	2	4
Work-based learning	96	0	2	2
Adult and community learning	94	0	1	5

The proportion of West Lancashire people from non-white backgrounds in all three types of learning is much lower than the national average. This reflects the low proportion of non-white people in the West Lancashire constituency.

Table 4. Participation by disability

Percentage

	Learner has a disability or learning difficulty	Learner does not have a disability or learning difficulty	No information provided by the learner
Further education	11	79	10
Work-based learning	8	90	2
Adult and community learning	8	88	4

The proportion of disabled adults in West Lancashire who took part in these three types of learning is close to the national average. Note that these learners reported their own disability status and were not assessed.

Many other aspects of the social profile of adult learners are analysed on a national basis in the Department's National Adult Learning Survey. The latest version (for 2002)[1] is available from the House of Commons Library, and the Department plans to publish the 2005 version in September.

A-levels

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many A-levels, on average, were achieved by pupils whose parents (a) both have A-levels and (b) have none in the last period for which figures are available. [84208]

Jim Knight: The following table shows estimates from the Youth Cohort Study (YCS) of the average number of A/AS-levels held by young people at academic age 18 broken down by the number of their parents who are qualified to at least A-level.

A/AS-level of attainment by academic age 18 by parental attainment

Number of parents reported as qualified to at least A-level	Average number of A/AS levels[1] attained by young person
None	0.9
One	1.6
Two	2.0

[1] AS-levels count as 0.5 A-levels

British Empire

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the draft changes to the key stage 3 curriculum about the British Empire; and whether there are plans to extend these changes to teach more on the British Empire at (a) key stage (i) 1 and (ii) 2 and (b) GCSE. [83111]

Jim Knight: The key stage 3 review is still in the early stages and these are early drafts of the new curriculum which will need further work before they are agreed. A formal consultation on the new curriculum will not begin until February 2007 and the new curriculum is not due to be implemented in schools until September 2008. It would be inappropriate to comment on the detail of any draft proposals until the QCA has carried out this further work and submitted formal advice to the Department.

There are no plans to make changes to key stage 1 and 2 or GCSE history at the moment.

Bullying

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding is planned to be made available to schools in West Lancashire for anti-bullying campaigns in each of the next five years. [83561]

Jim Knight: The Department does not make funding available to individual schools for anti-bullying purposes. However, in the current financial year we propose to make £1.4 million available to support anti-bullying initiatives. All of the organisations involved in taking forward these initiatives will be working with local authorities and other partners to help embed effective practice in schools. Budgets beyond the current financial year have yet to be decided.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will require schools to monitor and record incidents of homophobic bullying. [84209]

Jim Knight: We have no plans to require schools to monitor and record incidents of bullying, including incidents of a homophobic nature. Schools are, however, required to record details of any racist bullying incidents which occur.

Many individual schools and local authorities do record incidents of bullying, and we welcome this as best practice within our anti-bullying guidance to schools, "Don't Suffer in Silence". Furthermore, in line with commitments outlined in the White Paper, "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All" (October 2005), we shall be issuing guidance to schools in spring 2007 on how to prevent and tackle homophobic bullying.

Child Abuse

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what national records he keeps of child abuse incidents. [82085]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Education and Skills collects information annually about children's social care from all 150 local authorities with social services responsibilities in England. Information is collected and stored on the number of children who are referred to social services departments, assessments made of whether the child is in need of any services and the number subsequently placed on the child protection register. A child is placed on the child protection register when it is decided that further action to safeguard their welfare is required as the child is at a continuing risk of harm.

Class Sizes

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average class size is in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in West Lancashire constituency. [83560]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the following table:

Maintained primary and secondary schools[1]: average class size[2] 2006[3] position in January, West Lancashire parliamentary constituency

Primary	24.7
Secondary	21.3

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] Classes taught by one teacher during a single selected period on the Census day in January.
[3] Provisional.

Final 2006 class size data will be published in September.

Classroom Heating

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many school classrooms are unheated. [84219]

Jim Knight: We are not aware of any classrooms that are unheated. There are requirements for all classrooms to be heated to a minimum temperature of 18° C in the Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999 (www.legislation.hmso.gov.uk/si/si1999/99000202.htm#16) and The Education (Independent School Standards) (England) Regulations 2003.

Community Family Trusts

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills under what programme he envisages future funding for community family trusts to be provided; whether such trusts are eligible for funding from the Children, Young People and Families Grant scheme for national programmes; and what the criteria are for the scheme. [83397]

Mr. Dhanda: Community family trusts will continue to be eligible to apply for funding under the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme. The criteria for the scheme in 2007/08 have yet to be announced, but details will shortly be placed on www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/strategy/voluntaryandcommunity/cypfgrant/.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which community family trusts received funding for 2006-07; and under what grant programme such funding was made available. [83398]

Mr. Dhanda: Time for Families received funding in 2006-07, under the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme.

Deaf Children

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking to raise the educational attainment of deaf children in (a) West Lancashire and (b) Lancashire. [83558]

Mr. Dhanda: The Special Educational Needs (SEN) Code of Practice provides advice to local authorities, and schools on their statutory duties to identify, assess and make provision for children who have special educational needs, including children who are deaf. The code sets out a graduated approach to providing support. Many children who are deaf will have statements of SEN. All statements must be reviewed at least annually. The purpose of the review is to consider a children's progress, to ensure they are achieving desired outcomes and, if necessary, to amend their statements to reflect newly identified needs and provision.

In addition, the development of the new relationship with schools brings a focus on how well schools meet the needs of all their pupils. All schools will carry out an annual self-evaluation and publish a single plan setting out their priorities for improvement in which they will need to show how all their pupils are achieving. This process will highlight any gaps in achievement between different groups of children, which will then be discussed with a locally appointed school improvement partner.

The White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All" published in October 2005, which builds on "Removing Barriers to Achievement" published in February 2004, promotes a more effectively tailored education for all children with special educational needs by increasing the sharing of expertise between special and mainstream schools, by equipping the workforce with appropriate skills, knowledge, awareness and confidence and by promoting more effective measurement of, and accountability for, the progress made by pupils with SEN across a wide range of abilities. The White Paper also set out our plans for personalised learning; these include providing targeted support for groups of children who are at risk of under achieving, including those with SEN. We will spend an additional £565 million by 2007-08 to support schools to tailor teaching to the needs of all their pupils.

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81061]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's most recent data on carbon emissions covers the period April 2004 to March 2005.

Carbon emissions for the Department's five main headquarter buildings in 2004/05 were 31 kgC/M2[1].

The Department's Sustainable Development Action plan commits us to achieving the targets set out in the Framework for Sustainable Development on the Government Estate (the Framework) The Department aims to achieve this through:

Embedding Sustainable Development into all DfES operational activity thereby demonstrating more effective delivery, reduced costs and improved progress against Government targets; and Increasing awareness of sustainable development to gain wider buy-in and commitment from DfES staff.

[1] The figure presented above is based on kilograms of carbon emitted per square metre of lettable area in our HQ buildings. This figure excludes carbon emissions from road vehicles used for Government administrative operations as this information is not currently held.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what draft Bills have been produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; which draft Bills are still to be produced by his Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if he will make a statement. [81291]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Education and Skills has not produced any draft Bills for pre-legislative scrutiny since October 2005. Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Education Finance

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding Swindon received for (a) primary, (b) secondary and (c) further education in each year between 1996-97 and 2006-07. [82743]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have any figures prior to 1997-98. However, the following table sets out the total funding received by Swindon local education authority for its primary and secondary schools for the years 1997-98 to 2005-06. The Department does not collect figures for further education.

£ million

	Total funding
	Three to 10-year-olds	11 to 15-year-olds
1997-98	40.1	32.0
1998-99	41.8	33.6
1999-2000	45.6	36.0
2000-01	49.2	39.8
2001-02	51.8	41.6
2002-03	52.7	42.8
2003-04	56.9	45.3
2004-05	58.3	47.0
2005-06	61.7	48.8

Notes:

1. Total funding also includes all revenue grants in DfES departmental expenditure limits relevant to pupils aged three to 10 and 11 to 15 and exclude Education Maintenance Allowances (EMAs) and grants not allocated at LEA level.
2. Figures reflect relevant sub-blocks of Standard Spending Assessment/Education Formula Spending (EFS) settlements and exclude the pensions transfer to EFS.
3. Where responsibility for funding a school has transferred from an authority, related funding no longer appears in the series.
4. Figures are rounded to the nearest £0.1 million. Real terms at 2004-05 prices, based on GDP deflators as at 23 December 2005.
5. 2003-04 to 2005-06 figures are provisional as some grants have not yet been finalised/audited.

The following figures are taken from the new Dedicated Schools Grant. They are not comparable with those for the earlier years.

£ million

2005-06 Baseline	92.985
2006-07 DSG	99.650

Notes:

1. The figures from 1997-98 to 2005-06 are based on Education Formula Spending (EFS) which forms the Education part of the Local Government Finance Settlement, plus various grants. This is an assessment of what local authorities need to fund education rather than what they spend, in 2006-07 funding for schools changed with the introduction of the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) which is based largely on an authority's previous spending.
2. The DSG has a different coverage to EFS. EFS was made of both a schools and an LEA block to cover LEA central functions. DSG only covers the schools block, LEA block items are still funded through the Local Government Finance Settlement and cannot be separately identified. This means the two sets of figures are not comparable. A new funding series is currently being developed by the Department.
3. There are other grants that support the schools budget. These are not included in the provided DSG figures as some of these grant figures are not yet available.
4. Figures are in cash terms and include the pensions transfer.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of students receiving the education maintenance allowance have gone on to study in higher education. [83133]

Mr. Dhanda: The national education maintenance allowance (EMA) scheme was rolled out to 16-year-olds in the 2004/05 academic year and therefore these young people will not be entering higher education (HE) until the 2006/07 academic year at the earliest. Some young people may also take three years in post-compulsory education to achieve the qualifications necessary to enter higher education, or may defer entry. As a result, no data is currently available on the progression of these students into HE.

The Learning and Skills Council (which operates the scheme on behalf of DfES), is commissioning evaluation that will, when appropriate data becomes available, examine the impact of EMA on subsequent application to, and participation in, higher education.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been paid through the education maintenance allowance scheme. [83134]

Mr. Dhanda: The total amount of education maintenance allowance (EMA) payments made to students from the start of the EMA pilots in September 1999 up to the end of the financial year 2005-06, is £996.98 million.

Ergonomic Classroom Facilities

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what requirements his Department is placing on school planners to install ergonomic classroom facilities in schools under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement. [83451]

Jim Knight: The Department does not place any specific requirement on school planners to install ergonomic classroom facilities in schools under the Building Schools for the Future programme, or its other capital programmes. This is a matter for local decision-making.

However, good quality design is given a high priority within Building Schools for the Future. This includes designing all classrooms to meet the ergonomic needs of all staff and pupils, including those with special needs and disabilities, by providing adequate space and appropriate furniture and equipment.

The Department has issued a number of guides on school design including one on furniture and equipment. It has also supported the development of a school furniture website which advises on ergonomic issues in schools and it ran a furniture design competition in 2002 with the Design Council to encourage innovative designs for classroom furniture. A forthcoming guide will provide advice on all aspects of designing for pupils with special needs including furniture and equipment.

Examination Marking

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent estimate he has made of the number of newly qualified teachers marking (a) A-level and (b) AS-level papers in subjects that they have never taught; and if he will make a statement. [83606]

Jim Knight: The regulation of the examinations system is a matter for the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA). However, it does not collect or hold data relating to the backgrounds of the examiners who are employed by the awarding bodies to mark GCE A and AS-level scripts.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83616]

Mr. Dhanda: Ministers from the Department for Education and Skills have not attended any FIFA World Cup matches in Germany.

Fire Risk Assessments

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of schools have trained their staff to deal with fire safety risks. [82045]

Jim Knight: We do not have this information. However we issued guidance for schools and local authorities in our Managing Schools Facilities Guide "Fire Safety". This outlines the training that school staff should receive. See www.teachernet.gov.uk/fire.

Freedom of Information (Trust Schools)

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether trust schools will be covered by the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [84218]

Mr. Dhanda: As is the case with all maintained schools, the governing bodies of trust schools will be covered by the Freedom of Information Act.

Grammar Schools

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils were educated at grammar schools in each year since 1997. [84245]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the table.

Maintained Secondary Schools: Number (headcount) of pupils[1, 2], England

Higher Education

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the future higher education needs of West Lancashire; and if he will make a statement. [83565]

Bill Rammell: The Department works mainly through the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) on matters relating to the expansion of higher education provision in England.

HEFCE has undertaken a number of reviews, in consultation with interested bodies, of higher education provision in the north. Emanating from this has been a number of proposals for the expansion of HE provision within the Lancashire and Cumbria areas. I expect an announcement to be made later this year on these proposals, including those specific to my hon. Friend's constituency, West Lancashire.

Lockers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many secondary schools in (a) England and (b) Sutton have locker facilities for every pupil; and if he will make a statement; [83452]

(2) what plans he has to ensure that each pupil from Years 7 to 11 has access to locker facilities; and if he will make a statement. [83430]

Jim Knight: We do not collect information about provision of pupil locker facilities. The Department requires school buildings to have facilities for storing pupils' clothes and other belongings, and the Department's recommended area standards for secondary school buildings include an appropriate allowance. Schools make their own decisions about the best way to provide storage; many choose to provide lockers.

Ofsted Early Years

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many out of school services were registered with Ofsted Early Years in Lancashire in each year since 1997. [81765]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM chief inspector of schools, Maurice Smith, has written to the hon. Gentleman and a copy of his reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Maurice J Smith, dated 7 July 2006:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

You asked how many out of school services were registered with Ofsted Early Years in Lancashire in each year since 1997.

In response, the table overleaf shows two sets of figures:

1. The number of providers who registered each year who offered out of school provision.

2. The total number of active providers who provided out of school care at the end of each year.

Ofsted only took over responsibility in September 2001, thus the first full year of data shown is for 2002. The total ODC figure for 2002 is not included as we do not have published figures that go back to this time.

2003	49	229
2004	62	271

[1] Data is based on a snapshot of Ofsted's Regulatory Support Application (RSA) taken on 6 April 2006. Data relates to when providers are eligible to offer out of school provision.
[2] Data is based on unrounded December Quarterly Childcare Statistics.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Beverley Hughes and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the inter-departmental steering group for the Olympics. [81561]

Jim Knight: Helen Williams, director, Curriculum and Pupil Wellbeing, is responsible for Olympics-related activity within the Department for Education and Skills, and is the representative on the inter-departmental group.

Parent and Children Services

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures are (a) in place and (b) planned to ensure that public services for parents and children recognise and meet the needs of fathers. [84168]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government recognise the importance of involving both fathers and mothers in the public services for children and families. We are making progress on supporting fathers. For example:

we have issued guidance to local authorities that sets out our expectations of the way that Sure Start children's centres should personalise services for fathers, offering the support and opportunities they need to engage fully with their parenting role; in the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services a marker of good practice is that primary care trusts and local authorities provide targeted information and support for fathers as well as mothers; and as part of our work to encourage schools to work more closely with parents, we will particularly focus on the importance of involving fathers.

The Department will be working closely with the Equal Opportunities Commission in the future to ensure that, as local authorities and other partners plan their services for children, young people and families they are fully aware of the gender equality duty and ensure that fathers and other male carers receive the support they need to achieve the best outcome for children.

Personal Finance Education

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with the Financial Services Authority on how it plans to introduce content on personal finance education into the school curriculum in 2008. [83257]

Jim Knight: Ministers and senior officials hold regular discussions with the Financial Services Authority about personal finance education in schools, including the content of personal finance education. DfES continues to work closely with the FSA on the development of it national strategy for promoting financial literacy.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 312W, on Private Members' Bills, what estimate he has made of the cost of answering the question; and if he will make a statement; [82629]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 103W, on the Education and Skills Committee, what estimate he has made of the cost of answering the question; and if he will make a statement. [82630]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not keep a central record of the information requested. An assessment of the staff time and associated costs required to provide answers was estimated to be significantly in excess of the disproportionate cost threshold of £600.

Public Appointments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many public appointments are within his patronage; what (a) salary and (b) other emoluments are attached to each; and what the comparable figures were in (i) 1976, (ii) 1986 and (iii) 1996. [83184]

Mr. Dhanda: The numbers of public appointments made by the Secretary of State for Education and Skills and the remuneration attached to each of the chair and board member appointments of bodies sponsored by my Department are set out in the following table. There are a total of 21 chair and 249 board member appointments. The information is correct as at 1 April 2006 and covers those bodies that fall under the remit of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

The Department for Education and Skills came into existence in 2001. Comparable figures for appointments made to bodies by the Secretary of State of the Department's predecessors in 1986 and 1996 can be found in public bodies, the annual Cabinet Office publication, prepared by the agencies and public bodies team in the Cabinet Office. Copies are available in the House of Commons Library.

Pupil Absence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in each London borough missed at least half a day due to unauthorised absence in (a) primary schools, (b) secondary schools, (c) special schools and (d) pupil referral units in the last year for which figures are available, expressed as a percentage of pupils of compulsory school age. [81714]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the House Libraries.

Pupil Referral Units

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many places are available at pupil referral units in (a) West Lancashire and (b) Lancashire; what their occupancy rate is; and if he will make a statement. [83562]

Jim Knight: The information on pupil referral units (PRUs) in Lancashire and West Lancashire is set out in the table.

	Number
Number of PRU places in Lancashire[1]	709
Number of PRU places in West Lancashire[1]	40
Number of pupils attended PRUs in Lancashire[2]	248
Number of pupils attended PRUs in West Lancashire[2]	27

[1] The number of places available is reported to the Department when a local authority registers a PRU. This denotes the capacity of the PRU.

[2] Pupil numbers are collected via the annual school census and they relate to the 2005 census. The figures relate to the number of pupils on the PRU register on the day of the census.

In addition to educating pupils in PRUs, the local authority make use of other types of alternative educational provision available in the private and voluntary sector to meet the needs of other pupils who are unable to attend mainstream and special schools.

Data collected from local authorities in January 2005 showed that 947 pupils in Lancashire were benefiting in this way.

Questionnaires

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) questionnaires, (b) statistical inquiries and (c) investigations have been carried out wholly or partly at public expense on behalf of or by his Department or public bodies for which he is responsible in each year since 1997; and what the (i) nature, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost was in each case. [83185]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is not available in the format requested. To gather the information in such a way would incur disproportionate costs.

School Funding

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what funding his Department has made available for improvements to school sports facilities in (a) West Lancashire, (b) Lancashire and (c) England in each year between 1997 and 2005; [83438]

(2) what funding his Department has made available for improvements to school music facilities in (a) West Lancashire, (b) Lancashire and (c) England in each academic year since 1997. [83439]

Jim Knight: The Department for Education and Skills allocates capital funding on a local authority basis, and on a financial year basis commencing 1 April. It then relies on the local authority to spend its allocation on improving school sports facilities, music facilities and other school assets in accordance with priorities set out in the local asset management plan. Accordingly, an analysis by type of expenditure is not held centrally.

Capital allocations to (a) Lancashire county council and (b) England in each financial year since 1997 have increased significantly in the period 1997-98 to 2006-07, and are set out in the following table:

	Lancashire	£ million England
1997-98	13.3	800
1998-99	19.5	1,100
1999-2000	36.8	1,400
2000-01	42.2	2,100
2001-02	36.0	2,400
2002-03	55.5	3,300
2003-04	62.6	4,164
2004-05	44.2	4,873
2005-06	38.1	5,515
2006-07	51.2	5,755

The peaks in Lancashire funding in the years 2002-03, 2003-04 and 2006-07 are due to successful Targeted Capital Fund bids.

School Confederations

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the creation of school confederations; what assessment he has made of the willingness of schools to enter into confederations; what incentives exist to encourage this initiative; and what benefits he expects to accrue to schools that choose to participate. [83609]

Jim Knight: We know that successful partnerships can be a very effective way of improving a school at all levels and we expect that schools will wish to work with others to benefit from the partnership dividend. Schools are free to enter into a wide range of partnership arrangements, including federations. It is for individual schools' governing bodies to decide whether it is in the best interests of their schools to enter into partnerships, therefore we do not hold detailed information centrally about the number of schools involved in every type of partnership with schools or with public, voluntary and private sector organisations.

The Government are committed to promoting partnership working through Education Improvement Partnerships (EIPs) or other types of collaboration where it will deliver improved standards and increased opportunities. We are encouraging partnerships to consider local needs and determine how best to meet these through collaboration.

All schools can benefit from reciprocal support, sharing best practice, pooling resources and offering wider ranges of opportunities to children and staff. However, there is no separate dedicated revenue grant for partnership and funding for school improvement is now part of the School Development Grant.

School Discipline

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support his Department provides to teachers in dealing with badly behaved pupils. [82721]

Jim Knight: We are implementing a wide-ranging national programme to help schools manage behaviour effectively. This includes:

providing all schools with high-quality staff training materials;

giving all secondary schools access to expert advice from behaviour management consultants; providing additional resources for schools facing the greatest challenges. These are being used to fund a range of additional support including learning mentors, in-school learning support units and multi-agency behaviour support teams; and legislating to give school staff a clear statutory power to discipline pupils, extend the use of parenting contracts and orders for bad behaviour and provide a more effective exclusions regime.

School Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average expenditure was per pupil in Yeovil constituency in the (a) 1996-97 and (b) 2005-06 financial year. [83391]

Jim Knight: The information requested is collected at local education authority level. The Yeovil constituency falls within the local authority area of Somerset local authority and the information supplied is reported at the LA level.

	£ per pupil
1996-97	2,610
2004-05	3,780

Notes:

1. The combined LA and school based expenditure includes all expenditure on the education of children in LA maintained establishments and pupils educated by the LA other than in maintained establishments. This includes both school based expenditure and all elements of central LA expenditure except youth and community and capital expenditure from revenue (CERA).
2. 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the ODPM to the section 52 form from the DfES. 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) to schools and the associated restructuring of the section 52 outturn tables.
3. Pupil figures include all pre-primary pupils, including those under 5s funded by the LA and being educated in private settings, pupils educated in maintained mainstream schools and other LA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools are taken from the DfES Annual Schools Census. Private voluntary and independent (PVI) under 5 pupil numbers are taken from the Early Years census but are only included from 1999-2000 onwards. Also included are other LA maintained pupils which includes all pupils attending schools not maintained by the authority for whom the authority is paying full tuition fees, or educated otherwise than in schools and pupil referral units under arrangements made by the authority drawn from the form 8b submitted to the DfES. Also included as other LA maintained pupils are all pupils attending pupil referral units who are not registered at a maintained mainstream school drawn from the DfES Annual Schools Census. All pupil numbers are adjusted to be on a financial year basis.
4. Figures prior to 1999-2000 exclude any expenditure on service, strategy and regulation.
5. Figures are rounded to the nearest £10.
6. Cash terms figures as reported by Somerset LEA as at 5 July 2006.

School Pupils (Weapons)

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many incidents there were of pupils found on school premises in possession of (a) a knife, (b) a firearm, (c) an explosive and (d) another weapon in each of the past three years. [84143]

Jim Knight: Sixty-six people (of all ages) were convicted of possessing a blade or offensive weapon on school premises in 2004, 43 people in 2003 and 36 in 2002. There are no records of whether or not these convictions were incurred by pupils. Possession of firearms or explosives are not school specific offences, so no records are kept of whether or not they were committed by pupils or in school.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what further security measures are being considered for schools; [82723]

(2) whether the Department has considered introducing metal detectors in schools. [82724]

Mr. Dhanda: We propose to enable schools to search, without consent, a pupil they suspect is carrying a knife or other weapon. Guidance on the power to search will include advice on what equipment schools could use in searching, including metal detectors.

Skills for Life

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, Column 256W, on skills for life, which particular skill sets staff members regarded as requiring skills for life courses needed; how the requirements were identified; what grade each staff member who attended a course received at annual review (a) before and (b) after attending; and what course was taken. [82160]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's skills for life strategy targets literacy and numeracy skills for adults who have few or no qualifications and these are the skills sets the Department has identified for its skills for life provision. The skills for life course is run by a local provider, tailored to the requirements of the Department.

Learning requirements are identified by line managers in discussion with staff as part of regular development planning discussions. These discussions are a requirement of the Department's performance management arrangements and identify the development staff need to support delivery of their work objectives.

The information requested on recent annual review grades can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. But annual reviews take into account many aspects of performance and a skills for life course alone would not affect the overall grade.

Staff Development

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total cost was of (a) staff away days and (b) staff team building exercises in his Department in each of the last three years. [69039]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is not held centrally in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department is committed to helping staff to reach their full potential and believe that staff away days and team building exercises are beneficial in helping them achieve that.

Swimming

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he plans to remove swimming from the national curriculum in primary schools. [83708]

Jim Knight: The national curriculum for physical education requires that all pupils should be taught to swim at least 25 metres by the end of key stage two. There are no plans to remove swimming from the national curriculum in primary schools.

Teachers

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will make a statement on the nature of the errors and inconsistencies in the provisional Teacher Assessment data published in his Department's Statistical First Release 32/2005; [76492]

(2) what assessment he has made of the accuracy of provisional Teacher Assessment data published in his Department's Statistical First Release 32/2005; [76494]

(3) how many local authorities were affected by errors and inconsistencies in the provisional Teacher Assessment data published in his Department's Statistical First Release 32/2005. [76495]

Jim Knight: The Teacher Assessment results published on a provisional basis in SFR 32/2005 were based on data provided by schools to the National Assessment Agency's data collection contractor. When these data were made available to local authorities the Department became aware of errors. These errors may have been introduced at any point in the collection and validation process including in the original data supplied by schools. These errors are known to affect up to a third of schools spread across almost all local authorities. However in the majority of cases the error is known to be very small, and serious errors occur in less than 1 per cent. of all cases.

Prior to provision to the DfES both the National Assessment Agency and its contractor perform quality checks and data cleansing exercises on the data. However, the nature of the errors was such that they would not be easily identifiable from inspection of the data. Only when the data were made available to local authorities were they able to identify these issues. As soon as the errors were notified to the Department, they were investigated and a warning note was added to the Department's statistical website. The National Assessment Agency has already put in place system changes for data entry in 2006 such that these errors can not happen again.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers have been dismissed since 1997. [81904]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on what the estimated retention levels are of (a) newly-qualified and (b) existing teachers; and what the average number of years served by existing teachers is. [81852]

Jim Knight: Provisional estimates show that of the 20,580 newly qualified teachers in full-time regular service in the maintained sector in England in March 2003,1,800 were no longer in full-time regular service in March 2004. This is a retention rate of 91 per cent. The equivalent retention rate for all full-time regular teachers in the maintained sector in England for the same period is 89 per cent.

The average number of years served by full-time regular teachers in the maintained sector in England, as at March 2004, was 14.

Newly-qualified teachers are those that gained qualified teacher status in the calendar year 2002. The information is from the Database of Teacher Records and the latest information available from this source is for March 2004.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers have (a) retired and (b) been recruited in each year since 1997. [81907]

Jim Knight: Information on movements out of and into teaching for 1997-98 to 2003-04 is given in the following table. This includes those who have retired and those who have been recruited.

Tuition Fees

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when the independent commission on tuition fees is expected to be appointed; when the review is planned to take place; when the commission is expected to report back to Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [84181]

Bill Rammell: We have nothing to add at this stage to the commitments we gave during the passage of the Higher Education Act 2004. Our intention is that the commission will report to Parliament by the end of 2009. The commission's terms of reference are already in the public domain.

It is important that there is public confidence in the commission's work, and the Government will keep Parliament informed as practical arrangements are decided.

Young Offenders (Education)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people of school age are in custody; and what education they receive. [84276]

Mr. Dhanda: Youth Justice Board figures show that as at 7 July 2006 there were 1,356 children aged 16 and under held within custody. The specification set by the Youth Justice Board requires that all young people in custody are provided with a 25-hour a week programme, and this rises to 30 hours in secure children's homes and secure training centres, with a broad and balanced curriculum, reflecting the requirements of the national curriculum for those of school age. All young people are assessed upon entry to custody to ascertain their literacy and numeracy levels and whether they have special needs. There is specific provision for those with special needs determined by the requirements of their individual learning plan.

Youth Sport Trust

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what grants his Department has made to the Youth Sport Trust in each of the past five years. [82799]

Jim Knight: Over the past five years, the Department for Education and Skills has funded the Youth Sport Trust for work in connection with a range of programmes, as follows:

	2001/02	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05	2005/06

In addition, the Youth Sport Trust is part of the consortium (the Association for Physical Education, Sports Coach UK and the Youth Sport Trust) which successfully tendered, via an open competition, to manage the delivery of the national PE and School Sport Professional Development programme. The total value of this contract is £24 million.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Local Authority Electoral Reviews

Dr. Pugh: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission when the Electoral Commission will publish its conclusions following last year's consultations on the Commission's policies and procedures for the conduct of local authority electoral reviews in England. [84669]

Mr. Malins: The Electoral Commission informs me that it published its conclusions on 3 July 2006. The aim of electoral reviews is to ensure that, within each local authority area, the number of electors represented by each councillor elected to the council is as nearly as possible the same, taking into account local circumstances. In addition to proposing a number of procedural changes to the review process, the Commission has also proposed certain changes to legislation. Details are set out in its findings document, copies of which have been sent to all Members and placed in the Library of the House.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what advertising campaigns her Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81925]

Mr. Lammy: Since July 2004, expenditure on advertising has been as follows:

	BBC Charter	Licensing
2004-05	20,987	—
2005-06	—	139,578

Athletics

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Exchequer funding has been given to athletics in the UK in the past three years. [83705]

Mr. Caborn: For the financial period 2003-04 to 2005-06, Sport England and UK Sport made Exchequer payments to athletics of £7,180,000 and £6,988,447 respectively.

Sport in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland is a devolved matter. Funding to athletics in the home countries may also have been provided by the relevant Home Country Sports Council.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Lottery money has been given to athletics in the last three years. [83706]

Mr. Caborn: For the financial period 2003-04 to 2005-06, Sport England and UK Sport made lottery payments to athletics of £35,050,000 and £3,081,656 respectively.

Sport in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland is a devolved matter. Funding to athletics in the home countries may also have been provided by the relevant Home Country Sports Council.

Commonwealth Institute

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what correspondence she has written to (a) Ministers, (b) governors of the Institute and (c) other non-departmental public bodies on the subject of the Commonwealth Institute building in the past 12 months. [82038]

Mr. Lammy: It is a long standing convention that information relating to ministerial communications is not disclosed. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has written on one occasion to the chairman of the Commonwealth Institute. Additionally I have written on five occasions to the chairman of the Commonwealth Institute and once to the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 404W, on correspondence, what estimate she has made of the cost of answering the question; and if she will make a statement. [82634]

Mr. Lammy: It is not possible to separately identify the average cost of officials' time in replying to letters from hon. Members and members of the public. Such correspondence is often of a varied and complex nature. Therefore any exercise to determine the average cost in officials' time in responding to letters would incur disproportionate cost.

It is not possible to identify seperately stationery and postage costs for the Department when replying to correspondence from hon. Members and members of the public.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list deposited papers placed in the Library by her Department since 2000; and when they were published. [81276]

Mr. Lammy: I am depositing in the Library a list of documents deposited by the Department from January 2000 to 26 April 2006. Unfortunately our records do not give the date of publication for each document.

European Sports Review

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of the Independent European Sports Review, published in May; and where copies of the Review may be obtained. [83709]

Mr. Caborn: I am placing a copy of the Independent European Sport Review in the House Libraries. The Review can be seen online at www.independentfootball review.com.

Football

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what schemes have been funded by the Football Foundation in (a) Lancashire and (b) West Lancashire constituency since it was established. [83435]

Mr. Caborn: In Lancashire 608 projects received Football Foundation grants from all its funding streams. These include the Capital Projects Scheme, the Goalpost Safety Scheme, the Community and Education Scheme, the Small Grants Scheme and the Junior Kit Scheme.

In West Lancashire the Football Foundation has provided one grant from the Goalpost Safety Scheme, two grants from the Small Grants Scheme and 19 grants from the Junior Kit Scheme. The Foundation is currently considering the first application from the area for a major capital project.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the possible loss of income stream generated by the sale of fixture lists following the European Court of Justice ruling based on the 1996 European Database Directive; and if she will meet representatives of the Football League to discuss intellectual property rights and fixture lists. [84148]

Mr. Caborn: I have met with representatives of the Football League on a number of occasions to discuss this issue, most recently last month.

The professional Football Leagues reports that the European Court of Justice ruling will cost in excess of £6 million from lost income. The Government are working with the leagues to help them identify sources of replacement funding.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with (a) the football authorities and (b) sports governing bodies on the effect of the September 2004 European Court of Justice judgment on database rights on their organisations. [84263]

Mr. Caborn: I have met with representatives of the Football League on a number of occasions, most recently last month. I have also discussed this matter in detail with the British Horseracing Board. The Government are working with the football authorities to help them identify sources of replacement funding.

Government Art Collection

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what items of art are on loan from the Government Art Collection to HM Treasury; who the artist is in each case; and what the estimated value is of each item. [83585]

Mr. Lammy: A list of works of art on loan from the Government Art Collection to HM Treasury (1 Horse Guards Road and 11 Downing Street) is provided in a separate document. I am arranging for copies of this document to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

It is not possible to give an accurate valuation of each item. The current monetary value of a work of art can be accurately assessed only at the time of purchase or sale or by professional valuation. In the former case, the collection is not actively traded; in the latter, it would not be justifiable expenditure of public funds to have the works from the collection valued professionally.

Licensing

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many establishments have licences for 24-hour drinking; [82825]

(2) what assessment she has made of the (a) local and (b) social effects of the introduction of 24-hour drinking. [82826]

Mr. Woodward: Through the Department's scrutiny council initiative and feedback from other local authorities, local communities are engaged in the licensing process to an unprecedented level. We are confident that pubs, clubs, bars, restaurants, theatres, cinemas and other establishments covered by the new regime are now better able to respond to the demands of their customers. We estimate that around 0.5 per cent. of licensed premises (or about 1,000) have obtained a 24-hour licence to sell alcohol, the majority of which are supermarkets, hotels, off-licenses and similar premises. It is too early to determine the full impact of the Licensing Act 2003; but it is unlikely that the effect of 24-hour licences is significant given the numbers and types of premises involved. The licensing reforms are part of the Government's Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy, the focus of which is to improve identification and treatment, raise awareness of the sensible drinking message and to work with industry, ending irresponsible promotions and irresponsible alcohol retailing.

Licensing Legislation

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to include key stakeholders and residents in her Department's licensing legislation consultation and review process. [82674]

Mr. Woodward: Stakeholders and residents are being consulted on every aspect of the licensing reforms.

An independent Licensing Fees Review Panel was established by the Government in May last year to consider whether fees had been set at the right level for community groups, businesses and local authorities. The panel—which is chaired by Sir Les Elton—published its interim findings on 5 December 2005. The panel is continuing to work closely with all stakeholders in order to gather the evidence that will inform their final report, which is due to be published in the autumn.

Under the recent Scrutiny Council Initiative, officials from my Department worked with council officers and through them with local police and other responsible authorities, residents' groups, businesses and other stakeholders, to gather information about how the new regime is working on the ground.

In addition, we are conducting a review of the guidance issued under section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003. A comprehensive formal review of the guidance including a full public consultation will be completed by autumn 2006 and a revised version of the guidance will be laid before Parliament by the end of 2006.

Listed Buildings

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions since 1985 Ministers have taken decisions to de-list buildings previously listed by English Heritage. [82039]

Mr. Lammy: Decisions on whether buildings are listed or de-listed are taken by the Secretary of State. English Heritage, as the Secretary of State's statutory adviser on the historic environment, provides advice to inform these decisions.

According to records held by English Heritage, 781 buildings were de-listed between 1 January 1996 and 31 December 2005. Neither we, nor English Heritage, hold a central record of de-listings earlier than this period.

Local Authority Lotteries

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which local authorities are operating lotteries; and what revenue has been produced by each one since they came into existence. [83769]

Mr. Caborn: There are currently no local authority lotteries registered with the Gambling Commission.

Rail Franchises

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations her Department has received from organisations in the south-west region on the impact on tourism of the proposed changes to the Cross Country rail franchise. [83076]

Mr. Woodward: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not received any such representations. However, the Department for Transport (DfT) is conducting a consultation on the new franchise, which will commence in November 2007. One response has been received so far from the south-west region which relates to tourism, from Torbay borough council. DfT welcomes further responses before the deadline of 7 August 2006.

Temporary Event Notices

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many times a chief constable has given an objection notice in response to the issue of a temporary event notice under the Licensing Act 2003 in (a) England and (b) each local authority area (i) since its inception and (ii) since July 2005. [83381]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many temporary event notices have been issued in (a) England and (b) each local authority area under the Licensing Act 2003 (i) since its inception and (ii) since July 2005. [83383]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many complaints from the public there have been concerning events held under temporary event notices since they came into force; [83809]

(2) how many temporary event notices have been granted since they came into force. [83809]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally.

World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which matches (a) she and (b) other Ministers in her Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83632]

Mr. Caborn: Both my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I attended a number of games during the 2006 World Cup in Germany having received personal invitations from FIFA.

My right hon. Friend attended, in her official capacity as Secretary of State, the England v. Sweden Group B match. In my official capacity as Minister for Sport, I attended the Germany v. Costa Rica Group A match, the England v. Paraguay Group B match, the England v. Trinidad and Tobago Group B match, the England v. Ecuador second round match and the England v. Portugal quarter final match.

All travel and accommodation was arranged in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers.

The total cost of our visits to Germany including officials was £13,752.

Youth School Games

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what consideration she has given to including Blaenau Gwent in forward planning for the schools Olympics. [83670]

Mr. Caborn: The UK School Games (UKSG) will form an annual part of the preparations leading up to the Olympic Games in 2012, with the first event being staged in September 2006 in Glasgow.

On 21 June 2006, the Millennium Commission invited cities across the UK to bid to host the UKSG from 2007 to 2011. The closing date for applications for cities bidding to host the 2007 UKSG is 14 August 2006. All applications will be assessed against demanding criteria to achieve the highest quality sporting occasion. It is our hope that the successful cities will represent a good regional/country spread across the UK. It is envisaged that the successful location for the 2007 Games will be announced at the UKSG in Glasgow.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many schools in (a) London, (b) Lambeth and (c) Vauxhall constituency are involved in the UK Games to be held in September. [83714]

Mr. Caborn: This information is not available in the requested format. The UK School Games 2006 is a high level competition for talented school age young people. They will be selected by the relevant national governing bodies through their competition framework which is based around a nation or regional structure. The selection process for some of the sports involved in the 2006 games has not yet been completed.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what outside agencies have been contracted to run the youth school games to be staged in 2006; [82802]

(2) how much has been allocated to date for the youth school games to (a) the Youth Sport Trust and (b) other outside agencies; [82803]

(3) whether the contract awarded to the Youth Sport Trust for the UK school games to be staged in Glasgow for 2006 has been subject to open tendering under the provisions of the EU procurement directive for public service contracts; [82805]

(4) how much fast track is being paid to run the UK games in September; [83710]

(5) how the expenditure on the UK games in September will be monitored; [83711]

(6) whether the British Olympic Association was considered as the co-ordinating body for the UK games. [83712]

Mr. Caborn: The organisation of the UK school games this September is a matter for the Millennium Commission. In my other capacity as chair of the commission, I will write to my hon. Friend and arrange for copies of my reply to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what consideration was given to involving the (a) British Paralympic Association, (b) British Olympic Association and (c) national governing bodies for (i) athletics, (ii) table tennis, (iii) swimming, (iv) gymnastics and (v) fencing in the running of the 2006 Youth School Games. [82804]

Mr. Caborn: The Youth Sport Trust has held discussions with the British Olympic Foundation, the charitable arm of the British Olympic Association and the British Paralympic Association to integrate and embed the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games' ideals and values into the UK School Games (UKSG).

The National Governing Bodies (Swimming, Fencing, Athletics, Table Tennis and Gymnastics) have all been involved in the arrangements for the games from the outset. They are responsible for the competition format, team selection and technical requirements of their sport in this event, as well as assuming responsibility for the developmental work around the National Competition Framework and engaging the National School Sport Associations in that process.

Youth Sport Trust

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what experience the Youth Sport Trust has in running competitive (a) multi-sports events and (b) disability sports events. [82801]

Mr. Caborn: The Youth Sport Trust (YST) is managing the roll out of a new competitive sport structure for schools which includes the appointment of competition managers who will cover all School Sport Partnerships by 2010. The competitive sport structure in schools includes multi-sport events and disability sport.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) if she will list the contracts awarded to the Youth Sport Trust by the Department over the last three years; what the value was of each contract; and whether there was an open tendering process in each case; [82806]

(2) whether the Department has sought legal advice as to whether its contractual arrangements with the Youth Sport Trust fall under the EU Procurement Directive for Public Service Contracts. [82807]

Mr. Caborn: There have been no contracts awarded to the Youth Sport Trust by the Department over the past three years. Therefore it has not been necessary for the Department to seek legal advice on any contractual arrangements.

Sport England has awarded over the past three financial years (2004-07) the following funding to the Youth Sport Trust to deliver programmes within the National School Sport Strategy.

Step into Sport—£5.7 million

Multi-skill Clubs—£880,000

WALES

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81050]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office in conjunction with the Department of Constitutional Affairs is committed to reducing carbon emissions, and will be working towards the Government's targets for sustainable development announced on 12 June 2006 by the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. We are working with the Carbon Trust, which is auditing our energy use and will suggest where we can improve. The car leased by the Wales Office for ministerial travel is dual fuel and has very low emissions. We have committed from 1 April 2006 to the Carbon Offset scheme for any air travel.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83629]

Mr. Hain: None.

Police Houses

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Home Secretary on the merits of the reintroduction of police houses on housing estates in Wales. [83672]

Mr. Hain: None.

Questionnaires

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many (a) questionnaires, (b) statistical inquiries and (c) investigations have been carried out wholly or partly at public expense on behalf of or by his Department in each year since 1997; and what the (i) nature, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost was of each. [83166]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office was established in July 1999 and since that time have carried out none.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

10 Victoria Street

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to his answer of 5 December 2005, Official Report, column 1002W, on 10 Victoria street, what progress has been made in re-letting the property. [83067]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Of the nine floors in the building, all but two have been sublet.

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what average hourly rate was paid by his Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81490]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The arrangements for employing temporary agency staff in the Department are delegated to local line management units. Managers must follow central guidance on the use of temporary agency staff, and where appropriate, use centrally agreed frameworks.

We do not hold information centrally on the average cost of temporary agency staff. This information could be made available only at disproportionate cost.

Bankruptcy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the numbers of farmers who went bankrupt in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the South West region in each of the last five years. [82182]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The closest available estimate for bankruptcies among self-employed farmers is that for bankruptcies falling under the category "agriculture" according to the Insolvency Trade Classification.

Regional insolvency statistics are only available on the basis of the locations of Official Receivers offices, each of which cover a group of county courts where the cases are heard and the courts having jurisdiction over these. The following table provides the statistics considered to be closest to those requested, but they should not be treated as a precise measure of these. In particular, the Exeter and Bristol offices will cover many but not necessarily all of the cases in the county of Somerset; they will also include cases from neighbouring counties:

Bankruptcies in England and Wales for Agriculture, 2001-05

	Yeovil County Court	Exeter OR's Office[1]	Bristol OR's Office	South West Region (OR-based)
2001	1	2	11	25
2002	4	9	3	26
2003	4	4	3	38
2004	0	3	10	37
2005	5	10	5	50

[1] Exeter OR's Office covers the following county courts: Barnstaple, Exeter, Newton Abbot, Shaftsbury, Torquay and Yeovil

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many individuals entered into bankruptcy in each quarter since 2001, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [82130]

Mr. McCartney: Bankruptcy statistics are not available by parliamentary constituency; they are broken down by Official Receivers (ORs) offices and broad regional groupings of these. Quarterly bankruptcies for England and Wales for each financial year from 2001-02 to 2005-06 are provided on the table placed in the Libraries of the House.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many and what proportion of people aged between 16 and 24 years declared themselves to be bankrupt in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82912]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Official bankruptcy statistics are not routinely analysed by age group and to provide the information requested would incur disproportionate cost.

However, the Insolvency Service published the report "Characteristics of a bankrupt" in March 2006 which included an analysis of bankruptcies by broad age groups for the financial years 2001-02 to 2004-05 and is available from http://www.insolvency.gov.uk/insolvency professionandlegislation/policychange/cob.pdf It should be noted that the nearest age band in this report to that requested is for those aged 18-29; the following table provides a summary based on this information.

Bankruptcies in England and Wales, 2001-02 to 2004-05, for those aged 18-29

Biomass Energy Generation

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what grant funding is available for (a) micro domestic combined heat and power units which are run on biomass, (b) on-farm power generation which uses biomass and (c) town-size power plants using locally-produced biomass. [80269]

Malcolm Wicks: Grants for a number of microgeneration technologies producing heat and electricity are available to householders under the new Low Carbon Buildings Programme (LCBP). Stream One of the LCBP provides grant support for householders and applications are now being taken. The LCBP is managed on behalf of the Department by the Energy Savings Trust and full details are available on the LCBP website at www.lowcarbon buildings.org.uk.

Support for small biomass CHP schemes may also be available from The Big Lottery Fund. The fund has £2.6 million available to support the installation of heating systems and small-scale combined heat and power systems fuelled by solid biomass. End users of the systems must be either public sector or commercial organisations. Domestic installations are not eligible for support. The closing date for applications is 31 July 2006 and further details can be found on the fund's website at:

http://www.biglotteryfund.org.uk/prog_renewable_energy .htm?regioncode=-uk&country=UKWide&status=theProg.

There are presently no grants specifically for on-farm biomass power generation—however on-farm power generation may be an eligible renewable source under the Renewables Obligation.

There is currently no capital funding available for town-size power plants. Funding for such projects had been available under the Bioenergy Capital Grants Scheme, which is supporting the construction of projects with an installed capacity of at least 30 MW in Lockerbie and in Teesside. Town-scale biomass projects may also be eligible for the Renewables Obligation and grants under DEFRA's Energy Crop Scheme.

Business

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department has taken to increase enterprise in Hartlepool constituency since 1997. [80548]

Margaret Hodge: The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) has, over the last nine years, initiated and been closely involved with a wide range of measures aimed at creating the best possible environment for business success in the UK. Each year the Department directly invests over £400 million nationally in grants, loans and subsidised consultancy to stimulate enterprise and assist business growth. The Department—directly, through public sector agencies and in association with the business community—delivers a comprehensive suite of business support measures including direct grants for investment and R and D, subsidised loans and encouragement of collaboration, knowledge transfer and the adoption of best practice.

The Enterprise Act, which received Royal Assent in 2002, covers a range of measures designed to enhance enterprise. It strengthens the UK's competition framework, transforms our approach to bankruptcy and corporate rescue, and empowers consumers. The Act builds on the progress made by the Competition Act 1998, recent insolvency reforms and measures already implemented in the 1999 White Paper "Modern Markets: Confident Consumers".

As well as actively promoting measures to address competition, the burden of regulation and company law, the Department has been closely involved with a significant number of initiatives to promote an enterprise culture and to help with business funding. These include the establishment of the Task Force on Women's Enterprise, the commitment of over £100 million for Enterprise Capital Funds, the Schools Enterprise Education Network and the Enterprise Promotion Fund.

Specific responsibility for economic development and increasing enterprise in the North East of England falls to regional development agency One NorthEast. The agency administers a number of business support schemes on behalf of the DTI, and has worked with regional partners to create a single regional Business Link network that will deliver top quality business support services and will be easy to access and easy to use. The agency is also developing and delivering a significant programme aimed at bringing about a lasting cultural change in attitudes towards entrepreneurial activity across the North East of England, including raising aspirations of the region's young people, and under-represented groups. One NorthEast is also a key supporter of the Launch Pad initiative being developed through the North East Enterprise Bond. The Bond is an innovative, private sector led, initiative which will provide proactive support towards stimulating a greater enterprise culture in communities across the North East of England.

Although there are no specific DTI initiatives aimed at promoting enterprise in Hartlepool, the national and regional initiatives mentioned—along with other public funding being used to establish of business incubator units and provide business start-up advice and tailored local business support measures—will contribute to stimulate enterprise within the town.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what effect he expects the provisions of the Company Law Reform Bill to have on directors' duties in respect of the human rights of employees and the local community in relation to their operations in Zimbabwe. [77690]

Margaret Hodge: Clause 158 of the Company Law Reform Bill requires directors to have regard to the interests of the company's employees and the impact of the company's operations on the community and the environment in promoting the success of the company for the benefit of its members collectively. The duty applies regardless of where the directors are and regardless of the location of the employees or the location of the local community affected by their decisions.

Clause 399 requires all companies, other than those subject to the small companies regime, to produce a business review as part of the directors' report. Information on the company's employees and the local community in which the company operates must be included in the review where relevant to provide a balanced and comprehensive analysis of the company's business consistent with the size and complexity of the business.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many businesses in Bexley borough (a) started up and (b) ceased trading in each of the last nine years; and if he will make a statement. [81946]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. DTI data on the number of VAT registrations and de-registrations in Bexley borough in each year from 1997 to 2004 are shown in the following table. Data for 2005 will be available in autumn 2006. For comparison, the start of year stock of VAT-registered businesses is also given.

VAT de-registrations and registrations 1997 to 2004

Bexley borough	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004

Source:
Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994 to 2004, Small Business Service, available from the Library of the House and also at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/vats.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register will not necessarily have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

In Bexley borough VAT registrations exceeded de-registrations every year except 2004. The proportional increase in the stock of VAT registered businesses from 1997 to 2004 was bigger for Bexley (16 per cent.) than for England as a whole (13 per cent.).

Regional disparities in start-up and closure rates can have their root in the different economic history and different opportunities available in each region. The Government's aim is for every region to achieve success and good economic growth, which is why increasing resources have been put at the disposal of each Regional Development Agency.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many firms have ceased trading in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the South West in each year since 1997. [82139]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of independent retail shops which (a) opened and (b) closed in Yeovil constituency in each year since 1997. [82140]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity.

Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register may not have closed. In the retail sector 63 per cent. of enterprises in the UK (200,000 out of 320,000) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

Cigarettes

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his Department had any discussions on ignition propensity in cigarettes at the European General Product Safety Directive Committee on 13 and 14 June. [84358]

Mr. McCartney: I refer the hon. Member to my answer given to the hon. Member for North-West Leicestershire (David Taylor) on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 863W.

Company Law Reform Bill

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the percentage of British companies which will be required to make reports on (a) environmental matters, (b) employee relations, (c) social and community issues and (d) relations with suppliers under the Business Review provisions of the Company Law Reform Bill. [80873]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 28 June 2006]: The Company Law Reform Bill provides that all companies, apart from small companies, will continue to be required to produce a Business Review. Quoted companies (approximately 1,300 companies) will need to include certain defined information to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the company's business. They will need to report on the main trends and factors likely to affect the future development, performance and position of the company's business. They will need to report on (a) environmental matters (including the impact of the company's business on the environment), (b) the company's employees, and (c) social and community issues. Directors will judge whether to report on their relationships with suppliers where this is necessary to provide a balanced and comprehensive analysis consistent with the size and complexity of the company's business.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether it is his intention that lobbying of members of a company regarding the policies of the company by non-members should be a proper purpose for requesting a copy of the company's register of members under Clause 115 of the Company Law Reform Bill. [82698]

Margaret Hodge: It is likely that a court would consider proper any communication which is made for a lawful purpose and is relevant to either the holding of interests recorded in the register or the exercise of rights attached to them. Those who lobby others, whether or not they are members of a company, need to avoid straying into intimidation, harassment or blackmail, and to bear in mind relevant legislation such as the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 and sections 145-148 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005.

Compensation

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the average damages recovered by the 10 law firms with the greatest volume of claims were in the vibration white finger and chronic bronchitis and emphysema schemes. [83122]

Malcolm Wicks: The average damages recovered by the 10 solicitors with the most claims submitted for each scheme are set out in the following tables:

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79937]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

It would therefore be inconsistent for a Government Department to favour credit unions above other financial institutions.

Employees are of course free to join in credit unions if they meet their relevant membership criteria and Departments may provide appropriate levels of support if employees wish to set up a credit union.

Electricity Transmission System

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which body is responsible for carrying out strategic environmental assessment of plans to upgrade the electricity transmission system in the UK. [84129]

Malcolm Wicks: The EU directive on strategic environmental assessment applies to authorities who are required to produce plans or programmes which set the framework for future development consent of projects. No such plans or programmes for overhead lines have been produced.

Energy Policy

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 223W, on energy policy, if he will add to the information available the results of the polling and focus group research conducted in preparation for the publication of the Energy White Paper in March 2003. [81975]

Malcolm Wicks: The consultation on the Energy White Paper included a range of public opinion sampling exercises that included: focus groups, deliberative workshops, web-based stakeholder consultation, and an energy policy questionnaire used at a "Tomorrow's World" Roadshow. Reports from all these activities were freely available on DTI's website until May this year when the website was re-designed and some of the older material removed.

I am placing copies of these reports in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research he has conducted into the competitiveness of (a) the UK and (b) other industrial economies in terms of (i) energy costs and (ii) government subsidies. [83155]

Malcolm Wicks: April 2006 estimates suggest that:

Industrial electricity prices in the UK including taxes were above the EU15 median for all consumers except the smallest, where they were around the median.

Industrial gas prices including taxes in the UK were below the EU15 median for small consumers, but above the EU15 median for medium and large consumers. UK domestic electricity and gas prices for medium consumers remained below the EU median.

However, historically prices to industrial users have been below the EU median, and right up to October 2005 industrial prices were no higher than the EU median except for the very largest energy consumers. (Source: DTI Quarterly Energy prices; http://www.dti.gov.uk/files/file30734.pdf).

Independent research by Oxford Economic Research Associates shows that in 2004 the UK had the most competitive electricity and gas markets in the EU and G7. The extent to which markets are assessed as competitive is based on factors such as the degree of market opening, the market shares of suppliers and the separation of transmission and distribution activities. This report is available at:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/files/file28425.pdf.

We have not conducted any in depth research into the competitiveness of the UK and other industrial countries in terms of government subsidies in the energy sector. The UK's experience shows that by giving clear investment signals to market players, competitive energy markets are the best way of maintaining secure and sustainable energy supplies, increasing efficiency and improving services for customers.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the cost to households in the UK of the EU not implementing its energy policy in relation to gas. [82975]

Malcolm Wicks: The lack of a liberalised gas market in Europe has had a detrimental impact on the UK gas market recently. Without a liberalised market European energy companies face gas prices linked to oil prices, and dulled incentives for investment in infrastructure, balancing supply and demand efficiently, competitive pressures to compete and ability to export in response to price signals.

In a Global Insight report commissioned by Centrica and published in the summer 2005, it was estimated that the lack of effective liberalisation and the dominance of oil-linked long-term supply contracts in Europe would cost UK end-consumers (household and industrial) some £10 billion over following year (see www.centrica.com/index.asp?pageid= 799&newsid=743). It was estimated that £4.3 billion of these costs would be borne by households.

In addition, Ofgem analysis suggests that the cost to UK consumers of Interconnector flows not always being in line with price signals during the last winter was £1.5 billion, and would cost £3 billion if repeated during the coming winter (www.ofgem.gov.uk/temp/ofgem/cache/cmsattach/14649_Sonia_10_April_Final_notes_version.pdf?wtfrom=/ofgem/work/index.jsp&section=/areasofwork/wholesalemarketmonitoring).

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what state subsidy other European countries give to help companies who are intensive users of energy. [83156]

Mr. McCartney: Direct support for energy costs is normally illegal under European state aid rules. However, companies which happen to be energy intensive users can legitimately benefit from a variety of aids, for example regional aid or aid for research and development, as long as these aids have been duly notified to and approved by the European Commission.

Details on aids granted by other member states can be found in the Commission's State Aid Scoreboard at:

http://ec.europa.eu/comm/competition/state_aid/scoreboard/2006/spring en.pdf.

Methyl Tertiary Butyl

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of potential carcinogenic effects from the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether as a fuel additive. [80820]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 25 June 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

This has been transferred to the Department for Work and Pensions for reply. The toxicology of methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) has been considered extensively by various Expert Groups reporting to the European Commission's Directorates-General for Environment, Employment and Social Affairs and the Joint Research Centre, and globally by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) and the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC). All these Committees have considered the data concerning the potential carcinogenic properties of MTBE and have concluded that it is not carcinogenic in humans. My Department has not directly assessed the potential carcinogenicity of MTBE.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether he has any plans to visit Bexley borough. [83483]

Malcolm Wicks: I have no immediate plans to visit Bexley.

Mobile Phones

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what guidance has been issued to the mobile telecommunications industry on the provision of information on handset specific absorption rates (a) at all points of sale, (b) with each telephone and (c) via other means including the internet. [79585]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 26 June 2006]: In 2000 the mobile operators and telecommunications industry received guidance based upon the Stewart report "Mobile Phones and Health, May 2000", published by the Independent Expert Group on Mobile Phones (IEGMP).

The Government agreed with the Stewart report's recommendations, which complies with international exposure guidelines that consumers should be able to get information about specific absorption rates (SAR) when:

purchasing a phone at point of sale; online via the internet; and in or on the product's packaging.

The Government then agreed with the mobile operators and telecommunications industry that the provision of such information should be the responsibility of the mobile phone manufacturers.

In September 2005, the Department of Health produced advice about SAR levels in their two leaflets on "Mobile Phones and Health", which said that users might wish to take account of relative SAR values when choosing a mobile phone, while pointing out that all models sold in the UK already meet the international exposure guidelines. The leaflets are available from: http://www.dh.gov.uk/ Exposure from mobile phones and the provision of information on SAR values was also discussed in the follow up publication to the Stewart report "Mobile Phones and Health 2004" (http://www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/documents_of_nrpb/abstracts/absd15-5.htm para 61-68 page 28-29).

In 1998, a European body called the International Commission on Non-Ionizing Radiation Protection (ICNIRP) first issued international exposure guidelines on limiting people's exposure to electromagnetic fields. The ICNIRP is an independent international scientific organisation formally recognised by the World Health Organisation.

The International Telecommunication Union (ITU) and the World Health Organisation (WHO) recommended that EU member countries that had no specific regulations on SAR levels for their mobile telecommunications industry, should voluntarily adopt the standards recommended in the ICNIRP guidelines. The UK's mobile network operators accepted this approach.

The Mobile Manufacturers Forum, a European industry body representing most large manufacturers, publishes SAR levels for handsets on its website http://www.mmfai.org/

Nuclear Power

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what contribution the UK has made to the discussion of nuclear policy options in the Energy Position Paper being drafted for the G8 meeting in St. Petersburg in July. [82096]

Malcolm Wicks: The UK has been fully involved in all discussions on energy security with our G8 partners, recognising that there is a range of positions within G8 on nuclear energy and that the UK's position is subject to the outcome of the Energy Review.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent assessment he has made of the safety of (a) the Hinkley Point nuclear power station and (b) similar stations. [84119]

Malcolm Wicks: None. The UK's independent safety regulator, HSE's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, is responsible for carrying out such assessments.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will reply to question number 70906, on EU committees, tabled by the right hon. Member for Wells on 11 May 2006. [81514]

Mr. McCartney: The question was answered on 3 July 2006, Official Report, columns 857-58W.

Paternity Leave

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to make a decision on the implementation date of new rights for additional paternity leave. [82403]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is the Government's intention to introduce additional paternity leave and pay alongside the extension of statutory maternity pay, maternity allowance and statutory adoption pay to 52 weeks and our aim would be to do so by the end of this Parliament. This will provide an opportunity for an equal division of paid leave between mothers and fathers and allow an equal responsibility for caring for their child during its first year.

The Work and Families Act 2006 takes broad powers to provide certain employees (generally fathers) with a new entitlement to take leave to care for a child and a new entitlement to receive pay while on leave, if certain conditions are met.

We recently consulted on the detail of the additional paternity leave and pay scheme and are currently analysing the responses received. We have had a large number of responses from a variety of interested parties and our aim is to publish a Government response setting out the next steps in the near future.

Personal Debt

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what advice and support services are available for people aged between 16 and 24 years for dealing with personal debt; what steps he is taking to raise awareness of such services; and if he will make a statement. [82916]

Mr. McCartney: We are taking action to help those with personal debt problems as outlined in the Governments 2004 "Tackling Over-indebtedness: Action Plan" and the subsequent 2005 annual report. Examples include the recently launched £45 million Face-to-Face Debt Advice Project, that will result in hundreds of new debt advisers and the £1 million per annum support given to the National Debtline phone service. Such assistance is open to people of all ages.

Photovoltaic Solar Panels

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the cost of converting each (a) new house, (b) existing house, (c) new office and (d) existing office to photo-voltaic solar panels. [79696]

Malcolm Wicks: In addition to the Major PV Demonstration programme with a budget of £3½ million, the Government have spent £10 million on photovoltaic field trials since 2000, which will provide information on operating performance, reliability and the maintenance of building-integrated PV. However, specific information on the likely costs of installing photovoltaic panels on all new and existing homes and offices was outside the scope of this work. As a rough estimate the costs to install 1 kW of photovoltaic solar panels is in the region of £6,000 and electricity usage of a typical house would require 4.5 kW of PV. In terms of an office, it is difficult to provide similar estimates, as it would depend on the size, occupancy, equipment used and other variables.

Pistol Exports

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment was made of compliance with the UK Government's obligations under the Wassenaar Agreement before the approval of the re-export of 20,000 Italian Beretta pistols to Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [82429]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government are satisfied that it was fully compliant with its Wassenaar obligations in this case.

Post Office

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post offices closed in (a) Yeovil constituency and (b) Somerset in each of the last 10 years. [82145]

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for which services contracts with the Post Office are held on a Government-wide basis; and what the (a) start and (b) termination date is of each contract. [82156]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Post Office Ltd. (POL) provides services to Government through commercial contracts with individual Departments and local authorities. POL views these contracts as commercially confidential.

Privacy and Electronic Communications Directive

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department takes to ensure that charities comply with the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003. [81588]

Margaret Hodge: My officials hold frequent discussions with the Information Commissioner's Office, which is responsible for the enforcement of the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003.

The Information Commissioner's Office publish guidance on their website (http://www.ico.gov.uk/eventual.aspx?id=96) covering the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003, this includes guidance for charities. The Information Commissioner's Office respond to complaints about charities breaching the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003 in the same way that they respond to complaints about other companies.

Shops

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of independent retail shops that have (a) opened and (b) closed in Beverley and Holderness in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82498]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. DTI data on the number of VAT retail business registrations and de-registrations in Beverley and Holderness constituency from 1997 to 2004 are shown in the following table. For comparison, data on the stock have been provided.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register may not have closed. In the retail sector 63 per cent. of enterprises in the UK (200,000 out of 320,000) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

The number of VAT registrations and de-registrations in Beverley and Holderness across all sectors from 1997 to 2004 is shown in the following table. Since 1997 the overall stock of businesses in Beverley and Holderness has risen by 7 per cent.

VAT registrations and de-registrations and start of year stock in Beverley and Holderness (all sectors), 1997-2004

Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2004, Small Business Service, available from the Library of the House and also at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/vats.

Business closures are part of the functioning of a dynamic economy and represent an increased willingness among the business population to take risks or the displacement of less productive and innovative firms by more productive ones. Research indicates that improvements in productivity and economic growth are more likely to come from higher levels of both business entry and business exit.

Regional disparities in start-up and closure rates can have their root in the different economic history and different opportunities available in each region. The Government's aim is for every region to achieve success and good economic growth, which is why increasing resources have been put at the disposal of each Regional Development Agency.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of independent retail shops that have (a) opened and (b) closed in the Stroud constituency in each year since 1997; and what percentage each figure represents of the total number of independent shops in the constituency in each year. [82036]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures. DTI data on the number of VAT retail business registrations and de-registrations in Stroud, and as a percentage of the stock from 1997 to 2004 are shown in the following table. South West Regional Development Agency

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the (a) budget and (b) estimated costs of running the South West Regional Development Agency are for 2006-07; and how many civil servants are employed by the agency. [82123]

Margaret Hodge: The 2006-07 grant in aid budget for the South West of England Regional Development Agency is £159 million and their approved budget for administration costs is £21.2 million. The agency employs 277 public sector workers.

Sustainability

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the work which has been carried out under the aegis of the DTI Sector Sustainability Challenge to embed the principles of sustainable consumption and development across the commercial sector; and if he will make a statement. [82480]

Malcolm Wicks: The £100,000 Sector Sustainability Challenge was jointly funded by DTI and DEFRA. The challenge provided funding for organisations to promote, develop and implement sectoral sustainable development in ways that stimulate practical actions that will lead to improved performance.

My officials are currently reviewing the Sector Sustainability Challenge with DEFRA and the Sustainable Development Commission. We will consider running a further challenge once the evaluation is complete.

The Sustainable Consumption and Production Action Plan which is due to be published later this year, will look at work already done on Sustainable Consumption and Production and consider what more needs to be done, including continuing engagement with business to push the agenda forward.

Tidal Lagoon Electricity Generation Project (Swansea)

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the viability of the proposed tidal lagoon electricity generation project in the Swansea bay area; and if he will make a statement. [83479]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI has previously commissioned an independent assessment of a proposed tidal lagoon scheme in Swansea Bay available at:

www.dti.gov.uk/files/file30617.pdf?pubpdfdload=06%2F1051

Trade Descriptions Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the operation of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968; if he will list the statutory instruments that have been made under this Act; and what recent representations he has received on the operation of the Act. [82890]

Mr. McCartney: The following statutory instruments have been made under the Trade Descriptions Act:

SI 1981/1223 Trade Descriptions (Country of Origin) (Cutlery) Order 1981

SI 1980/1150 Trade Descriptions (Sealskin Goods) (Information) Order 1980

SI 1996/2757 Trade Descriptions (Place of Production) (Marking) Order 1988

SI 1996/2757 Trade Descriptions (Place of Production) (Marking) (Revocation) Order 1996

The Department has received no recent representations about the operation of the Act as such. However, the Department's recent consultation on the implementation of the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive canvassed a number of options for the Act, including amendment and repeal. The responses to this consultation are at present under consideration.

United Utilities

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many firms have been recorded by Ofgem as having been made to wait longer than a month by United Utilities for (a) an electricity connection, (b) a water connection and (c) a gas connection; how many of those firms have had to wait longer than (i) one to three months, (ii) four to six months, (iii) seven to 12 months and (iv) 12 months; if he will ask the regulator to encourage United Utilities to consider compensating the most severely affected firms; and what plans the regulator has to work with the company to resolve the situation. [82992]

Malcolm Wicks: As the hon. Member notes in his question, standards of performance measures are for the independent regulators of the respective markets, Ofgem for electricity and Ofwat for water. I have sent a copy of this question to the Chief Executive of both organisations.

Waste to Energy Incinerator

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what waste conversion processes will be used for the energy from the waste power station to be built in Belvedere, south east London. [84524]

Malcolm Wicks: It will be a reciprocating grate incinerator design.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received following his decision to approve the Waste to Energy Incinerator in Belvedere; and if he will make a statement. [82719]

Malcolm Wicks: Four letters have been received criticising the decision.

Wind Energy

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will arrange for (a) the report on wind energy development in the West Midlands commissioned jointly by the Government Office and Advantage West Midlands from TNEI Services Limited in 2004 and (b) the appendix to that report entitled Urban Wind Energy Sites in Staffordshire to be (i) published, (ii) sent to the hon. Member for Newcastle-under-Lyme and (iii) placed in the Library. [83741]

Margaret Hodge: The Government Office West Midlands has consulted with colleagues within Advantage West Midlands and can confirm that the full report published in June 2004 is held on the Government Office website. Please follow link http://www.gos.gov.uk/gowm/docs/177226/394405/Wind_Capacity_Study_-_West1.pdf

It should be noted that the appendices referred to in the final report do not refer to Urban Wind Energy Sites in Staffordshire and that to the best of ours and Advantage West Midlands knowledge no such appendix exists.

Work and Families Bill

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to publish draft regulations on the definition of carer in the Work and Families Bill. [82259]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We ran a consultation on the draft regulations on flexible working, which closed on 25 April 2006. We will bring forward the draft regulations towards the end of this year. The new law is due to come into force from April 2007.

NORTHERN IRELAND

2011 Census

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when a decision will be taken about the inclusion of questions on knowledge of Irish and Ulster Scots in the 2011 census in Northern Ireland. [82879]

Mr. Hanson: Proposals for the 2011 census, including the topics and questions to be included will be brought forward in a White Paper, currently planned for the autumn of 2008. These proposals will take account of consultation with users, the testing and evaluation of options and the balancing of different requirements. The final content of the census will ultimately be determined through the legislative process in the form of a census order and census regulations, probably around 2010.

Asbestos-related Illness

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has been made of the number of individuals who have been diagnosed with asbestos-related illness in the Province in each of the last 10 years. [83782]

Paul Goggins: The number of people diagnosed with asbestos-related illness in Northern Ireland is not available.

Information is available on the number of those admitted as inpatients to hospitals in Northern Ireland, with a diagnosis of asbestos-related illness.

The following table details the number of admissions[1] to hospital with a primary or secondary diagnosis of asbestos-related illness, for each year between 1995 and 2004 (the latest calendar year for which data is available). It should be noted that any individual could have been admitted to hospital more than once over the course of a year or over a number of years and would therefore be counted more than once in the table.

Hospital Admissions—Northern Ireland

	Number
1995	106
1996	124
1997	123
1998	156
1999	166

Cancer

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been diagnosed with cancer in Northern Ireland in the last three years; what estimate he has made of how many of them have experienced a consequent loss of income; what the estimated average loss of income experienced by cancer patients was in the same period; what financial support is available to cancer patients; and what steps his Department has taken to inform cancer patients of the support available to them. [83043]

Paul Goggins: The following table details the incidence of all cancers (ICD-10 COQ-D48) in Northern Ireland for 2001-03, the most recent three year period for which data are available.

	All cancers	All cancers (excluding non-melanoma skin cancer[1])
2001	8,667	6,510
2002	9,114	6,737
2003	9,219	6,805
Total	27,000	20,052

[1] Non-melanoma skin cancers which have an excellent prognosis and are rarely fatal, are frequently excluded when quoting incidence statistics

This information has been provided by the Northern Ireland Cancer Registry.

The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety has made no estimate of the number of cancer patients experiencing a loss of income following their diagnosis or the average loss of income. Many people find that a diagnosis of cancer affects them financially and, depending on their individual circumstances, they may be entitled to financial assistance in the form of state benefits. Current practice in the HPSS is for nursing staff to discuss these issues with cancer patients and, where appropriate, to refer them to social work staff who will provide advice on social security benefits and sources of information.

The Social Security Agency's Disability and Carer's Service contact centre assists with applications for disability living allowance (DLA), attendance allowance (AA) and carer's allowance. People affected by cancer can also avail of the special rules scheme within DLA and AA which enables terminally ill patients to have their applications fast-tracked. An award of either benefit under special rules will mean the patient will receive the highest rate payable for help with personal care.

The Social Security Agency has worked, in conjunction with Macmillan Cancer Support, to identify and address the barriers facing cancer patients when they need to access benefits. This work has resulted in enhanced cancer awareness training for Agency staff; an information booklet for patients and carers "Help with the Cost of Cancer" was launched in March 2005; and an outreach service of Specialist Benefit Advisers for those with cancer has been piloted.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the total cost (a) of screening for cervical cancer, (b) arising from management of those with abnormal cervical findings and (c) of treating patients with cervical cancer in the Province in 2005-06. [83723]

Paul Goggins: The total cost of screening for cervical cancer in 2005-06 was planned to be £856,000.

Information is not readily available on the costs of managing those with abnormal cervical findings or for treating those patients with cervical cancer. These would have been included in the £40.4 million planned expenditure for all types of cancer.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make provision for docetaxel to be made available on the NHS to those with late stage prostate cancer in Northern Ireland. [83754]

Paul Goggins: Additional funding of £21 million has been allocated for specialist drugs in 2006-07 and 2007-08. Of this sum, £6 million has been earmarked for cancer drugs. It is for health and social services boards, as commissioners of services, to prioritise how funding is used, taking into account the competing demands and pressures in their areas and the strategic objectives and priorities of my Department. Health and social services boards' investment plans for 2006-07 include proposals to fund the introduction of docetaxel for the treatment of late stage prostate cancer at a projected cost of £195,000 per annum.

Chief Electoral Officer

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the recruitment process for the new Chief Electoral Officer for Northern Ireland; and on what date (a) the post was advertised, (b) the post was offered to the successful candidate and (c) the appointment was approved by him. [68553]

Mr. Hanson: The recruitment of the Chief Electoral Officer for Northern Ireland was by a full and open competition. The appointment was based on merit and applicants both at the sift stage and at the interviews had to satisfy the essential competences required for the post.

The post was advertised in the press and on the Northern Ireland Office and Cabinet Office websites on 12 December 2005.

It is not Government practice to disclose information relating to when appointment decisions were taken and when successful candidates were notified as the disclosure of such information could inhibit the frankness and candour of future internal discussions.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many candidates (a) applied and (b) were shortlisted for the post of Northern Ireland Chief Electoral Officer; and how many of those candidates were (i) women and (ii) from an ethnic minority community. [68557]

Mr. Hanson: Fourteen candidates applied for the post of Chief Electoral Officer for Northern Ireland; three of the applicants were women.

Six candidates were shortlisted; two of the shortlisted candidates were women. There were no applications from an ethnic minority community.

Child Services

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the plans are for the expenditure of the funds allocated for (a) Child and Adolescent Crisis Response Teams under Theme 5: Child Protection and (b) Rapid Response Child Protection Teams under Theme 6: Children with Special Needs and Disabilities in 2006-07; and what the timetable is for the expenditure in each case. [83688]

Paul Goggins: An outline structure for Rapid Response Child Protection Teams under Theme 5 of the Children and Young People Funding Package has now been developed through a cross health and social services board and trust working group led by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety. An approach to implementation of this revised structure is currently being agreed with a view to immediate rollout. An investment of £1.85 million has been allocated to establish teams and expenditure will begin to be incurred following agreement to the implementation strategy in September 2006.

Health and social services boards are developing proposals on the allocation of £0.5 million in 2006-07 and £1.0 million in 2007-08 to establish Child and Adolescent Crisis Response Teams under Theme 6 of the Children and Young People Funding Package. The Department expects to receive the final proposals within the next few weeks to allow the recruitment process in each board area to begin in the autumn.

Departmental Expenditure

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent on advertising by (a) each Department in Northern Ireland and (b) the Northern Ireland Office in each of the last three years. [70460]

Mr. Hanson [pursuant to the reply, 17 May 2006, Official Report, c. 1009W]: I should inform the hon. Gentleman that the figures provided for four Northern Ireland Departments were incorrect. The figures for DOE, DFP and DHSSPS were transposed—the amounts stated were correct but attributed to the wrong Departments. In the case of DSD, an incorrect figure was given. I apologise to the hon. Gentleman for this error.

Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the introduction of discrete capital values in relation to domestic rates will be revenue neutral. [83012]

Mr. Hanson: The revaluation of domestic properties in Northern Ireland in the form of discrete capital values is not in itself about increasing revenues, rather it is about redistributing the rating burden among households in a fairer way. Domestic rate increases usually apply every year in line with Budget plans, however, in the year of revaluation, 2007-08, the Government have set a 6 per cent. increase for the regional rate, which is significantly below the recent trend increases. District rate increases are a matter for the individual district councils.

EU Membership

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the effects on Northern Ireland of UK membership of the EU since 1997. [64599]

Mr. Hanson: The EU has had a positive benefit for Northern Ireland since 1997. I have placed in the Library an overview of the main effects of membership of the European Union across the wide range of Northern Ireland's main sectoral policy areas. However, it is apparent that the social, economic and environmental fabric of the region has clearly benefited from EU legislation, EU funds and the Internal Market.

For example, NI exports to EU countries accounted for 54.2 per cent. of all manufacturing exports in 2004-05. Over the period 1997-98 to 2004-05, manufacturing exports to the European Union as a proportion of total manufacturing sales increased from 17 per cent. to 18.3 per cent.

From 1997-98 to 2003-04, NI manufacturing companies' export sales in constant prices to the European Union were estimated to have increased by 32 per cent. from £1.7 billion to £2.3 billion. In 2004-05, following the accession of 10 candidate countries, export sales to the European Union rose to £2.4 billion. NI exports to the new member countries were estimated to be worth £54.3 million in 2004-05.

In addition approximately £1.821 billion in Structural Funds between 1997 and 2006 has co-financed large-scale infrastructure projects such as the North-West gas pipeline, significant investments in roads and rail services, support for business creation and development, training and education measures, promotion of tourism and cultural heritage, urban and rural development, information technology infrastructure, as well as support for the agriculture and fisheries sectors.

While the provision of £775 million up to 2006 under the PEACE programme has enabled many thousands of economic and community-based social inclusion projects to directly address the legacy of the conflict and to take the opportunities arising from peace.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in each Northern Ireland Department, including the Northern Ireland Office, stayed overnight in (i) five star, (ii) four star and (iii) three star hotels in each of the last three years. [69230]

Mr. Hanson: Departments use a hotel booking agent to book hotel accommodation for civil servants and special advisers. The information held does not identify the rating of the hotel. Information in relation to 2003-04 is not available however, the average cost of an overnight stay over the period 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2006 was:

	Average rate per night (£)
2004-05	88.51
2005-06	91.91

Procurement

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will take social considerations into account in procurements by his Department and its agencies and non-departmental public bodies. [80986]

Mr. Hanson: Northern Ireland Procurement Policy applies to all Government Departments, their agencies, non-departmental public bodies and public corporations.

The procurement process is governed by 12 guiding principles, one of which requires procurement policy to pay due regard to economic and social policies, rather than cut across them.

The Central Procurement Directorate issued procurement guidance, in 2004, approved by the Procurement Board, which outlines the range of possibilities for integrating social considerations into public procurement in Northern Ireland under the existing procurement rules.

School Staff

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many employees of education and library boards in Northern Ireland have had their employment (a) terminated and (b) altered as a result of investigations into school staff who may pose a risk to children in each of the last three years. [83755]

Maria Eagle: The number of employees of education and library boards in Northern Ireland who have had their employment (a) terminated or (b) altered as a result of investigations into schools staff who may pose a risk to children in each of the last three years is detailed as follows:

Education and library boards

	Terminated	Altered
2003-04	4	2
2004-05	—	—
2005-06	—	—

Note:
School staff covers teaching and non-teaching staff.

School Violence

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1986W, on school violence, if he will break down by education board area the number of school pupils in the Province who have been suspended for (a) attacks on teachers and (b) bullying in each of the last three years; and how many such pupils were expelled in each case. [83690]

Maria Eagle: From the 2002-03 school year, statistics on the reasons for suspension have been gathered annually from each education and library board and relate to the number of individual suspensions not to the number of pupils suspended.

Table 1 details the number of individual suspensions[1] for physical attacks on staff, in each education and library board, for the 2002-03 to 2004-05 school years:

Table 1: Physical attacks on staff

Education and Library Board	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Belfast	75	73	84
Western	99	72	49
North Eastern	91	49	31
South Eastern	64	79	57
Southern	36	47	21
NI Total	365	320	262

Table 2 details the number of individual suspensions[1] for bullying other pupils, in each education and library board, for the 2002-03 to 2004-05 school years:

Table 2: Bullying other pupils

Education and Library Board	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Belfast	53	73	66
Western	52	64	67
North Eastern	66	84	71
South Eastern	57	49	60
Southern	61	71	58
NI Total	289	341	322

The reasons for expulsion were first collected in 2003-04. The numbers involved are relatively small and are not disaggregated between education and library boards because of the risk that a school/pupil may be identifiable.

Table 3 shows the total number of pupils expelled for physical attacks on staff and bullying other pupils, for the 2003-04 and 2004-05 school years:

Table 3

	2003-04	2004-05
Physical attacks on staff	7	7
Bullying other pupils	0	2

[1] The count of occasions is based on each incidence of suspension, where an incident is defined as a count from the first day a pupil was suspended until the last day suspended. In previous years, the count of occasions was based on each record of suspension identified by the education and library boards, where in some instances, longer periods of suspension may have had more than one record. This change is due to an improvement in the data collection systems for suspensions in the education and library boards which has enabled better analysis of the data. As a result, the number of occasions pupils were suspended in 2004-05 has decreased from previous years. However, care should be taken when comparing the number of occasions in 2004-05 with the number of occasions in previous years.

Sex Offenders Register

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons on the Sex Offenders Register in Northern Ireland have been prosecuted for failing to comply with notification of change in address requirements; and if he will make a statement. [81818]

Mr. Hanson: The Sexual Offences Act 2003 requires an offender to notify the police of a change of their notified details (such as name or address) within three days of the change taking place. Breach of the requirements is an arrestable offence and may result in a term of imprisonment of up to five years.

The Police Service of Northern Ireland has confirmed that one person was reported for prosecution in 2005-06 for failing to notify the police of a change in address. There were no prosecutions in the previous three years. This low figure is largely a result of an overall high compliance rate with the requirements, however the PSNI pursue a policy of actively seeking to trace offenders who fail to comply.

Sexual Health

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the incidence was of sexually transmitted diseases among (a) under and (b) over 16-year-olds in Northern Ireland in each year since 1995. [83753]

Paul Goggins: The information in the table gives details for the total number of episodes (for selected diagnoses of sexually transmitted infection), seen for care at GUM clinics, in Northern Ireland since 1995. This is available by age group and is shown in the following table .

	(a) Number of sexually transmitted infections in under 16 year olds	(b) Number of sexually transmitted infections in over 16 year olds
1995	11	2,065
1996	[1]	[1]

2. Selected diagnoses for 1995 are: Postpubertal uncomplicated Chlamydia; Postpubertal uncomplicated gonorrhoea; Infectious syphilis; Anogenital herpes simplex (first attack) and Anogenital warts (first attack).
3. Selected diagnoses and codes for 1998 and onwards are: Uncomplicated genital Chlamydia; uncomplicated gonorrhoea; primary and secondary infectious syphilis; Anogenital herpes simplex (first attack) and Anogenital warts (first attack).

Sexual Orientation Strategy

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the draft Sexual Orientation Strategy will be published; and what the reasons were for the delay in publication. [81817]

Mr. Hanson: The draft Sexual Orientation Strategy is to be published following close working with and the involvement of the lesbian, gay and bisexual sector. It is our intention to publish the draft strategy for consultation in the autumn.

Students with Learning Disabilities

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many students with a learning disability within each of Northern Ireland's hospital trust areas will (a) transfer at age 19 years in the current academic year from Education Service responsibility to Health and Social Service responsibility and (b) will be offered full adult day care provision by the Department of Health and Social Services as befits their needs; what processes exist within the Department of Health and Social Services to ensure adequate forward planning to meet the needs of those clients in transition from the education sector; and if he will make a statement on the level of provision for such clients within the health and social services sector. [81814]

Paul Goggins: The information required to answer parts (a) and (b) of this question is not held centrally and will take some time to collate. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as the information becomes available and place a copy in the Library.

The boards determine the needs of their population and allocate resources to meet these needs. Day care services provided through the Health and Social Services Boards and Trusts are for those individuals who will be unable to access services provided elsewhere. Additional investment in day care will continue to be made for those who do not have access to any other form of provision, such as further education, skills training or employment.

Superannuation Entitlements

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 796W, on superannuation entitlements, when he expects the outstanding cases in (a) the Northern Ireland Office and (b) the Southern Health and Social Services Board to be concluded. [82972]

Paul Goggins: The Department cannot give any commitment as to when cases brought by part-time employees before the industrial tribunals will be completed. This is a matter for the tribunal. The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety and the Southern Health and Social Services Board are parties before the tribunal and have no special influence on when cases may be listed.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by him and his officials are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81402]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Carmichael) on 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 820W.

Energy Review

Paul Flynn: To ask the Prime Minister which submissions to the Energy Review he has read (a) in full, (b) in part and (c) in summary; and what criteria he used to determine this selection. [83633]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Oldham, West and Royton (Mr. Meacher) on 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1874W.

Extradition

Peter Luff: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he has had with (a) the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and (b) the Home Secretary on the impact of extradition arrangements to the United States on the UK's commercial relationship with that country. [83820]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Casinos

James Duddridge: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what (a) discussions and (b) meetings he had with (i) Thames Gateway, (ii) Thames Gateway South Essex, (iii) the East of England Development Agency and (iv) Southend-on-Sea borough council regarding the possibility of a single bid for a regional casino being entered from the Thames Gateway region. [84115]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have not discussed the possibility of a single bid for a regional casino being entered from the Thames Gateway with any organisation.

Departmental Budget

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to his answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 787W, on the departmental budget, when he plans to publish the Department's annual report and accounts. [83406]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Shortly after the end of the current financial year, as is the usual time for Government Departments.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether, during his visit to Texas and the USA, (a) he and (b) his officials met (i) representatives of Canatxx Ltd. and its associated companies and (ii) representatives of the gas storage industry. [84037]

The Deputy Prime Minister: No.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Child Care (Tax Relief)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer about extending tax relief on child care. [82884]

Meg Munn: The Government have a vision that families will be able to afford flexible, high quality child care services that are appropriate for their needs. To further this aim, the Government have directed substantial help with child care costs for low to moderate-income families through the child care element of the working tax credit. To engage employers with employees' child care needs, the Government have also introduced an income tax and national insurance contributions exemption on £55 per week of employer-supported child care. This combination of tax relief and tax credits is working to ensure that every child gets the best start in life and that parents have more choice about how to balance their work and family life.

The Ministers for Women and Equality bring a gender and equalities perspective to issues such as child care by sitting on several high level Cabinet Committees, including domestic affairs.

Flexible Working

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what information the Government have issued to women on their right to flexible work. [82886]

Meg Munn: The Department for Trade and Industry, the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service (ACAS) and the direct.gov website provide guidance for employees (men and women) on the right to request flexible working. The direct.gov website has three interactive tools which help employees make applications to work flexibly. ACAS provide leaflets and also operate a helpline, answering queries from both employees and employers on employment matters including flexible working.

Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Act

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Act 2002. [82883]

Meg Munn: We have not yet carried out a formal assessment of the effectiveness of the Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Act 2002, which enables political parties, if they wish to do so, to use positive measures to reduce inequality between the number of men and women selected as election candidates for their party. However, an independent report published by the Hansard Society in 2005 found that all-women shortlists are the quickest and most effective means of delivering equal representation.

Sex Industry

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent discussions she has had with the Solicitor-General on increasing the number of cases brought by the Crown Prosecution Service and the prosecution rate in relation to women being forced to work in the sex industry. [82976]

Meg Munn: As a Member of the Ministerial Group on Human Trafficking, I work closely with ministerial colleagues including the Solicitor-General to ensure that provision for victims is sensitive to women's needs. The prosecution rate has been discussed at meetings of the Group.

To date there have been 30 convictions (in 16 separate cases) for trafficking for sexual exploitation, resulting in sentences of between two to nine years on specific counts—although convictions for several counts have resulted in sentences of up to 21 years.

Tax Credits

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many working women have been awarded funds from the child care element of working tax credits; and if she will make a statement. [82885]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The estimated number of working women who benefited from the child care element of child and working tax credits for 2005-06, as at 3 April 2006, is around 367,000. Around 123,000 were part of a couple and 244,000 were single.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1590W, on Afghanistan, what assessment she has made of whether the Afghan Government's plans to establish community police units under the control of the Ministry of Interior will include adequate vetting procedures; and if she will make a statement. [81718]

Margaret Beckett: Given Afghanistan's recent history and the destruction of administrative capacity, detailed vetting procedures will not be in place. The Afghan Government are currently working on the details of President Karzai's community police initiative. President Karzai has given assurances that the units will be under the control of the Ministry of Interior. Their purpose is to deliver stability in some rural areas. We and international partners are maintaining a dialogue with the Afghan Government as their plans evolve.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of UK funding for Afghanistan is administered through the (a) UN, (b) EU and (c) UK embassy in Kabul; and if she will make a statement. [81733]

Margaret Beckett: In financial year 2005-06, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), the Department for International Development (DFID) and the Afghanistan Drugs Inter-departmental Unit provided £157 million in bilateral assistance to Afghanistan. 15 per cent. of this funding was administered through the UN and 44 per cent. was channelled through the World Bank administered Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund. The remaining 41 per cent. was administered directly by the FCO and DFID in both London and Afghanistan.

Separately, in terms of multilateral assistance through the UN and EU, the UK provided 19 per cent. of the €1 billion pledged by the EU to Afghanistan between 2001 to 2006. The UK continues to provide core funding through its yearly commitment of £160 million to UN Agencies, a number of which operate in Afghanistan.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of patterns of cultivation and production of cannabis resin in Afghanistan over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [81736]

Margaret Beckett: The UK has not made any assessment regarding patterns of cultivation and production of cannabis resin in Afghanistan over the last five years. However, according to the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime 2006 World Drug Report, Afghanistan was the third largest source of cannabis resin, after Pakistan and Morocco, over the period 1999-2003.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what strategy is in place to ensure equal implementation of poppy counter-narcotics programmes across different provinces in Afghanistan. [81737]

Margaret Beckett: The UK is supporting the Government of Afghanistan to implement its National Drug Control Strategy (NDCS) to target the trafficker and the trade, strengthen and diversify legal rural livelihoods, build effective counter-narcotics institutions and reduce domestic demand. Co-ordination of assistance takes place nationally via the Afghan Ministry of Counter Narcotics (MCN) and the Counter Narcotics Cabinet Sub-Committee, which brings together all relevant ministries to oversee and monitor the implementation of the strategy across Afghanistan. The Ministry of Counter Narcotics has identified seven priority provinces (Helmand, Kandahar, Balkh, Farah, Badakhshan, Uruzgan and Samangan) which account for the highest levels of opium poppy cultivation in 2005. Poppy Elimination Programme teams have been established in these provinces and are tasked with increasing public awareness of the counter narcotics campaign and assessing the effectiveness of governor-led elimination programmes.

Additionally, the Department for International Development is spending £130 million over the next three years on strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods through the Afghan Government's National Programmes. MCN and the Ministry of Rural Reconstruction and Development are also working to establish a database of legal rural livelihoods implementation across all provinces in order to improve the co-ordination and targeting of assistance.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Carmarthen East and Dinefwr (Adam Price), of 30 March 2006, Official Report, column 1127W, on Afghanistan, what factors the UK Government took into account in deciding that legal cultivation of opium for legitimate medicinal export was not viable. [82507]

Dr. Howells: The UK supports and agrees with the Government of Afghanistan's position that licensing opium cultivation in Afghanistan for medical export is not a realistic solution to the problems of the opium economy in Afghanistan. Legalisation risks a high level of diversion of licit opium into illegal channels and, by sending out a mixed message to farmers, threatens to undermine the effectiveness of the Government of Afghanistan's counter narcotics campaign. There are no central Government and law enforcement mechanisms in place to set up and administer such a proposal and the trafficker would be free to continue to exploit the illicit market.

There has also been no systematic market testing throughout the world to calculate demand for additional morphine-based medicines and no evidence to show that Afghan opium would be price competitive in a global market place.

The UK is supporting the Government of Afghanistan to tackle the drugs problem through a balanced and comprehensive strategy involving strengthening the rule of law and providing alternative livelihoods for poppy farmers.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) she and (b) officials in her Department have received representations regarding a UN report on human rights abuses in Afghanistan by the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights; and if she will make a statement. [82715]

Mr. McCartney: An Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) report on human rights abuses in Afghanistan was completed in January 2005, but has not been published. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not received representations about the report.

We continue to work closely with the OHCHR, the Afghan Government, the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission and international partners to improve respect for human rights in Afghanistan, to strengthen capacity building, and to build on the Afghan Government's many achievements since the fall of the Taliban regime.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whose responsibility it is to reduce the area contaminated by mines and exploded ordnance in Afghanistan in accordance with the commitments laid out in the Afghanistan Compact; and what progress has been made. [82858]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The United Nations Mine Action Centre for Afghanistan currently has de facto responsibility, on behalf of the Government of Afghanistan, for the planning, management and oversight of the Mine Action Programme for Afghanistan (MAPA). Progress continues to be made towards meeting the benchmarks laid out in the Afghanistan Compact. During financial year 2005-06, MAPA decreased the number of highly effected communities by almost 42 per cent. During this period, MAPA cleared 136,371,592 square metres of contaminated land, releasing 19 per cent. of the mine and unexploded ordnance area. It is estimated that 716 square kilometres of land was still contaminated by the end of the financial year.

The UK is playing its part. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office/Department for International Development/Ministry of Defence Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) continues to provide funding to UN and non-governmental organisations weapons and ammunition destruction programmes in Afghanistan. In financial year 2005-06, the GCPP contributed over £2 million to such projects.

Antarctic

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her policy is in respect of tourism in the Antarctic. [83887]

Mr. Hoon: The Antarctic Treaty preserves Antarctica for peace and science. Within this framework, however, tourism is a legitimate activity, providing it is undertaken safely and in line with the Protocol on Environmental Protection to the Antarctic Treaty 1991.

Nevertheless, tourism activities continue to increase in the Antarctic Treaty Area and the UK has taken a leading role within the Antarctic Treaty Consultative Meetings to ensure that safety and environmental concerns continue to be addressed. This has included, for example, securing agreement to require all tourism activities to have detailed search and rescue, insurance and contingency plans.

The vast majority of Antarctic tourism takes place under the self-regulatory framework established by the International Association of Antarctica Tour Operators (IAATO). IAATO sets stringent environmental standards for Antarctic tourism operators and manages the annual tourism traffic to Antarctica. The UK supports this self-regulatory framework, for example by restricting access to UK Historic Sites and Bases to IAATO operators, and works with IAATO to further enhance the management of Antarctic tourism.

Arms Trade Treaty

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress was made towards achieving an international arms trade Treaty at the UN Review Conference on Small Arms in June; and if she will make a statement. [84078]

Dr. Howells: The Government fully supports the initiative for a legally binding International Arms Trade Treaty to cover the trade in all conventional arms. We are leading the way in building the international consensus needed to secure agreement to the start of a formal process toward a treaty at the UN General Assembly this autumn. The UN Programme of Action on Small Arms and Light Weapons only covers a specific category of conventional arms and is part of a process that is politically, not legally binding. The Review Conference was not the right forum to progress the treaty initiative. However, we were pleased to see that a range of countries used the meeting as an opportunity to express support for work towards a treaty.

Burma

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations have been made by her Department to Total Oil on their investments in Burma. [78256]

Margaret Beckett: We have made no recent representations to Total Oil about their investments in Burma.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place between her Department and Rolls-Royce on its contracts with companies owned and controlled by the Government of Burma. [78257]

Margaret Beckett: We have recently discussed this with Rolls-Royce. We have no reason to believe that these contracts breach the EU Common Position on Burma.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to the Governments of (a) China and (b) Russia on the discussion of Burma at the UN Security Council; and what the outcome was of those discussions. [79910]

Margaret Beckett: The Chinese and Russian Governments currently do not support a discussion and resolution on Burma at the UN Security Council. We shall continue to encourage all Security Council members to support action to persuade the Burmese regime to promote political, economic and social development.

My right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, Ian McCartney, raised the situation in Burma with the Chinese Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs on 20 June and asked that China support a Security Council debate and resolution on Burma and encourage the Burmese Government to meet their human rights responsibilities. He also raised Burma with the Chinese ambassador on 21 June. Additionally, in his meeting of 13 June with the Chairman of the UK Friendship Group of the China National People's Congress, my right hon. Friend encouraged Chinese engagement to help resolve international issues. I have not made representations to the Governments of China and Russia regarding Burma.

There have also been discussions at official level with the Chinese and Russian Governments.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the prospects for securing UN Security Council (a) debate and (b) a resolution on Burma. [80120]

Margaret Beckett: It is too early to make an assessment of the prospects for securing a UN Security Council debate or resolution on Burma. The Chinese and Russian Governments do not support such a debate or resolution. We shall continue to work with all Security Council members to support action to persuade the Burmese regime to promote political, economic and social development.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information the Government have received on whether North Korea (a) is training Burmese nationals in nuclear technology and (b) has transferred missile technology to Burma. [82540]

Dr. Howells: The Government are aware of media reports from 2002-03 which alleged possible clandestine assistance from North Korea to Burma's military in the construction of a nuclear reactor. As a party to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, Burma has undertaken not to seek nuclear weapons, but has the right to pursue peaceful nuclear technology. Russia is assisting Burma, through the International Atomic Energy Agency's (IAEA) Technical Co-operation Organisation, to acquire a research reactor. This reactor would be under IAEA safeguards.

There were also reports, in 2004, that North Korea had offered surface-to-surface missiles to Burma.

The Government have received no specific information on either of these issues or on the training of Burmese nationals in nuclear technology.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports the Government have received on the regime in Burma sending soldiers to Russia for military and nuclear technology training. [83207]

Mr. McCartney: Burma's Deputy Foreign Minister U Khin Maung Win acknowledged in January 2002 that Burma had received "a proposal" from Russia to build a nuclear research reactor. Burma has also publicly noted that it continues to send trainees to Russia. We understand that there are currently over 1,000 students, the vast majority of them from the military: some of these are studying nuclear technology. We have no information on current levels of military co-operation between Russia and Burma.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports the Government have received relating to uranium exported by Burma to Russia, China and North Korea being re-exported to other countries. [83209]

Dr. Howells: We are not aware of any exports of uranium from Burma. Burma maintains that its limited uranium production is for domestic research into the peaceful use of nuclear power.

Chad

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the recent actions of Janjaweed militias in Chad; and what representations she has made to the Government of Chad about protecting refugees. [83296]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 July 2006]: We are aware that Chadian rebels and Darfur militia continue to mount cross-border attacks into Eastern Chad from Darfur, which has led to the displacement of 50,000 Chadians. We are also aware of reports of Darfur rebels continuing to be supported by Chad. We are pressing the Government of Sudan to neutralise and disarm the Janjaweed and expel foreign fighters from Darfur as soon as possible, as required under the Darfur Peace Agreement. We are also pressing both Governments to fulfil their obligations under the Tripoli Agreemen

While in Chad leading a UN Security Council delegation in early June, our Permanent Representative to the United Nations in New York raised the refugee camps with President Deby and encouraged him to ensure their full protection.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list in date order (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by her Department since October 2005. [81300]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has produced the following non-treaty Command Papers since October 2005:

Second Report from the Foreign Affairs Committee, Session 2005/06, Foreign and Commonwealth Office Annual Report 2004-05, Response of the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Cm 6791, 22 May 2006; and Third Report from the Foreign Affairs Committee, Session 2005/06, Public Diplomacy, Response of the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Cm 6840, 7 June 2006.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what draft Bills have been produced by her Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; which draft Bills are still to be produced by her Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if she will make a statement. [81301]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not produced any draft Bills since October 2005.

Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in Her Majesty the Queen's Speech.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [81302]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is not a Department with a heavy legislative programme. Subject to our international obligations, our practice is to seek a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Formal and informal consultation is a key part of the policy making process. The FCO holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations, which abide by the Code of Conduct on Consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the Department gives feedback on the response received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Consultation documents inviting comment are circulated through direct contact with appropriate organisations and published on the FCO website:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1017170970560

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the Deposited Papers placed in the Library by her Department since 2000; and when they were published. [81304]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has placed 610 items in the Library of the House since 2000. The Library keeps a list of the documents including their date of deposit which I will forward to the hon. Member.

Detainees (Inter-state Transfers)

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the Council of Europe's report on alleged secret detentions and unlawful inter-state transfers of detainees involving Council of Europe member states; and what response she has made to the findings of the report at paragraph 10.5 in relation to the case of Benyam Mohammed Al Habashi. [83564]

Dr. Howells: Dick Marty's report of 7 June entitled "Alleged secret detentions and unlawful inter-state transfers involving Council of Europe Member States" contains no new evidence in respect of the UK.

In the case of Benyam Mohammed Al Habashi, he was interviewed once by a member of the UK Security Services in Karachi in 2002, but the Security Services had no role in his capture in or transfer from Pakistan.

Drugs

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the UN Office on Drugs and Crime regarding drug production and trafficking in (a) Pakistan and (b) Iran; and what assessment she has made of the effects of the level of production on the National Drugs Control Strategy in Afghanistan. [83217]

Mr. McCartney: Pakistan and Iran are major drug trafficking transit countries to Europe. Production in these countries is much less significant than in Afghanistan. The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) World Drugs Report of 2006 quotes 2,400 hectares of opium cultivated in Pakistan compared to 104,000 in Afghanistan in 2005. Iran cultivation figures do not feature. Regional co-operation is, however, an important element of the Government of Afghanistan's National Drug Control Strategy and efforts are being made to improve information sharing and develop closer working relationships with the neighbours with particular respect to border control, law enforcement and judicial co-operation. This is vital in order to crack down on drug trafficking and ensure that cultivation does not move across Afghanistan's borders into neighbouring countries. In 2005 the UK funded £1.55 million of regional projects, of which £618,000 was contributed to the UNODC Iran integrated border management project on the Iran/Afghan border. In 2006 we are funding £1 million of regional projects of which £400,000 is allocated to UNODC regional precursor control projects.

The UK has regular dialogue with the UNODC on drug trafficking in Pakistan and Iran. This is undertaken both on a multilateral and bilateral level. On the multilateral level, the UK is a strong supporter of the UNODC-managed Paris Pact process, a mechanism to co-ordinate action by all countries affected by the Afghan opiate trade, and plays a high profile role in these meetings. This provides an opportunity to work with priority transit countries to combat the trafficking of heroin from Afghanistan to Europe. At the Islamabad and Tehran Paris Pact meetings in March and September 2005 respectively, the UK pressed both UNODC and the international donor community to support our regional counter narcotics priorities. These are to develop operational cross border liaison, regional precursor control, and law enforcement training and equipment for Pakistan, Iran and Central Asian Republics bordering Afghanistan.

On the bilateral level, UNODC recognise that UK funding in support of UNODC programmes in Iran and Pakistan has been very helpful in allowing us jointly to address a range of counter narcotics issues. Our Missions in Tehran and Islamabad enjoy good relations and regular dialogue with the local UNODC offices. The UK has also played an active role in the development of a UNODC regional strategy for the countries along Afghan drug-trafficking routes.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate (a) she and (b) the UN Office on Drugs and Crime has made of the size of the Afghan poppy crop in 2006. [83282]

Dr. Howells: It is too early to assess overall levels of cultivation in 2006, but a significant increase seems likely following last year's 21 per cent. fall. This is worrying and due in part to a substantial increase in planting in the more lawless south, including Helmand Province. We will know this year's cultivation figures when the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime publishes its annual opium poppy survey in the autumn. There are some signs, however, that last year's reductions are likely to be sustained in areas where access to governance, security and development has improved. Sustainable drug elimination strategies take time, particularly when the challenges are as severe as they are in Afghanistan. The UK believes that the approach set out in the Government of Afghanistan's newly updated National Drug Control Strategy represents the best means of tackling the problem.

EU Veto

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in which areas the UK's veto in EU matters has been relinquished by means other than a treaty since 1997. [81901]

Mr. Hoon: Outside the amendment of the EU Treaties, there are four passerelle provisions in the current treaties which allow changes from unanimity in voting rules. They are article 42, treaty on European Union, and articles 67(2), 137(2) and 175(2), treaty establishing the European Community. Only the passerelle provision in article 67(2) has been activated to change the voting in certain areas of title IV from unanimity to co-decision and qualified majority voting. But it is for the UK to decide on a case by case basis whether or not it wishes to opt in to any measure adopted in such an area, as set out in the protocol on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland in respect of the treaty of Amsterdam.

Foreign Affairs Committee

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 352W, on the Foreign Affairs Committee, what estimate she has made of the cost of answering the question; and if she will make a statement. [82636]

Mr. Hoon: We did not make a precise estimate of the cost of answering the hon. Member's question. The answer I gave on 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 352W, was based on the fact that it was evident that to provide the information in the form requested would exceed the currently agreed threshold for answering hon. Members' written questions.

Guantanamo Bay

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she plans to take action in response to the recent British Medical Association motion calling on the Government to send a team of physicians to Guantanamo Bay to seek unfettered access to detainees. [83426]

Dr. Howells: The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) has been visiting detainees held at Guantanamo Bay since January 2002. Medical personnel are included in each ICRC visiting team. We do not see the case at the moment for a visit by a specifically British team, as suggested by the British Medical Association.

Human Cloning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs why the United Kingdom voted against the declaration on human cloning at the United Nations General Assembly; which countries (a) voted in favour, (b) voted against and (c) abstained on the resolution; if she will place in the Library copies of the United Kingdom delegate's voting instructions on this resolution; what discussions she had with the United States delegation at the United Nations about this resolution; whom she consulted before opposing this resolution; what representations she received from (i) individuals and (ii) organisations in support of the resolution; and if she will make a statement. [83046]

Mr. McCartney: The United Nations Declaration on Human Cloning is non-binding and has no legal status, but the UK voted against it because it calls on states to prohibit all forms of human cloning. This is totally unacceptable to the Government, who strongly supports stem cell research, including embryonic stem cell research involving the use of cloning technology. The Government's position on the declaration was broadly supported in the House during an adjournment debate on stem cell research on 7 March 2005, Official Report, columns 1357-70, the evening before the adoption of the declaration.

The declaration was adopted by a recorded vote of 84 in favour to 34 against, with 37 abstentions, as follows:

In favour:

Afghanistan, Albania, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Belize, Benin, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Brunei Darussalam, Burundi, Chile, Comoros, Costa Rica, Cote d'Ivoire, Croatia, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Georgia, Germany, Grenada, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iraq, Ireland, Italy, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lesotho, Liberia, Liechtenstein, Madagascar, Malta, Marshall Islands, Mauritius, Mexico, Federated States of Micronesia, Monaco, Morocco, Nicaragua, Palau, Panama, Paraguay, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Samoa, San Marino, Sao Tome and Principe, Saudi Arabia, Sierra Leone, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, Sudan, Suriname, Switzerland, Tajikistan, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Timor-Leste, Trinidad and Tobago, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, United States, Uzbekistan, Zambia.

Against:

Belarus, Belgium, Brazil, Bulgaria, Cambodia, Canada, China, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Gabon, Iceland, India, Jamaica, Japan, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Republic of Korea, Singapore, Spain, Sweden, Thailand, Tonga, United Kingdom.

Abstain:

Algeria, Angola, Argentina, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Barbados, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Colombia, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Malaysia, Maldives, Mongolia, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Oman, Pakistan, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Serbia and Montenegro, Somalia, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, Uruguay, Yemen, Zimbabwe.

The UK delegation voted against the declaration in accordance with instructions from the Government, which covered a range of options for possible votes on different draft resolutions or motions. Discussions took place with various UN Member States, including the US. We consulted a range of Departments with an interest in the issue, including the Department of Health. We received representations in support of and against the declaration from several interested non-governmental organisations and individuals.

India

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the Indian Government calling for Dalit Christians to be enumerated among the scheduled castes; and if she will make a statement. [80777]

Dr. Howells: Issues relating to scheduled castes are, of course, a matter for the Indian Government to take forward. However, our High Commission in New Delhi has previously raised this issue with the appropriate Indian authorities in response to legitimate UK public and parliamentary interest.

We are aware from media reports that a petition was filed in February 2005 by the Centre for Public Interest with the Indian Supreme Court to argue that the provision to exclude Dalits who convert to Christianity and Islam from the scheduled castes is unconstitutional. This case is now due to be heard during July. We are awaiting the court's decision before deciding the nature of any further representations. Our high commission in New Delhi is continuing to monitor the situation closely.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Indian Government concerning the anti-conversion legislation enacted in Orissa, Madhya Pradesh, Arunachal Pradesh, Chattisgurh, Gujarat and Rajasthan states; and if she will make a statement. [83894]

Dr. Howells: Issues relating to anti-conversion legislation are, of course, internal matters for the Indian authorities to take forward. However, officials from our High Commission in New Delhi have previously raised this with the appropriate Indian authorities in response to legitimate UK public and parliamentary interest, with specific reference to the State of Rajasthan. This was raised when they called on the Chair of the National Commission for Minorities in April and the Ministry of Minorities Affairs in June.

Although the Rajasthan legislative assembly approved the Freedom of Religion Bill in April, we understand that the State Governor refused to sign the Bill when it was presented to her on 19 May and when it was re-sent to her on 13 June.

To date, nobody has raised with us specific cases of abuse, where anti-conversion legislation already in place has been used to prevent someone from willingly changing their religion. However, we and EU partners will continue to follow closely developments in states where this legislation already exists.

Iran

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Iran has provided a timetable for the resolution of outstanding issues relating to its Comprehensive Safeguards Agreement, as indicated in the Director General's report on the Implementation of the Non-Proliferation Treaty Safeguards Agreement in the Islamic Republic of Iran of 8 June 2006. [81732]

Margaret Beckett: As far as we are aware, Iran has provided no such timetable to the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking towards ensuring that Iran's uranium enrichment programme does not progress to a stage whereby it will have produced enough highly enriched uranium to create a nuclear device. [83137]

Dr. Howells: We remain deeply concerned that, despite repeated requests by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Board of Governors and the United Nations Security Council, Iran is continuing uranium enrichment related and reprocessing activities that will enable it to develop the capability to produce fissile material suitable for use in nuclear weapons. In addition, we are concerned that, as the IAEA Director General, Dr. Mohammed El-Baradei, describes in his latest report, Iran is not co-operating fully with the IAEA and there are still many outstanding issues that Iran needs to resolve to the IAEA's satisfaction.

On 1 June, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and her French, German, US, Russian and Chinese colleagues and Javier Solana, EU High Representative, agreed to propose a way forward that would give Iran everything it needs to develop a modern civil nuclear power industry and bring Iran far-reaching political and economic benefits, while meeting international concerns. To create conditions for talks to resume, Iran should reinstate its suspension of enrichment related and reprocessing activities, as required by the IAEA Board; we would then suspend action in the Security Council. We hope that Iran will take the positive path offered. Ministers agreed on 1 June that if Iran decides not to engage in negotiation, further action will be necessary in the Security Council.

Iraq

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with (a) her (i) Iraqi, (ii) US and (iii) EU counterparts and (b) the UN on the establishment of a UN International Compact to support the development of a framework for increased international assistance to Iraq; and if she will make a statement. [82859]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The Prime Minister of Iraq has written to the UK and other international partners including the UN, EC, US requesting support for an International Compact. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary attended the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 12 June where the Iraqi Foreign Minister discussed with EU Foreign Ministers the need for increased international engagement with Iraq through a compact. At the UN on 19 June the Iraqi Foreign Minister asked for support to create an International Compact for Iraq and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary indicated the UK would help with the Compact when she saw him as he returned from New York. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has raised the Compact with G8 Foreign Ministers, including the US, at their recent meeting and called on them to support the Compact as Iraqi and UN ideas emerge. This was reflected in the supportive G8 final statement of 29 June. The full text of this statement can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth website at: http://www.fco.gov.uk/Files/kfile/G8FMChairmanStatememt290606.pdf.

We support wider international engagement in Iraq through the Compact and urge the international community to do the same. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has confirmed our commitment to this process.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications under the Geneva Conventions of the targeting by Israel of civilian facilities and infrastructure in Gaza during the military incursions commenced by Israel on 27 June 2006; and what representations she has made to the Government of Israel on the subject. [82167]

Dr. Howells: We are very concerned at the increased tension between Israel and the Palestinians. We are opposed to the targeting of civilian facilities and call upon Israel to respect international law and, in particular, the requirement of proportionality and the duty to take all feasible precautions to avoid civilian casualties. We continue to urge both parties to act with restraint and end the current cycle of violence, which only make the prospect of a negotiated, peaceful resolution more distant.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the current situation with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni and Palestinian President Abbas on 6 July. On 29 June, the Defence Attaché in Tel Aviv raised our concerns about the loss of electricity and water supplies with the Israel Defence Force.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she is making to the Government of Israel to persuade them to secure the disarmament of unofficial Israeli militia groups of settlers; and on what occasion the last representations were made. [82438]

Dr. Howells: We continue to call upon Israel to take action calling for an immediate end to violence against Palestinians everywhere.

We will continue to make representations to the Israeli Government about settler violence.

Japan

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with the Japanese Government in the last six months concerning the imprisoned UK citizen, Nick Baker. [82349]

Mr. McCartney: Consular officials from our embassy in Tokyo continue to raise Nick Baker's case with the Japanese authorities as appropriate; most recently with the Ministry of Justice on 17 May 2006. Consular officials have also raised various concerns about Mr. Baker's welfare with the prison authorities.

In support of Mr. Baker's transfer request, we are working with the Japanese authorities to get Mr. Baker transferred to a British prison as soon as possible.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of her Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80480]

Margaret Beckett: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Krakow Proliferation Security Initiative

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the British objectives were for the High Level Political Meeting of the Krakow Proliferation Security Initiative; and if she will make a statement. [82714]

Mr. McCartney: The UK had three main objectives for the High Level Political Meeting of the Proliferation Security Initiative (PSI), all of which were met. First, we strengthened further the initiative through endorsement of the PSI Statement of Interdiction Principles by more countries. We were pleased to welcome around a dozen states to their first PSI meeting, following a global lobbying campaign by the UK and other PSI partners. Secondly, we shared information, best practice and lessons learned from previous PSI activities. This was achieved through a series of presentations and panel discussions on topics such as exercise planning, legal considerations and industry outreach. Thirdly, we secured agreement on the strategic direction of the initiative, in particular emphasising the importance of ensuring all PSI participating states can achieve the full benefits of involvement in the initiative.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Bills sponsored by her Department are still planned to be introduced during the current Session; and when, and into which House, each will be introduced. [77492]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has no plans to introduce further Bills during the current Session.

Lord's Resistance Army

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the governments of (a) Uganda, (b) Sudan and (c) the Democratic Republic of Congo have asked for British Government support in serving International Criminal Court warrants on the leaders of the Lord's Resistance Army. [83292]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The Government have received no such requests for assistance.

I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him today (UIN 82452) in which I noted that responsibility to effect the arrest warrants lies in the first instance with the states on whose territory the five Liberation Resistance Army commanders are believed to be, in this case Uganda, Sudan and the Democratic Republic of Congo.

The UK is a strong supporter, in principle and in practice, of the work of the International Criminal Court (ICC) and its efforts to bring to justice the perpetrators of war crimes and crimes against humanity. We will continue to maintain political pressure on all parties to provide full co-operation to the ICC. We have called on all those involved to facilitate the arrest of the individuals subject to ICC warrants.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the steps taken by the International Criminal Court to try to arrest the leaders of the Lord's Resistance Army. [82452]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The International Criminal Court (ICC) issued warrants for the arrest of five Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) commanders, including Joseph Kony, in October 2005. Responsibility to effect the arrest warrants lies in the first instance with the states on whose territory the five LRA commanders are believed to be, in this case Uganda, Sudan and the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC).

The UK is a strong supporter of the work of the ICC and its efforts to bring to justice the perpetrators of war crimes and crimes against humanity. We will continue to maintain political pressure on all parties to provide full co-operation to the ICC. We have called on all those involved to facilitate the arrest of the individuals subject to ICC warrants.

Whilst we are disappointed that the arrest warrants have not yet been effected, we do not underestimate the difficulties in doing so. On 23 January, the UN force in DRC conducted an operation in Garamba National Park in north-eastern DRC aimed at tackling the LRA contingent based there. This operation was unsuccessful and tragically eight Guatemalan peace-keepers lost their lives in that endeavour.

The ICC remains actively supportive of efforts to make the arrests. On 28 June the Chief Prosecutor, Ocampo, made a statement guaranteeing the indictees safe passage to The Hague and due process in the court.

Majority Voting

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the EU Commission's proposal to introduce majority voting on criminal justice and police co-operation contained in the paper 'Implementing The Hague Programme: the way forward', would need to be ratified in the UK Parliament. [82740]

Mr. Hoon: We are giving careful consideration to the proposals contained in the Commission Communication on 'Implementing The Hague Programme: the way forward' and will submit an Explanatory Memorandum to Parliament in due course.

Article 42 of the Treaty on European Union—the "passerelle"—allows for areas governed by Title VI (Third Pillar) to be transferred to Title IV (First Pillar) by unanimous Council decision. This means that the UK has a veto on any change in the decision-making procedure in this area.

Should all member states, including the UK, agree to the change, Article 42 provides that the decision would be recommended to member states for adoption

"in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements".

Nepal

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the Maoist rebels' commitment to a ceasefire in Nepal. [82656]

Dr. Howells: The Maoists announced a three month ceasefire in April 2006, which the Government of Nepal subsequently reciprocated. Following peace talks with the Government, the Maoists subsequently agreed a code of conduct to govern the ceasefire and terms of reference for a ceasefire monitoring committee. And during talks on 16 June 2006 Prime Minister Koirala and Maoist Leader Prachanda agreed to request United Nations assistance in arms management.

The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights has reported some violations of the code of conduct by the Maoists. While we welcome the commitment of both sides to peace negotiations and a ceasefire, we believe a third party will need to monitor implementation and to support the work of the Nepalese ceasefire monitoring committee.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action the Government are willing to take to support the ceasefire between Maoist rebels and the Government in Nepal. [82657]

Dr. Howells: A permanent and verifiable ceasefire between the Maoists and Nepalese army is necessary to underpin a comprehensive peace process. The UK is ready to assist the Government of Nepal in supporting a peace process and ceasefire. However, it is for the Government of Nepal first to request help from the UN or any other third party to facilitate this process.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has received on maintaining a peaceful transition in Nepal to a functioning democracy; and if she will make a statement. [82659]

Dr. Howells: On 20 June my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, Ian McCartney, met the Nepalese Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs, K.P. Sharma Oli, at the Human Rights Council in Geneva. They discussed the challenges ahead following the democratic transition in Nepal.

Foreign Minister Oli requested UK financial and technical assistance to support speedy reconstruction efforts and transition to a stable multi-party democracy. He also requested UK assistance in support of disarmament, demobilisation and reintegration efforts. We are pursuing these requests in consultation with the Government of Nepal and our international partners.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action the Government are willing to take to ensure Maoist rebels in Nepal give up violence before they enter a transitional Government. [82660]

Dr. Howells: The only way for the Maoists to gain acceptance as a legitimate political actor is for them to take concrete steps towards a permanent end to the use of violence for political ends. We therefore support the Government of Nepal's position that an effective arms management arrangement is a precondition for the formation of an interim Government. We will also urge strongly that, in advance of elections to a Constituent Assembly, the Maoists must make a credible commitment to put their arms verifiably beyond use.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are (a) taking and (b) willing to take to ensure that weapons are confiscated from Maoist rebels in Nepal, in accordance with the United Nations agreement. [82661]

Dr. Howells: The Maoists and the governing Seven Party Alliance agreed on 16 June to request United Nations help in the monitoring and management of arms. We understand a formal request to the United Nations has now been made. The United Kingdom stands ready to assist in any future arms management arrangement if so requested by the United Nations.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government plan towards ensuring that parliamentary elections in Nepal are (a) free and fair and (b) subject to international observation. [82662]

Dr. Howells: For parliamentary elections in Nepal to be credible, they would need to take place in the context of an overall peace process and within a political and security climate which attracts all parties to put up candidates for free and fair polls. It will therefore be necessary for both the Nepalese army and the Maoists to be subject to satisfactory arms management during the interim period.

We will continue to offer our support to the Government of Nepal for the challenges ahead and will consider volunteering election monitors as part of any internationally co-ordinated effort under the United Nations, or through the European Union.

Non-proliferation Programmes

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funds are spent by the EU on non-proliferation programmes; and if she will make a statement. [80353]

Margaret Beckett: Under the 'Common Foreign and Security Policy' budget strand for 'Non Proliferation and Disarmament' the EU spent €9.1 million on non-proliferation projects in 2005. €3 million has been committed for spend in the 2006 budget.

Under the 'crisis management and global threats to security' budget strand €3 million was spent in 2005 and €3.0 million has been committed for 2006 for 'actions in the area of non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction'.

The Commission has, in fact, spent significantly more in the same period on non-proliferation. However, final figures are as yet unavailable as sums on other schedules have not yet been confirmed. My officials will write to the right hon. Member, providing further details, when those become available.

Nuclear Fuel (Multilateral Agreement)

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposal the Government have made regarding a concept for a multilateral mechanism for reliable access to nuclear fuel, as put forward to the International Atomic Energy Agency; and if she will make a statement. [80347]

Margaret Beckett: The UK co-sponsored a concept paper presented at the last International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Board of Governors' meeting, 12 to 15 June 2006, that outlined a mechanism to provide reliable access to nuclear fuel. Although the exact details are restricted to Governments represented on the IAEA Board of Governors, the paper sets out a framework for a multi-tiered set of measures to establish basic assurances involving supplier and recipient states, with commercial back-up arrangements, and regarding reserves of enriched uranium. The paper will be the subject of further discussion during a special event to be held in the margins of the IAEA General Conference in September. Details of this special event can be found at the following website: http://www-pub.iaea.org/MTCD/Meetings/Announcements.asp?ConfID=147.

Nuclear Missiles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the relationship between North Korea and Iran, with regard to (a) ballistic missile sharing technology, (b) the Taep'o-dong two missile programme and (c) the Shahab-5/Kosar and Shahab-six missile programme. [83135]

Dr. Howells: The Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea (DPRK) has a history of exporting ballistic missiles, ballistic missile components and related technology to Iran. This collaboration is disturbing and further reinforces international concerns about the real intentions of Iran's nuclear programme.

The longest range ballistic missile that Iran has in service is the Shahab-3. There are persistent, credible, media reports that Iran is seeking to acquire longer range ballistic missiles with help from the DPRK, but Iran has not confirmed this.

Palestine

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she is making to the Palestinian Authority to persuade them to secure the disarmament of unofficial Palestinian militia groups; and on what occasions the last representations were made. [82397]

Dr. Howells: We continue to call for the disarmament of Palestinian militia groups. Phase I of the Roadmap states that the Palestinians must declare an unequivocal end to violence and terrorism and undertake visible efforts on the ground to arrest, disrupt, and restrain individuals and groups conducting and planning violent attacks. We continue to work with Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas to improve security in the West Bank and Gaza.

We will continue to make representations on this issue.

Passerelle Clauses

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the use to date of passerelle clauses to incorporate EU legislation into UK law. [81900]

Mr. Hoon: A passerelle provision is one which allows for existing voting rules to be changed without treaty amendment. There are four passerelle provisions in the EU treaties. They are article 42 in the treaty on European Union (on police and judicial co-operation) and articles 67(2) (immigration and asylum), 137(2) (social policy matters) and 175(2) (environmental policy matters) in the European Community treaty. Only the passerelle provision in article 67(2) has been activated. The UK opted into Council Decision 2004/927 which changed certain areas in Title IV, European Community treaty, from unanimity to co-decision and Qualified Majority Voting. Any measure adopted in these areas only applies to the UK if the UK opts into it under its opt-in protocol, the protocol on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland in respect of the treaty of Amsterdam.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the United Kingdom plans to take action in the United Nations in relation to the recent terrorist attacks in Sri Lanka. [83205]

Mr. McCartney: There is as yet no agreement in the UN Security Council that the situation in Sri Lanka represents a threat to international peace and security. We are focusing our efforts on the peace process facilitated by the Government of Norway. We also actively contribute to the EU's input in its role as one of the Tokyo co-chairs. Our view is that dialogue is the only way to achieve a negotiated settlement to the conflict in Sri Lanka. All sides need to exercise restraint and to act in a constructive way. My hon. Friend the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, (Dr. Howells), made a statement emphasising this on 15 June. This is available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029391638&a=KArticle&aid=1150379181467.

Sudan

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in restricting the flow of (a) arms and ammunition and (b) equipment to (i) the Sudan Liberation Movement/Army, (ii) the Justice and Equality Movement in Sudan and (iii) the Janjaweed militia; and if she will make a statement. [79952]

Margaret Beckett: There is a UN arms embargo for Darfur and an EU Arms embargo for the whole of Sudan. The UK stringently follows both of these. But there is evidence, including in the recent report prepared by the UN Panel of Experts for Sudan, that the UN arms embargo is being breached by all sides. We take these reports seriously and are pressing for an extension of the UN arms embargo to cover the whole of Sudan.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Sudanese Government on the reported operations in Darfur of Chadian armed groups supported by Khartoum. [80033]

Margaret Beckett: We are aware that Chadian rebels and Darfur militia are continuing to mount cross-border attacks into Eastern Chad from Darfur, which has led to the displacement of 50,000 Chadians. At the same time, there are reports of Darfur rebels continuing to be supported by Chad. We are urging both Governments to restore calm to the region without the use of violence. We are also pressing the Government of Sudan to fulfil their obligations under the Darfur Peace Agreement, which includes disarming and expelling foreign fighters, including Chadian rebel groups, as soon as possible.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Sudanese Government on implementation of the February 2006 Tripoli Agreement. [80035]

Margaret Beckett: My officials in Sudan have frequently discussed the tensions along the border with Chad with the Government of Sudan. We have also raised this in Tripoli with the Libyan Government. We have been urging all parties to reduce tensions along the border between Sudan and Chad and to seek to settle their differences through peaceful means. The EU issued a statement on 13 February welcoming the Tripoli Agreement and appealing to both parties to honour the agreement, in particular their commitment to refrain from hosting rebel forces of the other party on their respective territories. The full text of the statement can be found on the following website: http://www.consiliuni.europa.eu/ue.Docs/cms_Data/docs/pressData/enycfsp/88391.pdf.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the Sudanese Government's progress in fulfilling their commitments to disarm the Janjaweed militias in Sudan; and if she will make a statement. [81740]

Margaret Beckett: On Friday 23 June, the Government of Sudan publicly began disarming a small group of Janjaweed in South Darfur. We welcome this step, and call on the Government to continue this work and to present a plan for neutralising and disarming all the Janjaweed/armed militias, which they are required to do under the Darfur Peace Agreement.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her NATO counterparts regarding NATO's potential involvement in peacekeeping in Darfur; and if she will make a statement. [81741]

Margaret Beckett: I have not discussed with my NATO counterparts NATO's potential involvement in peacekeeping in Darfur. NATO is providing assistance with strategic airlift, training and capacity building in support of the African Union's (AU) Mission in Darfur. Following a request from the AU it is considering further possible assistance in the areas of capacity building and training. It is not considering a peacekeeping role in Darfur.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the Janjaweed militia operating in Eastern Chad; and what implications such activity has for British policy towards the Sudanese Government. [82813]

Mr. McCartney: There are indications that some Janjaweed/Arab militia groups are now operating in the border area inside Eastern Chad, while others continue to mount attacks from inside Darfur. We are concerned for the safety and security of the estimated 50,000 Chadians displaced as a result of attacks and violence in the east of the country, and for the 200,000 refugees from Darilir now sheltering in camps in Eastern Chad. The UK provided £5 million to the humanitarian response in Chad last year and is providing an additional £4 million this year. We continue to monitor the situation closely.

We are pressing the Government of Sudan to disarm the Janjaweed in accordance with their international obligations as set out in UN Security Council Resolution 1556 and the Darfur Peace Agreement.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures are being taken to ensure that all parties with claims in the Sudanese North-South and Darfur disputes are part of the relevant conflict resolution negotiations. [82814]

Mr. McCartney: We support a fully inclusive North-South political process. We support the South-South Dialogue established by the Comprehensive Peace Agreement.

The Darfur Peace Agreement, signed on 5 May 2006, and the Declaration of Principles, agreed on 5 July 2005, state that there will be a Darfur-Darfur Dialogue and Consultation to secure the support of the people of Darfur to the agreement. We fully support this initiative.

Our embassy in Khartoum meets regularly with representatives of Northern and Southern opposition parties and rebel movements from Darfur and the East of Chad.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Sudanese Government on a United Nations peacekeeping force to be deployed in Sudan. [82985]

Mr. McCartney: After extensive international lobbying, the Government of Sudan agreed to allow a UN Technical Assistance Mission to visit Sudan to begin planning for the deployment of a UN force for Darfur. However, they have not yet endorsed the deployment of a UN force for Darfur. We and other international partners will continue to lobby them to do so.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the decision of the African Union to keep troops in Darfur until the end of 2006. [83293]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The African Union (AU) has made no such decision. In its Communiqué of 27 June, the AU Peace and Security Council (PSC) "reaffirmed its decisions of 10 March and 15 May 2006 on ending the mandate of the AU Mission in Sudan (AMIS) by 30 September 2006 and on the transition from AMIS to a UN peacekeeping operation". However, the Chairperson of the AU Commission's report of the same date also states that, "in view of the yet inconclusive engagement with the Government of Sudan on the issue of a transition to the UN, and in view of the indications from the UN under the circumstances they will not be able to take over the peace support operations before the end of the year, it was deemed prudent to present the estimates of the financial requirements to cover the period up to 31st December 2006". My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, attended the AU Summit on 1-2 July in Banjul and urged an early hand-over from AMIS to the UN.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on militia attacks in Darfur. [83294]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 July 2006]: We condemn any attacks by armed militias or other forces in Darfur. We particularly condemn the recent militia attacks in Hamra al-Shaikh, in Northern Kordofan province, which risk extension of violence beyond the borders of Darfur. We call on those parties to the conflict in Darfur who have not yet signed the Darfur Peace Agreement to do so and on all parties to refrain from violence and to implement the Darfur Peace Agreement urgently and in full.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the letter sent by representatives of the Beja community, Sudan to the Secretary-General of the UN seeking humanitarian help. [83295]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 July 2006]: On 9 June, the Beja Congress, a political organisation representing the Beja tribe of Eastern Sudan, sent a letter to Kofi Annan. They highlighted the poor humanitarian situation of the Beja, as recently reported by the International Red Cross. They appealed to Kofi Annan and to the international community to exert pressure on the Government of Sudan to ensure the success of the talks between the Government of Sudan and the Eastern Front.

We welcome the news that these talks will begin in Asmara on 17 July. We call on all sides to negotiate in good faith towards a rapid and successful conclusion. We hope this will lead to a comprehensive and lasting peace opening the way to investment and development in the region.

The UK, through the Department for International Development, bilaterally supports a humanitarian programme in the East of Sudan delivered by the Association of Charitable Foundations and Oxfam. We continue to press the Government of Sudan to allow full and unimpeded humanitarian access in the East of the country.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the progress of the International Criminal Court investigations on Darfur. [80348]

Margaret Beckett: The International Criminal Court (ICC) prosecutor, Luis Moreno Ocampo, gave his latest report to the UN Security Council on 14 June, pursuant to UN Security Council Resolution 1593, which referred the situation in Darfur to the ICC. The report set out evidence of large-scale massacres, targeting of civilians and systematic rape occurring in Darfur. It also said the ICC would now move to complete its investigations of those individuals with greatest responsibility for the most serious crimes in Darfur. A full copy of this report is on the ICC website at:http://www.icc-cpi.int/cases/Darfur/s()205/s0205_un.html.

There must be no impunity for those who have committed abuses of human rights in Darfur. Those responsible must be brought to justice. The UK Government will continue to support the ICC as it takes forward its investigation and to maintain pressure on all parties, including the Government of Sudan, to provide full co-operation in response to any ICC request.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) role and (b) objectives of the UK will be in the forthcoming donors conference for UN peacekeeping in Darfur. [81739]

Margaret Beckett: The African Union (AU) are planning a donors' conference on 18 July in Brussels. This is an opportunity for donors to pledge further support to the AU Mission in Darfur and for the transition to a UN peacekeeping operation. The UK will be represented at the conference. We will pledge £20 million to the AU Mission in Sudan for this financial year, bringing our total assistance since its inception to over £52 million. We are also encouraging the AU and other participants to use the conference to address how the AU and the international community can help take forward the Darfur Peace Agreement.

Terrorist Attack (Bali)

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funds the Government have made available for a memorial service to commemorate those killed in the 2002 terrorist attacks in Bali. [83210]

Dr. Howells: The Government arranged a service of remembrance for those killed or injured in the Bali bombings on 12 February 2003 in Southwark Cathedral, at a cost of £35,962.09.

The Government are contributing £260,000, plus £44,000 VAT, to the London Memorial project in memory of the victims of the 2002 bombings in Bali.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what warnings the Government made available to British citizens in Bali immediately prior to the bombings of 12 October 2002; what criteria were used to assess the risk; what level of risk was deemed appropriate on 3 October 2002; and what information was available from the British Embassy in Jakarta. [83289]

Mr. McCartney: The question of travel advice for Indonesia at the time of the Bali bombings and the information upon which it was based was fully covered in the Intelligence and Security Committee (ISC) report published in December 2002 and the Government response in February 2003. Both the ISC report and the Government response can be found on the Cabinet Office website at: http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/publications/reprots/intelligence/CM5724.pdf and http://cabinetoffice.gov.uk/publications/reports/intelligence/govresbali.pdf, respectively.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which EU countries have indicated support for trade sanctions against Zimbabwe. [84220]

Mr. McCartney: The EU common position against Zimbabwe consists of a travel ban and assets freeze against 126 members of the Mugabe regime. There are no trade sanctions, as these would hurt innocent Zimbabweans who are already suffering. Nor are we aware of any EU partners supporting the case for trade sanctions.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what average hourly rate was paid by her Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81501]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) has a framework agreement with three employment agencies.

The average hourly rate paid to each of them in 2005-06 was £12.82, £13.83 and £12.34 respectively.

DCLG uses agencies to supply temporary staff to cover short-term needs.

Birmingham Tornado

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in repairing the areas of Birmingham affected by the tornado in July 2005; and if she will make a statement. [83520]

Angela E. Smith: The information is as follows:

Housing

The serious damage to housing was in the Sparkbrook/Moseley area, where many houses suffered damage to roofs and supporting walls.

Council Housing

The city council owned a handful of homes in the tornado affected area; any that were damaged have had repairs completed and the tenants are back in their homes.

Registered Social Housing

Most of the social housing in the area is owned by a small number of registered social landlords (RSLs) and in all around 900 of their homes suffered damage; some sustaining severe damage to the main structure, making them structurally unsound.

A number of residents (mostly RSL tenants) had to be temporarily re-housed while repairs works were carried out, but the vast majority are now back in their homes.

The four largest RSLs in the area report that all repairs have been completed and all their tenants have returned home.

Private Sector Housing

A smaller number of private sector homes suffered damage, and although the city council offered loans to residents for repair costs, the majority of tenants were able to access either insurance payments or make separate funding arrangements.

Parks and Public Open Spaces

Parks and public open spaces in the affected area suffered considerable damage, with park infrastructure such as railings, footpaths, lighting columns, litter bins, benches, play equipment and signs badly damaged. Over 500 trees were destroyed—90 per cent. of the total.

All health and safety issues and structural features such as paths and boundary railings have now been repaired and/or replaced in the parks and public open spaces affected by the tornado.

Some replacement tree planting was carried out last autumn, sponsored by the city council's service providers, and there are plans to carry out additional planting this coming autumn.

A redevelopment plan for the worst affected site, Balsall Heath Park, is being developed with local residents.

Businesses

An initial survey of the affected area indicated there were 114 business physically affected by the tornado. The majority of local traders are now back in business.

Investment

The city council have provided the emergency/recovery costs associated with the tornado, this accounted for an overall figure of £4.3 million. Further to this, £1.0 million of capital investment funding is being approved.

RSLs in the area have also invested around £6 million to repair damaged homes.

Building Capacity

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding was allocated to Swindon borough council under the category of building capacity in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06. [82836]

Mr. Woolas: Swindon received approval for grant of £85,000 in 2004-05 and £1,014,950 in 2005-06 under the category of building capacity.

In addition, Swindon received approval for a grant of £1 million in March 2005 to enable the council to meet expenditure incurred through the piloting of a social services franchise with Kent county council. The Department of Health met £180,000 of the £1 million.

Carbon Monoxide/Fire Alarms

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimates she has made of the percentage of households equipped with (a) carbon monoxide and (b) fire alarms in (i) Lancashire and (ii) West Lancashire constituency. [83437]

Angela E. Smith: Information is not available centrally on the percentage of households equipped with carbon monoxide alarms.

Figures from the Survey of English Housing 2004-05 show that an estimated 79 per cent. of households in Lancashire have a working smoke alarm. Information is not available centrally on the West Lancashire constituency.

Civil Servants

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many civil servants are employed by (a) the Government Office of the South West and (b) the South West Regional Assembly. [82122]

Angela E. Smith: The Government Office for the South West employs 323 civil servants.

The South West Regional Assembly (SWRA) Secretariat has one civil servant seconded to it from the Home Office.

Command Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the Unnumbered Command Papers produced by her Department in each Session since 1976; by what means (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public can (i) inspect and (ii) obtain copies; and if she will make a statement. [81270]

Angela E. Smith: Since the Department for Communities and Local Government was formed on 5 May 2006, it has not produced any Unnumbered Command Papers.

Commission on Integration and Cohesion

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the role of the Commission on Integration and Cohesion. [82524]

Mr. Woolas: The Commission on Integration and Cohesion, which was announced on Wednesday 28 June, will consider how local areas themselves can play a role in forging cohesive and resilient communities, by:

Examining the issues that raise tensions between different groups in different areas, and that lead to segregation and conflict

Suggesting how local community and political leadership can push further against perceived barriers to cohesion and integration

Looking at how local communities themselves can be empowered to tackle extremist ideologies

Developing approaches that build local areas' own capacity to prevent problems, and ensure they have the structures in place to recover from periods of tension.

The Commission will undertake its work within the context of existing Government policy.

It will be chaired by Mr. Darra Singh OBE, the chief executive of Ealing borough council.

Consultancies

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) public affairs and (b) public relations consultancies the Government Office of the South East has commissioned since 2001; for what purpose in each case; and how much was spent on each contract. [83020]

Angela E. Smith: Government Offices moved to a new financial accounting system from April 2003 therefore I am unable to provide complete information prior to that date. In defining whether consultancy work covered Public Affairs I have defined this as any consultancy work that would provide value and knowledge to our partner organisations or add to regional intelligence. Therefore all work (with the exception of number 5) I have defined as Public Affairs. Activity 5 was a GOSE partnership survey and I have defined this as public relations. Excluded from the table is any consultancy work which I have defined as inward facing such as GOSE organisational development e.g. IIP costs.

Where work has been commissioned from a consultant who is an individual rather than an organisation I have been advised that providing their names could be prohibited by the Data Protection Act 1998. In these few cases I have provided brief details of the work and cost.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were liable for payment of council tax in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [83588]

Mr. Woolas: The number of chargeable dwellings liable for council tax in England are shown in the following table.

	Number
1997	20,093,000
1998	20,233,000
1999	20,374,000

The data are as reported by all billing local authorities in England on the annual CTB1 forms. The number of individuals liable for council tax cannot be accurately determined from these or other sources.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 November 2005, Official Report, column 2063W, on council tax revaluation, for how many residential properties in England the Valuation Office Agency had (a) dwelling house codes data and (b) value significant codes data on the most recent date for which figures are available. [82933]

Mr. Woolas: As at 3 July 2006 the Valuation Office Agency had dwelling house code data on 21,905,065 out of 22,131,262 dwellings in England. On this date there were 5,604,096 dwellings with value significant codes.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measures are in place to ensure that no illegal immigrants are employed in the manned guarding of her Department's premises. [80801]

Angela E. Smith: Security guards engaged in guarding the Department's premises are employed via contractors. Guards are subject to the Government Basic Check regime which includes checks on passports, leave to remain in or enter the U.K. and verification of employment history. In addition all guards are licensed by the Security Industry Authority under the Private Security Industry Act 2001. Guards in the London headquarter buildings are also subject to security vetting at Counter-Terrorist Check (CTC) level.

This answer does not include the buildings occupied by Government Offices for the Regions who carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Departmental Staff

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 290W, on departmental staff, what the estimated cost is of relocating civil servants from 26 Whitehall to Eland House. [82955]

Angela E. Smith: The estimated cost of relocating all the Department for Communities and Local Government's civil servants from 26 Whitehall to Eland House is £40,231.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 290W, on departmental staff, what the function is of the ministerial group in 26 Whitehall. [82957]

Angela E. Smith: The nine staff of the ministerial group currently based in 26 Whitehall will move to the Department's headquarters in Eland House once space is made available there in the summer. The functions carried out by the staff include parliamentary business and finance and IT support for the ministerial group.

Angela E. Smith: All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases certified emissions reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

E-government

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to encourage local councils to make council services available via the internet. [82413]

Angela E. Smith: We have invested £675 million in local electronic government over the last five years, taking the electronic enablement of council services from 26 per cent. in 2001 up to 98 per cent. in 2006. Through the local e-government programme, every council in England has received £0.9 million in capital grant from the DCLG to help deliver e-government, including making council services available via the internet. In May, we launched the £5 million 'Connect to your council1 national advertising campaign, designed to raise citizen awareness and take-up of council services online, while at the same time encouraging councils to see the internet as a mainstream channel for service delivery.

Equalities Impact Assessments

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether equalities impact assessments (a) are required and (b) may be directed in relation to local authorities budget decisions. [80580]

Meg Munn: All local authorities are require to undertake race equality impact assessments on policies and functions where there is relevance to race equality. This could include budget decisions if they are to result in a policy change that is likely to have an adverse impact on any ethnic group or if there is an opportunity to promote race equality. It is for the public authority to screen their policies, functions and decisions to decide whether there is any relevance to race equality, and if so to undertake a race equality impact assessment.

The Secretary of State may not direct an authority to conduct an impact assessment, but the Commission for Racial Equality has the power to issue a compliance notice to public authorities if the Commission believes that the authority is failing in its duties to promote race equality.

Under the forthcoming public sector duties on disability equality (to come into effect December 2006) and gender equality (April 2007), local authorities will be required to carry out impact assessments on their current or proposed policies and practices which will help them achieve disability and gender equality in their activities and business planning process. These duties will be enforceable by the Disability Rights Commission and the Equal Opportunities Commission, respectively. The Commission for Equality and Human Rights will take over these enforcement powers from October 2007.

EU Directive 2002/91/EC

Angela E. Smith: I have placed a copy of the National Energy Services Report "An accreditation scheme for energy inspectors Phase 1: Scoping Study" in the House Library.

Golf Courses

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs treats the greens of golf courses as subject to business rates if the green is (a) private property and (b) common land. [83568]

Mr. Woolas: The Valuation Office Agency, an executive agency of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, has the statutory responsibility for assessing properties for rating purposes. As a non-domestic property, a golf course will usually be liable to business rates. Being an integral part of the course, the greens are valued as part of the whole rather than attracting any separate liability. The basis of valuation for rating purposes of a golf course applies equally to private, public or municipal courses, although the level of value will vary to reflect differences in quality and geographical location. The greens of a golf course are therefore subject to business rates regardless of whether they lie on private property or common land.

There are exceptions, however, depending on the facts of the case. It may be that a golf club is not considered to be in exclusive occupation of the course, thereby failing one of the requirements for rateability. Alternatively, a course may be exempt from rating if it is held as part of a larger public park and available for free and unrestricted use by the public.

Government Offices

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisations were consulted in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister/Treasury Review of Government Offices; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the (a) Race Impact Assessment and (b) departmental response. [82589]

Angela E. Smith: Existing studies, stakeholder surveys and peer reviews fed into the evidence base for the Government office (GO) review, as did views from all sponsor Departments of GOs, from some GO staff and from the East Midlands Regional Development Agency, the London Development Agency, West Midlands Regional Assembly, the North East Regional Assembly and the Local Government Association.

The Race Impact Assessment for the review is expected to be published in September and a copy will be placed in the Library of both houses.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much each Government Office spent on consultants from (a) administrative and (b) programme expenditure between April 2005 and March 2006. [82590]

Angela E. Smith: Government office expenditure on consultants from administrative expenditure between April 2005 and March 2006 were:

Government office	2005-06 expenditure
North East	0
North West	187,840
Yorkshire and the Humber	150,610
West Midlands	18,880
East Midlands	342,830
East	135,510
South West	9,100
South East	33,680
London	368,480

Programme budgets administered by the Government offices are the responsibility of the Secretaries of State for the relevant sponsor Departments. They have therefore not been entered.

Graffiti/Fly-posting

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much each London borough spent on graffiti removal in each year since 2001. [83423]

Angela E. Smith: Figures are not available for the amount each London borough spent on graffiti removal each year since 2001. However, Graffiti in London, a report by the London Assembly Graffiti Investigative committee in May 2002 estimated the annual expenditure in London boroughs at £7 million.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what funding West Lancashire local authorities have sought under section 106 of the Town and County Planning Act 1990 to tackle graffiti and fly-posting. [83554]

Interests (Code of Conduct)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice she offers parish and town councillors on how to interpret the code of conduct on declaring interests. [83247]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has offered no advice about the code of conduct, which is a matter for the independent Standards Board for England. The Standards Board has issued guidance for parish and town councillors on the requirements under the code to declare interests.

Local Authority Targets

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Government have to assist local authorities to meet their targets to (a) reduce sickness and absence levels and (b) for processing housing benefit claims. [82408]

Mr. Woolas: (a) the Department for Communities and Local Government plans to continue working collaboratively with Local Government Employers, the organisation responsible for monitoring and supporting local authorities on attendance management. Work includes good practice guidance, case studies and accessible (including web based) advice on a range of management interventions available for different local circumstances.

Good practice on attendance management in local authorities sits within a well-developed Performance Management Framework including:

- the Comprehensive Performance Assessment (CPA) which covers managing sickness absence;
- corporate performance indicators ('BVPIs') covering sickness absence which mean that individual LA data is audited and therefore credible and robust;
- the 2005 Local Government Pay and Workforce Strategy, and more recently a strand of the 'Productive Time/ business process improvement' element of the Efficiency Agenda.

Moreover, the Government are planning a series of seminars starting from the autumn to provide leadership and support to senior local authority managers to tackle improving attendance management and efficiency.

(b) The Department for Work and Pensions plans to continue helping local authorities improve their performance in processing housing benefit claims through a programme that includes consultancy support, maintaining clear performance standards, investment and, where possible, simplification of the scheme.

Mr. Woolas: Statute does not require any of these bodies to have regard to the Code of Recommended Practice on Local Authority Publicity.

Mayoral Referendums

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance the Government have published on the classification of expenditure on (a) gathering signatures for a mayoral petition and (b) campaigning for or against a mayoral referendum. [83074]

Mr. Woolas: The Government have not published guidance on the classification of expenditure on gathering signatures for a mayoral petition. Chapter 13 of guidance on council constitutions issued by the Government set out guidance and statutory rules which apply in respect of expenditure incurred on campaigning in referendums.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to what extent her plans for city mayors will involve elected mayors representing (a) an existing local authority area and (b) an area crossing a number of existing single-tier local authorities. [83101]

Mr. Woolas: Discussions are ongoing with the core cities regarding their business case proposals, following the summits that were held during 2005. Those business cases include options for devolving decision-making to the cities or city-regions (which may cover a number of local authorities). We will further develop these ideas and associated thinking, including on individual local authority leadership, in the forthcoming Local Government White Paper.

Neighbourhood Management Schemes

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role she proposes for local councillors in proposed neighbourhood management schemes. [81000]

Mr. Woolas: Local councillors have a vital contribution to make to neighbourhood management schemes, and research shows the most successful Neighbourhood Management Pathfinders have a very close working relationship with local councillors. Councillors can play a variety of roles, for example by acting as a champion for the neighbourhood within the local authority or with partner organisations. In most cases, the Government would expect councillors to be a part of local steering groups overseeing a neighbourhood management scheme. More information is provided in "Neighbourhood renewal and social inclusion—a councillor's guide". This guide was published in November 2005 jointly by Improvement and Development Agency, Local Government Association and Local Government Information Unit, with sponsorship from the Department for Communities and Local Government (previously the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister).

Private Office

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the size is of her private office in square feet. [84171]

Angela E. Smith: The size of the office occupied by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government is 571 square feet, and her Private Office occupy a separate office of 560 square feet.

Reduced Ignition Propensity Cigarettes

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on possible standards for reduced ignition propensity cigarettes to be introduced under the EU's General Product Safety Directive. [83462]

Angela E. Smith: There have been recent discussions in Europe on possible standards for reduced ignition propensity cigarettes at the General Product Safety Directive Committee Meeting on 14 June 2006.

The UK's position in those discussions was that there was sufficient evidence to recommend the development of a European technical standard for reduced ignition propensity cigarettes. The European Commission has indicated that it will undertake further investigation into the need for such action.

The Department for Communities and Local Government will issue a written statement shortly regarding the potential for reduced ignition propensity cigarettes to reduce accidental fires in the home.

Regional Funding (South-West)

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the Governmental organisations with responsibility (a) to spend and (b) to allocate funds in the South-West. [82125]

Mr. Woolas: The governmental organisations for whose expenditure and allocation of funds the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) is responsible are the DCLG itself, its executive agencies and its sponsored non-departmental public bodies.

A full list of these is included in the Department's annual report and updated from time-to-time on the DCLG website. Those with the authority to allocate or administer funds within the South-West are the Commission for Racial Equality, the Community Development Foundation, English Partnerships/ Commission for the New Towns, FireBuy and the Housing Corporation.

In addition, DCLG has responsibility for the regeneration funding administered by the Department for Trade and Industry-sponsored Regional Development Agencies, for European Regional Development Fund programmes and (jointly with the Department for Work and Pensions) for European Social Fund spending in the South-West.

The Government Office for the South-West delivers a wide range of Government policies and programmes on behalf of 10 Whitehall Departments (including DCLG). These together aim to regenerate communities, fight crime, tackle housing needs, improve public health, raise standards in education and skills, tackle countryside issues and reduce unemployment.

Residential Development

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many appeals the Planning Inspectorate permitted in 2005 involving residential development, in part or whole, on gardens. [83083]

Meg Munn: This information could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Standards Board

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many complaints were made to the Standards Board for England in each year since its inception in relation to each different type of council it is responsible for; and how many complaints (a) were not pursued, (b) there were where there was no breach in standards, (c) were where no further action was necessary (d) were referred for local determination and (e) were referred to the Adjudication Panel; and what the recommendation was of the panel which was referred to it in each case. [83248]

Mr. Woolas: I have asked the Chief Executive of the Standards Board to write to my hon. Friend on this matter. I shall arrange for a copy of his reply to be placed in the Library of the House.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of complaints submitted to the Standards Board in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06 were against parish councillors. [83080]

Mr. Woolas: I have asked the chief executive of the Standards Board to write to the hon. Member on this matter. I shall arrange for a copy of his reply to be placed in the Library of the House.

Travellers

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers are available to planning authorities enabling preventive action to be taken in relation to the Unauthorised development of land sold to Travellers. [83399]

Meg Munn: Section 187B of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 provides that planning authorities may, if they consider it necessary, apply to the court for an injunction to restrain an actual or anticipated breach of planning control.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1877W, on the Valuation Office Agency, whether the plot sizes that Ordnance Survey data are used for include data for the plots of (a) open spaces and (b) residential gardens. [82938]

Mr. Woolas: Ordnance Survey maps show (a) open spaces and (b) residential gardens. Whether these are within the plot of a domestic property, which is to be taken as part of a dwelling for council tax banding purposes (as defined in section 3 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992) is dependant upon what land belongs to or is enjoyed with that domestic property.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1877W, on the Valuation Office Agency, if she will list the property attributes which have been gathered using Ordnance Survey maps. [82939]

Mr. Woolas: Ordnance Survey (OS) maps have been used in some instances to clarify the extent of detachment (eg fully detached, semi-detached, terraced) of individual or small groups of properties.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1877W, on the Valuation Office Agency, if she will place in the Library a copy of the data supplied by Rightmove. [82940]

Mr. Woolas: Data are supplied by Rightmove.co.uk plc under a contractual arrangement which prohibits disclosure.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 2045W, on the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), if she will place in the Library a copy of all the (a) dwelling house code and (b) value significant code data held by the VOA for each of those official residences. [82944]

Mr. Woolas: Any decision to place individual property attribute coding information into the public domain would be subject to public consultation. Until such consultation has been undertaken revealing coding detail of any dwelling is not appropriate.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1600W, on the Valuation Office Agency, whether (a) crime and (b) deprivation influence the chartered surveyor's assessment of market forces. [82949]

Mr. Woolas: Chartered surveyors employed within the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) used their market and valuation knowledge to identify geographic areas within which domestic property prices are influenced by the same or similar market forces (these are known as "localities"). The market for dwellings may well be influenced by levels of crime and deprivation, amongst many other factors. No separate analysis of these factors is made by the Valuation Office Agency as, even if possible, this is not considered necessary.

West Lancashire District Council

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was allocated to the West Lancashire district council for (a) 2006-07 and (b) each year since 1996-97 in (i) cash and (ii) real terms. [83642]

Mr. Woolas: The amount of formula grant provided to West Lancashire district council for the period 1996-97 to 2006-07 in both cash and real terms (deflated by the GDP deflator) is given in the following table. Formula grant consists of revenue support grant, redistributed business rates and SSA reduction grant (SSA review) where appropriate.

£ million

	Formula grant in cash terms	Formula grant in real terms[1]
1996-97	6.977	8.896
1997-98	6.611	8.191
1998-99	6.519	7.877
1999-2000	6.693	7.926
2000-01	7.064	8.250
2001-02	7.225	8.242
2002-03	7.393	8.181
2003-04	8.067	8.669
2004-05	7.644	7.997
2005-06	7.870	8.062
2006-07	9.081	9.081

[1] Base year = 2006-07

Note:
These figures are not comparable year-on-year due to changes in funding and function. For example, in 2004-05 funding for housing benefit ceased to be included within formula grant but was instead paid by special grant from DWP.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Modernisation

25. Paul Rowen: To ask the Leader of the House if he will make a statement on his plans to modernise the proceedings of the House. [83322]

Mr. Straw: I am keen to take forward the work of my predecessors in modernisation of the House and its proceedings. The Modernisation Select Committee, which I chair, is planning to produce a report on the Legislative Process in the near future. I am looking also at ways of improving the effectiveness in the ways the House can hold the Government to account in other areas. I am happy to receive representations on these matters from all Members.

Ministerial Statements

26. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Leader of the House if he will bring forward proposals to provide that Ministerial Statements are not begun on a Thursday until a full hour has been spent on Business Questions. [83323]

Nigel Griffiths: My right hon. Friend has no plans to bring forward proposals on this issue.

The amount of time provided for Business Questions is at the discretion of Mr. Speaker, who judges how much time is sufficient on a case-by-case basis.

There are occasions when the full hour would not be used up.

EU Legislation

27. Keith Vaz: To ask the Leader of the House what steps he is taking to improve the scrutiny of EU legislation. [83324]

Mr. Straw: The Government are considering the proposals of the Modernisation Committee in the last session on Scrutiny of European Business. We hope to bring forward ideas for taking this issue further forward in due course.

House of Lords Reform

28. Ben Chapman: To ask the Leader of the House if he will make a statement on reform of the House of Lords. [83325]

Mr. Straw: The Joint Committee on Conventions was established on 22 May 2006 and will report at the end of this Session. The free vote on the composition of the House of Lords will take place around the turn of the year, preceding any legislation.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Bone: To ask the Leader of the House if he will bring forward proposals to improve the accuracy of parliamentary answers and the speed with which they are provided. [83480]

Mr. Straw: As I stated to the hon. Member in a written answer on 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 885W, I attach great importance to the accuracy and timeliness of responses to parliamentary questions tabled in the House and I have raised the matter directly with ministerial colleagues.

Departments should answer named day questions on that day and endeavour to reply to ordinary written questions within a working week.

I refer the hon. Member also to the Adjournment debate on 28 June 2006 on this matter, Official Report, column 344, in which it was noted that the substantial growth in the number of parliamentary questions tabled can place the system under pressure and that the time might be suitable for a further review of the system by the House.

My office continues to offer guidance to other Departments about the handling of parliamentary questions.

Party Funding

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Leader of the House how many staff are assisting Sir Hayden Phillips's review of party funding. [83000]

Mr. Straw: Sir Hayden Phillips has four staff assisting him in the review of party funding.

Those staff members have been seconded from the DCA and are separate from staff within the DCA who report to me on party funding.

Questionnaires

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) questionnaires, (b) statistical inquiries and (c) investigations have been carried out by his office wholly or partly at public expense in each year since 1997; and what the (i) nature, (ii) purpose and (iii) cost was in each case. [83173]

Mr. Straw: None.

Saturday Sittings

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House on what dates the House has met on a Saturday since February 1986; what the main item of business under discussion was on each occasion; and at what time the House subsequently adjourned. [82323]

Mr. Straw: The House has not met on any Saturday since February 1986.

The last occasion on which the House met on a Saturday was in April 1982, to discuss the Falklands crisis.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Temporary Accommodation

15. Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he has taken to improve work incentives for households in temporary accommodation. [83312]

Mr. Plaskitt: As announced in this year's Budget, the Government intend to pilot an 'Extra Homes' scheme.

The Extra Homes initiative will take the Working Future project—currently under evaluation in East London—a step further by helping to provide more settled homes in the longer term.

Local authorities and housing associations will be invited to put forward innovative proposals to explore new approaches to help families in temporary accommodation overcome barriers to work and I would urge her borough to look into pursing that.

Civil Servants (Pensions)

17. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total pension liabilities are of his Department and the agencies for which he is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [83314]

Mrs. McGuire: The pension liabilities of the Department for Work and Pensions and its agencies are not separately identifiable in The Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme. This Scheme is an unfunded multi-employer defined benefit scheme and individual departments' pension liabilities are not available.

The Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation Resource Accounts for 2004-05 gave the total pension liability for The Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme at 31 March 2005 as £84.1 billion. However, a change in the discount rate used for calculating pension liabilities that took effect from 1 April 2005 has increased the liabilities of The Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme to £94.7 billion.

Pension Reform

18. Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress with his plans for pension reform. [83315]

James Purnell: There is a broad consensus around the basic principles of pension reform as proposed in the White Paper. But we are continuing a programme of active engagement with all stakeholders to cement this consensus. That programme will include Parliament, representatives of employers, consumers and the financial sector as well as the general public.

This is in addition to the formal consultation on the White Paper, which closes on September 11th. We will be publishing a summary of responses once the consultation has closed. We intend to bring forward legislation on Pensions Reform during the second Session of this Parliament, subject to approval by the Parliamentary Business Managers.

20. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely impact of pensions reform on (a) business and (b) future pensioners. [83317]

James Purnell: The White Paper Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system and the accompanying regulatory impact assessment set out the likely impact of our pension reform proposals on key groups including businesses and future pensioners.

New Deal (Leicester)

19. Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the progress of the New Deal in Leicester. [83316]

Mr. Jim Murphy: New deal continues to be a success, with more than 9,000 people helped into work through the new deal programme in Leicester, including 2,750 people in my hon. Friend's constituency.

"Talk on Trial": Report

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of commissioning the research report entitled "Talk on Trial: Job interviews, language and ethnicity"; and if he will make a statement. [76302]

Mr. Jim Murphy: In February 2004 King's College London (KCL) was commissioned following a competitive tendering process, to undertake research on whether ethnic minority candidates are disadvantaged in job interviews. The total cost of the research was £160,000. The KCL tender was chosen for three prime reasons: the KCL proposal provided the most innovative and robust set of methods for investigating the issues, the research team included members with a world-class reputation in this field of research, and it offered the best value for money from six tenders submitted.

50-plus Workers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many personal advisers there are to assist new deal for over-50s claimants; and how many jobcentres provide facilities for such advisers. [82297]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your question asking how many personal advisers there are to assist new deal for over 50s claimants, and how many jobcentres provide facilities for such advisers. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

There are currently in excess of 800 customer facing Jobcentre Plus offices. Every office delivers the voluntary New Deal 50 Plus programme. An eligible customer, wherever they live will have access to a New Deal Personal Adviser and the full range of support offered by New Deal 50 Plus. Since it was introduced in April 2000, New Deal 50 Plus has been successful in helping over 150,000 older workers into employment.

As at April 2006, there were around 200 dedicated New Deal 50 Plus advisers. In addition there are other advisers trained and skilled to look after this client group.

I hope this is helpful.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of people in work aged 50 years and over in (a) the Edinburgh local authority area and (b) Edinburgh, West parliamentary constituency. [82707]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Like all other customers, people aged 50 and over can benefit from the range of services provided by Jobcentre Plus, including access to jobs and help and support to find work.

Additional help is provided to older people who do not find work quickly. New deal 50 plus is a voluntary programme that provides people with advice and guidance from personal advisers, and access to in-work financial help through the 50 plus element of the working tax credit. Since April 2000, the programme has been successful in helping more than 150,000 older workers into employment, including 1,320 people in the city of Edinburgh local authority area and 210 in Edinburgh, West parliamentary constituency. Once in work, new deal 50 plus customers can claim a training grant of up to £1,500 for training of which up to £300 can be used for life-long learning.

People aged 50 and over, including those in Edinburgh, are also eligible for help from new deal 25 plus. People who have been claiming jobseeker's allowance (JSA) for 18 months and who have not previously participated on new deal 25 plus, are already required to attend the gateway stage of the new deal 25 plus programme. This is a period of up to four months of intensive job search and specialist help and support to improve job prospects. This is followed by the intensive activity period (IAP) which is currently voluntary for people aged 50 and over. The IAP provides further support and pre-work training to help people return to work.

Since April 2004, we have been piloting mandatory participation in the new deal 25 plus IAP for people aged 50-59 who have been claiming JSA for 18 months. Edinburgh was not part of the pilot. However, interim pilot results have been positive and, as announced in our Welfare Reform Green Paper, we intend to commence a phased national rollout.

Between 1979 and the mid 1990s, the number of people on incapacity benefits trebled. Since then, growth in the case load has slowed significantly and, in November 2005, there were 2.71 million people claiming incapacity benefits, a fall of 61,000 over the year. 46 per cent of those claiming incapacity benefits are aged between 50 and state pension age although, between 2000 and 2005, the number of people in this age group fell by 52,000. This has contributed to the overall reduction in the incapacity benefits case load.

We still clearly have more work to do and, like other age groups, people aged 50 and over will be able to benefit from the rollout of the successful pathways to work service across the whole country which will be completed by 2008. Pathways offers new incapacity benefit (IB) customers early support from skilled personal advisers and direct access to a 'Choices Package' of employment programmes and clear financial incentives to make work pay. Any IB customer will be able to access the support and help available on a voluntary basis. Pathways is due to rollout in the Edinburgh area in the future.

Through our Age Positive Campaign we are working with employers and others to promote the business benefits of an age diverse workforce and best practice on age in recruitment, training and promotion. In May 2005 we launched the 'Be Ready' national information campaign to raise employer awareness of, and ability to adopt, flexible employment and retirement opportunities to support the recruitment and retention of older workers in advance of age legislation due in October 2006.

Accident Victims

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been recovered from accident victims' compensation by way of recoupment of benefits in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [75996]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the table.

Total amounts recovered by the Compensation Recovery Unit by way of recoupment from damages awarded to accident victims in each of the past three years

Financial year	Amount (£)
2003-04	141,096,832
2004-05	163,392,733
2005-06	148,840,619

Note:
The figures in the table are rounded up to the nearest £.
Source:
Figures are taken from the Compensation Recovery Unit's Management Information Statistics.

Under the provisions of the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997, the compensator—the person who caused the injury or, more commonly, his insurer—is liable both to pay damages to the injured person and to repay benefits to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions. (It is not the actual benefits which are recovered, but "an amount equivalent to" the total benefit payment). In certain circumstances it will be possible for the compensator to deduct some or all of the amount he has had to repay to the Secretary of State from the gross compensation award, a practice known as "offsetting".

Not all social security benefits are recoverable. Retirement pension and child benefit, for example, are paid for reasons which could have no connection to a personal injury. The benefits which are recoverable are listed at Schedule 2 to the 1997 Act. They are grouped according to the head of damage against which they may be offset: loss of earnings, loss of mobility and cost of care.

Social security benefits are not paid in respect of pain, suffering, personal inconvenience and so on, and therefore no offsetting may be made against the general damages element of a compensation award. If a compensation claim is settled by a payment made up of general damages, the compensator will have to bear the full cost of paying compensation and repaying benefits to the State.

Action for Employment Ltd

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been paid to Action for Employment Ltd. in each month since they entered into a contract with his Department to encourage benefit recipients to switch from receiving benefit payment from cheque to direct payment. [80829]

Mr. Plaskitt: In order to protect the commercial position of the Department in negotiating future contracts of this nature, it is not policy to disclose the financial arrangements between the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) and the contractor.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have switched their method of payment of benefits from cheque to direct payment after contact by Action for Employment Ltd., broken down by constituency. [80830]

Mr. Plaskitt: As a result of practical help and support provided by Action for Employment, 19,000 customers switched their method of payment from cheque to direct payment. Action for Employment helped many of these customers to open a bank account for the first time, making a significant contribution to financial inclusion, and supporting the Government's aim to halve the number of households without bank accounts. We do not have a breakdown by constituency.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what basis Action for Employment Ltd. is paid by his Department for work in connection with encouraging benefit claimants to switch from benefit payment by cheque to direct payment. [80831]

Mr. Plaskitt: Action for Employment Ltd. were paid by DWP to provide practical help and support to customers who expressed a wish to convert their method of payment from cheque to direct payment but had difficulty in doing so. To provide best value for the taxpayer, Action for Employment Ltd. were paid a fee for each customer who was able to successfully change their method of payment from cheque to direct payment—including direct payment into a Post Office card account.

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what average hourly rate was paid by his Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81502]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only by incurring disproportionate cost.

Benefit Claimants

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which local authorities had an increase in the number of (a) pensioners and (b) people claiming (i) jobseeker's allowance and (ii) income support between 2001 and 2005. [81987]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in (a) Yeovil constituency and (b) Somerset received (i) housing benefit and (ii) jobseeker's allowance in 2005-06. [82188]

Mr. Plaskitt: Housing benefit information is not available at parliamentary constituency level; the local authority information has been given instead. As at November 2005, there were 7,270 households in South Somerset district council, and 26,080 households in Somerset in receipt of housing benefit.

As at May 2006, there were 815 people in the Yeovil parliamentary constituency and 3,938 people in Somerset in receipt of jobseeker's allowance. The information is the most recent available for both benefits.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the take-up rate of council tax benefit was in (a) Yeovil constituency and (b) Somerset in each year since 1996-97; and how many pensioners (i) were entitled to and (ii) received council tax benefit in each year. [82189]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of take-up and entitlement for council tax benefit are not available below national level; the latest available information is in "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take Up in 2003-04", a copy of which is in the Library.

Figures for the number of council tax benefit claimants are not available broken down by parliamentary constituency. Figures for pensioners in receipt of council tax benefit are not available prior to 2004. The available information is in the tables:

Council tax benefit recipients aged 60 and over

	Number of recipients
South Somerset district council
November 2004	2,350
November 2005	2,200
Somerset
November 2004	7,460
November 2005	7,090

Notes:
1. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
2. Caseloads have been rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Council tax benefit totals exclude any second adult rebate cases.
4. 'Aged 60 and over' is defined as benefit units where the claimant and/or partner are aged 60 and over. Therefore figures will contain some claimants aged under 60 where there is a partner aged over 60 years.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of housing benefit claimants renting from private landlords who had benefit shortfalls in Yeovil constituency in each year since 1997-98. [82191]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available at constituency level. The available information is in the table.

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest thousand and percentages to one decimal place.
2. Figures are based on a 1 per cent sample and are therefore subject to a degree of sampling variation.

Notes:
1. The requested data are not available for Yeovil. However, data have been supplied in respect of South Somerset, which includes Yeovil, as the best alternative available.
2. As it is not possible to split the expenditure incurred on housing association and registered social landlord properties, a combined figure has been provided. As far as DWP is concerned, the two are synonymous.
3. All figures are in £ million, rounded to the nearest thousand pounds.
4. Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit Management Information System Quarterly 100 per cent. data and caseload stock counts have been used to apportion rent allowance expenditure between housing association/registered social landlord property and private sector housing in the table.
5. Information has been supplied for five years beginning in 2000-01 because 2004-05 is the latest year for which outturn housing benefit expenditure is available.
6. Real terms expenditure has been calculated using Gross Domestic Product Deflators released by Her Majesty's Treasury at Budget 2006.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his latest estimate is of the fraud and error rate in (a) percentage terms and (b) cash terms in (i) attendance allowance, (ii) carer's allowance, (iii) basic state pension, (iv) bereavement benefit, (v) industrial injuries benefit, (vi) maternity allowance, (vii) severe disablement allowance, (viii) social fund, (ix) widows benefit and (x) winter fuel payments; and if he will make a statement; [81630]

(2) what his latest estimate is of the monetary value of fraud and error in (a) income support, (b) incapacity benefit, (c) disability living allowance, (d) jobseeker's allowance, (e) housing benefit, (f) pension credit, (g) council tax benefit, (h) basic state pension, (i) carer's allowance and (j) attendance allowance; and if he will make a statement. [81632]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Estimates of fraud and error in DWP benefits

	Fraud		Customer error		Official error		Total fraud and error

Council tax benefit	60	1.6	80	2.2	40	1.1	180	4.9

Notes:

1. Monetary figures are estimates of annual overpayments rounded to the nearest £10 million. Figures in brackets are overpayments expressed as a proportion of expenditure for that benefit and are rounded to the nearest 0.1 per cent. They are based on sampling exercises and so are subject to sampling and other uncertainties. Sampling uncertainty is expressed in the form of confidence intervals—these have not been provided in these tables.
2. Carer's allowance estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Fraud and error estimates from the 1996 National Benefit Review, uprated to 2004-05 expenditure.
3. State pension estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Fraud and customer estimates from the 1995 National Benefit Review, official error from April 2003 to March 2004, all uprated to 2004-05 expenditure. The conclusion of the more recent pilot National Benefit Review for 2005-06 was that a full review of state pension would not be carried out and another benefit should be measured instead. Results from this pilot have not been published but are available on request.
4. Widow's benefit/bereavement benefit and severe disablement allowance are measured for official error every year.
5. No fraud and error figures comparable to those for other benefits are available for attendance allowance, industrial injuries benefit, maternity allowance, social fund and winter fuel payments.
6. Income support, jobseeker's allowance and pension credit figures come from the National Statistics report "Fraud and error in income support, Jobseeker's allowance and pension credit from April 2004 to March 2005: Full report", published more recently than the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account.
7. Disability living allowance fraud and error figures come from the National Statistics report "Fraud, error and other incorrectness in disability living allowance" covering the period 2004-05. The 'customer error' overpayment figure includes around £580 million (7.9 per cent. of DLA expenditure) which was removed when reported in the Departmental Resource Account. These were cases where the change in customer's needs may have been so gradual that it would be unreasonable to expect them to know at which point their entitlement to DLA might have changed. These cases do not result in a recoverable overpayment as we cannot quantify or define when the customer's change occurred. Because legislation requires the Secretary of State to prove that entitlement to DLA is incorrect, rather than requiring the customer to inform us that their needs have changed, cases in this subcategory are legally correct.
8. Incapacity benefit estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Fraud and customer error estimates from April 2000 to March 2001, official error from April 2003 to March 2004, all uprated to 2004-05 expenditure.
9. Housing benefit estimates from the National Statistics report "Fraud and Error in housing benefit April 2002 to March 2005". They are made up of reviews of around 85 per cent. of HB expenditure (used for measuring performance against the relevant PSA target to reduce fraud and error in HB) combined with more approximate estimates of error in the remaining 15 per cent. of expenditure. For further details on this, please see the relevant National Statistics reports.
10. Council tax benefit estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Council tax benefit has not been measured by the Department and was assumed to have the same levels of fraud and error as the latest housing benefit estimates available at the time (October 2003 to September 2004).
11. State pension estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Fraud and customer estimates from the 1995 National Benefit Review, official error from April 2003 to March 2004, all uprated to 2004-05 expenditure. The conclusion of the more recent pilot National Benefit Review for 2005-06 was that a full review of state pension would not be carried out and another benefit should be measured instead. Results from this pilot have not been published but are available on request.
12. Carer's allowance estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Fraud and error estimates from the 1996 National Benefit Review, uprated to 2004-05 expenditure.
13. No fraud and error figures comparable to those for other benefits are available for attendance allowance.

The Department is successfully reducing overpayments through fraud and error. For example, latest National Statistics show that fraud and error in income support and jobseeker's allowance have reduced by 44 per cent. since 1998. It is our firm intention to reduce the levels of overpayment even further. To this end we have set up an Official Error Task Force and will be publishing our strategy for reducing error later in 2006.

Benefit Payments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether there is a statutory right of appeal in relation to the recovery of benefit payments where these have been generated by official error; and if he will make a statement. [76424]

Mr. Plaskitt: There are no powers under social security legislation to recover official error overpayments. There is therefore no statutory right of appeal.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the total number of people (a) entitled to and (b) in receipt of (i) council tax benefit, (ii) housing benefit, (iii) pension credit and (iv) disability living allowance for each year from 1996-97 to 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [78158]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates are not available for disability living allowance. The available information for the other benefits is in the following tables.

Estimates of eligibility and receipt of housing benefit

	Number eligible	thousand Number in receipt
1996-97	4,750 to 5,180	4,720
1997-98	4,650 to 5,010	4,540
1998-99	4,520 to 4,830	4,390
1999-2000	4,380 to 4,700	4,180
2000-01	4,170 to 4,510	3,930
2001-02	4, 190 to 4,500	3,830
2002-03	4,210 to 4,490	3,790
2003-04	4,210 to 4,490	3,800

Estimates of eligibility and receipt of council tax benefit

	Number eligible	thousand Number in receipt
1996-97	6,460 to 7,220	5,530
1997-98	6,310 to 7,060	5,430
1998-99	6,480 to 6,980	5,230
1999-2000	6,270 to 6,850	4,990
2000-01	6,150 to 6,700	4,700
2001-02	6,370 to 6,950	4,610
2002-03	6,440 to 7,020	4,570
2003-04	6,810 to 7,420	4,640

Estimates of eligibility and receipt of pension credit

	Number eligible	thousand Number in receipt
2003-04	3,750 to 4,320	2,490
2004-05	3,710 to 4, 190	2,570

Notes:

1. Estimates of the numbers eligible are derived from estimates of the number receiving the benefit, and the number who are entitled and not receiving the benefit. These estimates are published in the "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-up" series. Copies are available in the Library.
2. The latest published estimates for housing benefit and council tax benefit are for 2003-04. The latest estimates for pension credit relate to the year 2004-05.
3. The numbers receiving housing benefit and council tax benefit are based on quarterly 100 per cent. caseload counts averaged over the year. The numbers receiving pension credit are derived from the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, and relate to the average number of recipients over the period.
4. Estimates of the numbers receiving are consistent with the figures used to calculate National Statistics estimates of take-up, and so exclude cases in non-private households and the full-time self-employed. Estimates presented here will therefore differ from other published sources.
5. Estimates of the numbers entitled but not receiving are sourced from the Family Resources Survey.
6. Estimates of the number eligible are presented as ranges within which it can be assumed the true figure lies. These ranges account for possible biases inherent in estimates from data that are less then perfect. The ranges also account for sampling error.
7. Estimates have been rounded to the nearest 10,000.
8. Care should be taken when interpreting changes in estimates over time because it is not possible to identify a single estimate of the number eligible. Year on year changes in the ranges do not necessarily mean that the true level has changed.
9. Estimates for pension credit relate to October 2003 to March 2004, the first six months of pension credit. Estimates have therefore been annualised in order to make them comparable across different years and benefits.
10. At present it is not possible to calculate eligibility for disability living allowance (DLA). This is because eligibility is not established until entitlement is tested (at the point of claim). The assessment of eligibility is more complex than for other benefits, involving a detailed judgement of personal care and mobility needs. An estimate of the amount of unclaimed benefit would need to test eligibility by carrying out this detailed assessment, which claimants undertake as part of the claim process with a sample of cases.

Benefits (Operating Model)

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will report progress on the design of a single standard operating model across all major benefits. [80292]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will report progress on the design of a single standard operating model across all major benefits. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The design of a single Standard Operating Model across all Jobcentre Plus major benefits is now nearing completion. As part of the rollout of the new Jobcentre Plus service, which is in the final phase, the standard model for people making new and repeat claims to Income Support, Jobseeker's Allowance and Incapacity Benefit has been in use since January 2005. The standard model for maintaining benefit claims that are already in payment, covering the processes required to handle changes to customers' circumstances and the processes around decision making and appeals, was introduced in the first Benefit Delivery Centre in April 2006. This process will become mandatory in all Benefit Delivery Centres as they are rolled out as part of the Centralisation of the Benefit Processing programme.

The Social Fund component of the Standard Operating Model will be introduced in September 2006 and then rolled out across the organisation as centralised Benefit Delivery Centres are put in place.

I hope this is helpful.

Best Ltd.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the extent to which Best Ltd. has the capacity to deliver the New Deal Programme in Leeds and West Yorkshire from 1 July; [82541]

(2) why Leeds city council was not informed of the decision to award the new deal contract to another contractor in sufficient time to allow it to put in place the statutory staff consultation process; [82542]

(3) what criteria were used in the process to award the contract from 1 July for the new deal scheme in the Leeds area; and what criteria Leeds city council did not meet. [82543]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Best Ltd. are a well-established Leeds based provider who have successfully delivered for Jobcentre Plus for a number of years throughout West Yorkshire. They won this contract through a fair and open competition.

The contracts with Leeds city council (LCC) were extended on 13 February 2006 with a termination date of 30 June 2006. LCC were therefore aware in February 2006 that these contracts would terminate naturally at the end of June. This gave LCC sufficient time to deal with all issues connected with termination, including statutory consultation with staff.

All bids for this contract were subject to a rigorous assessment process in line with normal procurement rules, which have been applied nationally. The criteria and score weightings were published as part of the tendering documentation made available to all bidders, and included: previous experience of delivery of this type of provision; track record of delivery; experience and track record of sub contractors to be used; organisation, infrastructure, management and capacity to deliver.

Leeds city council did not bid for the new contract. They offered themselves as a sub-contractor to Pelcombe, a private sector bidder, whose tender submission did not succeed in winning the competition.

Cancer Patients

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the special rules gateway in ensuring all terminal cancer patients receive the (a) disability living allowance and (b) attendance allowance benefits to which they are entitled; [81116]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the numbers of terminally ill cancer patients who received (a) disability living allowance and (b) attendance allowance in 2005-06. [81117]

Mrs. McGuire: The purpose of the 'special rules' is to help terminally ill people who are not expected to live longer than six months to receive the immediate payment of the higher rate attendance allowance or the highest rate care component of disability living allowance without the need to meet the normal entitlement conditions. They do this effectively. At any one time in the 12 months ending on 30 November 2005, around 62,000 people whose main disabling condition is recorded as "malignant disease" were receiving higher rate attendance allowance or the highest rate care component of disability living allowance under the 'special rules'[1].

[1] Source: DWP 5 per cent. sample data

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications from terminally ill cancer patients for (a) disability living allowance and (b) attendance allowance were unsuccessful in each of the last three years for which figures are available; and how many and what percentage subsequently appealed successfully in each year. [81118]

Mrs. McGuire: The requested information is not available. Details are not kept about the nature of the medical condition of people whose claims to attendance allowance or disability living allowance are unsuccessful, or about the nature of the medical condition of people taking their cases to appeal.

Child Poverty

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether any new strategies are being implemented to reach child poverty targets. [67283]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our long-term strategy to meet our targets is set out in "Opportunity for all" and in the Child Poverty Review, published alongside the 2004 Spending Review White Paper. It is based on:

Work for those who can, helping parents participate in the labour market;

Financial support for families, with more support for those who need it most, when they need it most; and Delivering excellent public services that improve poor children's life chances and help break cycles of deprivation.

Our strategy has been successful in reversing the trend of rising child poverty and has resulted in 700,000 fewer children living in relative low-income. This represents significant progress towards the 2010 target to halve child poverty.

We remain firmly committed to the challenging goals to halve and then eradicate child poverty. Our strategy for meeting the 2010 target consists of a further reinforcement of our labour market policies complemented by increases in financial transfers through tax credits, and further improvements in public services. We will also continue working across central Government, and together with the devolved Administrations, local government and the voluntary and community sector to ensure that progress is maintained. We are currently re-examining our strategy for meeting the 2010 target, including a reinforcement of our labour market policies, complemented by increases in tax credits, and further improvements in public services.

We launched our Welfare Reform Green Paper, "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work", in January 2006. In it we proposed a number of initiatives to help families who are at the highest risk of being in poverty. We have set out how we will help lone parents, disabled people and older workers to return to work; the surest way of escaping poverty. It also sets out proposals for piloting new initiatives to help local partners work together to improve economic regeneration through skills, employment and health. Each area will be asked to develop a consortium comprising local partners with a shared interest in working together to raise employment rates and improve the economy. This may include local authorities, employers, learning and skills councils, regional development agencies, primary care trusts and Jobcentre Plus. The key aim of this initiative will be to provide a solution that offers the maximum degree of flexibility, so that local areas can provide local solutions to local problems.

In April 2006, the child element of the child tax credit was increased in line with earnings to £1,765 per year, an increase of £320 since its introduction in April 2003, and £75 above the 2004-05 rate. Budget 2006 announced that the child element would continue to rise at least in line with earnings until the end of this Parliament. This will provide a solid foundation for halving child poverty. Child benefit has been increased by 26 per cent. in real terms since 1997. Budget 2006 also set out a number of measures to help parents into work, provide further resources for education and to encourage employer provision of child care.

Finally, I recently announced the appointment of Lisa Marker as an independent adviser to help us achieve our target of eradicating child poverty by 2020. She will advise on new possible approaches to what is our number one priority.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of delays in the transfer of old cases to the new system by the Child Support Agency on progress towards the Government's child poverty reduction targets; [77952]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of the failures of the new computer system at the Child Support Agency on the Government's ability to meet its poverty reduction target; and if he will make a statement. [77971]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Child Support Agency contributes to the Government's wider target for the reduction of child poverty through a supporting target to increase the proportion of parents with care on income support and income-based jobseeker's allowance who receive maintenance for their children.

Although achievement of this target is dependent on the successful conversion of old scheme cases onto the new scheme, we have always said that no decision will be taken on when to do this until we are confident that the new scheme is working well. In February 2006, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State commissioned Sir David Henshaw to undertake a fundamental redesign of child support policy and delivery mechanisms and he will deliver his findings this summer.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average bonus payment to the 10 most highly paid civil servants in (a) the Pensions Service, (b) the Child Support Agency and (c) Jobcentre Plus was in 2004-05. [77974]

Mrs. McGuire: The average bonus payment to the 10 most highly paid civil servants in (a) the Pensions Service (b) the Child Support Agency and (c) Jobcentre Plus in 2004-05 was:

(a) The Pension Service	4,741
(b) The Child Support Agency	3,721
(c) Jobcentre Plus	8,494

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the cost of the review of the Child Support System being carried out by Sir David Henshaw. [77981]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Henshaw redesigns estimated total costs between February 2006 and July 2006 will be as follows:

Cost of:	Amount (£)
Sir David Henshaw's time	54,000
Henshaw's redesign secretariat staffing	200,000
Henshaw's redesign non-staff costs and publication	[1]75,000
Henshaw's redesign research/consultation	50,000

[1] Up to.

Note:

Figures are rounded to the nearest 1,000.

The DWP also meets the costs of general office overheads for example accommodation, IT etc. These costs are not separately identifiable from DWP running costs.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what facilities are available to the Child Support Agency to verify a non-residential parent's (a) address and (b) working arrangements. [80423]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what facilities are available to the Child Support Agency to verify a non-residential parent's (a) address and (b) working arrangements.

The Child Support Agency is able to verify a non-resident parent's address using the Departmental Central Index and Customer Information System computer records. If necessary we can also approach the appropriate Local Authority to provide any address information held for council tax purposes. From July we anticipate that this will also include access to credit reference agency data for trace purposes and later this year we will begin to use external suppliers to help trace clients. The Agency compliance officers can visit a non-resident parent at the address where the non-resident parent is thought to be residing to confirm the address details.

In relation to verification of the Non Resident Parents working arrangements, the Agency is able to issue requests for employment details to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs. This provides information from P45/46 and P14 records, National Insurance records and Tax credit records (where there is an indication that New Tax Credits are in payment). The Agency can also check with the clients employer where known.

If appropriate the Agency can use inspectors to visit business premises in pursuit of relevant information.

I hope you find this helpful.

Cohabitation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the potential impact on the Child Support Agency of the Law Commission's proposals on the rights of cohabiting couples; and if he will make a statement. [76218]

Mr. Plaskitt: We look forward to the outcome of the consultation. Unlike other legislation child support law does not distinguish between married and unmarried parents.

Community Care Grants

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many community care grants enabling homeless prison leavers to buy a tent and sleeping bag were awarded by Jobcentre Plus in 2005; [76784]

(2) what system is in place to ensure that homeless prison leavers who receive a community care grant from Jobcentre Plus for a sleeping bag and tent spend that grant for that purpose. [76785]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 12 June 2006]: The information requested is not available.

When a customer applies for a community care grant for an item or items and is subsequently awarded a grant no further check is made to ascertain whether the customer actually used the award to obtain the items requested. It is the responsibility of the customer to use the grant appropriately.

Exceptionally, where the Decision Maker has evidence that the award may not be used for its intended purpose, for example from information held on departmental systems or from a case worker involved in the case, then the Decision Maker has the power under Sections 138(3) and 139(5) of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 to make payment to a third party who can provide, or arrange for the provision of, the items covered by the award.

Correspondence

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will reply to the letter on widowers' claims sent to him by Guy Dodd Solicitors on 14 June. [80763]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 27 June 2006]: The letter of 14 June from Guy Dodd Solicitors addressed to The Widowers Litigation Department was answered by Jobcentre Plus Bereavement Benefits on 29 June 2006.

Council Tax Benefit

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the take-up rate of council tax benefit was in (a) Edinburgh, West constituency and (b) other Edinburgh parliamentary constituencies in each year since 1996-97; and how many pensioners (i) were entitled to and (ii) received council tax benefit in each year. [82705]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of take-up and entitlement for Council Tax Benefit are not available below national level; the latest available information is in "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take Up in 2003-04", a copy of which is in the Library.

Figures for the number of council tax benefit claimants are not available broken down by parliamentary constituency. Figures for pensioners in receipt of council tax benefit are not available prior to 2004. The available information is in the following table.

Council tax benefit recipients aged 60 and over: Edinburgh city council

November	Number
2004	18,450
2005	17,490

Notes:
1. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
2. Caseloads have been rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Council tax benefit totals exclude any second adult rebate cases.
4. 'Aged 60 and over' is defined as benefit units where the claimant and/or partner are aged 60 and over. Therefore figures will contain some claimants aged under 60 where there is a partner aged over 60 years.

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79943]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

It would be inconsistent for a Government Department to favour credit unions above other financial institutions and I therefore do not plan to provide information and membership forms for credit unions to employees of the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP).

DWP employees are of course free to join in credit unions if they meet their relevant membership criteria. DWP will consider what levels of support would be appropriate should its employees wish to set up a credit union.

Departmental Decision Making Standards Committee

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what role the Departmental Decision Making Standards Committee will play in monitoring (a) qualitative and (b) quantitative aspects of service; and if he will make a statement on the membership and frequency of meeting of this Committee. [69274]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions Decision Making Standards Committee ('the Committee') monitors the standards of decision making on benefit issues in Jobcentre Plus, The Pension Service and the Disability and Carers' Service. The Committee has three key objectives:

To provide independent advice on the accuracy of reports on the standard of benefit decision making

To identify, and make recommendations on, the areas where standards can be improved

To conduct additional inquiries deemed to affect decision making standards at the discretion of the chief executives.

The Committee has five independent members including the chairperson. Formal meetings of the Committee are held not less than three times a year. Working meetings of members are held when required.

Departmental Expenditure

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent by his Department on refreshments in each year since 1997. [41255]

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on entertainment by his Department in 2004-05; and how much of that sum was accounted for by (a) food, (b) alcohol, (c) staff and (d) accommodation. [50899]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001 from the Department of Social Security and parts of the former Department for Education and Employment including the Employment Service. Therefore it is not possible to provide information prior to that date. Such information as is available is provided as follows.

Expenditure on refreshments is taken to include working breakfasts or lunches, refreshments at meetings, as well as official hospitality and is incurred in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80073]

Mrs. McGuire: The finance director general for the Department for Work and Pensions is John Codling. He is a chartered public finance accountant and holds a BA (Hons) degree in Economics. His career includes senior appointments in local government, a regional health authority, and he was director of finance at the Funding Agency for Schools. John Codling joined the Benefits Agency as finance director in April 1998. He was subsequently appointed the DSS finance director in May 2000 and then finance director general for DWP in December 2001 following an external competition.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his practice is regarding meeting, discussions with and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81657]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process—both informal and formal. The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts.

Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations, which abide by the code of practice on consultation. Our regular stakeholder contacts are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Recently, there has been extensive consultation, with both individual members of the public and stakeholder organisations, about both pensions reform and welfare reform proposals, supplementing the formal consultative papers with both meetings, and online opportunities to comment on the proposals.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79075]

James Purnell: The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions is responsible for 21 websites. These were listed in PQ/06/65209 and in the following tables.

The following special points should be noted:

1. The Department is continuing to develop services on-line. The website costs do not include the development of e-services, and is restricted to website costs, which provide the user access. Online services may require development of 'back office' processes and redevelopment of the department's legacy' systems.

2. There have been a number of similar/related PQs since 2002.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total set-up costs were of the Targeting Fraud website; and what its total running costs have been in each year. [81027]

Mr. Plaskitt: There are no separately quantifiable set-up or running costs for the site, which was developed internally by the Department's in-house communications team.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in (a) the Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [82360]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W.

Disability Benefits

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to review the eligibility criteria for claimants of disability benefits, including disability living allowance and incapacity benefit; and if he will make a statement. [83737]

Mrs. McGuire: Disability living allowance is paid as a contribution towards the extra, disability-related costs incurred by severely disabled people. It is a tax free, non income related benefit. It is available to those who claim before the age of 65.

As part of a wide range of support that the Government makes available to older people, attendance allowance provides equivalent help to people who experience the onset of disability after age 65.

There are no plans to review the eligibility conditions for disability living allowance or attendance allowance.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action he is taking to reduce the level of (a) fraud and (b) error in relation to disability living allowance; and if he will make a statement. [81597]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Disability and Carers Service (DCS), the agency responsible for administering disability living allowance (DLA), is committed to reducing fraud and error in DLA.

All allegations of benefit fraud are carefully considered and, where appropriate, referred for investigation to the Fraud Investigation Service.

DLA cases are subject to a periodic inquiry process. This process has led to over 100,000 case interventions since its introduction in 1999. The periodic inquiry process has recently been refocused to target those cases with the highest propensity for change to ensure that these cases are correct.

DCS is currently testing an improved Customer Case Management (CCM) system. CCM is structured, IT-based support for decision-making, enabling greater consistency in both the outcome of decisions and in the level and length of awards.

DCS is also reviewing the DLA checking regime. This ensures the standard and quality of DLA/AA decision making across the agency.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many individuals diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis who failed to qualify for disability living allowance appealed against the decision in (a) 2003, (b) 2004 and (c) 2005; [82079]

(2) how many individuals diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis applied but failed to qualify for disability living allowance in (a) 2003, (b) 2004 and (c) 2005. [82080]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The requested information is not available. Details are not kept about the nature of the medical condition of people whose claims to attendance allowance or disability living allowance are unsuccessful, or about the nature of the medical condition of people taking their cases to appeal.

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households in Wakefield include a person with a learning disability who receives the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate. [83478]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of disability living allowance is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service, Mr. Terry Moran. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Terry Moran:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many households in Wakefield include a person with a learning disability who receives the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest (b) middle and (c) lowest rate.

The Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, promised you a substantive reply from the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service.

The information available is in the following table:

Disabled Persons' Scooters

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assistance is available to disabled persons for obtaining a disabled person's scooter; and if he will make a statement. [82359]

Mrs. McGuire: Disability living allowance (DLA) provides a contribution towards the extra costs faced by severely disabled people as a result of their disabilities. The higher rate mobility component of DLA is paid to disabled people who are unable or virtually unable to walk.

The Motability Scheme enables disabled persons to use their mobility component towards obtaining a disabled person's powered wheelchair or scooter. The scheme provides scooters in return for some or all of a customer's higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance or war pensioner's mobility supplement. Customers are able to choose from an extensive range of powered wheelchairs and scooters and 200 accredited dealer specialists provide further advice as part of an overall assessment process to obtain the right product to best meet a person's mobility needs. There are currently 6,300 customers using this scheme.

The scheme is overseen by Motability, an independent not-for-profit charity, operating at arms length from this Department and overseen by a board of governors.

Employment, Hartlepool

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to increase employment in Hartlepool constituency since 1997. [80549]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Latest figures show that there are more people in work than ever before. Employment now stands at 28.9 million, up by just over 2.5 million since 1997. More than 1.5 million people have been helped into work through our New Deal programmes, including more than 4,200 people in Hartlepool, and our successful labour market policies have contributed to the virtual eradication of long term youth unemployment, fewer people out of work, and fewer people on inactive benefits. In Hartlepool, the numbers of people claiming incapacity benefits has fallen by 14 per cent .since 1997 and the numbers claiming lone parent benefit by 31 per cent. Long term youth unemployment has fallen by 75 per cent.

Despite progress over the last eight years there remain pockets of persistent low employment, and tackling worklessness and inactivity, particularly among those on benefits, remains our top priority. Our successful Pathways to Work programme which has already achieved more than 21,000 job entries, including 50 in Tees Valley, will be extended to every part of Britain by 2008 and we will be investing a further £360 million on our welfare reform green paper proposals over the next two years.

Some of the most disadvantaged areas, including Hartlepool, have been asked to submit expressions of interest for our Cities Strategy initiative which will ensure that those still most disadvantaged in the labour market receive the help and guidance they need. This strategy fits with our wider aims of moving towards an 80 per cent. employment rate and reducing child poverty, by addressing the localised pockets of worklessness across Great Britain. It aims to deliver a significant improvement in the working age employment rate, particularly for disadvantaged groups.

Housing Benefit

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which the (a) best performing and (b) worst performing council, in respect of the level of housing benefit (i) overpayment and (ii) fraud was in 2005-06; and what assessment he has made of the performance of Luton council in each case. [80368]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table:

Detected overpayments of housing benefit by local authority, 2004-05

Highest level of detected overpayment	Hart	278

Source:

Information is not available on local authority performance in respect of the level of housing benefit overpayments and fraud present in their caseload, since it is not possible to estimate with sufficient confidence the amount of undetected fraud and error at local authority level.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to collect information on the cost of housing benefit paid to households renting properties formerly owned by local authorities. [81598]

Mr. Plaskitt: We are currently looking at the information we collect and considering the feasibility of various options. Were it feasible, the earliest date that any such additional information could be collected would be April 2007.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of housing benefit was in each year from 1985-86 at 2004-05 prices; and if he will make a statement. [81747]

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will make a statement on the findings of reviews of the work pension abatement threshold within incapacity benefit since 1999; [83599]

(2) what progress he has made in ensuring that the work pension abatement threshold for incapacity benefit is increased and does not erode savings. [83600]

Mrs. McGuire: We have no current plans to change the threshold at which income from an occupational pension or personal pension is taken into account in assessing incapacity benefit, although, as with all social security rules, this will be kept under review.

The incapacity benefit pension income rule was introduced for new claims from April 2001. The threshold of £85 was set so that only people with above average pensions would be affected by the change.

The position was last considered in detail in October 2004. At that time, statistics showed that around one-fifth of people on incapacity benefit had an occupational pension and that the median pension income was £72.00 per week.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the value of the work pension abatement threshold for incapacity benefits was in each year since 1999; and what the estimated value for each year would have been had the threshold been uprated in line with inflation since 1999. [83601]

Mrs. McGuire: The occupational or personal pensions threshold of £85 was introduced in April 2001.

Information on what the threshold would be if it had been uprated by the RPI from 2001 is in the table.

Occupational or personal pensions threshold if uprated by RPI from 2001

2002	86.45
2003	88.87
2004	91.62
2005	94.09
2006	96.35

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the total value of incapacity benefit claimants' savings (a) which would have been protected if the work pension abatement threshold had been uprated in line with inflation in each year since 1999 and (b) which have been protected at the level at which the threshold has remained at since 1999. [83602]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available. No details of incapacity benefit claimants' savings are held.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants whom Pathways to Work has placed in work were helped by private and voluntary sector organisations working in conjunction with JobCentre Plus. [73266]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 24 May 2006]: The New Deal for Disabled People (NDDP) is offered as part of the Pathways to Work Choices package and is delivered through a network of job brokers from the private and voluntary sector who are contracted to help customers find, secure and sustain paid employment.

Between October 2003 and February 2006; 22,350 individuals have been helped into work through Pathways to Work, of which, 5,070 (22.7 per cent.) were helped by a New Deal for Disabled People Job Broker.

From 7 February 2005 those existing IB customers who started an incapacity benefit IB claim (excluding Personal Capability Assessment exempt cases) in the two years before the Pathways pilots started have been subject to three additional mandatory Work Focused Interviews (WFIs).

Between 7 February 2005 and the end of February 2006, the mandatory extension of Pathways has helped 980 individuals into work, of which, 260 (26.5 per cent.) were helped by an NDDP Job Broker.

The delivery of the mandatory extension to IB customers takes three months to complete and we would expect to see more people entering work in the months after this process. Therefore the latest available performance information does not yet give a true reflection of performance.

Note:

Pathways to Work data and data for the extension to existing customers is to February 2006.

Job Vacancies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job vacancies were listed at Jobcentre Plus in Yeovil constituency in each year since 1997. [82142]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Information on Jobcentre Plus vacancy data at parliamentary constituency level are only available from April 2004 and is set out in the following table.

Yeovil parliamentary constituency

Jobcentre Plus Labour Market System.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) national and (b) local targets have been set for Jobcentre Plus Contact Centre performance; and what data have been recorded to measure performance against such targets over the last two years. [54252]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what (a) national and (b) local targets have been set for Jobcentre Plus Contact Centre performance and what data has been recorded to measure performance against such targets over the last two years. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus contact centres report against two national Jobcentre Plus targets:

Job Entry Target—This target is the measure of our success in helping people in to work. Points are allocated according to the customer's priority group. A higher points score is awarded for our harder to help customer groups. Contact Centres contribute to this target through a dedicated telephone service provided by Jobseeker Direct.

Customer Service Target—This measures Jobcentre Plus' performance in meeting the standards and commitments set out in the organisation's customer and employer charters. An independent company assess performance against these standards by conducting mystery shopping surveys over the telephone.

Contact Centres are responsible for Jobseekers Direct and the contribution that service makes to the overall performance targets. In 2004/05 the Contact Centre target was 885,870 points, performance was 32% below profile with 602,295 points being achieved. In 2005/06 the target was 707,187 points, performance was 9% below profile, with 643,615 points being achieved.

For 2004/05, there were a number of factors that contributed to the Contact Centres network (Jobcentre Plus Direct) failing to achieve the Job Entry Target;

New staff were recruited and had to be trained. There was a dip in performance whilst these staff became fully effective.

Some slippage in the rollout of the new Jobcentre Plus model meant that, for a limited period, job entries were captured at Jobcentres instead of through the contact centre network.

In 2004/05 Contact Centres exceeded the target for Customer Service achieving 84% against a target of 81.6%. In 2005/06 performance dipped to 62.4% against a target of 81.2%. This was the result of the difficulties Jobcentre Plus Contact Centres experienced in responding to customer calls during the summer months of 2005. Robust plans were put in place to improve levels of customer service and as you know 96% of calls made to our First Contact service i.e. customers calling to make new claims to working age benefits, are now answered. This has resulted in significant improvements in the Customer Service target in recent months, with a reported 74.2% achieved in Quarter 3 and 80.8% in Quarter 4.

In addition to contributing to the two national performance targets, Contact Centre performance data is collected and measured through a set of internal Key Management Indicators. This information is collected on a centre-by-centre basis, as well as nationally, allowing Jobcentre Plus to continually monitor performance.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action is being taken to stabilise the performance of Jobcentre Plus. [76508]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what action is being taken to stabilise the performance of Jobcentre Plus. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

During 2005-2006, Jobcentre Plus worked to a set of challenging objectives, including a commitment to improve the ease with which our customers could access our services, and to increase the numbers of people moving into work.

Performance against job entry targets was closely monitored throughout the year at all levels of the business and improvement plans were initiated where any delivery unit fell below agreed standards. A job entry national action plan was introduced in September 2005 to address the shortfall in job entry performance in three main areas:

improving adviser performance—managers were advised how to improve adviser productivity and individual adviser improvement plans were implemented to support advisers; increasing Jobcentre Plus access to vacancies—a national campaign publicising Jobcentre Plus services to targeted employers was launched; and process management—for example senior management monitored progress against the plan on a weekly basis.

These measures will be further reinforced by the new Job Outcome Target, implemented nationally on 10 April following a pilot phase which ran from January 2005, which reduces the administration burden of the previous target so allowing staff to focus more attention on delivering the jobseeker's allowance interventions and the job outcomes that flow from them.

It is true that a number of Contact Centres experienced some difficulties in maintaining service levels during the summer of 2005. Immediate steps were taken to tackle the problems, through the recruitment and training of staff coupled with some process and management adjustments. These measures have allowed us to bring performance back towards expected levels and the network is now delivering sustained performance with almost 95 per cent. of all calls being answered.

Jobcentre Plus has learned from its experience of Contact Centre management, in particular on forecasting demand and ensuring that sufficient staffing is in place to deal with that demand. These were implemented successfully to meet the expected peak of claims in January 2006.

In addition, we have put action in hand to address temporary delays in processing claims, occurring in the wake of individual elements of the restructuring of Jobcentre Plus, including the launch of a National Action Plan on 30 January. Senior Operational Managers provided a formal assurance at the end of February that they were complying with all elements of the National Action Plan. To support the action plan, the Key Management Indicators which monitored Actual Average Clearance Times in 2005-06 have been converted to specific Jobcentre Plus Targets for 2006-07 .

I believe that, during 2005-06, Jobcentre Plus again proved itself to be a strong delivery organisation. We have met the challenges we faced last year and we go into the next operational year a stronger organisation with clear plans to deliver our performance targets.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will announce the provisional allocation of his Department's early release money for 2007-08 to Jobcentre Plus and other departmental businesses. [80286]

Mr. Jim Murphy: In line with previous years, it is proposed that an indicative allocation of early release funding will be shared with Jobcentre Plus and the other departmental businesses in December 2006.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what data is (a) collated and (b) published on the performance of each Jobcentre Plus district. [80291]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what data is (a) collated and (b) published on the performance of each Jobcentre Plus district. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Collated information on Jobcentre Plus district performance is published quarterly on the Jobcentre Plus website (www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk). The most recent data is for the period ending 31 March 2006 and consists of performance against:

the Job Entry target, which measures performance in helping people into work;

the Customer Service target which helps us to measure our service to all our customers; and the Employer Outcome target, which measures how quickly and effectively employers' recruitment needs are met.

From 1 April 2006 the Job Entry target was replaced by the Job Outcome target. From 1 April 2006 we also introduced the Average Actual Clearance Times target to measure and monitor how long it takes to process benefit claims for Jobseeker's Allowance, Income Support and Incapacity Benefit. Clearance times performance in respect of each of our Benefit Delivery Centres will be available on the Jobcentre Plus website during the summer.

I hope this is helpful.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what steps he is taking to ensure that more staff in Jobcentres are trained to deal with clients suffering from mental illness. [83302]

Mrs. McGuire: All Jobcentre Plus staff who work directly with customers are provided with training and development during the first three months in their role to ensure they deal professionally with all customers including those with a mental illness.

Specifically, for dealing with customers with a mental illness, we have developed a two day learning event, with the co-operation of specialist organisations such as MIND, for all Advisers to equip them with the specialist skills they need.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the introduction of strengthened fortnightly job reviews for jobseeker's allowance claimants. [76513]

Mr. Plaskitt: The 2006 Budget announced the introduction of strengthened Fortnightly Job Reviews (FJRs). These put greater emphasis on claimants to show that they are fulfilling their responsibilities by being available for and actively seeking work.

Discussing with claimants what they have done to find work has always been a regular feature of FJRs. The more people look for work, the greater their chances of success.

However, following significant investment in the modernization of Jobcentre Plus services, people now have faster, easier access to jobs through, for example Jobseeker Direct (our telephone-based job search and matching service) and the Internet. As a consequence, proportionately more time at fortnightly jobsearch reviews can now be used to check people are actively seeking work and making best use of all available vacancy sources and to take action, including possible benefit sanction, against those who appear not to be fulfilling their responsibilities. Matching and submitting people to jobs will still be a feature of some jobsearch reviews, primarily for those who appear to need more help in identifying and applying for jobs.

The strengthened FJR is also supported by a revised and simplified Jobseeker's Agreement, which sets out individual job goals and responsibilities, and by a revised interview after 13 weeks on JSA. The 13 Week Review will ensure that claimants are prepared to take any suitable job from then on (some restriction to any usual occupation is permitted until that point) and that where previous jobsearch appears insufficient or ineffective they are submitted to suitable vacancies to test their continued eligibility for JSA.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80492]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Long-term Unemployed

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is for involving the long-term unemployed in service to the community. [81451]

Mr. Plaskitt: The valuable contribution voluntary work or paid participation in regeneration work can make to the community and the potential benefit it can bring for the individual is recognised by the Government. Such participation can help unemployed people to keep in touch with the labour market and enable them to develop skills and experience, with the possibility that it may help them find paid employment.

Jobseekers can do unlimited voluntary work without it affecting their benefit, as long as the usual entitlement conditions are met. Cases are decided on an individual basis according to the regulations, and people are required to report their participation in voluntary work. Jobseekers are exempt from the normal requirement to be immediately available for employment, being required only to be available at seven days notice, although they will be required to be available for interviews on being given 48 hours notice, if they are currently engaged in voluntary activity. Similar rules currently apply to Incapacity Benefit claimants and will apply when we introduce the Employment and Support Allowance.

By putting such easements in place we are trying to ensure entitlement conditions for benefits do not place unnecessary barriers in the way of undertaking voluntary work. However, this must sit within a benefit system that targets support at those who are not in full time remunerative work, and welfare to work policies that envisage full participation in the labour market for those who are able to do so. The current rules aim to strike a balance between allowing benefit recipients to pursue voluntary activity that can be of benefit to the community, while encouraging them to retain a clear focus on moving off welfare into paid employment.

We have improved the rules about expenses paid to volunteers to ensure all expenses incurred or to be incurred are disregarded when assessing claims to benefits. Also, volunteers who find a job are given a week to re-arrange their voluntary activity before taking up their employment.

Mesothelioma

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons attendance allowance is not paid automatically to people with mesothelioma who are awarded 100 per cent. industrial injuries disablement benefit. [68474]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Constant attendance allowance is paid where a person is assessed as being 100 per cent. disabled for the purposes of industrial injuries disablement benefit and it is determined that the person requires constant attendance for the necessities of life due to that disablement.

All people now diagnosed with diffuse mesothelioma are given an automatic assessment of 100 per cent. disablement, in most cases without the need for a medical examination to determine the extent of their disablement. This is because of the prognosis expected from the disease.

However, not everyone with mesothelioma will require constant attendance at the time of the claim for benefit. That is the reason why entitlement to constant attendance allowance is not decided automatically, but is considered separately according to the needs of the individual, and payment made if appropriate.

We have commissioned a review of the current industrial disablement benefit scheme. The scheme was introduced in 1948 and may no longer meet the needs of our modern society.

The review will look at all aspects of the scheme and all the options for the future. We intend to publish a discussion document later this year when we will engage fully with stakeholders and other interested parties.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total amount recovered by the Compensation Recovery Unit was from compensation payments made in respect of mesothelioma cases in the last three years. [79111]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 20 June 2006]: Details of the total amount recovered under the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act in respect of mesothelioma cases in the last three years are in the table.

Financial year	Amount recovered (£)
2003-04	3,113,949
2004-05	3,613,520
2005-06	4,222,944

Migrant Workers

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the Trades Union Congress on the impact of Central and Eastern European migrants on (a) wage levels, (b) terms and conditions at work and (c) access to benefits. [71900]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) Ministers have not met the Trades Union Congress to discuss these issues.

Ministerial Flights

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in his Department are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81394]

Mr. Plaskitt: All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions are calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases Certified Emissions Reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

The Department has put in place a mechanism to collect air travel data, and is currently incorporating carbon offsetting into its financial systems.

Mystery Shoppers

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what use is made of mystery shoppers to evaluate departmental performance; and if he will make a statement. [80290]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 8 February 2006, Official Report, columns 1191-92W.

National Insurance

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people from the EU accession member states have registered in each of the London boroughs for a new national insurance number in each of the last five years. [83530]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. The information is not available broken down by country of origin, nor is it available broken down below regional level.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps he takes to ensure national insurance numbers are not issued to illegal immigrants; and if he will make a statement; [75798]

(2) how many immigrants were given national insurance numbers in each quarter from April 1997 to April 2006; what measures were in place to prevent illegal immigrants obtaining national insurance numbers; and if he will make a statement. [75800]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer on 8 June 2006]: All NINO applications are subjected to rigorous identity checking process. Where this raises questions over immigration status or authenticity of identity documents, individuals will be referred to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate. Previously, where identity requirements were satisfied and the individual was in employment, a NINO would have been issued. In cases where false documents were presented, a NINO would not be issued.

On Monday 5 June 2006, I announced changes to improve this process. These will take place from July 2006 and will introduce a 'right to work' pre-condition for employment related national insurance number (NINO) applications. This will prevent illegal workers being allocated a NINO.

The available information regarding the number of overseas nationals allocated NINO is in the table.

Overseas Nationals entering the UK and allocated a National Insurance Number by quarter of Registration

2. Figures are not available prior to 2002-03 due to unreliability of the registrations data.
3. Figures include EU Nationals.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on the allocation of national insurance numbers to illegal workers; and if he will make a statement. [76144]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have received a number of representations from hon. Members regarding the allocation of national insurance numbers to illegal workers.

On Monday 5 June 2006, we announced changes that will take place from July 2006 which will introduce a "right to work" pre-condition before a NINO can be allocated to employment-related applicants.

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the oral answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 517, on national insurance numbers (illegal immigrants), how many national insurance numbers were issued to those without the right to live or work in the UK in the last three years. [80828]

Mr. Plaskitt: From April 2005 to March 2006, DWP notified the immigration and nationality directorate of 2,537 cases where national insurance numbers were allocated to suspected immigration offenders. In addition, 772 cases involving false documents that have been refused a NINO were notified to the immigration and nationality directorate by DWP. Figures are not available prior to 1 April 2005 as the information was not formally recorded.

From July 2006 an additional 'right to work' pre-condition test will be introduced for employment related NINO applications. This will prevent illegal workers being allocated a NINO.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has held with HM Revenue and Customs on the use of national insurance numbers in determining eligibility for tax credits of an individual who has failed verification rule 12 of the Tax Credits manual Residency Criteria Not Met. [78953]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) works closely with Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) on matters pertaining to national insurance numbers (NINOs). However, the administration of tax credits is the responsibility of HMRC.

New Deal

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of New Deal leavers has entered sustained, unsubsidised jobs. [54987]

Mr. Jim Murphy: A measure of sustainability is only available for New Deal for Young People, New Deal 25 plus and New Deal for Lone Parents.

The available information on the percentage of people who have left New Deal to an unsubsidised, sustained job is in the following table.

		Leavers to an unsubsidised, sustained job
New deal programme	All leavers (number)	Number	Percentage of all leavers
New Deal for Young People	1,320,380	587,230	44
New Deal 25 plus	438,540	135,570	31
New Deal for Lone Parents	853,820	256,150	30

Notes:
1. Information relates to cumulative leavers to November 2005, which is the latest available data.
2. Information on leavers from New Deal 25 plus is only available for leavers from the post April 2001 enhanced programme.
3. As there are different measures of sustainability for New Deal for Lone Parents, results cannot be compared with those for New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 plus.
4. People gaining unsustained employment through New Deal for Young People and the New Deal 25 plus are not regarded as leaving the programme so are not included in the figures.

Source:
DWP Information Directorate

In addition to those leaving these New Deal programmes to an unsubsidised, sustained job, a further 301,160 people gained a job at some point during their time on the programme, but the employment was not recorded as sustained.

Even though some people return to jobseeker's allowance or income support after finding a job through New Deal, they will have benefited from their time in employment and will have more employment skills than they did before finding work through New Deal. Many of the people helped into work through New Deal have considerable barriers to employment, particularly those entering New Deal 25 plus, who will have been unemployed for at least 18 months, and helping them into employment is a considerable achievement.

Participation on New Deal for Lone Parents is voluntary and many lone parents will not be ready to start work immediately on leaving the programme, particularly when their children are below school age. However, the advice and support they receive whilst on NDLP will mean they will be better equipped to enter employment in the future.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of leavers from (a) New Deal for Young People and (b) New Deal 25 plus recommenced claiming benefits within 12 months of leaving the programme in each year since it began. [56973]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information is in the following table.

Percentage of New Deal leavers who recommenced claiming benefits within 12 months of leaving the programme

	New Deal for Young People (percentage)	New Deal 25 Plus (percentage)
1998[1]	36	31
1999	50	33
2000	52	35
2001	53	35
2002	53	37
2003	51	37
2004	49	38
2005	48	36

Notes:
1. New Deal for Young People was launched in January 1998; New Deal 25 plus in July 1998.
2. The latest benefit data are to February 2006, therefore allowing for a 12 month gap only New Deal leavers to February 2005 are included.
3. The benefits included are bereavement benefit, incapacity benefit, invalid care allowance, income support, jobseeker's allowance, severe disablement allowance and widows benefit.
4. A benefit claim has only been included if it is a new claim after leaving the New Deal spell. People can leave New Deal and continue a benefit claim—these people are not included as recommencing a claim to benefit.

Source:
Information Directorate, DWP

The New Deal has been successful in helping more than 1.5 million people into work including more than 920,000 people through New Deal for Young People (NDYP) and New Deal 25 plus (ND25 plus). It has helped to virtually eradicate long term youth claimant unemployment and has also helped to cut long-term adult employment by almost three quarters, close to its lowest for 30 years. Of those who get a job through the mandatory New Deals, more than 80 per cent. stay off Jobseeker's Allowance for at least 13 weeks.

Inevitably, in a dynamic labour market, some people return to Jobseeker's Allowance or Income Support after finding a job through New Deal, nevertheless, they will have benefited from their time in employment and will have more employment skills than they did before finding work through New Deal.

Pathways to Work

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals are participating in Pathways to Work in (a) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (b) Lewisham borough. [79150]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our successful Pathways to Work pilots have been acknowledged internationally as the best way of helping people on incapacity benefits back into work quickly. They have resulted in 21,400 Pathways job entries, including over 3,360 from voluntary customers.

I recently announced my plans for the nationwide roll out of Pathways to Work. Pathways to Work will be rolled out to Lewisham, Deptford constituency and Lewisham borough in April 2008.

Pension Credit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset and (c) the south west receive pension credit. [82253]

James Purnell: The information is in the table.

Individual beneficiaries in Yeovil constituency, Somerset local authorities and the south west, February 2006

	Individual Beneficiaries[1]

Yeovil	5,450
Local authority

1. These figures are early estimates. The preferred data source for figures supplied by DWP is the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS). However, the figures provided are the latest available figures which are taken from the GMS scan at 17 February 2006. These are adjusted using the historical relationship between WPLS and GMS data to give an estimate of the final WPLS figure. Average amounts are displayed as at the scan reference data of 17 February 2006.
2. The number of individual beneficiaries are rounded to the nearest ten.
3. Parliamentary constituency/Government office region and local authority are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in each electoral ward in Yeovil constituency receive pension credit; and if he will make a statement. [82255]

James Purnell: The information is in the following table.

Pension Service

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria were used to make decisions on changes in staffing levels taking effect between March 2004 and March 2008 for agencies of the Department, with particular reference to their application to the Pension Service; what assessment he has made of the changes in service levels necessitated by staffing changes, including partnership agreements with local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [78435]

James Purnell: The Department's headcount reduction challenge was determined primarily on the basis of productivity improvements delivered from the Department's modernisation projects and programmes. These include improvements to IT infrastructure, more efficient procurement, benefit and policy simplification, and re-engineering of business processes and organisations. These improvements will mean the Department will require fewer staff to deliver its services.

Among the measures introduced is a comprehensive transformation of the Pension Service that will deliver improved customer service and encourage take-up, while achieving significantly increased productivity and efficiency. The Pension Service headcount reductions are to be realised primarily from the Pension Transformation Programme.

The Department's efficiency target will be met if the overall efficiency savings, including the staff savings, are achieved without detriment to performance across all areas of DWP's activity and our customers, including corporate customers such as local authorities, experience no diminution in the service they receive. Latest details of performance can be found in the departmental report which was laid before the House on 11 May 2006.

Pensions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of pensioners will be eligible for means-tested assistance (a) under present policies and (b) under the proposals in the White Paper in each year up to 2020. [79615]

James Purnell [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The information requested is not available in full. Information relating to pension credit is shown in the following tables. This includes the majority of pensioner households eligible for means-tested assistance.

Table 1 shows the estimated proportion of all pensioner households eligible for pension credit for 2006-07 and 2007-08 and Table 2 shows projections from 2008-09 to 2020-21.

Table 1: Estimated proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit under the current system

	Percentage
2006-07	45
2007-08	46

Table 2: Projected proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit for selected years under the current system and the White Paper proposals

	Percentage under:
	Current system	White Paper proposals
2008-09	46	45
2009-10	46	45
2010-11	46	44
2011-12	48	45
2012-13	48	45
2013-14	48	44
2014-15	49	44
2015-16	50	44
2016-17	50	43
2017-18	50	42
2018-19	51	41
2019-20	53	41
2020-21	54	41

Notes:
1. Projections of the proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit are sensitive to modelling assumptions and to projected changes in the distribution of pensioner incomes.
2. The estimate of proportions shown are the mid-points of projections taken from two separate micro-simulation models. Modelling of the reform proposals does not assume any increase in private saving from the introduction of personal accounts, which would further reduce the numbers eligible for pension credit.
3. The projections under the current system assume that basic state pension is uprated in line with prices and the standard guarantee credit with earnings each year. It should be noted that there is a Government commitment to uprate the standard guarantee credit with earnings until 2008. Treasury projections for the current system assume price uprating of the standard guarantee credit beyond 2008.
4. The reform projections assume: continued earnings uprating of the standard guarantee credit; the savings credit maximum is uprated by earnings from 2008 and then by prices from 2015; earnings uprating of the basic state pension from 2012; measures to improve coverage of the basic state pension described in the White Paper.
5. Estimates cover all those aged above women's state pension age in the private household population of Great Britain.
6. Estimates account for equalisation of state pension age between 2010 and 2020.
7. Estimates are calibrated to the mid-points of the 2004-05 National Statistics range estimates of non-eligibility to pension credit, which adjust 2004-05 Family Resources Survey data to take account of possible biases in reporting. Although the estimates are not presented as ranges, they are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Personal Capability Assessment

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether before implementation the revised Personal Capability Assessment will be subject to an independent pilot and evaluation which will examine the impact on people with (a) mental illness, (b) learning disability and (c) autistic spectrum disorder. [81948]

Mrs. McGuire: As part of our transformation of the Personal Capability Assessment (PCA) we are working to improve the way that the assessment deals with the problems and difficulties that individuals with these conditions face.

To ensure that the review does just this, we have set up two working groups to look at the mental health component of the PCA. This review includes technical or medical experts from the field of mental health and learning disabilities as well as representatives from key stakeholder groups. MENCAP and the National Autistic Society are fully involved in the working groups carrying out the review.

When we have completed the review of the PCA we intend to test the changes to evaluate their effectiveness. The evaluation will look at the impact of the revised PCA on people with mental illness, learning disabilities and autistic spectrum disorders.

Post Office

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Government first announced its intention to phase out the Post Office card account. [83743]

Mr. Plaskitt: We are not "phasing out" the Post Office card account. We will fulfil our contractual obligations to fund the Post Office card account until March 2010 as was always clear when the contract was signed with Post Office Ltd. in March 2002.

I also refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Argyll and Bute (Mr. Reid) on 13 March 2006, Official Report, column 1849W.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for which services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81537]

Mr. Plaskitt: The service contracts in place between the Department for Work and Pensions and Post Office Ltd are:

The Post Office card account contract, which was signed in March 2002 and will end on 31 March 2010.

A contract to ensure that customers who are receiving payment by cheque can continue to collect their cheques in the event of disruption to normal delivery services. The contract began in February 2005 and will be reviewed prior to its end date, which is March 2007.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the post office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79194]

Mr. Plaskitt: All of the information is not available in the format requested.

There are a number of services which have been made available through the post office network in the last five years, all of which are or have been made available at all post office outlets.

Since April 2003, DWP customers who receive their payments by direct payment into a Post Office card account have been able to collect their money from post office branches. Between April 2005 and March 2006, 210.3 million DWP payments were made into a Post Office card account.

Customers who cannot be paid by direct payment are paid by cheque. Through the Department's relationship with the Alliance & Leicester Commercial Bank plc., cheque payments with a value of less than £450.00 can be cashed at all post office branches. Between 24 March 2005 and 22 March 2006, 27.6 million DWP cheques were cashed at post office branches.

Since 1 February 2005 the Department has also had a contract with Post Office Ltd. to ensure that customers can continue to receive cheque payments in the event of disruption to normal postal delivery services.

Up to 31 May 2005 a contract was in place for the payment of DWP benefits and pensions by order book. This contract was terminated as part of the Governments plan to modernise the way benefits and pensions are paid. In April and May 2005 25,840 order book foils were cashed at post office branches.

Prior to 3 June 2004, DWP had a contract in place with Post Office Ltd. for the display of key departmental leaflets and posters in post office display panels. Post Office Ltd. terminated this contract with effect from 2 June 2004.

Poverty

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of (a) adults and (b) children were living in poverty in (i) England, (ii) each English region and (iii) the Tees Valley in each year since 1997. [73651]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Information below regional level is not available.

Information is presented in the tables for England as a whole and for the component English regions. This is consistent with the latest publication of the 'Households Below Average Income 1994-95 to 2004-05'.

The following tables show the proportions of working-age adults living in households with income below the threshold 60 per cent. of contemporary median in England and the English regions since 1995-96—1997-98. These are shown 'Before and After Housing Costs'. The threshold of 60 per cent. of median household income is the most commonly used in reporting trends in low income.

Redundancies

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the staff made redundant by his Department and the agencies for which it is responsible since 6 April 2004 had been recruited by the Department or its predecessor Department and their respective agencies since 1 May 1997. [82496]

Mrs. McGuire: As part of its Efficiency Programme, the Department has run a number of staff early release schemes since April 2004. All but one early release under these schemes has been on a voluntary basis. As at the end of March 2006 a total of 335 staff (full-time equivalent) who left the Department under these schemes had been recruited since 1 May 1997.

Remploy

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when approval was given for the chief executive of Remploy to take on an external commitment in the form of a directorship of Hill Executive Action Ltd.; and who gave such approval. [80445]

Mrs. McGuire: The position of director of Hill Executive Action Ltd. does not have any impact on his role as chief executive of Remploy and, as such, does not require approval by Remploy.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many hours a week the chief operating officer of Remploy is contracted to work for the organisation. [80449]

Mrs. McGuire: The chief operating officer is contracted to work for 35 hours a week for Remploy.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the remit was of the review team looking at the future of Remploy Ltd. including information on the more detailed work that was requested of the team as announced in his written statement of 6 June. [81679]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The remit of the review was announced in my ministerial statement of 16 March 2006, and a copy of the terms of reference for the review was placed in the Library.

I asked PricewaterhouseCoopers (PWC) to provide expert independent advice on the options for a radical strategy that would lead to Remploy being able to help more disabled people into work at unit costs comparable with other providers of supported employment, specifically: the options for a strategy within the existing budgeted funding envelope of £111 million per year; and what alternatives approaches compatible with the Government's overall policy direction are possible without the need for significant further investment.

The review team were asked to do some more detailed work to ensure that we are in the best possible position to make robust decisions about the future of Remploy.

The recommendations of the review team will be considered very carefully, and I hope to make a further statement to Parliament before the summer recess.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the written statement of 6 June 2006, Official Report, column 26WS, on Remploy, when the Minister expects to be in a position to make a further statement to the House on the future of Remploy. [82625]

Mrs. McGuire: I have not yet received PricewaterhouseCoopers' report on Remploy, but expect to do so shortly. I hope to make a further statement about the review before recess.

Savings Credit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of savings credit was in 2005; what his estimate is of the cost in each year from 2006 to 2030; and if he will make a statement. [70298]

James Purnell: The cost of the savings credit from 2004-05 to 2007-08 is in the following tables. Figures for the projected costs of the savings credit beyond 2007-08 are currently not available. I will write to the hon. Member when they become available.

Table 1: Savings credit expenditure—outturn

2007-08	1.5	1.4

Seasonal Workers

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what support his Department provides for (a) seasonal workers when they are out of work and (b) the rural unemployed; and if he will make a statement. [82032]

Mr. Jim Murphy: All customers who are unemployed and eligible for benefits, including seasonal workers and the rural unemployed, are able to access a wide range of services and programmes provided by Jobcentre Plus provided they meet the eligibility criteria. In instances where a seasonal worker may not be eligible for benefits they are still able to use the services of Jobcentre Plus in their search for temporary employment.

The Jobcentre Plus website displays details of job opportunities and advisers encourage customers to access these facilities through their local libraries or community centres to maintain their contact with the labour market. Where a customer has to travel to the local office they are paid their fares at the local transport rates. For customers who live in remote or island areas Jobcentre Plus staff can carry out interviews locally.

Jobcentre Plus also offers the facility of postal signing to customers living further than one hour by public transport from the nearest local office, or where the journey would involve using transport not regarded as local such as an aircraft or ferry.

Rural areas with particular problems of unemployment and worklessness will also benefit from the Deprived Areas Fund, to be operational from October 2006. This will provide Jobcentre Plus district managers with flexibility to invest funds at a local level in a way which they decide best meets the needs of their local workless residents.

State Pension Age

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of those in employment would be affected by the state pension age rising to (a) 66 by 2026, (b) 67 by 2036 and (c) 68 by 2046, assuming they continue in employment until state pension age. [82601]

James Purnell: The information is in the following table.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many women who are currently in employment will be affected by the increase in the state pension age from 60 to 65. [82602]

James Purnell: Around 10.5 million women in paid work, and not in full-time education, in Great Britain in the first quarter of 2006 were of an age to be potentially affected by the equalisation of state pension age from 2010 to 2020.

Vulnerable Households (Pathfinder Areas)

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many vulnerable households in the private sector in pathfinder areas have (a) accrued arrears, (b) been served a notice of possession and (c) been evicted. [80361]

Mr. Plaskitt: Four per cent. of claimants in the pathfinder areas have accrued arrears of eight weeks or more, and payment of their benefit has transferred to their landlord. A further 12 per cent. of claimants have had payment of their benefit transferred to their landlord on the grounds of vulnerability or that they are unlikely to pay.

Information on the level of arrears accrued by vulnerable claimants is not available as the nine local housing allowance (LHA) pathfinders have each interpreted the LHA vulnerability safeguards according to local circumstances and operational practices.

Information on the numbers of tenants in the pathfinder areas who have been served a notice seeking possession and/or who have been evicted is also not available. However, evidence from the interviews with local authority and voluntary sector stakeholders, undertaken as part of the evaluation in the pathfinder areas, has not indicated that there has been any noticeable rise in levels of possessions or evictions due to the introduction of the LHA.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact of local housing allowance on vulnerable tenants in private rented schemes in pathfinder areas. [80362]

Mr. Plaskitt: The impact of the local housing allowance (LHA) on vulnerable tenants in private rented accommodation is a key theme of the evaluation. The working of the vulnerability safeguards have been examined at the six, 15 month and final stages of the evaluation. The six and 15 month stages have been reported upon and published and copies are available in the Library. The reporting of the final evaluation has now commenced.

The findings to date suggest that the safeguards have been applied appropriately to the various local conditions of the pathfinders and are generally working well. Consequently, very few problems have been identified by the welfare and advice agencies that are also included in the evaluation or in the research undertaken by the CAB and Shelter.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to give vulnerable (a) housing benefit and (b) local housing allowance claimants in the private sector the choice of direct payments to landlords. [80363]

Mr. Plaskitt: One of the key principles of the local housing allowance is to encourage personal responsibility, which is why local housing allowance will be paid to the tenant wherever possible.

In the local housing allowance pathfinders there are safeguards in place to enable a local authority to identify when payment should be made to the landlord, rather than the tenant. These safeguards have worked well, and we shall continue to review them as we develop the details of the scheme for national roll out.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received in respect of the local housing allowance vulnerability procedures; and if he will make a statement. [80364]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Government outlined their proposals for extending the local housing allowance in the Green Paper "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work" on Tuesday 24 January 2006. As part of the consultation process, and in informal discussions, representations have been received on all aspects of the local housing allowance scheme, including the vulnerability procedures. These comments will be considered as the details of the scheme are developed for national roll out.

The findings to date from the evaluation of the local housing allowance suggest that the safeguards have been applied appropriately to the various local conditions of the Pathfinders and are generally working well. Consequently, very few problems have been identified by the welfare and advice agencies that are also included in the evaluation or in the research undertaken by the CAB and Shelter.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Departmental Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what recent estimate she has made of the carbon emissions of her Department; what commitment she has made to reducing such emissions; and if she will make a statement. [81336]

Bridget Prentice: My Department's last published statement on carbon emissions is 14,900 tonnes of carbon equivalent (tC) for the 2004-05 reporting year. The DCA is fully committed to reducing carbon emissions and invests in a programme of energy surveys to identify areas of potential energy savings. In addition to this the Department has also opened discussions with the Carbon Trust to look at further methods of reducing emissions including further reduction in usage and self generation.

Dr. David Kelly

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to her answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, column 1267W, on Dr. David Kelly, on what date she expects the original documents supplied to the Hutton inquiry, currently held at the National Archives, to be made available for public inspection. [81166]

Ms Harman: The inquiry papers are at the National Archives for cataloguing in accordance with archival standards. No date has been set for completion of this work.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what matters were discussed when officials met the Oxfordshire coroner on 11 August 2003; and whether they included consideration of the issuing of a death certificate for Dr. Kelly. [83739]

Ms Harman: I understand that only the certification and registration of the death were discussed.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs who requested the meeting between officials and the Oxfordshire coroner on 11 August 2003; and who was at the meeting. [83740]

Ms Harman: The meeting was requested by the Oxfordshire coroner. The Worcestershire coroner and Honorary Secretary of the Coroners Society, a senior lawyer and the Head of Tribunals Strategy Branch of the then Lord Chancellor's Department, were also present.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to her answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 304W, on Dr. David Kelly, under what authority the Oxfordshire coroner conducted a resumed hearing of the inquest into the death of Dr. Kelly on 14 August 2003; and for what purpose. [83742]

Ms Harman: The coroner resumed the inquest on 14 August 2003 in accordance with the authority he has under section 17A(2) of the Coroners Act 1988. The purpose of the resumed hearing was to take evidence as to the interim cause of death thus enabling the coroner to fulfil his duty of sending the Registrar of Deaths the necessary particulars concerning the death.

Elections

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps she is taking to increase (a) voter registration and (b) electoral turnout in areas of deprivation. [83665]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have embarked on a number of initiatives to promote participation in democracy. It does not directly promote voter turnout in elections; that is the role of political parties, the candidates and the Electoral Commission.

The Electoral Administration Bill makes a number of changes to improve the registration process. These include a new duty setting out the minimum steps that the electoral registration officer will be expected to take to ensure a comprehensive register and enabling people to register after an election has been called. The Bill also provides a new power for returning officers to promote participation at elections, and the Government have made available £2.5 million to support the new power.

Family Proceedings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many judges were involved in family proceedings in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06; [83253]

(2) how many vacancies for judges in family proceedings there were in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06; [83254]

(3) what plans he has to recruit judges in family proceedings. [83255]

Ms Harman: This information is not available in the form requested. There are 19 Judges of the Family Division of the High Court, apart from its President, and 20 District Judges in the Principal Registry of the Family Division. A further 166 judges are authorised to hear High Court family cases as Deputy High Court Judges. Family cases might also be heard in the Court of Appeal by any of the five Heads of Division, or 37 Lords Justices of Appeal, or on appeal to the House of Lords by any of the 12 Lords of Appeal in Ordinary.

There are currently 446 judges below the High Court with authorisations to hear private law Children Act cases in the county courts (dealing, for example, with contact and residence orders) and 594 judges below the High Court with authorisations to hear public law Children Act cases in the county courts (such as care proceedings).

Not all judges with such authorisations will, however, sit in family proceedings in any particular year. Other judges may deal with other forms of family proceedings including divorce and ancillary relief. Family proceedings other than divorce and ancillary relief are also dealt with by District Judges (magistrates courts) when sitting in the family proceedings courts.

Apart from the Family Division of the High Court and the Principal Registry there has been no fixed number of judges dealing with family proceedings, and so the number of vacancies for judges in family proceedings is impossible to quantify. No posts have been left vacant in the Family Division or the Principal Registry. Judges at different levels are deployed according to the needs of the courts.

The Judicial Appointments Commission is running a selection exercise for the District Bench and this may include judges who will sit in family proceedings. In addition it will be possible to ask the JAC to run selection exercises to fill vacancies in the High Court Bench and Circuit Bench and this may include specific family posts.

Inquests

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the occasions on which an inquest has been adjourned under section 17A of the Coroners Act 1988; and how many deaths were involved in each case. [83735]

Ms Harman: Inquests have been adjourned under section 17A of the Coroners Act 1988 on four occasions: (1) Ladbroke Grove Rail Crash—inquests involving 31 deaths adjourned in February 2000; (2) deaths connected with Dr. Harold Shipman—inquests totalling 311 were adjourned in May 2001 and July 2002; (3) Dr. David Kelly—inquest adjourned in August 2003; (4) the Gaul fishing vessel—inquests involving four deaths were adjourned in November 2003.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to her answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 305W, on inquests, how many inquests have been adjourned since 1 January 1997 because of the creation of an inquiry; and how many of these were subsequently (a) resumed and (b) not resumed. [83774]

Ms Harman: A total of 347 inquests have been adjourned under section 17A of the Coroners Act 1988 since 1 January 1997 following the setting up of an inquiry. None of these inquests has been resumed.

Judges (North-west)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what proportion of judges in the north-west are themselves from the north-west; and if she will make a statement. [83552]

Ms Harman: The northern circuit, which covers the north-west, includes 93 circuit judges, 70 district judges, 15 district judges (magistrates courts), 177 recorders, eight deputy circuit judges and 129 deputy district judges. Judges are required to live within reasonable travelling distance of their home courts, although this need not necessarily be within the boundaries of the circuit.

Four High Court judges are especially linked to the circuit and act as the two presiding judges of the circuit, the Family Division liaison judge and the Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine of Lancaster. They divide their time between London and the north-west. Other judges may also sit in the north-west as required.

The Department does not collect information about the place of origin of judicial office-holders.

Legal Profession (Complaints)

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) how many solicitors have refused to accept decisions of the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal in each of the last 10 years; [83900]

(2) what rights of redress are available to those who have won decisions at both the Law Society Adjudication Panel and the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal; [83901]

(3) what sanctions are available against solicitors who refuse to accept decisions of the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal; [83902]

(4) what performance standards she has set for the length of time a consumer complaint to the Law Society takes to be resolved, including where the solicitors refuses to accept decisions of the Law Society Adjudication Panel and the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal. [83899]

Bridget Prentice: I will reply to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Tynwald Day

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what representatives the Government will be sending to the Tynwald Day celebrations on the Isle of Man. [83112]

Ms Harman: Her Majesty's Government was not represented at Tynwald Day on 5 July this year. Her Majesty the Queen was represented by the Lieutenant Governor of the Isle of Man, His Excellency Vice Admiral Sir Paul Haddacks KCB.

Voter Registration

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the net change in voter registration as a result of its 2006 local elections registration campaign. [82998]

Bridget Prentice: The Government led a successful campaign using young urban artists to raise awareness of voter registration among 18 to 24-year-olds in London before the May 2006 local government elections. We are currently undertaking an evaluation of the campaign and the results will be available later this year.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the cost was of her Department's voter registration campaign for the 2006 local elections. [82999]

Bridget Prentice: In London for the May 2006 local government elections, the Government spent £192,571 on the 1824 Collective campaign which promoted awareness of voter registration among London's urban youth using the creative concept of an urban music collective to appeal to 18 to 24-year-olds.

HEALTH

Alcohol Detoxification Programmes

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to allow pastoral outreach workers assisting alcoholics without families engaged in detoxification programmes to be treated as next-of-kin for health information purposes. [81869]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 3 July 2006]: Patients who have the capacity to consent to the release of their personal information may consent to its release to pastoral outreach workers.

In the case of those patients who do not have that capacity, healthcare professionals may release such information to pastoral outreach workers where they consider the release would be in the best interests of their patient and that it would be in accordance with the right to respect for private life which is guaranteed by the European Convention of Human Rights.

These provisions are designed to provide a balance between the protection of the privacy of personal healthcare information and the communication of that information where that is appropriate, whether to pastoral outreach workers or to others.

Clinical Trial Regulations

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will bring forward the proposed amendment to the Clinical Trials Regulations of 2004 on consent; and what steps she is taking (a) to halt and (b) to reverse the reductions in emergency care research in the meantime. [83472]

Andy Burnham: The Government are committed to the support for emergency care research. Following detailed consultation with those involved in emergency research, a provision was included in the UK Clinical Trials Regulations[1] which precludes incapacitated adults participating in trials without the prior consent of their legal representative. However, after the regulations came into force, researchers involved in a large trial requiring immediate administration of a clot busting drug to resuscitate patients following a heart attack found it was impracticable to obtain consent using the provisions of the regulations. This was because the patient had usually lost capacity to consent and the limited time available for administering the trial drug did not allow contact to be made with the legal representative.

The Government therefore consulted on a proposed amendment to the regulations which would enable incapacitated adults to be entered into trials prior to the consent of a legal representative having been obtained where the trial was of a medicine to be used in emergency situations. Consent would subsequently need to be obtained. The proposal received wide support.

However, the occurrence of serious adverse reactions in a drug trial in healthy volunteers in March has led to heightened scrutiny of all clinical trial regulation, including a re-examination of this proposal to ensure that it can be justified. That re-examination is ongoing.

Clostridium Difficile

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths have been caused by the bacterium Clostridium difficile in (a) Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS and (b) England in the last three years; and what guidance her Department has issued to (i) hospitals and (ii) primary care trusts on preventing such deaths. [83738]

Andy Burnham: The data requested is not available centrally. The Office for National Statistics published figures on the number of deaths where Clostridium difficile was mentioned on the death certificate from 1999 to 2004 in Health Statistics Quarterly 30 in May 2006. The number of deaths where Clostridium difficile was mentioned on the death certificate and the number where it was also the underlying cause of death are given in the following table. The full paper is available at www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_health/HS030.pdf. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Number of death certificates with Clostridium difficile mentioned and as the underlying cause, England, 2002-04

	Mentioned	Underlying cause
2002	1,338	709
2003	1,702	912
2004	2,155	1,187

A joint professional letter from the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Nursing Officer went out to NHS trusts in December 2005 to remind them of the importance of this infection. This letter listed the key actions to control Clostridium difficile and highlighted the guidance available.[1,2] The letter is available at www.dh.gov.uk/assetroot/04/12/55/23/04125523.pdf. A copy has been placed in the Library.

As part of our delivery programme "Saving lives: a delivery programme to reduce healthcare associated infections including MRSA" a high impact intervention that is a tool to help reduce Clostridium difficile infections was published in June 2006.

A simple guide to Clostridium difficile is also available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/assetroot/04/11/58/84/04115884.pdf. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what types of contraceptive are available to (a) men and (b) women through family planning clinics; what the price of each item is; and what the cost of providing each contraceptive free of charge was in the last year for which figures are available. [83200]

Caroline Flint: The type of contraceptives available to men and women through community contraceptive services are shown in the following list. However, availability will vary between clinics.

Available contraception at family planning clinics

Available to men

- Male condoms
- Vasectomy (referral)
- Contraception advice

Available to women

- Oral contraceptive methods (pill)
- Intrauterine devices (IUD)
- Intrauterine system (IUS)
- Implants
- Intertable contraceptives
- Male and female condoms (femidoms)
- Female sterilisation (referral)
- Contraception patch
- Cap/diaphragm
- Other chemicals/spermacides
- Natural family planning awareness

The price of each item is available from the British National Formulary and is available on their website at www.bnf.org

The cost of providing each contraceptive free of charge via community contraceptive (family planning) clinics is not collected centrally.

Death Certificates

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Government have to audit death certificates. [81894]

Andy Burnham: The Government are considering what else might be done to strengthen the overall system within which deaths are certified and investigated, to complement the draft Bill on coroner reform published by the Department for Constitutional Affairs on 12 June 2006[1].

[1] Coroner Reform: The Government's draft Bill—Improving death investigation in England and Wales, June 2006, Cm 6849

Diet

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions the Government has had on plans to promote healthy eating; and with whom. [83750]

Caroline Flint: As part of the obesity prevention programme, the Government have a well developed stakeholder engagement process to promote healthy eating. The Department has been working closely with a development group of about 40 stakeholders drawn from the non-government organisations, physical activity, food manufacturing and food retailing sectors. The group also includes the frontline services within the national health service, local government, and the Departments for Culture, Media and Sports, for Education and Skills, for Transport and for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. The work of the Department is well informed by an expert review group of leading experts from the fields of behavioural psychology, nutrition and physical activity.

Doctors

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to ensure the retention of junior doctors in NHS posts. [83634]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Training opportunities are agreed locally between service and educational representatives. However, it is likely that most doctors in training posts in England, and who therefore have a reasonable expectation of competing successfully for further training, will be able to do so. As always, some doctors may need to be flexible about the specialities or locations in which they work.

Fertility Services

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of fertility services in Shropshire. [81849]

Caroline Flint: NHS West Midlands reports that both Shropshire county primary care trust and Telford and Wrekin PCT provide two cycles of in vitro fertilisation treatment to couples in which the woman is aged 37.5 or under at the time of treatment. Their policy on eligibility for treatment was determined before the publication of the clinical guideline on the assessment and treatment for people with fertility problems produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence.

The PCTs are currently reviewing their policies against the NICE guidelines and a paper will be produced for consideration by the respective boards in the autumn.

Healthcare-acquired Infections

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital patients have (a) contracted and (b) died from exposure to healthcare-acquired infections in the constituency of North-West Cambridgeshire since 1997. [82248]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The information requested is not available in the format requested. However, data for meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) blood stream infections, Clostridium difficile reports and glycopeptide resistant enterococci (GRE) blood stream infections have been set out in the following tables.

Notes:
Information on deaths due to hospital acquired infections is not available. However, no information is available on where these infections were acquired either in terms of hospital or community acquisition or of strategic health authority.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital patients have (a) contracted and (b) died from exposure to MRSA or similar infections in each year since 1997. [82454]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The information requested is not available. The best available information is from the mandatory surveillance system which provides data on the number of reports of meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) blood stream infections from April 2001 to 30 September 2005 as shown in the table. Figures from October 2005 to March 2006 will be published later this month.

The total number of reports of Clostridium difficile associated disease in England between January and December 2004 was 44,350 and the total number of reports of clinically significant glycopeptide resistant enterococci blood stream infections in England from October 2003 to September 2004 was 620.

A national prevalence survey of hospital acquired infection was carried out this spring and interim results will be published in the autumn.

Information on deaths due to hospital acquired infections is not available. Human Pappiloma Virus Vaccine

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the human pappilloma virus vaccines will be considered at the meeting of the joint council on vaccination and immunisation in February 2007. [82547]

Caroline Flint: A joint committee on vaccination and immunisation subgroup met in May 2006 to review all available information on human pappilloma virus vaccines and will hold further meetings during 2006, reporting to the main JCVI committee once they have all the relevant information.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress the Government have made on its plans to introduce the human pappilloma virus vaccine; and if she will make a statement. [82548]

Caroline Flint: The joint committee on vaccination and immunisation subgroup met in May 2006 to review all the available information on human pappilloma virus vaccines and will hold further meetings during 2006. Implementation plans will be based on the advice of JCVI as to the most effective immunisation schedule should HPV vaccine be judged to be beneficial.

Manor Hospital, Walsall

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects a decision to be announced on approval for the contracts for the major development at the NHS Manor hospital, Walsall. [83960]

Caroline Flint: The announcement of decisions following the private finance initiative revalidation exercise will be in two waves. It is anticipated that the announcement for schemes which are most advanced--generally those that have already appointed their preferred bidder—will be in late July. The remainder will be announced later in the year.

NHS Finances

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the level of NHS trust deficits in areas with greater than average deprivation; and what steps she is taking to reduce differences in the level of deficits between areas of above and below average deprivation; [80946]

(2) what assessment she has made of the level of NHS trust deficits in (a) rural and (b) urban areas; and what steps she is taking to reduce the difference between the level of deficits in each type of area. [80947]

Andy Burnham: Our analysis of the 2005-06 financial positions of national health service organisations has shown that there is no strong relationship between financial performance and any single factor, including the level of deprivation and the extent to which areas are urban or rural.

A full report on 2005-06 NHS financial performance is available in the Library.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the values were of purchases of health care from non-NHS providers by (a) Rochdale, (b) Bury, (c) North Manchester and (d) Oldham primary care trust in each year since 2001. [83040]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the table.

NHS Professionals

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who is responsible for auditing NHS Professionals. [83745]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The annual accounts of NHS Professionals are audited by the National Audit Office.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage mark-up NHS Professionals adds in each region to the rates charged by private agencies for the supply of each category of temporary staff. [83746]

Ms Rosie Winterton: NHS Professionals does not place any mark up, or agency handling charge, on agency invoices.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to change the structure of NHS Professionals. [83747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The future organisational form of NHS Professionals is yet to be determined. My officials are working with NHS Professionals on its future structure.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when NHS Professionals is budgeted to break even in its annual running costs. [83748]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is working closely with NHS Professionals to ensure it becomes self-financing from 2007-08.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what were the set-up costs of NHS Professionals; and what the annual running costs have been in each year since its establishment. [83749]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government initially invested £7 million in the pilot sites of St. Mary's national health service Trust, Paddington; Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust; West Yorkshire Metropolitan Ambulance Service; John Radcliffe Hospital NHS Trust; East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust; North Bristol NHS Trust in 2001-02 and a further £24 million to roll out operations more widely in 2002-03. NHS Professionals became a special health authority on 1 January 2004 and details of its running costs are available in its annual accounts which are available in the Library.

Nurse Training

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent assessment she has made of the syllabus for nurse training; and if she will make a statement; [82869]

(2) whether there is a preliminary training school module in nurse training; [82870]

(3) in what module of nurse training discipline and courtesy is taught. [82871]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The Department is not responsible for setting curricula for nurse training. The Nursing and Midwifery Council sets the standards for registration as a qualified nurse or midwife. The education standards set by the NMC are at a broad level of principle and are used by higher education institutions to inform their curriculum development. The NMC closely monitors the standards of pre-registration education and quality assures courses to ensure that they are teaching the required skills and knowledge to the right standard. This includes the development of communication skills, both with patients and with other members of the health care team.

Palliative Care for the Terminally Ill

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has received about the Palliative Care for the Terminally Ill Bill; how many (a) supported and (b) opposed the Bill; and if she will make a statement. [73279]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We have received 20 letters concerning the Palliative Care for the Terminally Ill Bill forwarded by hon. Members on behalf of constituents, and one from a member of the public directly. All of these were supportive of the Bill.

The Government are still considering the Bill, and will make their position known in due course.

Performance Management

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures her Department has introduced to improve performance management and local delivery monitoring. [81521]

Andy Burnham: The Department has an established system of local delivery planning over the past decade that establishes trajectories for delivery of the key national targets set out in the planning and priorities framework 'National Standards, Local Action' (2005).

To support this, monthly and quarterly returns from the national health service are collected which report local progress against these plans. Under the performance regime established in 'Shifting the Balance of Power' (2001) and 'The NHS Improvement Plan' (2004), the Department performance manages strategic health authorities, and SHAs performance manage delivery by NHS trusts and primary care trusts.

The monthly and quarterly returns are routinely revised to ensure that the data tracks the most significant issues that drive delivery.

'Health Reform in England' (2005) signals developments in the performance regime over the next few years, especially an emphasis on early warning of potential poor performance.

Physiotherapists

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for physiotherapy in each year since 1997. [81805]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Reproductive Health

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations she has received about (a) death and (b) disability resulting from the contraceptive pill in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [81284]

Andy Burnham: In the last year, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), which is the Government agency responsible for evaluating the safety, quality and efficacy of all licensed medicines, has received eight reports of suspected adverse drug reactions in association with the use of a contraceptive pill that were considered to be disabling or incapacitating by the reporter.

The reporting of a suspected adverse reaction does not necessarily mean that the drug was responsible. It is possible that, in some cases, a new or underlying medical condition or concomitant medication may have been responsible. In two of these cases, (an)other medicine/medicines were also considered to be causally related to the reaction by the reporter. Furthermore, the coincidental occurrence of some adverse events in women taking hormonal contraceptives is inevitable given their widespread use.

Regarding the number of suspected reactions with a fatal outcome that have been reported, the MHRA is unable to release information when it relates to five or fewer cases of any suspected ADRs in order to prevent identification of the patients or the reporter. For this reason we are unable to disclose the exact number of reported cases.

Turnaround Teams

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been paid by (a) Yorkshire Wolds and Coast primary care trust and (b) other PCTs in turnaround to (i) Ernst and Young and (ii) other companies assisting with turnaround. [80714]

Andy Burnham: This information is being collected for the Health Select Committee and is not yet ready for release.

Vaccine Damage Payments

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vaccine damage payments were made in respect of the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine in each of the last five years; and what proportion this represents of (a) all vaccine damage payments and (b) all doses of measles, mumps and rubella. [82325]

Mrs. McGuire: I have been asked to reply.

The Vaccine Damage Payments Unit (VDPU) do not hold information about specific vaccinations linked to successful claims. Claimants are asked to specify on the claim form all the vaccinations that the disabled person has received, not just the vaccine that is claimed to have caused the disablement. As a number of vaccinations are often given in close proximity, often on the same day, it is not always possible to state categorically which has caused the adverse reaction. It is therefore not possible to state how many vaccine damage payments have been made in respect of the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine.

(a) The VDPU does however record details of all the vaccinations noted on the claim form. Out of 24 successful awards in the last five years, there have been two where the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine was among those listed on the claim form.

(b) If those two claims were awarded in respect of the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine this would represent one per 4.3 million doses of the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine.

Waiting Times

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for functional electrical stimulation treatment in (a) England and (b) Dorset in the last year for which figures are available. [84122]

Andy Burnham: The official figures on waiting times show the length of time that people currently on the list for treatment have been waiting. The data are collected at consultant-led speciality level, for example neurology and clinical neuro-physiology. It is not possible to split this data down to show waiting list data for specific operations and treatments such as functional electrical stimulation.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the case for (a) changes in the basis of air passenger duty from payment per passenger to payment per flight and (b) relating the level of such payments to the amount of carbon dioxide and other pollutants produced during the flight; and if he will make a statement. [82849]

John Healey: A discussion paper published jointly by Her Majesty's Treasury and the Department for Transport in March 2003, entitled "Aviation and the Environment: Using Economic Instruments", considered the role of economic instruments and the environmental costs of aviation. This was also considered in the Air Transport White Paper, "The Future of Air Transport", published on 16 December 2003 and in chapter 5 of "Aviation and Global Warming", published by the Department for Transport on 10 February 2004.

The Air Transport White Paper set out the conclusions of the Government's analysis, including our view that aviation should be brought within the EU emissions trading scheme by 2008, as the most effective way of tackling the climate change impact. Along with other measures to tackle local environmental impacts, this will help to ensure that the air transport sector meets its environmental costs.

In the Financial Statement and Budget Report 2006 the Government stated that:

"the Government is aware that economic instruments, including APD, may provide a route through which improved environmental performance in the aviation sector can be incentivised and so will continue to explore options for developing further such measures."

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason transit flights are exempt from air passenger duty; and what estimate he has made of how much extra revenue would be raised per annum were such flights subject to this duty. [82850]

John Healey: Not all transit flights are exempt from air passenger duty and in order to qualify specific criteria must be met. These are set out in Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs' public notice 550, which gives details of the specific requirements of the exemption criteria. This notice can be obtained from the Revenue and Customs website at www.hmrc.gov.uk

Exempting connecting flights ensures that passengers are not taxed twice for a journey when making a connecting flight within the UK, or that if they are entering the UK in transit to an end destination outside the UK they are not taxed merely for the short stopover in the UK that is necessary to catch a connecting flight.

HMRC does not collect data on the number of transit passengers that pass through UK airports, and therefore we have not made any analysis on the extra revenue that charging APD on these passengers would raise.

Arms Imports

Nick Harvey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 5767W, on AK-47s, what UK custom entry clearance has been issued to UK based companies for the importation of pallets of small arms from Bosnia since June 2003. [83921]

Dawn Primarolo: Since June 2003 UK Customs have issued no entry clearances to UK companies in respect of items that might be classed as small arms under commodity code 9302 or 9304.

Bank Notes

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the expected period of use is of the (a) £5, (b) £10, (c) £20 and (d) £50 note. [83456]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by the then Financial Secretary, my hon. Friend the Member for East Ham (Mr. Timms), to my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 14 March 2005, Official Report, column 84W.

Barker Review

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the Barker review of land use planning policy to report. [83003]

John Healey: The interim report of the Barker review of land use planning was published on 4 July 2006. The final report is due later in 2006.

Child Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of child tax credits on child poverty since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [83898]

Dawn Primarolo: Between 1998-99 and 2004-05, 700,000 children have been lifted out of relative poverty. Macroeconomic stability, active labour market policies such as the new deal, policies to make work pay such as the working tax credit, and financial support for families, including the child tax credit, have all contributed to this success.

Since 2002-03, the last year before child tax credit and working tax credit were introduced, 200,000 children have been lifted out of relative poverty.

As a result of the Government's reforms to the tax and benefit system since 1997, by October 2006, in real terms, families with children will be, on average, £1,500 a year better off, while those in the poorest fifth will be, on average, £3,400 per year better off.

Civil Service, Wales

Albert Owen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he plans to take to ensure that civil service job cuts in Wales do not adversely affect economic regeneration of Objective 1 areas. [83934]

Mr. Timms: The Government are committed to strengthening the Welsh economy and regenerating Objective 1 areas.

Following Sir Michael Lyons' independent review of public sector relocation the Government undertook to relocate 20,000 posts out of London and the south-east by 2010. By April 2006 7,800 posts had moved to every country and region in the UK, including more than 1,600 to Wales.

Since 1997 employment in Wales has increased by more than 10 per cent., with an additional 123,000 jobs created.

In order to target resources into improving key front-line services, the Government are committed to reducing the number of civil servants engaged in non-frontline functions by 70,600 (net) by 2008. Departments are responsible for implementing their work force targets and HM Treasury does not hold data showing the location of each affected site.

Regeneration spending, including the Objective 1 programme, is a devolved matter for the Welsh Assembly Government.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 410W, on correspondence, what estimate he has made of the cost of answering the question; and if he will make a statement. [82678]

John Healey: It is not possible to identify separately the average cost of officials' time in replying to letters from hon. Members and members of the public. Such correspondence is often of a varied and complex nature. Therefore any exercise to determine the average cost in officials' time in responding to letters would incur disproportionate cost.

It is not possible to identify separately stationery and postage costs for the Department when replying to correspondence from hon. Members and members of the public.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Chairman of HM Revenue and Customs will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Walsall, North of 18 May regarding a constituent; and what the reason is for the delay in replying. [83400]

Dawn Primarolo: I understand that HMRC wrote to the hon. Member on 6 July and that they will be writing again very shortly.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Tax Credit Office will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Walsall, North of 23 May; ref: 2006-05 008197. [83401]

Dawn Primarolo: The Tax Credit Office replied to the hon. Member on 6 July.

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter of 2 May 2006 from the hon. Member for Castle Point enclosing one from Mr. Layzell of 27 April 2006. [84144]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Double Taxation Agreements

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many requests from overseas tax authorities HM Revenue and Customs has received in the past three years pursuant to the operation of actual assistance provisions of UK double taxation agreements; from which countries these requests have been received; what amount of tax was claimed in each case; and what checks HMRC applied in pursuance of provisions corresponding to (a) article 27 para 2 and (b) other articles of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development mutual convention to satisfy itself that the tax they were asked to collect was properly due and payable. [83221]

Dawn Primarolo: At present the UK has no provisions in any of its double taxation agreements that correspond to article 27 of the OECD model convention nor has it ratified the Council of Europe/OECD convention on mutual administrative assistance in tax matters.

Draft Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what draft Bills have been produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; what draft Bills are still to be produced by his Department; when each is to be published; how many clauses each has; and if he will make a statement; [81250]

(2) what his practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81251]

John Healey: The Treasury has not introduced any Bills in draft in the period covered by the hon. Member's question. Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation that will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

The Treasury seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy making process, both formal and informal. The Treasury holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Treasury's formal consultations that abide by the code of conduct on consultation. As required by the code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Economically Inactive Persons

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the ratio is of economically inactive persons to the number of persons engaged in manufacturing industry in (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) Scotland. [83803]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 10 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the ratio of economically inactive persons to the number of persons employed in manufacturing in (a) England (b) Wales and (c) Scotland. I am replying in her absence. (83803)

The attached table gives the ratio of persons economically inactive to people employed in manufacturing for the 3 countries of Great Britain for the period three month ending March 2006.

Estimates are taken from the Office for National Statistics' Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Economically inactive people and people employed in the manufacturing[1] industry by country of residence for people of working age[2] not seasonally adjusted

Education Capital Projects

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which education capital projects are VAT exempt; [84183]

(2) what criteria are used to decide what type of education capital projects are VAT exempt; [84184]

(3) what representations he has received from the further education sector about the VAT status of further education capital projects; [84185]

(4) what assessment his Department has made of the impact of VAT on further education capital projects; [84269]

(5) if he will take steps to ensure that further education and schools capital projects receive the same treatment. [84270]

Dawn Primarolo: VAT is chargeable on the construction of all buildings in the education sector, except those that will be used at least 90 per cent. for a relevant charitable purpose, such as the provision of free-of-charge education by a charity. In such cases, construction of the building is VAT zero rated. VAT agreements with our European partners mean that, while we can maintain this relief for the construction of charitable buildings, it cannot be extended further.

However, where VAT is chargeable on capital projects, it can be reclaimed from HMRC to the extent that it relates to taxable business use of the facilities. In addition, local authorities can usually reclaim from HMRC all VAT costs relating to the educational institutions that they maintain.

Refund arrangements for local authorities reflect a commitment, made when VAT was first introduced, that VAT would not fall as a burden on local taxation. Accordingly, since 1997, bodies have been admitted to these refund arrangements only where they undertake a function ordinarily carried on by local government and have the power to draw their funding directly from local taxation. Unlike local authority maintained institutions, further education colleges do not meet the second of these conditions.

It is reasonable to expect that bids for public funding by further education colleges should take into account that they are not eligible for the VAT refund arrangements that apply for local authority maintained institutions. However, no detailed assessment has been made of the impact of VAT on further education capital projects.

Representations are regularly made to Treasury Ministers by MPs and stakeholders on a wide range of issues, including VAT and extended use of educational facilities.

Engagements

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many military establishments he has visited in each of the last five years. [65762]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer the Chancellor of the Exchequer gave to the hon. Member for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth) on 13 January 2005, Official Report, column 595W.

Extradition

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has made to the Home Secretary on the taking of emergency measures to alter the Extradition Act 2003. [83041]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers discuss a wide range of issues on a regular basis with their colleagues in the Home Office and other Departments.

Financial Capability

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which citizens advice bureaux are working in partnership with the personal finance education group on financial capability in schools; and what plans he has to expand this project. [81078]

Ed Balls: I welcome the excellent work that citizens advice bureaux are doing with PFEG to improve the financial capability of students in schools, including the successful pilot they ran with independent financial advisers as part of the FSA-led national strategy for financial capability. In addition, I welcome the involvement of citizens advice bureaux in the £45 million financial inclusion fund project to deliver a significant increase in the capacity of free face-to-face debt advice for the financially excluded. I look forward to the outcome of these important projects with interest.

Financial Support (Pregnancy)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the merits of providing financial assistance to low-income families during pregnancy; and whether there are any plans to provide any such financial support. [82824]

Dawn Primarolo: Statutory maternity pay, maternity allowance and the Sure Start maternity grant provide financial support for low-income families during pregnancy. Statutory maternity pay and maternity allowance are worth £108.85 a week for up to 26 weeks, and may be taken from 11 weeks prior to the birth of the child. The Sure Start maternity grant is worth £500 per baby and may be claimed from the 29th week of pregnancy. The Government also run the welfare food scheme, which provides free milk, infant formula and vitamins to pregnant women on low incomes.

Health Statistics

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the rate was of (a) cancers and (b) stroke in West Suffolk in each of the past five years. [82729]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 10 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the rate was of (a) cancers and (b) stroke in West Suffolk in each of the past five years. I am replying in her absence. [82729]

A: Cancers—incidence

The latest available rates for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2003. Incidence rates are not available centrally for parliamentary constituencies. Cancer incidence rates for all malignant cancers excluding non-melanoma skin cancer for the years 1999-2003 are given in Table 1 below for the Forest Heath and St. Edmundsbury local authorities.

B: Stroke—incidence

There is no complete register of stroke cases. Information is available centrally on emergency admission to hospital from the NHS Hospital Episode System (HES), and on death registrations.

Figures on emergency admissions to hospital for strokes can be found on the Clinical and Health Outcomes Knowledge Base website: http://www.nchod.nhs.uk/. (Table reference numbers: 10C_5281SR7CM_04-V2 (males) 10C_5281SR7CF_04-V2 (females)). Figures are available for England, Government Office Regions, Strategic Health Authorities, Local Authorities and Primary Care Organisations. The latest year for which data are available is for the financial year 2003/04.

C: Cancers and Stroke—mortality

Mortality rates for parliamentary constituencies cannot be provided because population estimates are not available for these areas. Figures in Table 2 below are provided for the local authorities making up the requested constituency. The figures for 2000 have been adjusted to take account of revisions to the International Classification of Diseases where appropriate.

The introduction of ICD-10 for coding cause of death in England and Wales in 2001 means that data for cancer are not completely comparable with data for years before this date. The effect of the change in classification in 2001 on deaths from these causes is described in a report published in May 2002: "Office for National Statistics. Results of the ICD-10 bridge coding study, England and Wales, 1999. Health Statistics Quarterly 14 (2002), 75-83".

For cancer (malignant neoplasms) the introduction of ICD-10 caused an increase of 2.3 per cent. in the number of deaths coded to these conditions in England and Wales. Deaths in 2000 from these causes have been adjusted to provide rates which are comparable with those for 2001-2004.

The local authority of Forest Heath falls wholly within West Suffolk parliamentary constituency. The local authority of St. Edmundsbury comprises parts of West Suffolk, South Suffolk and Bury St. Edmunds parliamentary constituencies.

Table 1: Incidence rates[1] per million population for all malignant cancers[2], by sex, registered in the local authorities of Forest Heath and St. Edmundsbury, 1999-2003

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent infant mortality rate was in (a) Stoke-on-Trent, (b) the west midlands and (c) England. [80606]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 10 June 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the most recent infant mortality rate was in (a) Stoke-on-Trent, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. I am replying in her absence. (80606)

The table below gives the infant mortality rate for the most recent year available.

HM Customs and Excise

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials were employed by HM Customs and Excise in each year since 1997; and how many were front-line staff in each year. [83576]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the full-time equivalent numbers of staff employed by HM Customs and Excise at 1 April 1997 to 1 April 2005, split between those in "front-line" work (i.e. dealing with traders and customers) and those in support and policy work.

Year at 1 April	Front line	Support and policy	Total
1997	19,236	4,256	23,492
1998	19,476	4,240	23,716

HM Revenue and Customs Offices

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether local HM Revenue and Customs offices are meeting their targets for responding to postal enquiries; and if he will make a statement. [83380]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC has a service standard which aims to deal with 80 per cent. of postal contact within 15 working days of receipt and 95 per cent. within 40 working days, against which the Department achieved cumulative results in 2005-06 of 79.2 per cent. and 91.7 per cent. respectively. Results for 2006-07 are not yet available.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the latest estimate is of the number of open cases at each HM Revenue and Customs office in each month since January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [83444]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC does not have records of open cases at the level of each local HMRC office.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people HM Revenue and Customs employs in collecting taxes; how many there were (a) 5, (b) 10 and (c) 20 years ago; what his estimate is of the cost of tax collection in 2006-07; and what it was (i) 5, (ii) 10 and (iii) 20 years ago. [83453]

Dawn Primarolo: The average number of HM Revenue and Customs staff employed in collecting taxes in 2005-06 was 93,574.

HM Revenue and Customs estimate for 2006-07 anticipates the cost of collecting taxes in that financial year to be £4,122 million.

The number of staff involved in collected taxes and the associated costs for 5, 10 and 20 years ago can be obtained from the annual reports of HM Customs and Excise and HM Inland Revenue for the financial years 1985-86, 1995-96 and 2000-01. These publications—Command Documents 9831, 5, 230, 3427, 3446, 5304 and 5309—can be obtained from the Library of the House.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on plans for the future of the HM Revenue and Customs offices in Yeovil. [82888]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC have no plans at present to alter their presence in Yeovil.

Income Statistics (West Lancashire)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the income per head was in West Lancashire constituency in each of the last five years. [83549]

Dawn Primarolo: The latest estimates for the mean and median of total income (for taxpayers only) by constituency can be found in table 3.15 Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency on HM Revenue and Customs website http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu-by-year.htm#315.

The information is based on the latest surveys of personal incomes (2003-04 and 2003-04).

Because sample sizes at constituency level are small and estimates can demonstrate a large variability from year to year, inference from the information in the table for 2003-04 should take into account the confidence intervals in table 3.15a Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency, Confidence Intervals.

Similar information including non taxpayers is not available.

Income Tax

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the standard income tax reliefs are; and which attract relief at the (a) basic rate and (b) payer's marginal rates. [83801]

Dawn Primarolo: The standard income tax reliefs are the personal allowance, £5,035 in 2006-07, and the age related levels of the personal allowance, £7,280 in 2006-07 for people aged 65-74 and £7,420 for people aged 75 and over. All attract relief at the marginal rate.

Incomes (Tax Allowances)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the loss of revenue to the Exchequer would be if allowances against tax on incomes were raised by (a) £50, (b) £100, (c) £150, (d) £200, (e) £250 and (f) £300; [83799]

(2) what increase in tax revenue would follow from raising the standard rate of income tax by (a) two pence and (b) six pence at current levels of income and with no changes in the income tax allowances and rates. [83800]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested can be calculated from the figures shown in table 1.6 "Direct effects of illustrative tax changes" on HM Revenue and Customs website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/menu.htm.

The cost of changing the personal allowance or the basic income tax rate is proportional to the changes to allowances and rates provided in the table.

Inheritance Tax

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residents in the West Lancashire constituency paid inheritance tax in each of the last five years. [83548]

Dawn Primarolo: Figures for estates paying inheritance tax are not available at local levels.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review against his Department in each year since 1997; and what the (i) reason for the review and (ii) outcome was of each. [80167]

John Healey: Our records show that the number of occasions on which persons have written a letter before action or instituted a claim for judicial review against HM Treasury have been one each in 1997 and 1998, three in 1999, 0 in 2000, five in 2001, 0 in 2002, two in 2003, one in 2004 and four in 2005.

There were three applications for judicial review in 2005. Two of these were unsuccessful at permission stage and the other one was withdrawn on the basis of a settlement agreed between the parties. The former cases concerned the award of a waste management contract and a refusal to permit the payment of taxes into a separate fund out of which military expenditure is not paid. The latter case concerned the operating and financial review for public companies. It is not possible to provide similar information for cases in earlier years without incurring disproportionate cost.

The Treasury has been involved in other litigation since 1997 in addition to the cases mentioned but it is not possible to distinguish those further cases which were judicial reviews without incurring disproportionate cost.

Local Government Workers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the UK economy of the local government workers strike on 28 March. [82497]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Minimum Wage

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people aged (a) 22 years and over, (b) 18 to 21 years and (c) under 18 years are receiving the minimum wage in each (i) London borough and (ii) constituency; and if he will make a statement. [82934]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question to ask how many people aged (a) 22 years and over, (b) 18 to 21 years and (c) under 18 years are receiving the minimum wage in each (i) London borough and (ii) national constituency. (82934)

Estimates for the number of jobs paid at the minimum wage for Parliamentary Constituencies and Local Authorities are not available. However the Office for National Statistics (ONS) estimates the number of jobs paid less than national minimum wage rates for the United Kingdom and Government Office Regions. A guide to measuring low pay and associated articles and data can be found on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=5837&Pos=1&ColRank=1&Rank=272

Named Day Questions

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (a) how many named day written parliamentary questions his Department received in each of the last three years; (b) what percentage of named day written parliamentary questions his Department answered within the requested time limit; and (c) what the average delay was for those questions which were not answered within the requested time limit. [83214]

John Healey: Information in respect of (a) and (b) for the 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 sessions is given in the following table:

Session	Questions tabled	Percentage answered on the named day
2003-04	518	74.7
2004-05	287	79.4
2005-06	762	72.6

The information sought at (c) could only be calculated and related to the pattern of sittings of the House of Commons at disproportionate cost.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people his Department calculated as being liable for payment of national insurance contributions in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [83590]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on the estimated number of individuals making national insurance contributions is shown in Table CQY 1.0 on the Department for Work and Pensions internet website http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/dsu/contsandqualify/Conts_and_Qual_Years_tables05.xls

Official Visit (Nigeria)

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on which date the Prime Minister gave written approval for his trip to Nigeria on 22 May. [84093]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Arrangements were in line with normal procedures.

Orphan Funds

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the total amount of money held in orphan funds in banks and financial institutions. [82979]

Ed Balls: The term orphan funds can refer to unclaimed assets. The Government and the industry have agreed that the definition of an unclaimed asset should generally cover bank and building society accounts where there has been no customer activity for a period of 15 years as that will best identify those accounts that are genuinely unclaimed. On this basis, initial record searches by the industry suggest that several hundred million pounds may currently lie unclaimed.

Orphan funds may also refer to certain assets of insurance companies. The Treasury has made no official estimate of the value of these assets.

Pensions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what annual savings to 2012 he estimates would be made if the lifetime allowance for tax privileged pension savings was frozen at £1.5 million. [83071]

Ed Balls: As announced in Budget 2004 the lifetime allowance on the amount of pension saving that can benefit from tax relief has been set for years to and including financial year 2010-11.

The revenue yield is very difficult to estimate and the figures provided are, consequently uncertain. In particular there are consequences for transitional protection arrangements and scope for behavioural change. The estimate is based on the number of individuals constrained in their contributions to pension saving by the LTA.

If the LTA were fixed at £1.5 million for a further five years until 6 April 2012, we estimate reduced pension contributions would yield additional income tax of around £150 million, aggregated over five years. This estimate takes into account the estimated reduction in tax yields as a result of reduced pensions in payment these contributions would otherwise have funded.

Personal Finance Education

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the Treasury, the Financial Services Authority and the Department for Education and Skills will measure the effectiveness of personal finance education being introduced into the school curriculum. [83258]

Ed Balls: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority will monitor the effectiveness of personal finance education in the curriculum to ensure it remains current and appropriate for the needs of individuals and the nation. The FSA recently conducted a benchmark survey measuring the extent to which personal finance education is being taught in schools and the confidence of teachers in delivering it. This survey will be repeated every four to five years.

Population Statistics

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the population of (a) the UK and (b) each region of the UK is (i) under 25, (ii) between 25 and 34, (iii) between 35 and 44, (iv) between 45 and 54, (v) between 55 and 64 and (vi) over 65 years of age. [82922]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about what percentage of the population of (a) the UK and (b) each region of the UK is (i) under 25, (ii) between 25 and 34, (iii) between 35 and 44, (iv) between 45 and 54, (v) between 55 and 64 and (vi) over 65 years of age. Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the population of (a) Southend-on-Sea and (b) Essex was in each year between 1976 and 2005; what it is estimated to be in 2006; and what assessment has been made of the future trend. [83457]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about what the population of (a) Southend-on-Sea and (b) Essex was in each year between 1976 and 2005; what it is estimated to be in 2006; and what assessment has been made of the future trend. (83457)

Mid-2005 population estimates for England and Wales are due to be published on 24 August 2006. The attached table therefore provides the requested data for the years 1976 to 2004 and 2003-based projections for 2005 and 2006. In addition, projections for 2011, 2016, 2021, 2026, and 2028 are also shown to indicate future projected trend. These projections show a projected increase in population of 10.5 per cent for Southend and 13.7 per cent for Essex over the 25 years between 2003 and 2028.

Poverty, Chester

Christine Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he has taken to reduce poverty in the City of Chester since 1997. [84046]

Dawn Primarolo: The Treasury has, in partnership with other Government Departments, tackled poverty and promoted economic opportunity through:

Promoting macro-economic stability

Supporting work for those who can and ensuring that work pays, through the new deals, a national minimum wage and the working tax credit

Providing financial support for groups at particular risk of poverty, such as child Benefit and the child tax for families, and the pension credit for pensioners.

Across the UK, these measures have helped lift more than a million people out of poverty since 1997. Tax credits are benefiting more than 550,000 families in the north west region, and in the City of Chester, claimant unemployment has fallen by 48 per cent. youth unemployment has fallen by 63 per cent. and long-term unemployment has fallen by 85 per cent.

Public Appointments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many public appointments are within his patronage; what (a) salary and (b) other emoluments are attached to each; and what the comparable figures were in (i) 1976, (ii) 1986 and (iii) 1996. [83194]

John Healey: Details of the public appointments to bodies sponsored by the Treasury can be found in "Public Bodies", copies of which are in the Library. "Public Bodies" has been published annually since 1980 and the most recent edition provides figures for 2005. Each edition of "Public Bodies" contains details on the number of public appointments and remuneration details for that particular year. Comparable information for 1976 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Seasonal Workers

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of seasonal workers in (a) rural areas and (b) non-rural areas in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82031]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about seasonal workers in employment in (a) rural areas and (b) non-rural areas in each year since 1997. (82031)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of types of seasonal employment from the annual Local area Labour Force Survey (LLFS) and Annual Population Survey (APS). The urban and rural identifier is not available on the annual datasets.

The table overleaf shows the available data for the 12 month periods ending from 1999-2005.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Sickness Absence

Annette Brooke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many days work have been lost through sickness among staff working on tax credits in each of the last three years. [81479]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of sickness days taken by staff working in the tax credit office in the last three years is:

	Number
2002-03	56,345
2003-04	67,085
2004-05	69,060

The figures for 2005-06 are not yet available.

Suicide

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people committed suicide in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) age and (b) ethnic origin, in each (i) London borough and (ii) constituency; and if he will make a statement. [82959]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people committed suicide, broken down by (a) age and (b) ethnic origin, in each of the last five years in each (i) London Borough and (ii) national constituency. (82959)

Although information on country of birth is collected at death registration, ethnicity is not collected.

The most recent year for which figures are available is 2005. A table which shows the number of deaths with an underlying cause of suicide or injury/poisoning of undetermined intent by age group for each parliamentary constituency in England and Wales and for each London Borough for the years 2001 to 2005 has been placed in the House of Commons library.

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the costs of administering tax credits in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06 and (c) 2006-07; what the original spending plans were for each year; and if he will make a statement. [82833]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave him on 18 October 2006, Official Report, column 949W and 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 861W.

Tobacco

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what recent discussions his Department has had with the tobacco industry on introducing an anti-counterfeiting labelling scheme for tobacco products; [83128]

(2) if he will bring forward proposals for introducing an anti-counterfeiting scheme for tobacco products in the UK; [83130]

(3) to what extent he has examined technological solutions which other countries are using to tackle the trade in counterfeit tobacco. [83131]

John Healey: In a paper published at the 2006 Budget—"New Responses to New Challenges: Reinforcing the Tackling Tobacco Smuggling Strategy"—we announced that Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and the tobacco manufacturers would jointly be examining a range of practical measures that could be implemented against counterfeit cigarettes, such as covert markings. HMRC and the largest UK tobacco manufacturers have established a joint working group to identify the best means of detecting counterfeit tobacco products and preventing them from infiltrating the UK retail sector. As part of its work programme, the group has shared experiences of technological anti-counterfeiting measures introduced in other countries. Several possible solutions are now being closely examined by the group, with a view to informing the Government's decisions on the way forward.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the money lost to the UK Exchequer through the illicit trade in tobacco in the last three years. [83129]

John Healey: The most recent HM Revenue and Customs estimate of the money lost to the UK Exchequer through the illicit trade in tobacco is for 2003-04. The money lost to the UK Exchequer through the illicit trade in tobacco between 2000-01 to 2003-04 for cigarettes and hand rolling tobacco is given in Table 3.3 and Table 3.5 respectively of "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses-2005", published by HM Revenue and Customs in December 2005 and available from the House of Commons Library.

Under-age Pregnancy

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in each London borough in each of the last five years, broken down by age; and if he will make a statement. [82954]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 10 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in each London borough in each of the last five years, broken down by age. (82954)

(a) Numbers of conceptions to girls aged under 16 in each London Borough for the years 2000-2004 (the most recent year for which figures are available), are shown in the attached table. Figures for 2004 are provisional.

Conceptions are made up of pregnancies that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or termination.

ONS does not publish figures by single year of age below the age of 16 by either local or health authority because of the risk of disclosing individual's information.

(b) Numbers of maternities in each London Borough for the years 2000-2004 are shown in the attached table.

Maternity counts are for girls aged under 16 in each year at which either one or more live birth or stillbirth occurred.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time equivalent officers the Valuation Office Agency employed in 2005-06. [83007]

Dawn Primarolo: At March 2006, the Valuation Office Agency employed 4,850 full-time equivalent staff.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many press releases the Valuation Office Agency issued in 2005-06. [83008]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2005-06 the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) issued five press releases.

The following press release was distributed to media with national coverage:

7 June 2005—"VOA Appoints New Non-Executive Director".

The agency issued the following press releases locally:

2 February 2005—"Businesses in South West Warned to Protect Themselves Against Fraudulent Agents"

24 May 2005—"Business in Blackpool Warned to Wise Up on Appeals"

27 September 2005—"The VOA and Kerrier District Council Celebrate 25-year Working Partnership"

22 December 2005-"Support and Advice for Householders and Businesses Following Buncefield Explosion".

Additionally, where it is brought to the VOA's attention that there is a need to warn council taxpayers locally of bogus inspectors, they will issue a standard press release—"Alert for Bogus Council Tax Inspectors".

HOME DEPARTMENT

Drug Smuggling

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British citizens have been convicted of drug smuggling in (a) England and Wales and (b) abroad, broken down by country, in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82917]

Mr. McNulty: Information on British citizens convicted abroad is not available centrally.

Available data relates to persons found guilty at court or cautioned in England and Wales between 2000 and 2004 for drug trafficking offences. Trafficking offences include: possession with intent to supply, unlawful supply, unlawful production and unlawful import or export. Citizenship details of these offenders are not collected centrally.

Anti-drugs Initiatives (Departmental Funding)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding his Department is making available for activities to reduce the use of drugs among young people; and if he will make a statement. [82266]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has committed £55.3 million in 2006-07 alongside contributions from other Government Departments to support work on reducing young people's drug use. This includes the contribution to the young people's substance misuse partnership grant made available to local areas in addition to mainstream funds to deliver a comprehensive range of substance misuse interventions for young people; FRANK, the Government's drug awareness campaign, and the Positive Futures social inclusion programme which engages with young people.

Asylum Seekers

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to end the practice of transporting asylum seekers arriving in Northern Ireland to Dungavel dentention centre in Lanarkshire. [82021]

Mr. Byrne: There are no plans to change the current arrangements whereby individuals in Northern Ireland who are detained under Asylum and Immigration Act 2004 powers are transferred to a detention facility in Great Britain either on the day of detention or within 24 hours. In the majority of cases individuals are, initially, detained at Dungavel house immigration removal centre.

British Muslim Citizenship Toolkits

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British Muslim citizenship 'toolkits' have been dispatched by his Department. [71939]

Meg Munn [holding answer 18 May 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

The development of a British Muslim citizenship toolkit was one of the recommendations of the "Preventing Extremism Together" report published in November 2005 by work groups from the Muslim community.

The Government's view is that this toolkit should be developed by Muslim organisations with our support.

The Government are supporting individuals and organisations to implement the recommendations but responsibility for this lies with the Muslim community. Good progress is being made on a number of the recommendations and the Government are encouraging Muslim organisations to develop this toolkit.

Brothels

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) brothels and (b) massage parlours have been shut down by the police in each London borough in each of the last five years. [83691]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not available centrally. For the future, we are looking to introduce monitoring arrangements as part of the prostitution strategy.

Child Rape

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) minimum, (b) maximum and (c) average sentence was imposed for child rape in (i) Luton, (ii) Bedfordshire and (iii) England and Wales in 2005-06. [80367]

Mr. Sutcliffe: According to information reported to the Home Office, 339 persons were sentenced for rape of a child under 16 in England and Wales in 2004, the latest year for which data are currently available. Where an offender was sentenced for more than one offence the statistics relate to where this offence attracted the longest sentence. The average custodial sentence length, excluding 21 life sentences, was 93.9 months.

Minimum and maximum sentences can be affected by errors in the data reported or may reflect very specific circumstances for a particular case. For this reason we have excluded the 5 per cent. of cases getting the longest sentences and the 5 per cent. of cases getting the shortest sentence to give a more robust estimate of the typical range of sentences given. This shows that 90 per cent. of cases received a sentence of between 36 months and life.

Figures reported to the Home Office for Luton and for Bedfordshire were too small for the corresponding figures to be meaningful.

Child Welfare

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are followed to safeguard the welfare of dependent children when single parents with custody are given a custodial sentence immediately following conviction for an offence. [69945]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In the rare event that this situation arises, the court duty probation staff should offer assistance. In cases where they are not available, and court staff are made aware of an urgent child care need, an appropriate member of staff will contact the relevant children's services. Prison staff will also assist prisoners with any urgent issues on reception into custody, including child care. We recognise the need to strengthen such arrangements and the national offender management service will achieve this as part of the framework for the children and families of offenders which it is developing.

Colnbrook Detention Centre

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many detainees at Colnbrook detention centre were on hunger strike on 28 June. [83089]

Mr. Byrne: I am advised that Immigration and Nationality Directorate records indicate that, at Colnbrook removal centre on 28 June 2006, nine detainees did not take their evening meal that day and that there were five detainees who had refused to take the meals provided for three days or more. All were taking fluids.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on conditions at Colnbrook detention centre. [83090]

Mr. Byrne: It is Government policy that all detainees must be treated with dignity and respect. The operation of all removal centres is governed by the detention centre rules 2001 which are reinforced by operating standards. The Immigration Service and its contractors are committed to providing a safe and secure environment for all detainees. Detention is essential to effective immigration control and must be undertaken with humanity and dignity. Oversight of conditions in all removal centres is provided through independent monitoring boards. An IMB is appointed to all removal centres and members report regularly to me on the state of the premises, the administration of the centre and the treatment of detainees. Centres are also inspected by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Prisons and the comprehensive reports produced are used to produce auditable action plans to achieve improvements.

Similar action is also undertaken in response to investigation reports into any deaths that may occur in centres which are undertaken by the prisons and probation ombudsman.

Convention on Human Trafficking

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the UK will ratify the convention on human trafficking; what work remains to be done prior to ratification; and if he will make a statement. [83744]

Mr. Coaker: The UK is currently considering whether to sign the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Human Trafficking. In July last year a questionnaire was issued seeking information about the methods of support in place in other European Union countries. The responses to that questionnaire are now being analysed for evidence on how the automatic granting of reflection periods and residence permits to those presenting as victims of trafficking are operating in other European transit or destination countries where they have been introduced. A case-by-case approach, as operated in the United Kingdom, does not appear to be less effective at offering targeted support than these new approaches. The Government are examining how the convention's approach could best be harmonised with effective immigration controls. They are also considering responses to the recent consultation paper on a proposed UK action plan on trafficking in humans. We intend to publish this action plan in the autumn.

Mr. Coaker: The Department for Communities and Local Government is leading on issues relating to the Sexual Orientation Regulations. Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79938]

Mr. Byrne: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector. The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

Crime Statistics

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females (i) were found guilty of and (ii) pleaded guilty to complicity in or assisting (A) a suicide and (B) infanticide in (1) Tamworth and (2) the west midlands in the last period for which figures are available. [80134]

Mr. McNulty: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform shows that there were no convictions for aiding and abetting suicide in the West Midlands in 2004. Offences of complicity in or assisting infanticide cannot be separated from the offence of infanticide itself in the data held. However the records show that there were no convictions for infanticide in the west midlands in 2004. Had there been conviction data for the west midlands, we would be unable to provide a convictions figure for Tamworth constituency, as the data are not available at the level of detail required.

Figures for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006.

Daniel Dyakov

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will return the passport of Daniel Dyakov, Ref. No. D1054256. [82275]

Mr. Byrne: Daniel Dyakov's passport was returned by recorded delivery to his representatives, Summer Star solicitors, on 28 June 2006.

Deaths in Prison

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many deaths in prison have resulted from (a) natural causes, (b) accident and (c) self-inflicted injury in each prison in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82914]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested with respect to natural causes deaths and "other non-natural deaths" (which include accidents) in prisons in England and Wales, 2001-05, is shown in the following table. For the information with respect to self-inflicted deaths, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North-West Norfolk (Mr. Bellingham) on 20 March 2006, Official Report, column 122W.

Departmental Advertising

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many advertisements have been placed by his Department (a) in newspapers, (b) on the radio, (c) on television, (d) on billboards and (e) in other media warning those who do not comply with the law (i) of the possibility of (A) fines, (B) a prison sentence and (ii) that they are putting themselves and others at risk of personal harm in each of the last five years; and what the cost of such advertisements was in this period. [55266]

Mr. Byrne: To actually count the number of advertisements would not be possible since advertising campaigns are not purchased in terms of number of adverts—they are purchased in terms of what percentage of our target audience we expect to reach, or to a given budget level. However we are able to set out the level of total media expenditure in the following table:

Departmental Staff

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of (a) staff and (b) new staff employed in (i) his Department and (ii) each of the agencies for which he has responsibility were registered as disabled in each of the last three years for which data is available. [61377]

Mr. Byrne: The Cabinet Office collects and publishes annually statistical information on the civil service by Department. These include data on the number of staff in Departments who have declared a disability. Declaration of a disability is voluntary. The latest available information at April 2004 is available in the Library and on the civil service website and the following addresses: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/publications/xls/disability_apr04_4nov04.xls for data relating to 1 April 2004, and http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/archive/index.asp for previous reporting periods.

Home Office

In addition to the above data, the figures shown are available for the Home Office and are set out in the tables. Data has been taken from central HR systems unless otherwise stated.

Home Office Agencies

The UK Passport Service records staff who declare themselves as disabled. The source of its figures is the published employment monitoring reports for the years in question. New entrant disability data are not available for 2002-03 and 2003-04. In 2004-05 fewer than 1 per cent. of new entrants declared a disability

The numbers of public sector Prison Service staff over the past three years recorded as having a disability, and the total number of recruits to the public sector Prison Service who declared themselves disabled on entry during the past three years, are shown in the tables. There is no longer such a thing as a "registered disabled" person. Someone is said to have a disability if their condition meets with the definition contained in the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. A full re-survey of all staff was carried out in 2004, resulting in the increased numbers declaring themselves disabled after 2003.

Deportation

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the deportation of British-born children to foreign countries; and what the legal basis is for this policy. [80630]

Mr. Byrne: British-born children who are not British citizens may be deported under Section 3(5)(b) of the Immigration Act 1971 as family members of a person i) whose removal the Secretary of State considers to be conducive to the public good or ii) who has been recommended for deportation by a court. Deportation of family members is carried out in accordance with paragraphs 365-368 of the Immigration Rules (HC395).

Drugs

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will estimate how much of the heroin trafficked into the United Kingdom in each year since 1996 came from Afghanistan. [83138]

Mr. Coaker: Since 1996 we believe that the vast majority of heroin entering the United Kingdom each year has originated in Afghanistan. In recent years we estimate that it has accounted for more than 90 per cent.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total cost of (a) administrating and (b) buying allocations for each prison included in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme was in its first year of operation. [82739]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Only the Garth/Wymott prison complex currently comes within the EU Emissions Trading Scheme. The cost to the prison service during the first year of operation was £8,500 and no carbon certificates were bought.

Foreign Prisoners

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the 107 foreign nationals released from prison whose whereabouts are known to the Home Office should have been deported; and how many his Department has identified as living in Oxfordshire. [67209]

Mr. Byrne: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary updated the House on this matter on 29 June 2006 in a written ministerial statement, Official Report, column 18WS, and the director general of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote on this date to the chairman of the Home Affairs Select Committee on the number of cases where foreign national prisoners were released without proper deportation consideration. A copy of the letter has been placed in both Libraries of the House.

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the foreign nationals recently released from prison and recommended for deportation, broken down by (a) prison from which they were released, (b) date of release and (c) offence; how many have re-offended since release; and in how many cases current whereabouts are unknown. [67570]

Mr. Byrne: [holding answer 2 May 2006]: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary updated the House on this matter on 29 June 2006 in a written ministerial statement, Official Report, column 18WS, and the director general of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote on this date to the Chairman of the Home Affairs Select Committee on the number of cases where foreign national prisoners were released without proper deportation consideration. A copy of the letter has been placed in both Libraries.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals have escaped from open prisons in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82256]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the number of absconders who were foreign nationals could be obtained only by examination of individual records at a disproportionate cost.

Honours

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials currently in the Department received honours in the recent Queen's Birthday Honours List; and at what rank of honour. [5118]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 22 June 2005, Official Report, column 1059.

IT Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate his Department has made of the likely costs of implementing new IT systems arising from the options under consideration from the merger of police forces in the south-west. [82151]

Mr. McNulty: There is currently careful consideration of a number of options for the way forward for the south-west and each option will have differing implications for IT provision. Each option has been analysed financially in relation to both set-up costs and savings and the forces will be informed of this detail once a decision is made.

A joint Home Office, Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), Association of Police Authorities (APA) and Police Information and Technology Organisation (PITO) working group has been established to work in conjunction with police force project teams to ensure that all ICT requirements, and associated costs, are identified.

Knife Amnesty

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) serious and (b) fatal attacks were recorded by police during the recent knife amnesty. [83117]

Mr. McNulty: Recorded crime figures for April to June 2006 are due to be published in October.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knives have been handed in during the amnesty in (a) East Yorkshire constituency and (b) the east riding of Yorkshire area. [83610]

Mr. Coaker: Figures for the number of items handed in during the knife amnesty are being collected at police force level and will be released shortly. 17,715 items were handed in in England and Wales during the first week of the amnesty. We worked closely with ACPO to develop the arrangements for the amnesty, which was part of our wider strategy to tackle knife crime. We are also focusing on legislation, enforcement, education and prevention. We have brought forward provisions in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill that will raise the age at which someone can be sold a knife to 18; are introducing a new offence of using someone to mind a weapon; and giving head teachers powers to search pupils for knives. The Home Secretary announced on 19 June that he was giving very serious consideration to the suggestion that the maximum sentence for having a knife or blade in a public place should be increased from the current sentence of two years. Many police forces are undertaking tough enforcement operations, for example, the Metropolitan police's Operation Blunt and the British Transport police's Operation Shield, which uses search equipment to detect those carrying knives and other weapons on our transport network. We are also supporting educational initiatives that demonstrate to young people the dangers of carrying knives, and reinforce the message that carrying a knife can result in it being turned on you. Through our small grants programme, the connected fund, we are also supporting a wide range of local community projects which work with young people to provide mentoring, training, education and other support.

Labour Party Conference

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Greater Manchester police will be responsible for the interviewing of delegates, hotel staff and other associated workers in advance of the Labour party conference in Manchester. [84195]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 10 July 2006]: This is an operational matter for Greater Manchester police. I understand they are working with Labour party officials in the accreditation of delegates, hotel staff and other associated workers as part of their work to ensure the safety of those attending the event and the citizens of Manchester.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which private Members' Bills were drafted by his Department in each Session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [77770]

Mr. McNulty: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a private Members' Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Miscarriages of Justice (Compensation)

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his written statement of 19 April 2006, Official Report, columns 14-17, on miscarriages of justice (compensation), how much will be saved by the reforms to (a) the statutory and (b) the discretionary compensation scheme for victims of miscarriages of justice. [82061]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is estimated that in a full year savings of approximately £3 million could result from the changes that had immediate effect on 19 April (the abolition of the discretionary scheme, the assessor taking greater account of applicants' other convictions or any contributory conduct, and the payment of legal costs at legal aid rates). Full-year savings will take some time to accrue because of the number of cases that were already in the system prior to 19 April. Legislation to cap the maximum amount payable to £500,000; to enable the assessor to make deductions from both the non-pecuniary and pecuniary awards; and to reduce awards to nil in exceptional cases could yield further savings of some £2 million per year. It should be noted that the changes to the compensation schemes were not driven by a desire to make savings, rather to ensure that compensation following a miscarriage of justice is more proportionate to the level of injustice, to achieve a better balance with the treatment of victims of crime, and to make the system simpler and fairer, ensuring that applications are settled much more quickly than in the past.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many compensation claims for miscarriage of justice have been accepted under the discretionary scheme as a result of (a) serious default on the part of the police or another public authority, (b) complete exoneration, (c) judicial error and (d) other exceptional circumstances. [82334]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In the five-year period from 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2006, a total of 53 applications for compensation for miscarriages of justice were approved under the discretionary scheme. Of these, 40 were approved on the basis of serious default by a public authority, five on the basis of complete exoneration, four on the basis of judicial error, and four on the basis of other exceptional circumstances.

Offenders

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research the Department has undertaken on rehabilitation rates of offenders. [82761]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A number of interventions are made in custody and the community to support the rehabilitation of offenders. These include offending behaviour programmes, drug treatment, unpaid work and education and employment. There is robust evidence, originating mainly from north America, to support the effectiveness of offending behaviour programmes in reducing re-offending; the UK research is more limited and mixed. The evaluations to date of drug treatment programmes also suggest that these programmes can reduce re-offending. There is some evidence of employment schemes helping to secure employment for ex-prisoners and of basic skills training improving prisoners' skills. However, evidence on the extent to which improvements in these skills can lead to reductions in re-offending is still limited (Harper & Chitty, 2005). The current Home Office research programme includes further research on the effectiveness of a wide range of interventions aimed at reducing re-offending.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of offenders serving custodial sentences who re-offend within (a) one, (b) two and (c) three years of serving their sentence. [82762]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most recent information on the re-offending of adults in England and Wales was published in December as "Adult re-offending: results from the 2002 cohort". Home Office Statistical Bulletin 25/05". The report is available on line at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hosb2505.pdf and covers offenders starting community sentences or being discharged from prison in the first quarter of 2002. Table A5 provides information which can be used to calculate the number of offenders who re-offended within two years. Re-offending rates have not been calculated on a one and three-year basis for offenders released from prison.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what guidance he has issued to the probation service in the last 12 months on whether offenders on licence should be granted permission to travel abroad; [79597]

(2) what changes have been made in the last 12 months to regulations governing whether offenders under the supervision of the probation service may travel abroad; and if he will make a statement. [79599]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Probation circular 4/2006 sets out the revised policy in respect of determinate sentence prisoners who request permission to temporary travel abroad. A copy of the circular is available in the Library of the House. The circular requires the probation service to consider all applications to travel on their individual merits, and stipulates that such requests should not be granted if there are any concerns on grounds of risk. Permission should be granted only in the most exceptional circumstances and where the prisoner has demonstrated that the need to travel is so pressing that it must be given priority over the statutory aims of supervision.

Official Residences

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to sell or rent the empty official residence at Belgravia House; and what the estimated (a) capital and (b) rental value is. [83031]

Mr. Byrne: The future use of the residence is under consideration. The property was routinely re-valued on 1 April 2006 at £2.4 million. A full rental valuation has not been prepared.

Operation Pentameter

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many under 18-year-olds have been identified in recent raids by Operation Pentameter; and how many of these have been subsequently referred to the Poppy Project. [79231]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 21 June 2006]: Operation Pentameter rescued 12 minors aged between 14 and 17. None of these minors was referred to the Poppy Project as victims have to be over 18 to meet the criteria for the project. Three of the minors have been repatriated and the remaining nine are in the care of social services.

Opiate Products

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 815W, on opiate products, what assessment he has made of whether the Republic of Ireland's interpretation of the United Nations Single Convention on Narcotics of 1961 would permit the importation of oxycodone hydrochloride raw material from (a) the United States and (b) the European Union. [80574]

Mr. Coaker: None.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 815W, on opiate products, what assessment he has made of the restrictiveness of the interpretation of the United Nations Single Convention on Narcotics of 1961 within (a) the Republic of Ireland and (b) the UK. [80576]

Mr. Coaker: None in relation to the Republic of Ireland. For the UK the only assessment of the restriction of importation has been made in respect of codeine where importation has been restricted to 10 per cent. of the estimate of domestic consumption.

Parliamentary Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in (a) the Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [82358]

Mr. Byrne: Departments regularly deposit papers in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members and Peers. It is for Departments to assess the level of interest in a deposited paper and in cases where there is likely to be wider interest to provide sufficient copies of the document to the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office accordingly.

Departments are always happy to provide copies of deposited papers to Member and Peers on request.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will answer questions (a) 62603, (b) 62604, (c) 62605 and (d) 62606, on the occupants of registered aircraft landing at airports in the UK, tabled on 27 March by the hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk. [76890]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 June 2006]: I replied to the hon. member on 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1061W.

Parole

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for parole have been heard in each of the last five years; and how many of these applications were successful in each year. [79918]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following table gives the total number of releases of determinate sentence prisoners on parole, broken down by fiscal year, for each of the last five years, as set out in the annual report and accounts of the Parole Board for England and Wales 2004-05.

	Cases considered	Number granted[1]	As percentage of cases considered[1]
2000-01	5,576	2,584	46.3
2001-02	5,514	2,791	50.6
2002-03	6,012	3,175	52.8
2003-04	6,038	3,206	53.1
2004-05	7,297	3,794	52

[1] Excludes cases where the Parole Board's recommendation of parole was not accepted by the Home Secretary (as the Home Secretary is the arbiter of parole applications in respect of determinate sentence prisoners serving a sentence of 15 years or more) and those where the decision to allow parole was suspended before release

Police

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average response time is of police to emergency call-outs in (a) England and Wales and (b) Taunton constituency. [64064]

Mr. McNulty: Data on the time taken to respond to emergency call-outs is not collected centrally.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the cost of creating a West Midlands regional police force. [69977]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 10 May 2006]: The gross costs of merger are currently calculated at £57 million. There would be net set-up costs, after projected savings, in the first two years of restructuring. During the first five years of operation of the new force a net saving of £72 million is projected. The Government are committed to paying 100 per cent. of reasonable set-up revenue and capital costs of restructuring, net of reasonable savings.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding will be made available to support the merger of police forces in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [70884]

Mr. McNulty: The estimated set-up cost of a strategic police force for Wales is £35 million. We are committed to paying 100 per cent. of reasonable set-up revenue and capital costs, net of reasonable savings. The precise projected level of these costs and savings is a matter for negotiations currently taking place.

Long-term savings made possible by the merger are currently estimated at around £16 million a year.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why (a) levels and (b) the impact of tourism was taken out of the police funding formula; and if he will make a statement. [71703]

Mr. McNulty: Following the review, a new funding formula for allocating police general grant was introduced in 2006-07.

During the review, we concluded that the tourism indicator used in the previous formula was out of date. Alternative and more up-to-date indicators of tourism were considered, but we were not satisfied that these were reliable and therefore did not include them in the new formula.

Representatives from ACPO and the APA and the wider policing community were involved in the review. A full consultation on options for change took place last summer. All representations were fully taken into account.

Dorset benefited overall from the revised formula changes and their position was further protected by application of a virtually flat rate grant increase for all police authorities for 2006-07.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the net expenditure was on police per head of the population in (a) Devon, (b) Cornwall and (c) England in each year since 1999. [72794]

Mr. McNulty: The information is set out in the following table. Devon and Cornwall is a combined police authority and data on policing costs for the two counties separately are not available

	Devon and Cornwall			England
	Net expenditure[1] (£)	Resident population	Expenditure per head of population (£)	Net expenditure[1] (£)	Resident population	Expenditure per head of population (£)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his Answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 903W, on police, if he will collect data centrally on the numbers of (a) police officers and (b) other employees who have taken early retirement in each police force in England and Wales in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [73786]

Mr. McNulty: We do not currently collect data centrally on the number of early retirements amongst police staff and there are no comparable figures to collect in respect of police officers. In view of the operational requirements of policing officers may retire under the police pension scheme of 1987, which applies to those who joined the service before 6 April 2006, with an immediate ordinary pension after 30 years' service or from age 50 if they have at least 25 years' service. The only means by which officers can retire earlier than that with a pension is on the grounds of ill-health. The rate of ill-health retirements among police officers has fallen from 14 per 1,000 officers in service in 1997-98 to three per 1,000 in 2004-05. We will consider the case for widening the scope of the data we collect from forces in the way suggested by the hon. Member.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the net change in the number of police force posts following the creation of a single strategic force for Wales. [82368]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The business case for amalgamation of the four Welsh police forces, which was sent to the forces and police authorities concerned on 3 March, assumed no change in the total number of police officers in Wales .

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of police officers in each police authority area come from ethnic minority backgrounds. [83681]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is available in the "Police Service Strength publication as at 31 March 2005". This report was published on 25 July 2005 and is available in the Library of the House and on:http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb0106.pdf.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many former police officers are in receipt of injury pensions. [84116]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers (a) were recruited and (b) left the service in Yeovil constituency in (i) 2004-05 and (ii) 2005-06. [82136]

Mr. McNulty: Police personnel data are collected on a financial year basis by police force area. The latest information available is for 2004-05.

In 2004-05 Avon and Somerset police force recruited 139 full-time equivalent (FTE) police community support officers (PCSOs), and no PCSOs were recorded as leaving the force during this period.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints about police conduct and behaviour have been (a) submitted and (b) upheld in each police force in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82986]

Mr. McNulty: The data requested is not held centrally.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police pursuits of motorbike thieves have resulted in injury to the operator of the motorbike in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [82818]

Mr. McNulty: The data requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the mechanism will be for the equalisation of council tax precepts across Wales following the proposed merger of the four Welsh police forces. [67830]

Mr. McNulty: The new strategic police authority will be the precepting authority for the strategic police force. No final decisions have yet been taken on transitional arrangements to allow for convergence of precepts over several years.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in each police force have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for racism in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82929]

Mr. McNulty: The requested information is not collected centrally.
